FOR FIRST TIME SINCE PRE-WAR DAYS CANADA'S BUDGET WILL BALANCE

Intimation In Speech From Throne at Re-opening of Parliament—Government to Reduce Taxation on Instruments of Production—Will Appoint Board to Study Methods of Taxation.

Ministers Introduced.

OTTAWA, Feb. 29.—(Canadian Press).—A reduction of taxation aimed "primarily at reducing the cost of the instruments of production" and the appointment of a board to investigate and study the various modes of taxation, were the two chief items in the Government program announced at the opening of the tnird session of Fourteenth Parliament of Canada Thursday.

The opening was favored by sunny weather without, while within the Parliament Buildings there was a brilliant display of uniform and attire, to which the canopy of gold and maroon lent an added touch of color in the Senate Chamber, where his Excellency, the Governor General, Baron Byng of Vimy, read the speech from the Throne and declared Parliament open. There was a new reminiscence of other Parliaments in the wearing by the Speakers of both Houses of knee breeches, silk stockings and buckled shoes although the wig worn by the Speaker in the British House was absent. Another alteration noticed from the uniform of other years was the dressing of the pages in the House of Commons in a business like suit of black edged with green in place of the Eton jacket of former years. The Senate pages however, appeared in their customary uniform.

Budget Balanced.

In addition to the announcements indicated above, the speech from the Throne laid emphasis upon the efforts already put forth by the Goverment to secure strict economy and rigorous retrenchment, and the belief was expressed that the first time since 1912-1913 the National Budget has been balanced. The consolidation of the various taxation branches under one head was announced, and in regard to the St. Lawrence waterways the opinion was expressed that further inquiry was necessary before a final decision could be reachd.

An effort to secure a lower carrying charge on shipments of Canadian cattle and the removal of discrimination in ocean rates on flour and other Canadian products, were referred to, while the reintroduction of the Canadian Nation Branch Lines bill, killed by the Senate last session was also foreshadowed.

Formal Introductions.

After listening to the speech from the Throne, the Comomners held a short session in their own chamber and then adjourned until Monday when the debate on the address will be commenced. During the session in the Commons chamber three ministers were introduced to the House, Ton. T. A. Low, Minister of Trade and Commerce, Hon. E. M. MacDonald, Minister of National Defence, and Hon. E. J. McMurray, Solicitor-General. The re-election of these members to Parliament was rendered necessary by their acceptance of portfolios during the recess. F. L. Kelly, Liberal member for Cape Breton North in succession to Hon. D. D. McKenzie who was elevated to the Supreme bench of Nova Scotia, was also introduced. On the Conservative side of the House, W. A. Black of Halifax, and A. J. Doucet of Kent, N.B., took their seats. Mr. Black represents the seat formerly held by Hon. A. K. MacLean, now President of the Exchequer Court while Mr. Doucet succeeds A. T. Leger, former Liberal members for Kent, who died last Summer. The Speakers further announced the vacancy in the County of Richelieu, caused by the appointment of Hon. H. J. A. Cardin as Minister of Marine and Fisheries in succession to Hon. Ernest Lapointe, who took the place of Sir Lomer Gouin in the Department of Justice.

Sympathy Expressed.

Before the Commons adjourned brief references were made by the Premier and the Conservative and Progressive leaders to the loss the House had sustained by the death of Mr. Leger and to the absence from the House at present of Right Hon. W. S. Fielding and Sir Lomer Lomer Gouin on account of illness. The Premier stated that Mr. Fielding was most anxious to be able to continue to play his part; that he retained his old zeal but that his strength was insufficient. He could only hope that the breakdown the Minister of Finance had suffered would not be as serious as it was threatened and that in his advanced years he would enjoy the health and honor which his distinguished career deserved. Mr. King announced that Sir Lomer Gouin would very shortly take his seat in the House as a private member.

Mr. Meighen paid a tribute to the companionable disposition of Mr. Leger and to his fidelity to the interest of his constituents. He associated himself with the Premier in expressing regret at the fact of the indispostiion which caused the absence of Sir Lomer and Mr. Fielding. Mr. Forke, joined in the expression of sympathy with the family of Mr. Leger, and paid a tribute to the "ability and honesty of purpose" of Mr. Fielding, whose absence he described as a distinct loss to the House.

On motion of the Premier the House then adjourned until Monday.

In the Senate following the speech from the Throne, Hon. J. L. Cote, Edmonton, successor to the late Senator Forget was introduced. The Senate then adjourned till Tuesday.

Perth Uneasy With 10 Smallpox Cases

PERTH, Feb. 29.—(Canadian Press).—Several cases of smallpox have developed in the district and the local health authorities are taking every precaution to prevent its spreading.

During the past week ten cases have been reported and two of these have developed within the last 24 hours so that while the outbreak has not reached the stage of an epidemic by any means, still there is enough smallpox in the district to make the people uneasy.

The public school was closed at noon Thursday as a precautionary measure, and all scholars in the public school and collegiate who have not been vaccinated within a stated time are being vaccinated so that this should help the local authorities in their fight against the disease.

There is a plentiful supply of vaccine in town and the authorities are running a free vaccination.

Dairymen of Oxford Oppose Oleo Import.

WOODSTOCK, Ont., Feb. 29.—(Canadian Press).—At the annual meeting of the Oxford Milk Producers' Association here Thursday afternoon a resolution was passed after some discussion strongly urging the Dominion Government to take no action that would legalize the importation, manufacture and sale of oleomargarine in Canada, and instructions were issued that a copy of the resolution be sent to the Federal Minister of Agriculture and to the member of parliament for North Oxford.

ANGLICANS ASK LIQUOR CHANGE

The Saskatchewan Synod Recommends Vendorship or Referendum—To Assist in Sane Policy of Temperance.

REGINA, Sask., Feb. 29.—(Canadian Press).—By a standing vote of almost the entire Anglican Synod in session at Regina Thursday, the report of the committee on temperance subimtted by Canon Pratt was adopted. The report embodied a recommendation that in view of the deplorable conditions of the Saskatchewan Temperance Act and proved impossibility of enforcing such an act now rendered doubly difficult by the law in force in Manitoba and Alberta, that a resolution be submitted to the Government urging that a bill be presented providing Government vendorship of liquor, or, in the alternative an immediate referendum to the people of the province upon continuing the present legislation

His Lordship Right Rev. M. Harding of diocese of Qu'Appelle concurred in the resolution stating that the Synod should assist the Government in bringing about a sane policy of temperance in the province.

Migration Committees To Get Financial Aid.

LONDON, Feb. 29.—(Canadian Press Cable).—Replying to the House of Commons Thursday to a question William Lunn, secretary to the overseas trade department, said it has been decided as an experiment to financially assist county migration committees in Kent, Devon and Cornwall, but it was not intended to give financial assistance to other local migration committees until the result of these experiments were ascertainable."

LONG WORK OF MERCY.

COURT ACTIONS IN OIL SCANDAL STARTING SOON

Legal Proceedings May Be Instituted Next Week—Senator Lenroot Willing to Relinquish Chairmanship of Oil Committee—Labor Demands a Thorough Inquiry.

New Chapters Opened.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29.—Another engrossing chapter crammed with mystery and personnal emotion was added to the public records yesterday by the Senate Oil Investigators on the committee inquiring into the leasing of the Government naval oil reserves.

The characters in the story included such mysterious personages as "Apricots," "Peaches," and "The Duck," referred to in code messages exchanged between Edward B. ton Post, and his employees, during his visit to Florida.

Among the more striking passages in the chapter before it was completed was a dramatic appearance of Chairman Lenroot on the Senate floor to explain and defend his committee's course, and to announce that he would be glad to be relieved of the pressing duties of the chairmanship.

New Names Involved

As the day's story was unfolded, new names were brought into the inquiry, including those of Senators Curtis, of Kansas, the assistant Republican leader and Underwood of Alabama, a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, whose influence was sought in the effort to keep McLean off the witness stand.

Additional witnesses were summoned, among them A. Mitchell Palmer, Attorney-General in the Wilson Administration, who acted for a time as counsel for McLean in communication with the Oil Committee He was to be heard to-day.

The writing of more interesting chapters was arranged for by the investigators in their decision to have brought before them additional telegrams exchanged before McLean and others as well as messages that may have been sent to Albert B. Fall, J. W. Zevely, counsel for Harry F. Sinclair, and E. L. Doheny.

Further Excursions

As the investigators pusned their work forward, others in the Senate laid the groundwork for further excursions by them into the affairs of Doheny and Sinclair, and for investigation of charges that millions of dollars of the profits of oil companies have been diverted from the Federal Treasury.

Senator McKellar Democrat, Tennessee, introduced a resolution asking President Coolidge to forward to the Oil Committee the income tax returns of Sinclair and Doheny for examination as to possible furtner payments to Fall.

Inquiry into the charge that oil companies have escaped taxation under the discoveries' clause of the tax law was proposed by Senator King, Democrat, Utah. He asked that the resolution lie over, while that of Senator McKellar went over on objection by Senator Moses, Republican, New Hampshire.

Court Action Soon

From Senator Lenroot, the Senate learned that the first of the court actions in the oil cases would be started "very, very soon," while Owen J. Roberts of special Government counsel, stated later that unless unforeseen delay was encountered legal proceedings would be started early next week.

Organized Labor's demand for an "absolutely thorough" investigation of the oil scandal was voiced by Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, in a statement issued last night from Federation headquarters.

Visited Fall

Senate discussion of the oil scandal was precipitated by Senator Heflin, Democrat, Alabama who referred to published accounts of the visit Chairman Lenroot made to Fall at his hotel here before the former Interior Secretary sent his statement to the Committee that McLean had loaned him $100,000. The Alabama Senator's charge that such "secret conferences" between Republican Senators and those under suspicion were impeding the oil inquiry brought a statement from Senator Lenroot concerning the visit to Fall. Senator Smoot confirmed the statement given by Senator Lenroot and dramatically told the Senate he had never done a thing in all his life he was not perfectly willing "for every soul to know."

Ontario Firms in Month Hire 14,000

OTTAWA, February 29. — (Canadian Press).—Steady improvement in the employment situation since the first day of January in Quebec, Ontario and British Columbia is recorded by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. In the Maritime and Prairie Provinces employment declined.

Within a month, 14,000 persons have been added to the payrolls of Ontario firms which submitted reports to the Bureau. These were chiefly in manufacturing concerns. Increases elsewhere also were chiefly in manufacturing occupations.

LAND SELLING IN WEST FAILS

A. De Witt Foster Tells Montreal Kiwanis of the Colonization Association's Small Results In Trying to Attract Americans.

MONTREAL, Feb. 28. — Land selling campaigns to colonize western Canada were termed "doomed to failure" as regards attractiveness in the United States by A. De Witt Foster, ex-M.P. from King's Nova Scotia, and former superintendent of the colonization and development department of the Canadian National Railways at Chicago, who addressed the Kiwanis Club here on Thursday.

Action by the Canadian National Railways to bring settlers into Canada from the United States by these means was severely criticized by the speaker who also referred to attempts in the same direction by the Western Canada Colonization Association. Mr. Foster alleged that the latter body during its activities in the United States had brought to Canada 224 prospective settlers of all kinds and had made 34 sales, totalling slightly more than 5,000 acres. He stated that the cost of this operation was about $58,000 or nearly $12 an acre. He submitted that this experiment proved that the time was not opportune to colonize western Canada on a land selling basis.

FREIGHT CAR WAS FILLED WITH BEER

Inspectors Made a Surprising Discovery at Newport To-day.

NEWPORT, Vt., Feb. 29. — Because a freight car billed as hay, from Canadian points, to grain dealers in New York city, was suspiciously heavy when run on the scales to-day, United States Government inspectors investigated. They found and seized 21,000 bottles of beer and ale, stowed in 172 barrels, with only a thin veneer of baled hay in front of the car doors.

LABOUR GOVERNMENT WOULD EXTEND VOTE

LONDON, Feb. 29. — (United Press).—The Labor Government today moved the second reading of the so-called Private Members' Bill, which would extend the vote to all women 21 years of age instead of 30 as at present.

The effect of the bill would be to make the voting strength of men and women throughout the United Kingdom approximately 13,000,000 each. At present there are 21,000,000 voters, of which 8,000,000 are women.

7037 MAJORITY FOR HENDERSON

LONDON, February 29. (Canadian Press). — In the Burnley by-election yesterday, Arthur Henderson, Secretary for Home Affairs, received 24,571 votes against 17,534 for Mr. Camps, his Conservative opponent.

TWO ADDRESSES IN LEGISLATURE DENOUNCE O.T.A.

Col. J. A. Currie, Conservative, and Z. A. Mageau, Liberal, Urged Government to Prepare New Liquor Bills and Submit Them to the People Without Delay.

U.F.O. ATTACKED.

TORONTO, Feb. 29.—(Canadian Press).—Col. John A. Currie (Con. South East Toronto) and Zotique Mageau (Lib. Sturgeon Falls) continued the debate on the Budget in the legislature Thursday. Col. Currie attacked the O.T.A. He urged the government to frame bills for a new system of liquor control, and to have the people vote on them as soon as possible. If the people wanted the new method then the government could bring them into effect by order in council. Mr. Meageue attacked the U.F.O. and said its fall was due to politics entering into its business life, and because the farmer had been wrongly educated during the past five or six years by the U.F.O. leaders.

Col. Currie said that when United States was wet and Canada dry during war time that big export houses were maintained by U.S. firms on the border to ship liquor into Canada. He did not think that Canada now should spend large sums of money to prevent liquor going into United States. Col. Currie attacked Canadian newspapers claiming that they carried columns of United States propaganda The Toronto Globe, the Toronto Star and the Winnipeg Free Press he said were anti-Canadian papers.

Temperance Party.

Col. Currie said the Conservative party had always been the party of moderate temperance and had never got too far ahead of public opinion until the Hearst government adopted prohibition. He then urged the government to get new liquor legislation ready and have the people vote on the bills which if favored by the people could be put into effect by order in council without delay.

Should Balance Budget.

Mr. Mageau said that if the finances of a private business were handled like those of the province that it would be in the hands of a receiver. No other business would allow its treasurer to declare that he would have another deficit. They would make him balance accounts to get the money necessary for wiping out the deficit. He thought perhaps that the treasurer had something up his sleeve and he would not be surprised if the something was revenue from government liquor control.

Expect O.T.A. Change.

Seventy-five per cent of the people of northern Ontario he said were under the impression since the last election that some change was to be made in the O.T.A. Some hotel men had enlarged their hotels and were after licenses already.

"I think that if you give a straight ballot that 75 per cent of the people of the North will say they want Government control. The O.T.A. is a farce as it now stands. The people think they are going to get something else and it is up to this government to make its announcements and settle the matter.

"He suggested that there should be local option for those districts which wanted it. "We should know what the intention of the government is before we leave this House", he said.

Mr. Mageau claimed that part of the difficulties of the farmer today were responsible to the bad education he had received in the last few years. He had been told that he had been robbed and had gone into co-operative stores. These stores had simply become political committee rooms. He knew because he had invested in shares in a co-operative. It had been a good political investment he said with a laugh.

Funds For Politics.

Mr. Mageau charged that the funds of the U.F.O. co-operative had been used for political purposes.

"You had your government" he said turning to the U.F.O. group" "and made an awful fizzle of it. Let us be friends now. You are either Grits or Tories.

"Mostly Grits" said Dr. Jamieson (South Grey).

"Well I hope they are" replied Mr. Mageau "I am sure the Grits will come back to the Grits and the Tories to the Tories."

Mr. Mageau appealed for fairness in the treatment of Northern Ontario and urged the government to develop its great resources.

The debate was adjourned by Hon. H. F. Nixon who will speak Monday, when night sessions will start.

THE HINDU CARUSO.

Ali Khan, the only Hindu singer of Western songs, who will soon make his debut in London before coming to America for a concert tour.

CHILDREN TOO CHASE DOLLAR

Child Labor Rampant In United States, Says Methodist Minister—Toil At Night, Sleep In School.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Feb. 29. — Child labor is rampant throughout the United States, the Rev. Corado Riggio, of Jersey City, N.J., declared last night in an address before the annual council of cities of the Methodist Episcopal Church. The speaker declared that "one child in every twelve between the ages of ten and fifteen in the United States has to work," while "unknown thousands of others below the age of ten are engaged in some 'gainful ocupation.'"

He declared that 37 States let children work without even a grammar school education, and that only 13 States have laws which to a certain degree prohibit child labor. Nine States he stated, have no laws which stop a child under 14 years of age from working in shops and stores.

During his address the Rev. Mr. Riggio reviewed conditions in the tenement district of Jersey City last summer, which he said, an investigation by the Health Department disclosed 1000 children working at their homes till late at night with the result that they would fall asleep at their desks at school.

CANADIENS HAVE CORYZA EPIDEMIC

Stars of the Montreal Club Bothered With Colds In Head — Whole Team Doctored.

MONTREAL, February 29 (Canadian Press). — An epidemic of "colds" has struck the Canadien hockey club members, and practically every wearer of the red, white and blue colours was "under the weather" on this account yesterday, it was announced at the offices of the club.

Four of th players were suffering from colds in the head on Wednesday night when they played St. Patricks here. They were Sprague Cleghorn, Billy Boucher, Bill Coutu, and Howie Morenz.

Immediately after the match the whole team was "doctored" and given instructions by Managing Director Leo Dandurand to go straight to bed and remain there to day.

If they looked after themselves, it was expected that they would be "right" again for the game at Toronto on Saturday night.

THE WEATHER.

This morning as an ocular proof of the mildness of the climate on the Pacific Coast, I received a stalk of rhubarb, grown outside, in Vancouber, B.C. I was also told that the robins were making melody, and that all nature was exultant in its newfound life. That may be our experence in a month of six weeks, but at present our heavy mantle of snow seems reluctant to leave us.—W.P.

BLOW WHISTLE AND SKELETON WILL RECOVER

France Claims to Have Inside Track of the German Military Situation.

SEEKS REVENGE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29. — (United Press.)—"Blow a whistle and the skeleton of Germany would immediately recover skin, muscle, blood and nerves, the same as in 1914." General Bourgeois, a member of the Hollet Commission investigating military conditions in the Reich, declared to-day in an interview with the United Press.

"To abandon allied control of Germany would be a deadly imprudence," the French commander continued. "Fortunately the allies have understood this. We have undeniable proof of state, Germany is secretly re-organizing for revenge.

"She is instructing officers. She has Reichswehr troops more numerous than the Versailles treaty permits. She is furnishing them with the most modern armaments, rifles, machine guns, cannon and plenty of ammunition.

The Reichswehr is the frame of 21 German army corps. A whistle would call all ex-soldiers to join the existing companies, which are deliberately wearing the numbers of regiments of the old Imperial army."

WILL RETAI NCONTROL.

PARIS, Feb. 29. — (United Press.)—France will not tamely relinquish economic control of the Ruhr, as contemplated by the plan of the committee of experts.

This feeling is now being revealed, following Herr Stresemann's speech in the Reichstag yesterday, which is regarded here as being aimed to influence the experts in their decisions. Pertinax, who is the mouthpiece of a certain group of the Rights, or Militarists, says to-day that France is disposed to make great sacrifices for a general settlement, but she is certainly not resigned to giving up the instrument wherewith she is armed, namely, the Ruhr, without assurances. Military occupation must not be questioned, says the writer, who suggests an arrangement whereby France could retain a certain hold on the railway necessary for her military requirements.

The Petit Parisien, commenting satirically upon Stresemann's speech, says he has invited the experts to espouse Germany's cause.

MAKING MONEY MAKE MONEY

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments.

It pays for the average business man to check up periodically on small leaks in his organization, even though the unit cost of the articles may be less than a cent.

It may sound like over-doing efficiency to check up expenditures for printing, stationery, stamps and office supplies, but often times it proves profitable. Many large corporations spend over a million dollars on these small items and have an expert just to plug leaks in that department.

It is surprising what a difference in expenses it will make to have the stenographers turn their typewriter ribbons, use up short length pencils, and see to it that letterheads and rubber erasers do not get shoved back on a shelf or tucked away in a drawer and be forgotten.

It is just small savings like this that go to make up the favorable showing in the aggregate expense account, and the average business man cannot afford to neglect such savings.

OYSTER SUPPER AND CONCERT

The basement of St. George's Anglican Church, South Peterboro', was crowded on Wednesday night for the oyster supper and concert. The supper, consisting of oyster soup, meat, vegetables, pastry, cake and tea, was served from six to eight o'clock. Everything was done on such a generous scale and by such efficient helpers that expressions of appreciation were heard from all sides. The Mesdames J. Brownlee, A. Cuff, H. Rew, S. Parks, T. Monk, W. R. Andrews, James, R. W. Butler, W. Simmonds, Hopkins and Miss L. Blake. The wardens, Messrs. R. W. Butler and A. J. Arnott, supervised arrangements and rendered splendid service, ably assisted by Messrs. Archie Jackson, A. Cuff, L. Field, T. Park, S. Parks, A. J. Cole and H. Bourne.

Members of the congregation made generous contributions, and other donors were Messrs. G. A. Gillespie, J. Grady, T. Edwards, J. Jopling, A. E. Saunders, White and J. H. Bell. Mr. C. Coleman loaned the dishes for the oysters. All those responsible for the supper felt pleased at the success of their efforts.

A splendid concert, at eight o'clock, followed the supper. Mayor J. J. Turner occupied the chair, and on the platform with him were the rector and Mr. H. Rew, president of the Men's Club. Mr. Turner was in a very happy mood and in his opening remarks put the audience in the best of humour. The programme was as follows: Chairman's address, by Mayor Turner; vocal solo, "Flight of Ages," by Mr. George Chandler; recitations by Mrs. H. E. Connolly; instrumental selections by Messrs. Parkins, Taggart and Parkins; vocal solo by Mrs. E. Kitney; Scotch dance by Miss Thompson; vocal solo by Miss Edith Tucker; comic songs by Mr. C. E. Coleman; violin solo by Mr. Rusaw; baritone solos by Mr. Stazicker; comic songs (Scotch) by W. Thompson; recitations by Miss Hamilton; vocal solos by Mrs. H. F. Doig; comic song by Mr. Ketcheson; sword dance by Miss Thompson; dialogue, "Mind Your Own Business," supervised by Miss Blake and given by the Misses Allen, E. Parks, Thelma Blake, Messrs. R. Allen, L. Moore and D. Allen. The National Anthem closed the programme.

Accompanists were Mesdames Geo. Evans, R. Kitney, H. F. Doig, V. Allen and Mr. Bruce Quinn. The programme committee was composed of Messrs. H. Sowden, B. Quinn and Rev. Mr. Courage.

Solos by Mrs. Doig, Mrs. Kitney, Miss Edith Tucker and Mrs. George Chandler were all well rendered and much appreciated by the audience. Mr. Thompson with his Harry Lauder songs was a great favorite. Mr. Ketcheson, dressed for the part, was very funny in his Yankee songs, replete with dry humor, while Mr. Coleman was more appreciated than ever. Mrs. Connolly's readings were very pleasing and with their local allusions, appealed to the imagination. The little girl's dances were very graceful and her performance was one of the most pleasing portions of the programme. The dialogue, in two acts, was admirably presented. This was a feature of the children's concert last week and was repeated by request. The talent was of such varied aspect and high order that it held the attention of the audience throughout.

Just before the close of the evening, Rev. Mr. Courage thanked Mr. Turner for acting as chairman, the performers for their assistance and the audience for their patronage. A general invitation was extended to attend the basket social to be held under the auspices of the A. Y. P. A., on Monday next and to the birthday party by the Ladies' Guild on the following evening, Shrove Tuesday.

Mayor Turner, replying, expressed his pleasure at being present and said he had enjoyed himself very much.

WANTS DYNASTY REMOVED.

LONDON, Feb. 29 United Press. Republican army officers in Greece threaten to resign unless the Glucksbourg dynasty is removed immediately, acording to the Athens correspondent of the London Daily Express.

Efficient Housekeeping
The modern idea of economy extends into the household as well as into every branch of business. Most housewives pride themselves upon the fact that their homes are conducted in an efficient, business-like manner.
Every housewife knows, too, that the business of running a house, providing for the wants and needs of the different members of the family and meeting the almost daily emergencies is second to none.
The Want Ads. in the Examiner are a great boon to the efficient housewife. In securing helpers, in purchasing various articles of household equipment, disposing of discarded furniture, in fact in countless ways, the Want Ads. are the housewife's most valuable assistant.

MANKIND OWES TO CHILD THE BEST IT HAS TO GIVE

GENEVA, February 29 (Canadian Press). — The sanctity of childhood the world over was consecrated yesterday, when with solemn ceremony the so-called Declaration of Geneva, whereby mankind recognises that it owes to the child the best it has to give, was presented to the "Republic of Geneva" by the International Union for the Saving of Children.

This union has affiliated committees in Canada, Brazil, and the United States.

More than a million children in forty countries have been helped by the union in the past three years.

The declaration, reproduced on parchment in thirty-six languages, sets forth in five brief formulae, mankind's duty to the child, which "should be above all considerations of race, nationality, or creed."

These include the succoring of the orphan waif, a developing of the child materially and spiritually, the obligation to put the child in a position of livelihood, with protection against every form of exploitation, and the duty to educate child consciousness, that its talents may be devoted to the service of its fellow men.

EGYPT INDIGNANT WITH THE PREMIER

CAIRO, February 29. United Press —Noisy anti-British demonstrations here marked the second anniversary of Britain's declaration of Egypt's independence.

Students held mass meetings denouncing Britain's policies, and Premier Zaghlul was forced to address a crowd of demonstrators outside the Ministry of the Interior, begging them to disperse.

The crowds were particularly indignant over Premier MacDonald's declarations that the British government would continue the reservations previously made in regard to Egyptian independence.

SCIENCE DEMANDS UNIFORMITY.

Careful research made in recent years in the science of dietetics has shown the great importance to the human system of purity and uniform quality in foods. It is a great blessing that to-day so many delicious foods as well as tea and coffee can be procured in tins and sealed metal packages. "SALADA" Tea was one of the first pure food products to become widely popular in Canada. The flavor-preserving aluminum package keeps the tea fresh and delicious. Skilful blending maintains the quality absolutely uniform.

Represents Murdock at Labor Conference.

OTTAWA, February 29 (Canadian Press). — Hon. Phillippe Roy, Commissioner-General for Canada in Paris, has been appointed to represent Canada on the governing body of the International Labour Conference which opens in Geneva on 8th April next.

Owing to the pressure of Parliamentary duties, the Minister of Labour, Hon. James Murdock, will be unable to attend the conference.

Mrs. Henry McDonald

This Article Will Interest Every Mother !

Toronto, Ont.—"Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the greatest help in motherhood of any medicine I have ever known. I am the mother of six children and I suffered greatly each time except the last one, when I was advised to take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, which I did, and I got along just fine; felt well and strong and had practically no suffering, and had a grand baby, that has always been healthy. I regained my strength very quickly afterward. I was so thankful to have been advised of this medicine, it gave me such wonderful help."—Mrs. Henry McDonald, 3 Wilmot Avenue.

GERMANY NOT INVITED TO JOIN THE LEAGUE

Must Be Guaranteed Full Membership, Says Stresemann, Free From Humiliating Conditions—Hopes For Speedy Settlement in Occupied Regions.

BERLIN, Feb. 29.—Foreign Minister Stresemann spoke Thursday in defence of the Government's policy during a debate in the Reichstag on the special emergency ordinances which the Left Parties have attacked.

The Socialists are showing as much discontent as ever over what the Left Parties term the drastic and unreasonable use the Government has made of the Full Powers Act conferred last October.

Opening his speech, the Foreign Minister referred to the vacant diplomatic posts abroad and announced that it would be necessary to appoint a Consul-General to the Irish Free State owing to the unfavorable development of trade with Ireland.

Control Own Resources.

Expressing hopefulness of the results of the labors of the experts' committees, he said he would recognize how erroneous had been the assumpion that Germany had aimed at fraudulent bankruptcy. Alluding to reports that the experts would recommend an international loan for Germany, he remarked that Germany must have full control over all the economic and taxable resources of the state while the unity of the German railways must be restored.

Taking up the question of foreign participtaion in German industrial enterprises, Herr Stresemann could see no objection to foreign participation being represented on boards of directors of such enterprises provided they were not in a majority and that the business character of such representation was maintained.

He hoped a speedy settlement would be reached between French and German industrialists in the occupied regions because Germany would be unable to finance these agreements beyond April 15 and failure to agree might lead to an economic catastrophe.

Ready to Settle.

Expressing German readiness to settle the reparations problem, he said: "We cannot, however, conclude a separate peace with France, because we are the debtors of the Allied Powers, but we would welcome any activity of the Allied Powers concerning reparations which would take into account France's special financial needs."

In conclusion, the Foreign Minister said that no invitation to enter the League of Nations had been received in any responsible quarter, but should the question become acute Germany must satisfy herself whether guarantees would be given to treat her as a full member of the League, free from special or humiliating conditions, and whether, which was a matter of great importance for Germany, the League would be comprised of all nations, especially all European nations.

CONTROL OF RAILWAYS DISCUSSED BY EXPERTS

PARIS, Feb. 29.—The problem of the control of German railroads occupied the Reparations Experts Thursday. What they seek is a plan that will give a guarantee satisfactory to the Allies and at the same time to afford sufficient freedom of management to give German industries the service they want.

It is understood on good authority that the Germans have made no objections to the principle of control. The difficulty is, however, that for maximum railway service the Germans very likely will demand an adjustment of rates which might not be sufficient to furnish the guarantees for which it is proposed to pledge the railroad system.

Final Hearing.

Sir William Acworth, a British railway expert, and M. Leverve, a French expert, were heard for the last time on this subject yesterday. The fatc that they have finished their work is taken to indicate that a plan has been found for presentation to the Reparations Commission.

The same question of control came up in connection with the budget, the difficulty in this case being to devise an adequate control which would be entirely bereft of politics.

The fact that the experts are hearing Sir James Salter ,one of the Secretaries of the League of Nations, on the working of the plan for the financial rehabilitation of Austria, gave rise to some speculation whether the experts are not contemplating a control of the German budget by the League, similar to that exercised in Austria.

Suspect Prisoners of Bay City Bank Robbery.

SAGINAW, Mich., Feb. 28. — Three men are alleged to have been implicated in the robbery late today of the Polish branch of the Bay County Savings Bank at Bay City. They were captured near here an hour after the robbery.

The money and five revolvers were found in a coupe driven by one of the men. The two others who were in a large car a short distance ahead denied any conection with the robbery, but Bay City officers who trailed them after the robbery said that all three had been stopping at the same hotel.

CREW REACH SHORE.

SEATTLE, Wash., February 29 (Canadian Press). — The crew of 27 of the Norwegian steamer Tatjana, which drove on to the rocks early on Wednesday on the west coast of Vancouver Island, while trying to make the entrance of the Strait of Juan de Fuca from the Pacific Ocean in a fog, were safe ashore yesterday, messages received here related.

HASTINGS AND THE DISTRICT

New Ladies' Aid Society Formed -- Fire Department Had a Run.

HASTINGS, Feb. 29.—The ladies of the congregation of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church met in the basement of the church on Thursday afternoon and organized a Ladies' Aid Society. The following officers were elected:

President—Mrs. W. F. Fowls.
1st Vice-President—Mrs. (Dr.) N. E. Wilson.
2nd Vice-President—Mrs. Grover Kerr.
Secretary—Mrs. (Dr.) W. N. Campbell.
Treasurer—Mrs. A. E. Spooner.

Letter of Sympathy.

The following letter of sympathy was received by Mr. Wm. Preston, of Hastings, from the officers and members of L. O. L., No. 277, of which he is a member:

Dear Sir and Brother, — We the officers and members of Belmont L. O. L. No. 277, knowing of the loss you have sustained in the death of your beloved wife, wish to extend to you our deepest sympathy in this your time of sorrow. We feel that while you must do and grieve over the loss of a loving helpmate, yet your sorrow is not that of one who has no hope. You have the comforting assurance of one day being re-united with her who has gone before, to lay down her cross of suffering and take up her crown of rejoicing.

May the thought in the following verses be a help at this time:

"And death that ends this mortal strife,
Earth's loves and hopes so fond,
Is but the gateway into life,
The better life beyond.
In that bright realm where'er it be,
Above, beneath the sky,
We'll meet, from sin and sorrow free
And clasp each other's hand
And praise eternally, God's grace
In heaven's own summer land."

Yours fraternally,
Samuel Buck, W.M.
Howard Gardner, Sec.

A Chimney Fire.

The ringing of the fire alarm at 8 o'clock on Thursday evening caused a little excitement for a short time. A chimney fire at the home of Rev. M. L. Hinton was the cause of the alarm. No damage was done, the blaze being extinguished before the flames made any headway.

Congratulations are being extended to Miss Mary Fowlds in passing her junior examinations in music, which she tried at the recent examination held in the Toronto Conservatory of Music last week.

JUDGING CLASS AYRSHIRE STOCK

One of the Largest Classes Held In Seymour Township For Some Time.

BURNBRAE, February 29. — A class for training in the judging of Ayrshire cattle was held on Tuesday afternoon at Humeshaugh Farm, owned by Mr. Alex. Hume, breeder of Ayrshire and Yorkshires, of Seymour East.

It was one of the largest judging classes held in this district for a long time. A large number of the district, young and old, who are interested in high-grade Ayrshires, gathered for the class. Each one got ample opportunity to test his ability in judging. The educational value of the class was very great to those who were younger and had little experience of the points to be considered in judging an animal. They were instructed on the fine points by such experienced judges and reputable breeders of Ayrshires as Mr. Alex. Hume and Mr. William Stewart of the Menie Stock Yards.

A very interesting demonstration of the method of judging an animal was given by Mr. William Stewart. He took a representative cow from Mr. Hume's herd, and for the special benefit of the younger farmer lads present, who had not perhaps been to a judging class before, and to refresh the minds of the others, he pointed out the points of excellence in this particular animal. Then he took another cow, not quite so uniform throughout, but with many points of excellence. He showed the points of coincidence where they were equally good, contrasting them at other points where a difference was obvious, in this way clarifying his demonstration by the method of contrast.

Then groups of three cows or heifers were taken, and a number of men were assigned the task of examining them and placing them in what they thought to be the order of merit as is done in a judging competition at an agricultural fair.

The men who did the judging did exceptionally well. In most cases the best animal was rightly selected and placed first. Sometimes there was slight differences of opinion as to which should get the second or third place. This gave Mr. Stewart the opportunity of giving reasons why he would place one second and the other third in the line.

Messrs. Stewart and Hume, in reply to many questions that were raised gave the class much helpful information.

In addition to the class being helpful and instructive, it was a good social experience. The interchange of ideas and opinions of a group of men, bound together with a common interest, cannot fail to be mutually helpful. It stimulates, too, a wholesome rivalry in their special interest.

MASQUERADE AT IDA A SUCCESS

Many of the Young People of the District Appeared in Costume — Measles Outbreak in Cavan Village.

CAVAN, Feb. 27.—The hard times masquerade, under the auspices of the Young People of St. John's church, Ida, was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert McCamus, on Monday evening. It had been planned to have this social gathering on the previous Friday evening, but on account of the storm and drifted roads it was postponed until Monday evening. About seventy-five or eighty people were present.

Among those in costume were: Mrs. L. H. Winslow, school girl; Miss Ruth Sharpe, old-fashioned, fussy lady; Mrs. Tom Braithwaite, the old-fashioned mother; Miss Helen Staples, old maid; Mrs. R. Lippett, gypsy; Miss Luella Staples, sun bonnet lady; Miss Vivian Lough, witch; Miss Jessie Schafer, Indian maid; Miss Jean Lough, lady of 1870; Miss Marjorie Winslow, modern young lady; Miss B. McNeil, "Reindeer flour" lady; Mr. Beatty Fee, Rastus; Mr. Russell Earl, clown; Mr. L. H. Winslow, Aunt Eppie Hogg; Alf Hillier, Sambo; Roy Lough, farmer; H. Thomas, tramp; J. Vance, farmer; Eugene Touchburn, Uncle Sam; Tom McCamus, hayseed; L. McNeil, old Uncle Ned; Clare Winslow, young flapper; R. McCamus, "much travelled man of great adventures"; Sam Seeney, Mutt; H. McCamus, school boy; Allen Winslow, school girl. Several others had costumes, such as newsboys, school boys, etc.

The characters in costume, after a time retired to one room, while the unmasked guests went to another room where they voted on the different characters' claim to a prize. The following won prizes: Miss Ruth Sharpe, Alf. Hillier, L. McNeil and Jessie Schafer.

Games were played after which lunch was served.

Community singing was enjoyed for a short time.

A vote of thanks moved by L. H. Winslow, seconded by B. Fee, was tendered Mr. and Mrs. McCamus and family for the good time enjoyed.

All joined in singing "For they are jolliy good fellows," and the National Anthem, after which the party dispersed.

Miss Mary Harper, Peterborough, is visiting her aunt, Mrs. J. Paul.

Mrs. Archie Kennedy has been suffering from blood-poisoning in her hand. She scratched her finger with a needle. On Sunday it was found necessary to have the doctor and have it lanced.

On account of this, the social evening, which was to have been held at her home next Friday evening, is postponed.

Services in Basement.

The services on Sunday evenings are now being held in the basement of Cavan Methodist church, because the lighting system is out of order.

Mr. R. F. Wood had a bee on Monday, drawing the lumber and timber of the barn which he purchased at Hope. He had ten teams on Monday and six on Tuesday.

The Tuxis Boys of Cavan Methodist church intend holding a basket social March the seventh.

Meeting Cancelled.

The February meeting of the Cavan Women's Institute, which was to have been held Thursday, February the twenty-first, is cancelled. A meeting will be announced later for some time in March.

Mr. Valentine Roan is quite ill at his home in Cavan. He and his wife live with his daughter, Mrs. David White. His brother Dr. Roan, of Toronto, spent the week end with him.

Miss Lillian Pudsy returned on Saturday from visiting friends in Manvers.

Epidemic of Mumps.

Mr. Harry Braithwaite is ill with mumps, also other members of his family. There seems to be an epidemic of mumps in and around Cavan village.

A form of 'flu' accompanied by sore throat also seems to be prevalent.

Pitch Holes in Road.

Since the snow storm the gravel road is in a worse condition than before with pitch holes. It is really scarcely fit to drive on. It seems a pity that it should be in such a condition when men are paid to keep it fit for use.

Mr. F. Cann, Peterborough, is visiting Mr. Mr. Armstrong and other friends in Cavan.

Mr. Charles Smith was awarded second prize on his heavy draught team at the Millbrook horse show.

VICTORY FOR GROVE.

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 29. — Grove School Juniors defeated T.C.S. Juniors of Port Hope here yesterday by the score of 10-2, in a fast clean game. The score by periods was 3-1, 7-1, and 10-2. Clayton Ridpath refereed.

VILLAGE SMITH AT CODRINGTON IN OLDEN DAYS

John Sutherland, Cousin of Ex-Reeve J. A. Anderson of Campbellford, Was Carriage - Maker Before Factory Age Hired Men in Herds—Died at 83.

WORK STILL LIVES.

Campbellford, February 29. — J. A. Anderson, ex-reeve, has received word of the death at Codrington, of his cousin, John Sutherland, who passed away at his home there on Wednesday night, aged 83.

The late Mr. Sutherland came from Scotland, over 50 years ago, and settled in Codrington. He was a blacksmith by trade and in partnership with his brother William opened a carriage making shop in the village. That was in the days when a flourishing industry was to be found in every village and hamlet in the province. The vehicles manufactured by hand by the Sutherland brothers, enjoyed a wide reputation for durability and fine workmanship, and some of the wagons and sleighs which they turned out are still used by the farmers of the district. The large factory in which they operated is still standing, one of the ancient landmarks in the village.

On the death of the brother William, some 30 years ago, James, the surviving member of the firm, gave up the carriage making business and for some time successfully conducted a store in Codrington. He later purchased a farm, but sold it when obliged to give up active work on account of his age. Since that time he has lived quietly in the village. He enjoyed good health up to this winter and was only a few days in bed before his death.

The late Mr. Sutherland enjoyed the confidence and esteem of a large circle of acquaintances and was noted for his integrity in all his business dealings. He was a prominent member of the Orange order and in politics was noted for his independence, voting as he did for what he believed to be right regardless of party. In religion he was a Presbyterian and in early life was a member of the church at Warkworth, but he severed his connection with that congregation when instrumental music was introduced in the public worship, and for 30 years had not been inside the building.

Every year he circulated a subscription list to secure funds for the Sick Children's Hospital, making a liberal donation himself.

He was never married, but of late years his widowed sister, Mrs. W. Stapleton, and her daughter, made their home with him.

The funeral will be held at two o'clock, Saturday afternoon, to the cemetery at Warkworth.

Is Recovering.

W. G. Fraser, who has been so seriously ill that his life was despaired of, a report of his death having been current in the town, is now making favorable progress, being able to sit up for a short time each day.

To Entertain Firemen.

Captain Hyland, manager of the Regent Theatre, has invited the members of the volunteer fire brigade to attend the theatre as his guests Friday night, when the picture, "The Midnight Alarm," will be shown. This dramatization is based on an incident in real life, one of those holacusts in which many lives were lost, and others saved through the heroic efforts of the fire fighters.

The Board of Education failed to draw a quorum for the regular February meeting, Thursday night, only seven of the 14 members being present. Those in attendance were: D. W. Douglas, John Hall, Dr. Richardson, J. Benor, J. M. Arnold, J. L. Hoover and J. Jeffs. Trustee Hall volunteered his services as a scout and went out into the night to round up the eighth member required to make a quorum but returned empty handed. It is likely that Chairman Loucks will call a special meeting to pass the monthly accounts and to dispose of other business that has accumulated.

Curling News

MILLBROOK, Feb. 29.— The final game in the second round in the inter-rink competition for the Allen cup was played on Tuesday evening, W. T. Wood and J. Steele being the opposing skips, the former winning by a score of 14-6.

Rink No. 8 W. T. Wood, skip L. C. Russell, H. J. Grassett, and D. Fowler become the winners of the cup which will be formally presented probably at a gathering specially arranged for the purpose some evening next week.

The series of game between the president and vice-president began on Thursday evening.

EAST EMILY MAN SUCCUMBED TODAY

Had Back Broken When Threshing Machine Fell on Him.

OMEMEE, Feb. 29.—Mr. George Mills, who resides three miles east of Omemee, and who yesterday had his back broken when a threshing machine fell on him, died this morning at 3 o'clock. Dr. A. Moir attended him last night and found that he also had his collar bone and several ribs broken. When the accident occurred he had plenty of time to get out of the road, but was so dumfounded that he couldn't move. After he was pinned to the ground it took ten minutes to get him from under the machine. He was rushed to the home of George C. Franks, nearby, where he died this morning.

MARY O'BRIEN SERIOUSLY ILL

May Not Be Able to Testify at the Inquest

ORLAND, Feb. 29. — Mary O'Brien, the unfortunate young girl, who has been so much in the limelight here recently was taken seriously ill yesterday with inflammation; Dr. Rundle of Brighton was called. She is in a serious condition.

Provincial Office, Cousans of Cobourg came to Orland yesterday and served the O'Brien girl with two subpoena to appear in Cobourg as a witness; on for Saturday to testify in the trial of Mike Ash, on a charge of stealing chickens from Keith Montgomery. She was also summoned to appear in Cobourg Monday to testify at the trial of Ash and her mother, Florence O'Brien, on the bigamy charge.

If the girl is too ill to go to Cobourg her evidence may be taken here.

FAVORS THE LASH.

TORONTO, Feb. 29.—Detective-Inspector Wallace brands "Red" Ryan a "plaster hero." He says the remission of lashes will encourage crimes of violence.

THE SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA.

The Peterborough Symphony Orchestra is to be congratulated upon the success of its initial programme and upon the very favourable impression made by the organization at last night's concert.

There is a place for such an orchestra in the city—in fact, an addition of this kind to Peterborough's musical organizations has been long overdue, and should be heartily welcomed by the many local people who want to hear good music.

The conductor, Mr. Rupert Gliddon, the officers who launched the orchestra and have guided its destinies since its inception and the individual members who by their own talent and their faithfulness in the matter of rehearsals all deserve a share of the credit for the very marked progress that has already been made.

A symphony orchestra is more than a musical organization; it is as well an education primarily for its own members, and in nearly as great a degree for the public generally, for the value of good music cannot be over-estimated so far as its influence and effect are concerned.

Peterborough will look forward to hearing many fine programmes from its Symphony Orchestra and will wish for the latter a steady and persistent progress, commensurate with the enthusiasm of its executive and members.

THE USE OF THE LASH.

Mr. Justice Enright of Montreal has, in the Examiner's opinion, contributed something towards the suppression of the crime wave in his emphatic declaration that in future he will sentence all desperadoes found guilty of robbery with violence against the person to be whipped, in addition to imprisonment.

And just to show that he meant what he said, he added twenty lashes to the sentence of a criminal convicted of brutally attacking and robbing a citizen on the street.

The lash may be brutal, but it is effective, and in dealing with the modern type of bandit ordinary methods will not suffice.

The gunman of today has no scruples about employing violence and very little hesitation about shooting.

Bank messengers and clerks have been shot down by crooks who did not give them a chance for their lives.

Criminals of that type must be fought according to their own rules, and if the use of the lash is going to stop robbery with violence and save a lot of law-abiding citizens from being wiped out by the guns of the bandit gentry, by all means let the lash be administered.

Mr. Justice Enright is justified in the policy he has announced.

Those who callously injure their fellow-beings cannot complain if organized society declares that they too must suffer bodily punishment as well as imprisonment.

COMMON AS LEAD PENCILS.

The Examiner has frequently urged the prohibition of the manufacture of revolvers as an effective method of keeping these easily concealed and deadly weapons out of the hands of the criminal class.

It is interesting to note that a bill has been introduced into the United States Senate by Senator Royal S. Copeland of New York to prohibit the importation of revolvers into the United States and placing an excise tax of $1.00 each on every revolver manufactured within the Republic except for export purposes.

The bill would have the same effect as prohibition of manufacture, as the proposed levy would tax the revolver out of existence.

It is not surprising that the measure is meeting with much approval, having been endorsed by international police conventions and by the American Bar Association.

William McAdoo, Chief Magistrate of New York, who helped to draft the measure, says that pistols are as common in the United States as lead pencils. "There are more people in the United States carrying pistols or possessing them than in all the rest of the world," he declares, "and there are more shootings and killings with revolvers in the United States than in all the countries of Europe, Asia and Africa."

Conditions in Canada, fortunately, are not nearly as bad as they are across the line, but there are far too many revolvers in this country, and criminals do not seem to have the least difficulty in arming themselves.

The Copeland bill may not carry, but it has a wide measure of public opinion behind it.

THE DRIFT ACROSS THE BORDER.

It is easy to get discouraged over Canada's immigration policy when a stop is made to consider the exodus from this country into the United States.

The cold figures as given out by the United States Bureau of Statistics are disheartening.

They show that during 1922 62,289 Canadians became residents of the United States, while in 1923 this figure was nearly tripled, 178,000 Canadians crossing the border, and up to the present 60,000 have gone since New Year's.

This year's record is expected to surpass the huge total of last year, and it will not be surprising to find that the total for 1922, 1923 and 1924 will be not far short of half a million people.

That is an enormous drain upon the citizenship of this country.

It is not being offset by immigration and the worse of it is that the majority of the people who have left have been native-born Canadians while the immigrants who take their places have to be trained along Canadian lines and given the Canadian viewpoint.

The drift across the border calls for the attention of the Dominion Government.

The reasons should be analyzed and some effort made to remedy the conditions responsible for this desertion.

Otherwise our immigration officials will be merely helping to build up the United States at our expense.

TOO MANY LAWS.

Addressing the American Law Institute, United States Secretary of State Hughes said that "one of the curses of America was its multiplicity of laws." "The right of self-government," he said, "we have vindicated. Where we fall down is in inexpertness which is most manifest in respect to the explanation of the authority of the Government and the laws of the land. Because of the multiplicity of laws, overlapping and conflicting, we have prolixity, uncertainty and confusion."

Canada's Parliament, opening this week, might ponder these words, says the Ottawa Journal. For they are very nearly as applicable to Canada as to the United States. In recent years, indeed, we have seen our statute books mount into mountains, with laws concerning this, that and everything, until the average citizen, bewildered by it all, is never quite sure that he isn't a prodigious transgressor. Nor is it merely the number of laws that is the cause of confusion. It is the badly drawn laws; those ignorantly drawn and those drawn in compromise, with ambiguous phrases that pass on the difficulties which Parliament and the Legislatures fail to settle, to the courts, which in turn have to discover a legislative intent when there was no clear intent except to satisfy clamor or to evade the question.

Mr. Hughes pointed out what seems an anomaly. He said that all lawyers admit that the needless multiplication of statutes is a great mischief, yet lawyers make up the majority in nearly every Legislature. What is the answer? It is that the real urge derives from the people, or from some noisy section of the people. Every political wrong, real or fancied, every social grievance, every accidental occurence, prompts citizens to exclaim that "there ought to be a law about it." Then there is the agitator. He may be merely a fanatic, he may be but one of those persons who think that morals can be legislated into people, or he may be a mere publicity hound; no matter. He will start a clamor, he will get unthinking people to get up a petition he will bombard Parliament; and, in due time, the law-makers, vote-sensitive, will introduce a law. And so the process goes on, until the public, ignorant of the law, breaks the law, and comes to disrespect the law.

The Journal would like to see a holiday from law-making. It would like to see Parliament discriminate between the clamor of the few and the opinion of the many, and cease turning out statutes which are not desired by the majority of our people. It would make for less confusion, it would take a lot of useless litigation out of our courts, and it would make enforcement of vital laws infinitely more easy.

PROHIBITION IN ONTARIO.

During the year there will be a referendum in Ontario to determine whether or not the system of prohibition shall continue. This was what the country in the general election was led to expect. If it be true that the bulk of the opponents of prohibition voted for Conservative candidates it was not because Mr. Ferguson gave any pledge that the Ontario Temperance Act would be repealed. In so far as prohibition was an issue the Drury Government, like the Hearst Government, was defeated by that element among the electors who are against any administration which leans towards the prohibitionists. The position of Mr. Ferguson and many of his candidates was that prohibition was established by vote of the people and that only by vote of the people could the law be repealed.

There is reason to think that the Government will not go further than to order a referendum. It will not declare for or against continuance of the system of prohibition. This, however, was not the attitude taken by the Hearst and Drury administrations. Sir William Hearst and his Ministers entered the campaign of 1919 as frank allies of the prohibitionists. In 1923 Mr. Drury and his colleagues did likewise. Both Governments were not only signally but disastrously defeated. Yet in both elections a majority of the candidates returned gave unequivocal pledges that they would oppose modification or repeal of the dry legislation.

The facts go to sustain the reasoning of Mr. Taft as to the situation in the United States. He suggests that there is a body of electors with whom the liquor issue takes precedence of all other considerations. They believe a "dry" law infringes upon personal freedom, that such a law cannot be enforced because it brands a social habit not wrong in itself as a criminal offence, that a law which the people will neither observe nor respect tends to bring all law into contempt, and that such legislation breeds lying and perjury, creates illicit trading amazing in extent, and widely and deeply demoralizing in its consequences. Among this uncompromising element are many people of high character and sincere conviction, as there are many others who have neither character nor conviction, but combined the two elements constitute a formidable force in politics, because they vote to accomplish a single purpose and oppose any candidate who gives support to the system which they will not accept.

In Ontario this class of voters is strong enough to defeat Governments, but it is by no means certain that they can defeat the law to which they are so resolutely opposed. It will probably be found, therefore, that the Ferguson administration will not take the course that was taken by the Hearst and Drury Governments. It will leave its candidates or even its Ministers free to support or oppose prohibition and will promise only to do its best to enforce the law if a majority of the electors declare for a continuance of prohibition.

A referendum the Government cannot refuse. Overwhelming as is now its support in the Legislature, it could not hope to carry byelections or survive a general election if it took ground against a plebiscite. It is significant that two of Sir William Hearst's Ministers—one of whom is again in the Legislature—are urging a vote of the people and insisting that it was the intention of Sir William Hearst himself, after a trial of prohibition under normal conditions, to again consult the voters in a referendum.—Sir John Willison in the Montreal Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Now Mr. Nickle claims that Mr. Doherty had his figures twisted. Well, somebody has.

Those cheers you hear come from Municipal Councils acknowledging the receipt of a bill from the Government for their share of highway construction.

The MacDonald Government has won out on a Poplar, if not a popular issue.

Balancing a budget nowadays calls for juggling dexterity seldom seen off the vaudeville stage.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

EDITORIAL.

They want a gumless week along with rougeless week. We claim gum has its place, even if this place isn't under the chair or table. Put a big wad of gum in a girl's mouth, and she won't talk quite so much. But we do need a "no gum the works" week.

SPORTS.

A stadium seating 115,000 will be built for the Wills-Firpo bout. Why not keep it as a place to spank people who laugh at their neighbor's colds? This should draw a capacity crowd.

JAIL NEWS.

SOCIETY.

In Baltimore, a woman got 15 days for biting a policeman. Of course she wasn't that hungry. Perhaps she just couldn't resist an officer. Our advice is never bite an officer unless he bites you first. If he pinches you this is a different matter. Don't pinch back.

TEAPOT NEWS.

FARM PAMPHLET IS TOO FUNNY.

Since investigations are all the rage in Washington, Dan Dobb demands another. In a farm bureau pamphlet we read: "Hens are being vaccinated for chickenpox." Perhaps the small bantams are being vaccinated for smallpox.

Ducks of course should be vaccinated by quacks. We don't know why unless it would be for flat feet. Maybe you would vaccinate a flivver for the ague, or a steel trap for the lockjaw. This should be investigated at once.

BOOZE NEWS.

THE WHOLE FAMILY WAS LAID UP WITH SEVERE COLDS

On the first appearance of a cough or cold our advice to you is to get rid of it before it has a chance to grow worse; gets settled on the lungs, and causes bronchitis, pneumonia, or other serious lung troubles.

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup will immediately relieve the cold or cough on its inception.

Mrs. David Ayres, Kearney, Ont., writes: "Our whole family was laid up with severe colds ,and we didn't seem to be able to get any relief from anything we used until, one day, a friend came in and told me we would be sure to get rid of our colds if we used Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. I decided to take her advice, and in no time our colds were all gone.

"Now, knowing the value of your remedy, we will always keep it on hand so as to have it in case of emergency."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is 35c a bottle; large family size 60c; put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

Day of Prayer Will Be Observed Next Week — Personal Mention.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 29.—The Day of Prayer for all Protestant Women's Missionary Societies, Dominion wide, will be held for the town societies, in the Parish Hall Rear street, on Friday afternoon, March 7th 1924 at three o'clock. The ladies of town and surrounding country are urged to be present and fill the hall.

The Methodist church choir had an enjoyable evening on Tuesday night, at the home of Mrs. J. A. Irwin. Mrs. Irwin and Mrs. Wood invited the choir for the evening and the whole evening was enjoyed. The wives and husbands of the members were also present. There was a musical contest, where the answers were played by Mr. R. T. Cowell. There was also an advertising contest where the answers were advertisements of different articles in the papers and magazines.

Another event which caused much merriment among the men was the goat they had to ride, but which was kept a secret. A chair was given away to the member drawing the luck number. The number drawn by Miss Harriet Potts was the lucky one and the chair was presented to her. This chair was donated by one of the choir members. This created a lot of fun as it turned out to be a doll's chair. After a lot of music by the choir. The hostesses served a very dainty lunch.

After singing for they are "jolly good fellows" and "auld lang syne" the merry company returned to their several homes. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Irwin and Mrs. Wood. on motion of Dr. H. O. Richardson and R. T. Cowell.

The next Band Concert by the 40th Regiment Band will be given on Sunday night, March 2nd in the Regent Theatre at half past eight. The following is the program, by the kind permission of Lieut. Col. Boggs:

March, "Hamiltonians" by R. B. Hall, Band.

Hymn 'Onward Christian Soldiers' Band.

God Save the King.

Major J. M. Bygott, chairman.

Miss Calder of Norwood, is visiting at the homes of Mrs. Thos. McCook, Grand Road, and Dr. Lillian Young, Sebastapool street.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Helson of Kincaide, Sask., are visiting at the homes of their uncles, Mr. Albert and Ernest Bonney. They have just returned from visiting in Montreal.

Mr. Thos. Oulton, barber on Front street, took a slight stroke, while alone in the shop, on Monday morning about ten o'clock. He managed to call J. A. Loucks, drug gist and he sent for the doctor. He was taken to his home on Grand Road. He is slowly improving, but not able to go to business.

Mrs. J. L. Irwin, Front street, has been very ill with pneumonia, but is recovering.

Mrs. G. A. Kingston, Frank street, ois visiting friends in Toronto

Mrs. A. L. Malcolm, Sebastapool street, is spending a week in Toronto with Mrs. Anson Walker.

Miss K. Oulton has been ill for over a month but is slowly improving.

Mrs. R. Bibby entertained her Sunday school class on Tuesday from four to nine. They spent the evening playing games after which their hostess served lunch and all enjoyed the evening.

Mrs. R. Fry also entertained her class of girls at her nome on Tuesday night. They all report a good time. Games were played and then a dainty lunch was served.

Mr. John Bateson of Seymour, sold his stock and farm implements on Thursday afternoon. Mr. Battisby was the auctioneer. Mr. Bateson and family intend moving into town

Mrs. Naylor of Madoc came on Tuesday to see her father, Mr. Thos Oulton who is ill and is remaining for a time.

Mrs. Chas. Benor had an afternoon tea on Wednesday afternoon. About forty ladies were present.

Mrs. (Dr.) G. A. Hay entertained a few of her friends on Wednesday afternoon and all enjoyed the social time and the dainty lunch served to them by Mrs. Hay.

SPLITTING HAIRS ON SUNDAY SALES

Windsor Novelty Shopkeeper Charged With Selling Candy — Purchased By Policeman.

WINDSOR, Ont., Feb. 28.— The difference between tweedle-dum and tweedle-dee was explained in police court here to-day by the Crown Attorney when George Osterhout, keeper of a small shop, was arraigned on a charge of violating the Lord's Day Act. A policeman testified that he purchased a quarter's worth of candy in Osterhout's shop on Sunday. Explaining the fine points of the law, the Prosecutor said it was quite proper to purchase cigars or candy on Sunday provided they were consumed at a table where a small meal has been served. Should the customer, however, carry his purchases outside the store, consume them on the street or take them home it would constitute a violation of the Act.

The case was laid over.

MONTREAL AIMS FOR EXHIBITION

Quebec Assembly Passed Bill For Proposed International Exhibition — Misgivings Expressed.

QUEBEC, Feb. 28.—The Quebec Legislative Assembly to-day passed a bill of the Montreal International Exhibition without division, though after many expressions of misgiving as to the possibilities.

Hon. Mr. Caron, Minister of Agriculture, said that a good exhibition would be a good thing for the province and for Canada, but in the meantime there was too much time and energy being spent on exhibitions and it might be better if the money so spent was entirely devoted to agriculture.

He said he must declare himself against a big international exhibition in Montreal when the promoters did not dig down into their own pockets and subscribe. Exhibitions often meant deficits of fifty per cent.

An address by Mr. Sauve, Opposition leader, calling for copies of all correspondence exchanged between C. H. Cahan, K.C. and the Prime Minister since the beginning of 1924 respecting the trial of Adelard Delorme and the administration of Justice in the Province of Quebec, was called for, but before the motion could be made, Speaker Francoeur ruled, on a rule of the House, that that it was illegal to discuss matters bearing on the case before the courts at the present time.

The song the reformers sing seems to be made up wholly of refrains.—Washington Post.

SPECTATORS AT DELORME TRIAL ANNOYED JUDGE

Outburst of Laughter At Statement of Witness Severely Scored—Crowd Warned of Ejection For Slightest Interruption—New Evidence Adduced.

FRANKLIN CAR SEEN.

MONTREAL, Feb. 29.—Severely scoring an outburst of tittering by the spectators in the court room on Thursday during the trial of Rev. Adelard Delorme, Mr. Justice Martineau declared that if the slightest manifestation of the kind were repeated he would have the court cleared and he would allow nobody in for the remainder of the trial.

It was during the cross-examination by Alban Germain, K.C., counsel for the defence of Edouard Depocas, a new witness in the case, that the incident occurred. Depocas had testified that he had seen a man dressed like a priest and wearing a Roman collar driving a Franklin automobile, which is the make of car owned by Father Delorme, at two in the morning of the day the murder was committed. While he could not describe him as to full face he thought that from a profile view he looked much like the accused. He was, however, unable positively to identify this man with the accused. Mr. German asked the witness if he had noticed any points on the Roman collar.

" ARoman collar has no points," replied Depocas, "it is round all around."

At this there was considerable tittering and a few outright laughs from the spectators.

Mr. Germain at once protested. "There is nothing to laugh at," he cried indignantly.

"My Lord," he added, addressing the court, "I was about to ask that on repetition of any such scene in the court that the court be evacuated at once."

"You may be assured," said Mr. Justice Martineau, "that at the first sign of any manifestation of this kind, I shall order the spectators put outside at once."

Looking From Window.

Depocas stated that he had given a party to some fifteen friends on the night of January 6th and seventh and was seated at his window overlooking the street car tracks after they had left at an early hour of the morning of January 7.

It was about two o'clock in the morning of January 7, that he had seen an automobile run along the tracks for thirty or forty feet and slow down immediately opposite his window. A man dressed like a priest was driving and there was another man in the rear of the car "who drew back as if to hide himself when he saw me looking."

Depocas was subjected to severe cross-examination by Mr. Germain. He said he had only spoken of the matter to detective Lajoie and a friend during the Delorme trial last summer.

"Were you told that you would be taxed as an expert witness and given $10 a day?" asked Mr. Germain.

"Yes, I tried that," answered the witness.

"Do you ever mix up in elections, Mr. Depocas?" was another question put up by Mr. Germain.

"Yes, when it pays," was the reply.

"And to 'telegraph' pays I suppose?"

"Yes, sometimes," answered the witness with a broad smile.

Finding of Body.

Eusebe Lorrain and J. Higginbotham, civic employees, testified to finding the body of Raoul Delorme near a little shack at Snowdon. The blood stained quilts which are found tied and pinned about the victim's head were produced in the witness box. Lorrain and Higginbotham had found the body at 6.30 in the morning of January 7, 1922.

During the morning session several witnesses declared they had seen a Franklin automobile during the night of January 6-7, 1922. None of them, however, was able to identify the accused as the man driving the car.

SNOW BLANKET COVERS FRANCE

Storm Reaches to Riviera and Spanish Capital Is Isolated — Transportation Services Stalled.

PARIS, Feb. 29.—(Canadian Press).—All of France is mantled in snow, the storm having extended even to such regions as the Riviera and to lower Brittany. The Weather Bureau last night forcast a continuance of the snowfall.

Two earth shocks were reported Thursday from the Saint Gaudens regions in the Pyrenness. So far as it is known little damage was done.

MADRID TIED UP.

MADRID, Feb. 29.— (Canadian Press)—Madrid is cut off from the north of Spain and from Barcelona owing to a heavy snowfall. Trains leaving Madrid Thursday were compelled to return. The mail service ceased altogether.

At Barcelona the fall was so heavy that the street car service was stopped and telegraph and telephone traffic interupted.

At Bilbao traffice of all kinds ceased.

Reports from the Provinces report a severe cold wave and say that many ships are endeavoring to find entrances to the ports through the storm.

FRENCH REGARD VOTE HOSTILE

Belgian and British Socialists' Relations Commented On By Paris Paper—No Friendly Neighbor.

PARIS, February 29.— The view point of the governmental morning newspapers that the defeat of the Belgian Premier, Theunis, does not mean hostility to France, fails to be supported by the afternoon papers.

Now that Wednesday's debate in the Belgian Chamber has been more fully published, the Temps abandons such a view entirely.

La Liberte connects activities of Emile Vandervelde, leader of the Socialist deputies, with his visit to Premier Ramsay MacDonald immediately after the British Labor Ministry took power.

Several other papers emphasize that the departure of M. Theunis leaves France isolated, she not having a single friendly neighbor.

Switzerland's friendship with France has been interrupted by the zone question.

MEN! TAKE THIS HOME TREATMENT; REGAIN STRENGTH

Stop Worrying and Create Red Blood, Nourish Your Nerves and Be Strong Again.

Remember how strong you used to be; how steady your nerves were; how your vitality responded to every call you made upon it? Then do not be discouraged even though you are now weak in body and your nerve power seems exhausted. BRITAIN PLANS WORLD WIDE WIRELESS WEB

Imperial Committee Recommends All Empire Stations Be Placed Under Control of British Post Office — Canadians Are Excluded.

LONDON, Feb. 28. Canadian Press —The British Post Office Department should own and operate all the empire wireless stations in Gt. Britain, so the imperial wireless committee recommends in its report to the government on the matter of the empire wireless chain. This does not apply to Canada however, and the existing competition between the British post office and Anglo-Canadian wireless company, wil be continued, subject to the safeguarding of the public interests in any license granted in connection with the Anglo Canadian service.

In any wireless license granted to a private company the state must reserve the right to take possession or exercise control of stations in an emergency, the committee recommends.

World Range Stations.

It is further recommended in the committee's report that the Leafield station should be enlarged; that the new high ower tation which is now being built at Rugby should be extended to a 16-mast station; and that a second new station of similar capacity should be erected without delay. Each high-power station, the committee states, should be of world range and equipped with the latest apparatus.

If necessary full advantage should be taken under the patents and designs act by which the Crown can acquire the use of all patented inventions useless for wireless, the report says.

The British post office should establish an improved business organization, the report says. The present terminal wireless station at Cairo should be removed from the empire system as soon as the requirements of the admiralty can be met by other stations and the proposed new high-power stations in India, South Africa and Australia are operating.

Wireless for Colonies.

There should be a good wireless system for the colonies in order to complete the empire network of wireless communications, the committee suggests. Private enterprise should be given facilities to develop wireless communication outside the empire, subject in the case of Anglo-Continental services to the payment of royalties.

In view of the competition between wireless and state owned cable services the committee expresses the view that there should be free competition in foreign wireless subject to the state reserving the right to expropriate, take possession or assume control in case of a national emergency.

Was Constipated For Several Years

If you have suffered from constipation for years, tried all kinds of remedies without getting relief, if you have been subject to all the miseries associated with constipation, wouldn't you consider it a blessing to be able to keep the bowels regular and in a good healthy condition and prevent disease getting a foothold on your system?

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are indicated just for this purpose; their regular use relieving the worst cases of constipation.

Mr. M. Hedican, Sudbury, Ont., writes. "I have been troubled ith constipation for several years. I began to use Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills and find them to be the best remedy I have ever used for regulating the bowels and liver. I always keep them now and recommend them highly."

GAVE ADDRESS ON NORTHLAND

Keewatin Diocese Covers a Vast Area—Omemee News

OMEMEE, Feb. 29.—The congregation of Christ Church was highly honored on Sunday evening in having with them at the evening service Bishop Dewdney of the vast missionary diocese of Keewatin.

Some idea of the vastness of Keewatin Diocese may be gathered from the fact that it reaches right across Canada from North to South, a distance of some 1600 miles. Beginning at the northern boundary of the United States it passes northward along the western shore of Hudson's Bay, its western boundary being determined simply by the limits of human habitation, in this instance within some five or six hundred miles of the north pole.

In this district with an area of over 400,000 square miles there are, it is estimatd some 8,000 Indians and some 3000 Eskimos, besides a growing number of white settlers in Western New Ontario. At present there are only sixteen clergy at work and only four parishes are self-supporting. Upon the Church of England rests the responsibility for carrying on this work amongst the natives. Poor and ignorant though they are, for them also Christ died.

The Bishop said in conclusion that although of necessity somewhat slow, the work is a very real work and the results gained, especially amongst the Eskimo, give every promise of being permanent.

Next Summer the Bishop hopes to reach the limits of his Diocese northward to a people who have not yet seen the face of a missionary. These Eskimos are living 80 degrees north latitude. About July, the supply ship is expected to visit the Police Post in this far off and terribly isolated part of our own Dominion and in that way it is hoped that the message of the church may be brought to those in heathen darkness lying.

A large congregation listened earnestly to the most interesting address, which was ably give by the Bishop. Mrs. Hume contributed a vocal solo in her usual splendid voice.

Miss K. Menzies of Peterboro was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Ivory over Sunday.

Mr. Morley Black spent the week-end with friends in Millbrook.

Mr. Miller of Peterboro was a business visitor in town recently.

Mrs. B. Hume was a visitor to Lindsay on Monday.

Mr. F. W. Daville of Toronto was in town on business Tuesday.

Mr. Havelock Fee of Peterboro transacted business in town on Monday.

Mr. William Skuce of Mount Horeb was in town on business, Monday.

A deputation from the Omemee Council will go to Toronto on Thursday to interview the government in regards to making the main road through here connecting Peterboro to Lindsay a provincial highway.

Mr. Layoie of Peterboro was in town on business Monday.

Miss G. M. Meredith visited friends in Lindsay on Wednesday evening and attended the Dumbells in "Rapid Fire."

Mr. William Earle and a number of friends at afternoon tea on Wednesday in honor of Mrs. Burns of Chicago.

Mr. Simpson of Toronto was in town on business Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Hurd and Mr. and Mrs. Burrett, are taking up housekeeping in the old Methodist parsonage which has been vacant along with a number of other houses since early fall

For the past week many lovers of sport are taking advantage of the splendid snow-shoeing and skiing afforded and all claim the foundation to be at its best.

WARSAW WILL NOT FORGET THE SNOW

Everything From Church Services to Hockey Games and Mail Services Was Disorganized.

WARSAW, Feb. 28. — Charles Foster and Allan Hendren have gone to Kingston to attend the short course in dairying.

Mr. A. T. Choate went to Toronto Saturday to hear the Mendelssohn Choir and visit his eldest son for a few days.

David Drain, Garfield Crowe, Jas. Dalton and Alex Calder were in Peterborough on the jury last week.

Stage Held Up.

The stage to Peterborough did not get out of Warsaw on Tuesday until Friday morning. Charles Storm got as far as Douro by noon. He did not return until Saturday, when he brought four days accumulated mail and the jurymen.

Henry Clements and Wm. Davis went to Peterborogh Tuesday in Mr. Clement's motor-sleigh and were storm-stayed, not reaching home until Saturday. Mr. Clements had to leave the motor.

By Saturday the roads were pretty well broken some places. It is said the tracks are on 10 feet of snow. The snow is deep even in the fields, and there are hillocks of snow in the open crossings, lanes and going-through gaps, and the snow is very deep.

Lumbering Held Up.

There is no crust whatever, and in the woods the horses' feet go to the bottom, making work in the woods almost impossible, owing to the great depth. Many have been forced to stop getting out their wood supplies, because they cannot work in such a depth. The snow is so dry it will not pack, even by drawing heavy logs over it.

Franklin Jory and son brought their sawing outfit down from North Dummer where they have been operating for some time, to Warsaw on Tuesday. Wednesday's storm kept that day's sawing back. On Thursday they started work, but it was a common thing to see a man with a frozen cheek, nose or ear. Sawing operations are suspended for a short time.

Mr. Alex. Watts braved the roads to Peterborough on Saturday. Mr. W. H. Clements returned with him. He was upset on the road home, near E. Dewart's. They had some difficulty getting righted, but no damage was done.

The Busy Bees Mission Band was not held on Saturday, owing to the bad roads.

Bad roads caused a second postponement of the Presbyterian Ladies' Aid social, to have been held on Friday evening, this time indefinitely.

Methodist Church Sunday evening was rather sparsely filled. Rev. F. G. Weir took a very interesting Bible study.

Rev. Mr. Cox did not come. His people phoned him not to try the trip. Pastor Chorley came from Indian River. The morning service at the Presbyterian Church was fairly well attended.

Enthusiasm is running quite high over the hockey team. On account of the roads, not so many were able to go to Lakefield on Friday evening.

THE SOLE SURVIVORS.

CHICAGO, February 29. — Knife grinders had a lot of competition in the good old days, 25 years ago. Yet it was a profitable business for many a one. To-day only two remain to ply their trade in Chicago's Loop district. But there is more than one restaurant and club that saves its cutlery for the old timers to put into condition.

HEARTS AFIRE

The Brilliant Novelist of Modern Society

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY

Prudence Page—a pretty country girl has fallen in love with

Bert Traymore—a fascinating philanderer whom she meets by chance.

Janet Mercer—Prudence's 28-year-old friend, plain, but genuine, is a trained nurse and masseuse to the delicate child of Mrs. Vinsittart—a good-hearted, woman-of-the-world, owner of beautiful Winston Towers, a charming country home. She invites Prudence to a garden-party at the Towers, where the girl meets Virginia Dale—a blase beauty, who senses in Prudence a possible rival. Her rudeness causes Prudence extreme humiliation and she is rescued from her embarrassing position by Traymore. They slip away from the party, and Traymore, assuring her of his love, kisses her.

CHAPTER VI.

A Poacher's Audacity

"You have no right to do that sort of thing! No right at all!"

It was a new Prudence speaking. She had drawn herself away from the man's embrace, and definite rebuke was in her tone. Did he really think she was the sort of girl who could be treated lightly? Well, she'd just show him . . . .

Young Traymore had the grace to look a little awkward. He had not expected any reluctance on her part. Even now he wondered if she wasn't pretending . . .? Girls didn't usually rebuff him.

"I'm frightfully sorry. Sorry if I've offended you, that's say so. I couldn't be sorry for the other thing. It was too wonderful!"

Prudence rose, as though to put an end to the discussion.

"We'd better go back. Mrs. Vansittirt will think it odd if we don't." She was astonished at the semblance of composure she had summoned up.

Inwardly, her heart was hammering madly. But not for worlds would she let this spoilt young man guess the tumult he had caused.

"Oh, come, be merciful!" He rose, too, and put a half-apologetic, half-protesting hand upon her arm. "Have I not said I'm sorry? What else can I do to show you that I mean it?" (What an absurd fuss about a kiss! And really, she had encouraged him, right up to the last moment? Illogical creatures, women! This one was very young, of course—a mere flapper. But not quite so green as he'd thought her!)

"Mrs. Vansittart will expect—"

"Oh, bunkum!" He was beginning to be quite annoyed. "Our hostess doesn't give two hoots what her guests do, so long as they enjoy themselves. And—come—confess you and I were enjoying ourselves in the most harmless manner up to the time of my little error of judgment!"

"I don't think enjoyment is to be found in—in insincerity." Prudence was wavering. He was so attractive . . . and the "joie de vivre" of this sweet afternoon in spring was on her.

"And who's been insincere? Not I, fair lady! I meant that kiss."

A little thrill ran through her veins like molten fire. And yet—and yet—she must pretend she wasn't in the least bit touched—she must not seem too "easy."

* * *

They strolled along beside the rippling brook. Forget-me-nots were growing by the water's edge, and in a quiet backwater a mother bird was teaching her young brood to swim. The whole world seemed young and gay and beautiful.

"It would be cooler in the woods," suggested Traymore, steering his companion through a little clearing toward the pine-trees. It smelt very fragrant here, and bluebells grew in wild profusion. Prudence plucked a sheaf of them and thrust them in the loose sash of her frock.

She wished this fascinating young man would talk about himself. What did he do with his life. What was his business or profession? She contrived to put a query to him.

He was rather vague.

"I've been in Florida for some little time. My father gave me an allowance." (A "remittance man," was he? Prudence's heart contracted.)

He went on:

"The life was far too hard. I tried fruit-farming for a bit. Loathsome and back-breaking experience! So I chucked it, and came home. But it was awfully difficult to get a decent job after the war. So the 'old man' gave me ten thousand for capital, and off I went to Texas.

"Yes?" inquired his listener, much engrossed in the recital.

"I sank all my cash, and some more that I'd borrowed, in cattle and tobacco. The cattle died, and the tobacco crop was an absolute fizzle. Hence the prodigal returned, minus career and fortune!"

Prudence's heart was touched. It was too awful to see the boys who had fought so gallantly in the Big Show so "up against it" now. Unemployment was rife. Jobs were at a discount. It was the irony of fate that, having battled to make the world a safer and a happier place, they themselves should be paying the penalty.

"But it's no good grumbling," continued young Traymore, sauntering through the fragrant woods beside her. "Life's really a sort of merry gamble. I'm not worrying."

"Does your father still make you an allowance?" The girl's cheeks flushed after she'd put the question, "calculating" as it sounded.

"Oh yes. The old duffer's quite a decent soul, in his way. I don't do at all badly. His name's good in the street, and my tailor gives me heaps of credit. And I play the market quite a bit."

What did that mean? She was to be enlightened.

"Buying on margin, you know. Flights on the stock-exchange. Nosedived rather badly last week, but I'll soon make it up. Besides—" —his eyes shone—"I've just been put on to an awfully good thing. Expect it'll make a fortune, though it's crammed full of risks. You can guess what it is, if you read the daily papers."

"Indeed, I can't guess," said Prudence quickly. "Won't you tell me?"

"My dear girl, don't you realise that the two most powerful countries in the world are quarrelling over a point of law which involves tremendous business—" Here he broke off. "But I'm not going to bore you with money-making schemes on a perfect day like this." (Gad, he'd only just pulled himself up in time from giving the show away—and there was no knowing if she was trustworthy! To think that any girl could make such a fool of him!)

They were both quite happy after that. Young Traymore made himself extremely charming.

As they neared the trout-pool, Traymore gave an annoyed exclamation.

"Jove! That chap poaching again! He has the devil's own impertinence! I'll teach him a lesson!"

Prudence's gaze followed her companion's stride in the direction of a tall, shabbily-clad young man who—complete with rod and fishing tackle—was "casting" from the bank with an air of intense absorption. A disreputable pipe projected from one corner of his mouth. His grey flannel suit had evidently seen much service. Down over his eyes was drawn a weather-stained and shapeless hat.

Traymore strode up to this young man and peremptorily addressed him. The "poacher" listened quietly, then said something which Prudence, standing well behind the pair failed to catch.

Traymore's voice grew louder and more insolent. The young man shifted his fishing-rod to the left hand, still puffing at his pipe, and listening coolly to the tirade.

Then, suddenly, his patience evidently at an end, he swung his right fist to the other's jaw, and—splash!—Traymore the immaculate went head over heels backward in the water!

HELP KIDNEYS BY DRINKING MORE WATER

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys and Help Neutralize Irritating Acids.

Kidney and bladder irritations often result from acidity, says a noted authority. The kidneys help filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it may remain to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread; the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is often one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Begin drinking lots of soft water, also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast. Continue this for two or three days. This will help neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer are a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs, which then act normal again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by acid irritation. Jad Salts causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink which may quickly relieve your bladder irritation By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

Whiskey in Hotel Sets Proprietor Back $200.

WINDSOR, Ont., Feb. 29.—(Canadian Press).— Charles Stephens, proprietor of the Stephens Inn, Sandwich Street East, was fined $200 and costs in police court yesterday when he pleaded guilty of having liquor at the hotel illegally. Stephens said the whiskey seized was not for sale, but he would take the responsiblity.

"Hotel-keepers must learn it is cheaper to go out and buy their liquor away from their premises rather than break the law," the court replied.

MANY HERE SLOWLY POISONED WHEN FILTER BECOMES CLOGGED

Poisoned! Yes, that's exactly what happens to you and many others here when your liver, the body's filter, becomes too clogged and sluggish to purify your blood, aid digestion and nourishment or keep your bowels moving so that waste matter is eliminated from the intestines.

It is easily to know when your liver is out or order. Just answer this: Do you wake up mornings feeling dull and tired, bad taste in your mouth, offensive breath or coated tongue? Are you bothered with sour stomach and gas, heart palpitation, sick-headaches or a tired-out, nervous, upset condition? Is your system so run-down you catch cold easily and can't throw the cold off.

Get quick relief! Build yourself up by taking a good tonic, as your doctor would advise. Dr. Thacher's Liver & Blood Syrup has been praised by numbers who suffered from just such troubles because it contains ingredients known to Physicians for their corrective, health-building properties. Let it cleanse and tone your liver, put your stomach in condition, send purer blood coursing through your veins and keep you feeling fit. You will be completely satisfied; otherwise druggists are authorized to refund the small cost Dr. Thacher's Liver & Blood Syrup is sold and recommended by J. P. Bond, McDermid & Jury and The Warne Drug Company, Ltd., in Peterborough; The Tanner Drug Company, Ltd., in Lakefield and by leading druggists in every city and town.

COBOURG AND DISTRICT

COBOURG, Feb. 28.—The funeral of Richard Thomas Irwin took place yesterday from his late residence in Haldimand township to St. Andrew's Presbyterian cemetery at Vernonville. Mr. and Mrs. Irwin came to this district from near Bancroft a year ago and purchased Mr. W. Roberts farm near Wicklow. A married son accompanied them and also resides upon the property. Mr. Irwin was 74 years old. He had been ill for a couple of weeks. The sympathy of citizens is expressed with his widow and family

The Late Alexander Simpson Radcliff.

Another esteemed citizen of Haldimand, who has passed away is Alexander Simpson Radcliffe. He was a bachelor and resided with his sister, Mrs. Wm. Taylor, from whose home the funeral took place on Tuesday afternoon to the Presbyterian cemetery at Vernonville. Mr. Radcliff was 68 years of age and is survived by his sister, Mrs. Taylor, a brother James in Regina and another brother, Hugh, in Rochester.

Church Passed Resolution.

After a strong temperance sermon last Sunday evening, preached in the Camborne Methodist church by the pastor, Rev. F. J. Horwood, Mus. Bac., the congregation, upon motion of Mr. Thomas Parsons and Mr. Herbert Lander, unanimously passed the following resolution:

Whereas, we believe the O.T.A. has not been given sufficient trial to warrant another resolution, we earnestly petition the Prime Minister, the Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, to refrain from putting before the people of Ontario another referendum at such an early date.

Taking as his theme the Ontario Temperance Act. Rev. Mr. Horwood preached an excellent sermon. He contended that the time since its enactment had not been sufficient to give it a fair trial. He urged the churches of the province to take a definite stand on the question and to stand by the O.T.A. Since the referendum was taken in British Columbia and government control had come into operation, crime, drunkenness and bootlegging had increased enormously. Taxes, instead of going down, as the wets tried to make the people believe they would, had gone up. There are two things that will not unite, said Mr. Horwood, liquor and the automobile. He cited a case not far away where mother and children had been bereaved because of the drink.

Haldimand Township Rural Telephone Co.

At the annual meeting held recently of the Haldimand township Rural Telephone Company, it was decided to erect a dwelling and office in the village of Baltimore to replace the one destroyed by fire some few years ago, when Baltimore was visited by a big conflagration. The reports received from the different officers were of a highly encouraging character. The following officers were elected:

President—J. H. Beatty.
Vice-Pres.—W. H. Mann.
Sec.-Treas.—T. Hardcastle.

Mr. Thomas Hustain was added to the executive committee.

Auction Sales.

Mr. H. Bangay, who resides near Castleton, had a sale of his farm stock and implements.

Mr. Frank Stone, Brighton township, had a similar sale yesterday.

On Tuesday at Morganston, the sale took place of the late J. F. Morgan's farm stock and implements.

New and Interesting Facts from Science and Life

Can Science Make Sleep Unnecessary?

IS sleep really necessary and can man learn to do without it? "The answer must be in the affirmative," says Mr. H. Gernsback, member of the American Physical Society, "once we discover just the exact reasons why sleep takes place.

"We find, for instance, that protozoa and other simple forms of life seem to dispense with sleep, without any trouble. Many fish, for instance, do not sleep, and while their activities may not be the same at all time, they do not seem to know what sleep, as we know it, really is. In other words, sleep is a habit formed by human beings, mainly due to astronomical reasons. If the sun had been shining upon the earth constantly we probably would not know now what sleep is. For one part of the day we have light; for the other part, darkness. After sundown it is no longer possible to see, and the caveman and our other ancestors simply lay down and formed the habit of sleeping until the sun came up again. That this is a true statement is best proved by the fact that as soon as artificial lighting appeared the human race no longer needed as much sleep as did our cave ancestors. Even as recently as 500 years ago, people went to sleep at sundown and got up when the sun rose. That means an average of ten to twelve hours' sleep. The modern human being gets along comfortably with from six to eight hours, as his artificial light keeps him awake, and the less he works physically the less sleep he needs."

Professor Gernsback predicts that if the human race continues as it does now with artificial light during the entire night, a time will come in 10,000 or perhaps 50,000 years, when sleep will be required no longer.

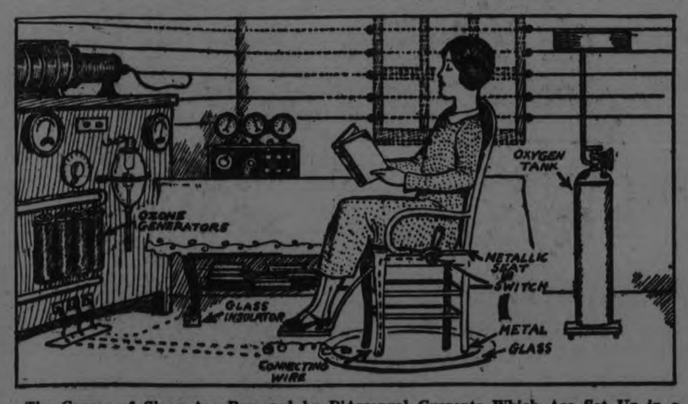
"When we reflect," Professor Gernsback goes on to say, "that if the life of the average human being is 50 to 60 years, one-half of this is actually wasted in sleep; then if we multiply this by the entire human race, we discover a waste that is appalling in its entirety. Suppose we could do away with sleep altogether! Suppose we could lead our regular lives without sleep at all! Would this not be a wonderful boon to the race? Would it not increase our lives by just 100 per cent? It is a truly fascinating project, and is not half as improbable as it would seem at first.

"There are, of course, many ways in which we can do away temporarily with sleep. Authors and writers as well as students, know well that when they become drowsy at about 11 or 12 o'clock at night, the most unfailing expedient to overcome sleepiness is to step to the open window and draw in fresh air. This is done almost unconsciously. It simply means that the body needed oxygen in order to supply the nerve centers with their needed regeneration.

"Then, also, a good many night workers who must, perforce, stay awake, often take to harmless drugs, coffee being one of them. The caffeine seems to stimulate the nerve centers and other centers to again restore the balance and the work can go on again for a number of hours."

The idea which Professor Gernsback advances in Science and Invention, of which he is the editor, has to do with the artificial regeneration of the nerve centers, the blood vessels, and other centers that have become fatigued or worn out. The idea in its entirety is simple. It shows what will be done in the future.

"No scientist will deny," says Professor Gernsback, that the more we fight sleep the higher our blood pressure will go. Finally, during sleep, the blood pressure comes down. If, then, high blood pressure is one of the reasons why we feel the necessity of sleep, we have means to overcome this electrically, by means of D'Arsonval high frequency currents. These, as is well known, tend to drive down the blood pressure quickly, and with lasting results."



The Causes of Sleep Are Removed by D'Arsonval Currents Which Are Set Up in a Huge Electric Coil Strung Along the Walls as Shown. These Currents Reduce the Blood Pressure. Oxygen and Ozone Are Also Used to Help Rejuvenate the System. A Secondary Electrical System Gives the Nerves Light Shocks to Stimulate the Nerve Cells That Have Become Sluggish.

In the accompanying illustration the D'Arsonval coil, which is to reduce the blood pressure, is shown mounted against the walls of the room. The wires are energized by the machine shown at the left. The oxygen tanks are in evidence, as are the glass insulator platforms which insulate the occupant of the room from the floor, while the machine is in operation and while the subject is being electrified.

If one desires to step off this chair he simply moves a switch at his right, which disconnects the electrifying current. It is the same when he wishes to use the telephone. If he did not turn off the switch he probably would get a somewhat severe shock. He can, however, work to his heart's content, because the desk itself is supported by glass insulators, so it makes no difference if the desk is metal or wood.

In the illustration also is seen an addition in the form of ozone generators. This is another suggestion, because it has been found that ozone is one of the most stimulating and exhilarating agents known, and if used in the right proportions will also greatly help to keep the workers from even thinking about sleep.

"With methods such as these," asserts Professor Gernsback, "if translated into practice, there is no probability that the subjects will experience any ill effects, and will not be worse off for having worked a week, or even a month, day in and day out."

Germs of Malaria Fever as a Cure for Paralysis

AS a result of observations by malarial specialists in Italy that patients afflicted with creeping paralysis often improved in physical condition if they had malaria, medical scientists now believe that a cure for paralysis has been found in the germs that cause malaria.

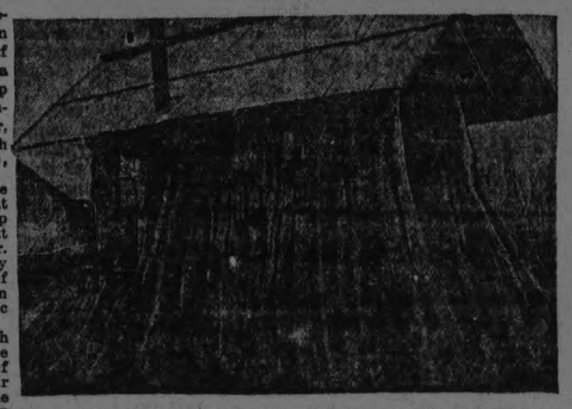
Professor Wagner von Jauregg, a noted scientist of Vienna, experimented and wrote much about the alleviation and cure of paralysis by typhoid and erysipelas serum. His experiments continued until 1917, when he tried artificial infection of his patients with malarial germs. In that year he cured nine paralytic patients. His success was so great that three of these could return to their original employment and work with their old vigor. In 1919, the method was changed and undertaken on a larger scale in the hospitals of Vienna, Frankfort and Munich. The method also was used in the hospitals in Holland and Peru, but in the latter, the germs used were those of jungle fever.

The method of curing consists of injecting two and a half centimeters of blood taken from a patient suffering from malaria. Some doctors have also used injections into the veins.

The blood can be used without mixture with any other substance or with citrate of soda. The season this cure is to be tried is preferably the Spring or during mild weather. The fever develops in the patient in from five to thirty days, but generally from ten to fifteen days. From the beginning of the treatment the fever is irregular, but increases in strength, and only in the very old is the infection very grave. The fever is reduced by small doses of quinine, and the bouts of fever are generally between the hours of 7 and 12. While success in the case of creeping paralysis is assured, results have not been attained in the case of quick paralysis.

Tree STUMP Makes a Happy HOME

THE earliest human beings probably lived in trees, but not inside of them. Here, however, is a photograph of a tree-stump converted into a fairly commodious house, roofed over, with window, a door (which does not show in the picture), and a chimney.



Stump of a Giant Cedar Tree Converted Into a Comfortable Cabin

The location is in the State of Washington, and it might be supposed that the stump was that a giant sequoia. But it is not. It is a red cedar. Trees of that species, nearly related to the red cedar of the Eastern States, attain enormous size on the Pacific Coast.

Those are the trees which since prehistoric times have been used by the Indians of the northwest coast for their wonderful totem poles. Some of the gigantic trunks, hewn in the likeness of men and beasts, often with much artistic skill, are the largest pieces of wood-carving in the world, greatly exceeding in size the largest columns and doors of European cathedrals.

For such purposes the wood has the advantage of being easily worked with primitive tools; also, it is almost proof against decay.

The red cedar bark was formerly used by those Indians for roofing, ceiling and papering their huts. Long strips of it were woven into mats for blankets and tablecloths. Clothing was made of it. It was twisted into cord for dog-harness, fishing lines and fishnets. Even food was prepared from it by beating the bark to pulp and saturating it with salmon oil.

Solving the Secrets of the Strange Stone Calendar of Mexico's Mysterious Mayans

THE solving of the chronology of Mayan dates by the Peabody Musuem at Harvard University is rated as one of the most important archeological achievements of recent years. Discovery of the key to the ancient calendar is expected to go a long way toward revealing other secrets of an ancient American civilization. Meanwhile, excavations and other research work in the wilds of Central and South America go on with renewed interest. The solution of Mayan chronology reveals that a surprising intellectual power existed in the Western world before the coming of Columbus. The result of Dr. H. J. Spinden's inquiry is hailed as a distinct victory for American research over the basic theories of European archeologists.

The find traces the Mayan calendar back to 613 B. C. August 6 of that year (or December 10, 580 B. C., according to our method of figuring) is the first date mentioned in the ancient record. An inscription on the ruins of Copan in Western Honduras furnished this date. The Mayan calendar functioned without the loss of a single day for 2,000 years and passed out of existence when Mayan books and other records were destroyed by the Spaniards in Yucatan in 1561, A. D. The calendar was devised by some unknown mathematical and astronomical genius.

The inauguration of the Mayan calendar shows that a system of figures, including a symbol of the zero, was known to these ancients long before place-value notation was adopted by Greeks and Romans from the Arabs.

"The Mayan year," according to Dr. Spinden, "was of 365 days, and while the Mayans did not interpolate leap-year days they knew just how many to allow for the accumulating difference for any given number of years." The Mayans also knew the points of the equinoxes and the solstices.

In working out a day-for-day in correlation of the Mayan and Gregorian calendars, Dr. Spinden deciphered inscriptions in ancient Mayan cities of Tikal and Palenque as well as in Copan. A series of monuments at the latter place deals with an astronomical conference in 503 A. D. In A. D. 392 two monuments were set up on hills on either side of the valley of Copan, about five miles apart. A person standing before the eastern one would see the sun directly behind the western monument two times in the course of the year, namely April 9 and September 2 (according to our calendar). The first position inaugurated the farmers' work of burning brush and planting crops before the advent of the rainy season, and the second position marked the time of second planting.

An Ancient Mexican Stone Calendar Now on Exhibition in the National Museum in the City of Mexico.

Dates on some of the Mayan monuments in Yucatan and adjacent territory go as far back as 3373 B. C., but this distant date was reached by allotting seven cycles of 144,000 days each for the little known past of the world before the historical first day of the actual numerical count.

The Aztecs also devised their own calendars. The Aztec calendar stone, now in the National Museum at Mexico City, is an example.

Being much closer to the equator than the Egyptians, use of the latter's form of pyramid observatory and sun-dial was impossible, for an increased angle of slope would have been necessary, and this could not be built then. The open-step pyramids of the ancient American civilizations were only capable of determining the year's length to the 365th day and not the fraction of the 366th. The calendar stone here pictured is based on that calculation.

How VARNISH Is GROWN on TREES

TUNG or China wood oil is a very important raw material in the manufacture of varnishes, wall paints and enamels, and is largely used by the linoleum and printing ink industries. It is nearly colorless, quick-drying, elastic and very tough. The oil is pressed from a nut that grows on tung trees of two species which are hardy, deciduous and about twenty feet high. In China it is used chiefly to preserve the thousands of boats that ply the pirate-infested waterways of that country.

For transport the oil is put in baskets lined with sixteen thicknesses of varnished paper, each holding about 130 pounds of oil. These baskets are brought to a small city or market place in the interior, where they are purchased by representatives of exporters. After purchase shipments are put aboard junks, 300 to 700 baskets making a cargo, and the long journey to the sea is started, many boats being wrecked in the dangerous rapids and gorges. Because of this and pilferage, insurance rates on junks are prohibitive. All efforts made by exporters to introduce modern machinery, insure purity, improve shipping conditions and put down banditry have failed.

In the United States the demand for tung oil has greatly increased. The Government, seeing the seriousness of the situation, has sent a naval force to Chinese waters to do police duty. At the same time paint and varnish makers have taken steps to remove the uncertainties and dangers threatening the Chinese supply of this raw material, for which there is no substitute. They are meeting the emergency in a characteristically American fashion by "growing varnish" in Florida.

After much experimentation in the Southern States it has been found that soil, temperature and climate conditions are favorable to oil production over hundreds of thousands of acres of idle land. The quality of Florida oil is higher than the Chinese product. Problems of seeding, transplanting, grafting, budding and fertilizing have been solved. And a new money crop, with a guaranteed market, is offered Southern farmers.

Every Year Is Leap Year for Miss Ostrich in Her Quest of a Husband

IT is leap-year every year in ostrich land. When Miss Ostrich becomes of age—four or five years—she leaves her family in quest of a husband. The courtship is an exceedingly prosaic affair. In making the choice Miss Ostrich consults only her own tastes. When she meets an unmarried male bird which pleases her eye she simply takes charge of him. He has nothing to say about the match himself. The ostrich has often been charged with polygamy—with being somewhat slack in his relations with women ostriches—but the question is disputed. Theodore Roosevelt, who took especial pains to study this most interesting bird, says that when he was in Africa he never saw a male ostrich consorting with more than one female. One writer suggests that perhaps the Arabian ostriches have been influenced by the teachings of Mohammed. But what is a poor male ostrich going to do when several females see fit to attach themselves to his family? At any rate, the ostrich in captivity seldom objects to a number of wives.

There are no ostrich divorces, according to a contributor to the Pathfinder. When they marry they marry for life—"until death us do part." Their nest is no more than a hollowed out place in the sand or loose soil. Nest-building is done by the male. He lies on his breast and kicks the sand out backward and sidewise, thus scooping out a saucer-shaped hole in the sand about four feet in diameter and ten inches deep in the center. In this the female deposits her eggs, usually about 10 to 15. One egg is laid every alternate day. An ostrich egg weighs between three and four pounds and contains as much food as two or three dozen ordinary eggs. It is said that 30 minutes is required to soft boil them. Incubation takes from 40 to 42 days, the male and the female sitting on the nest by turns. Usually the female sits on the eggs during the day from eight o'clock in the morning until four in the afternoon. The male bird plays the gallant and takes the sixteen-hour shift, which includes the night. They are quite punctual in changing. Once a day the eggs are regularly turned. Occasionally the eggs are covered with sand and left during the day and this is probably what is referred to in the book of Job where the ostrich is accused of leaving her eggs in the earth, warming them in the dust and forgetting that the foot may crush them or the wild beast may break them. The ostrich is also there charged with being "hardened against her young ones as though they were not hers." Since the ostrich is considered an ideal parent many Biblical commentators believe that "ostrich" as used in the Scriptures refers to some other bird.

Sculpturing Is Now Done in Concrete

A NEW material for sculpture is called "synthetic granite." It is really nothing more than concrete, but composed of the best possible ingredients finely powdered and carefully mixed. The result is a very hard, nearly white stone of smooth texture, most pleasing to the eye.

This kind of material has begun to be used for the making of large sculptured groups, the figures being originally modeled in clay. From these are taken molds for making casts in the concrete.

The most important art-work in "synthetic granite" executed up to date was recently unveiled in a Chicago park. It is of enormous size—only about half of it being shown in the photograph — and is called the Fountain of Time.

A Sculpture in "Synthetic Granite," Which Is a Fine Grade of Concrete That Resembles Smooth, White Stone Pleasing to the Artistic Eye.

Father Time, a rugged, crag-like figure, stands on a rock in the midst of a still pool of water. Over against him, reflected in the water, is a procession of figures who represent human hopes and fears. The impression given is that of a throng in unceasing movement, for the sculptor's conception of Time is not one of flying, but of a something standing still, silent, perpetual, while humanity passes ever onward.

Detarnishing of Silver

THE Bureau of Standards has recently made an investigation of the tarnishing and detarnishing of silver at the request of the United States Department of Agriculture. This investigation has shown that the tarnish ordinarily observed on silver is the sulfide film, of which certain colors are characteristic and indicative of the extent of the tarnish.

The effect of hydrogen sulfide gas by itself on silver is relatively small, but if small amounts of moisture and sulfur dioxide are present the action is greatly accelerated. Tarnishing is also made more rapid by the presence of alkaline films and soap films. Conditions for producing a standard reproducible tarnish were found and the weight and thickness of the tarnish films were calculated.

Spring's Favorite Fashions

SO many clothes have been arriving these last few days that it is easy to see now what Spring's favorites are. Some fashion facts will surprise, they are so decidedly different but they will all thrill you and please you because new lines, colors and fabrics have flattering ways.

Tailored Suits with the Mannish Trend

This season there does not seem to be a single desirable feature in men's clothing that woman has not appropriated as her very own. Nothing is too sacred for her deft touch, from the well tailored lapels of his coat and the plastron of his shirt front, to the very fabric of the suit itself; all have been adapted to her needs.

Smart cuts, featuring hairlines, plain tricotines and Poiret twills, with military braid bindings, and who would believe it?—in some cases there is a vest, while the whole is topped with a smart 'kerchief in the breast pocket of the coat.

Spring's Very Smartest Millinery!

It is difficult to do justice to this very lovely collection of Spring Millinery by merely saying that tricornes are new, that smartly poised ribbon bows are fashionable, that burnt goose feathers are style-approved. For these are small parts of its attractiveness. Visit and try several on. You will soon find one delightfully becoming. Street and dress models.

Many, many pairs is the only way to satisfaction when there is such a host of interesting colors as for spring 1924. Shades for day and evening are alike delectable and the sheer weight of these most fashionable.

Accessories of the Moment

GLOVES pert and pretty have come for spring, to make suit costumes more tailored, to add to the dressiness of lovely afternoon frocks, to complement fashionable wraps. There are types both short and long, gauntlet and biarritz that will work magic in wardrobes of spring.

HANDBAGS though small can betray a woman's fashion ignorance or impart her knowledge of newnesses. It's the flat Bag of suede, moire or patent leather that fascinates Madame Fashion now, and mind you, she prefers it under-arm.

PRESIDENT OF REBEKAHS PAYS MILLBROOK VISIT

Mrs. Sadie M. Esterbrook of Toronto Met Members of Golden Sheaf Lodge—Two Candidates Initiated—Masquerade Dance a Success.

MILLBROOK, Feb. 28.—"Golden Sheaf" Rebekah Lodge, No. 176, held its regular meeting on Tuesday evening, the special feature being the official visit of Mrs. Sadie M. Esterbrook, of Toronto, President of the Rebekah Assembly of Ontario. As this was the first time the President has visited the Lodge since her election last June, unusual interest was attached to the occasion.

Two candidates, Mrs. Carrie Taylor and Miss Celie Hunter, were presented for initiation, and Mrs. Esterbrook, in the course of her remarks, congratulated the Degree Captain, Bro. P. I. Bentley, P.G., and his staff, as well as the other officers of the Lodge, upon the efficiency with which their work was accomplished.

After the degree was conferred, the Noble Grand Sister Irene Fallis, called upon the president, who had been formally welcomed earlier in the evening, for her address, words of greeting, commendation and advice, which constituted her message to "Golden Sheaf" Lodge. Mrs. Esterbrook's attractive personality added greatly to the effectiveness of her remarks, which were replete with important information and helpful suggestions, and won for her a warm affection in the hearts of her hearers. The respect due her office was intensified and as acquaintance grew, greater opportunity was given for drawing closer the ties of fraternity.

Beirf addresses were also delivered by Brothers G. S. Gervan, H. R. Armstrong and others, and after Lodge was closed adjournment was made to the dining-hall, attractively decorated for the occasion, where about eighty guests sat down to an excellent banquet, the menu including meats, hot baked beans, tomato sauce, pickles, rolls, homemade bread, ice-cream brick, cake, etc. Full justice was done to the good things provided, and a delightful social time was enjoyed. Rev. G. S. Gervan acted as chairman and proposed the toast to the officers of "Golden Sheaf" Lodge, Bros. H. R. Armstrong the toast to the younger members of the Lodge, and Bro. J. A. Vance the toast to the President. "For She's a Jolly, Good Fellow," was sung with considerable vim, before Mrs. Esterbrook could respond to the toast in her honor, which she did with a few well chosen words, ending with an apt quotation emphasizing the growing importance of woman's place and work in the world.

Cards and dancing were indulged in by a number of the guests before the gathering finally dispersed.

Masquerade Dance

The masquerade dance put on in the town hall on Monday evening, under private auspices, proved a most enjoyable and successful event, the first of its kind for some years at least in this village. The floor was well filled with dancers, many of them masked and in costume, and the gallery was taxed to capacity to accommodate the spectators. Good music was provided by Carley's orchestra, Mrs. Oliver presiding at the piano, B. F. Carley playing the violin, and F. Rowe traps.

The attendance was largely local and the general opinion, freely expressed, was to the effect that seldom has a more enjoyable social gathering been held in the hall.

Messrs. J. A. Vance, P. I. Bentley, G. W. Sayles and J. N. McGill were appointed judges, the winner of the ladies' first prize being Mrs. A. W. Fiddes, who wore a handsome costume of the period of 1866; Mrs. E. Kenyon, who represented "Black Dinah," won the comic prize. Archie Johnston, as a member of the Mounted Police, was adjudged winner of the gentlemen's first prize, and Ross Carr, whose make-up as "Jiggs," could scarcely have been improved upon, received the comic award.

The prizes were respectively: hand-painted cake plate, pocket manicure set in French ivory, hand mirror in French ivory and soft leather collar box.

A few of those in costume were: Phyllis Richards, Eastern lady; Marjorie Sayles, sheik's wife; Lola Carley, fairy; Mrs. Harold Hunter, fairy; Bonna Robinson, farm boy; Mrs. S. McGall, boy; Mrs. (Dr.) Mitchell, Canadian winter; Dorothy Armstrong, Miss Canada; Alex. Johnston, gypsy; Pearl Lamb, gypsy; Geraldine Morton, Irish washerwoman; Mr. and Mrs. Basil Richards, Pierrot and Pierrette; Theo McBride, Sister Sue from Pumpkinville; F. Lowery, Sambo; S. McCorry, Eastern Star; H. Hunter, cowboy; Stanford Gilmour, Charlie Chaplin; D. Robinson, M. McCorry and H. Janes, girls, and many others.

Girls' Meeting

The "Wide Awakes", group of Canadian Girls in Training held their regular weekly meeting on Monday evening, the president, Marjorie Sayles, being in the chair. One item decided upon during the business period was that a basket social be held on the evening of St. Patrick's Day, the girls joining with the boys of the C.S.E.T. groups for this special occasion.

By invitation Miss Ethel Richardson was present and gave a most interesting and instructive talk upon the history of music, outlining some phases of its development during the centuries and explaining many of the terms used as titles for the various forms of composition. Some types of musical instruments, in use from very early times, were also delineared and their origin explained. At the conclusion of her talk Miss Richardson played a number of selections from Chopin, Mendelssohn, and other composers, giving especial attention to the first named and noting many interesting facts regarding his contribution to musical development both in the realm of technique and composition.

A hearty vote of thanks was unanimously tendered to the speaker for her kindness in providing an evening which was enjoyed to the utmost. The programme for next Monday's meeting, being the first of the month, will be of a devotional character, Elsie Spence being responsible for making the necessary arrangements.

Personal Notes

Mrs. P. I. Bentley, who has been visiting her mother at Picton for the past ten days, returned home on Tuesday evening.

Mrs. J. P. Esterbrook was the guest of her aunt, Mrs. E. S. Burnham, for a few days this week, coming from the city on Tuesday.

Miss Ella Elson, went to Toronto on Tuesday for a brief visit, intending to hear Galli-Curci at Massey Hall that evening.

Miss H. Todd went to Toronto for the week-end, and attended the recital given by the Mendolssohn choir in Massey Hall on Saturday evening.

Rev. S. T. Tucker attended the funeral of the late Rev. Mr. Spence in Peterboro, on Tuesday and also the meeting of the ministers and laymen of Peterboro district in the afternoon, which was addressed by Rev. John Cobourn, on the Department of Social Service and Evangelism of the Methodist church, Toronto. Messrs. W. F. Fallis and A. J. Brown also attended the gathering.

Soldiers at Olympic Games Minus Rifles.

PARIS, Feb. 28.— "Soldiers, but not guns," to maintain order around the Olympic Stadium next July have been requested by the French Olympic committee. Photographs showing the Alpine "Blue Devils," with rifles, posted around the Chamonix Stadium caused a number of articles in the fore ignpress which described France as imperialistic and militaristic and the authorities apparently do not want to give a similar excuse for the Olympic games.

PRESENTATION IN STH. MONAGHAN

Messrs. Louis and Stanley Fry Remembered By Neighbors--Are Quitting Homestead to Live in Bailieboro.

BAILIEBORO, Feb. 27.—On Monday evening about seventy of the friends and neighbours of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Fry and Mr. Stanley Fry, met at their home in South Monaghan and presented the former with two beautiful rattan chairs, a rocker chair and an arm chair, while the latter was given a beautiful set of military ebony brushes in a leather case.

An appropriate address was read by Mrs. Chas. Dawson, while the gifts were presented by Mrs. Geo. Nurse. Messrs. Fry both made suitable responses, stating that they had the best of neighbours and that they would all regret very much leaving the old homestead on the farm, as well as the dear friends and neighbours that they have known for so many years.

The girls of the community also presented Miss Pearl McIvor who has been one of the family for a number of years, with several pieces of ivory. Miss Bernice Barnard read the address and Miss Irene Dawson presented the gifts.

After the presentation the remainder of the evening was spent in music, dancing and playing cards, etc. Lunch was served during the evening by the ladies.

Mr. Fry with his family and brother are leaving the old homestead and the farm and are moving into this village, into the residence recently owned by the late Mr. Nichol Dawson.

Messrs. Walter and Cecil Lord are moving into Mr. Fry's farm.

Redistribution Bill to Be Re-introduced.

OTTAWA, Feb. 29.—One of the interesting passages in the Speech from the Throne read at to-day's opening of Parliament is the announcement that the redistribution bill, which failed to pass all stages of the House last session will be introduced again, and that an amendment to the Elections Act will be brought down to provide for the use of the single transferrable vote in single-member constituencies.

THE SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

(By Jeannette).

One of the outstanding musical events of the season, not excepting the concerts given from time to time by visiting musicians, was the first annual concert of the Peterboro Symphony Orchestra, given last evening in the hall of the Conservatory of Music, assisting artists being Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park, soprano; Mrs. Hazel Davidson McClelland, reader, and Leo Smith, of Toronto, 'cellist, with Miss Pearl Burford accompanying the solo numbers.

The orchestra itself is an aggregation of some forty-five members, ranging from senior members of the old Conservatory Orchestra that formed the nucleus of the present organization to the very latest recruit in small junior men and women. The manner in which they present their fine music is a revelation of what can be done in team work. A very noticeable element in their playing is the spirit of co-operation. Every individual seems to be concentrated on the task in hand, and the resulting music has in it a quality of intelligent comprehension and appreciation of difficulties of technique that adds immeasurably to its attraction. This orchestra, which seemed brilliant enough last year, has climbed another round on the musical ladder during the past twelvemonth, and their performance last night was worthy of a much larger city than Peterboro, and decidedly worth the patronage of a larger audience than the one, numbering about three hundred, that heard them. However, it was an intensely appreciative gathering that responded to the utmost to the efforts put forth last evening in a concert of exceptional merit. Of a pleasing length, it comprised orchestral and solo work of a high and yet popular order, with variety in the selections, and a forethought which had picked some of the gems of music for an all-round attractive programme.

The applause which greeted every number and echoed loudly after the orchestral selections was well earned by the clever group of players and their conductor, Mr. Gliddon, to whose long years of capable and unassuming endeavor the city owes a musical organization of which any centre might well be proud. Mr. Gliddon was greeted with enthusiasm last evening when he appeared to direct the initial offering of the orchestra, the March from "Tannhauser," the stirring and attractive number through which the players swept in great style.

Perhaps the most beautiful of a series of splendid orchestral offerings was "In a Monastery Garden," played in a manner that held the hearers entranced. In expressive shading, this orchestra excels. Swelling in concerted harmony, the lovely reiterated refrain rose and then sank to hushed softness, in the languorous sweetness of the beautiful music. A flute overtone was apparent in this number, which included a bird whistle in its opening and the soft clash of cymbals. The popular Intermezzo from the "Cavalleria Rusticana" followed, played by the strings, with pizzicato seconds.

Perhaps the most difficult of the orchestral selections was Schubert's exacting overture, "Rosamunde." Hard preparatory work and strict attention to technical detail was apparent here, in a series of finely-executed movements. The dance movement was charming, and the rush and sweep of the strings merged into a gradually massed finale of voluminous sound that tapered at the last minute to a fine, thread-like melody. Applause, repeated and insistent, followed this brilliant number.

In selections from "Rob Roy," the closing selection by the orchestra, the brasses emphasized the accents. The impetuous, cheerful swing of the Scotch music worked up to a powerful climax, with a cornet taking the solo.

The new instruments that have just been added to the orchestra included last evening an oboe, a flute and a basscon. With the latter, Mr. Frank Hully, accompanied by the orchestra, gave a solo number, "Lucy Long." The bassoon, which is seldom heard in solo work, has been described by a devotee as bearing the same relation to the great flute family as the bass violin does to the strings. Mr. Hully's number, a merry little tune with variations, proved an interesting and unusual exposition of the oddly contrasting clear treble and baritone music of the elongated instrument.

Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park achieved a veritable triumph last night. It is doubtful if her beautiful voice was ever heard to better advantage. Her opening number was a superb rendition of a peculiar type of music, a traditional Yiddish melody, which opened and closed with Hebrew words, "Eili, Eili, lama sabachthan?" ("My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me"), the despairing cry of the dying Christ. The dramatic fervor and passion with which the soloist held the tense appreciation of her audience was a revelation of artistic supremacy. To the technical mastery and finish which Mrs. Park always brings to her singing seemed to be added last night a degree of soulful expression that made her numbers singularly effective. The sonorous richness of her lower tones soared in this song to a final majestic outpouring of passionate melody. An insistent encore brought her back for a dainty morsel that illustrated her versatility of style admirably, in the charming old ballad, "No, John, No."

"Angels Guard Thee," the words whose setting is the lovely and familiar "Berceuse" from "Jocelyn," was Mrs. Park's second number, by request, with 'cello obligato by Mr. Leo. Smith. Prolonged applause again followed this plaintive song, with the sweetness of a flute in its delicate, vibrant beauty. The ease with which Mrs. Park sings, and the enunciation which marks every number, were combined here and in the encore, "Danny Boy," with a degree of moving sweetness that made her singing a rare delight.

The visiting artist, Mr. Leo Smith, of Toronto, is a violoncellist of outstanding merit. His music is artistic in the extreme and he has a technical mastery of his instrument that takes him without apparent effort through the mazes of difficult and tricky composition. His 'cello has a mellow tone not always apparent in this big brother of the violin, and he plays with an absorption in his work that extends to his audience, listening with alert interest to the flowing, clear, pure tones. He is the type of musician who holds the attention absolutely. "Romance" was his first number, an entrancing minor theme played in broad, legato fashion. "By the Fountain" followed, a descriptive, graceful nosaic of deftly-spun melody, the dancing bow of the introduction sparkling like the waters of a musical fountain, slowing in tempo and style to the ripple of a placid, smoothly-flowing lake.

Two of Popper's charming compositions, "A Spanish Serenade" and a Mazurka, with a third brief cameo, comprised the trio of numbers on Mr. Smiths' second appearance on the programme. The "Serenade" was a brief bit of airy, light music, its swift staccato runs ending in a series of fragile harmonics. Cheerful and dainty was the melody of the mazurka, and "The Fanaid Grove," an Irish folk song, held the lilt of Celtic pathos in its pensive deep-toned strains.

As an encore to this group, Mr. Smith played the dreamy, peaceful "Swan" (Le Cygne).

To Mrs. Hazel Davidson McClelland belongs a portion of the credit for a completely successful programme, varied and interesting. Always excellent in her inimitable 'kiddie' characterizations, she was better than ever last evening, putting into her selections the dramatic emphasis that makes them so attractive. She gave "A Bear Story," with a tiny encore in "The Kiss" and brought down the house of her second appearance to relate the adventures of the various reciters of 'pieces' in the fetching number, "Friday Afternoon at a Primary School."

To put the finishing touch to the musical perfection of the evening, Miss Pearl Burford, a pianiste of outstanding ability, played accompaniments for solo numbers with her usual sympathetic comprehension. During a brief intermission Mr. John Crane, president of the Peterborough Symphony Orchestra, spoke a few words of hearty appreciation of the work of the assisting artists, thanking particularly Mrs. Park and Mrs. McClelland. He also spoke of the endeavors of the Orchestra and Mr. Gliddon to bring music in Peterborough up to a high standard and asked the support of the audience for the organization.

MONTREAL HARBOUR SPACE TAKEN OVER

MONTREAL, February 29. — Every available foot of docking space in the harbor of Montreal, has been released for the season of 1924, M. P. Fennell, the general manager of the port announced yesterday. He added that all indications pointed to a record season this year. Applications had been received for several more sheds than the harbor possesses. Two new sheds will be completed in time for the opening of navigation, said Mr. Fennell.

WIFE HAD TO THRASH HUSBAND WITH A WHIP

LONDON, February 29. — United Press. — A wife charged her husband at a local police court with persistent cruelty, and asked for a separation.

"His behaviour has been so bad and his cruelty so great," she told the Judge, "that I have had to thrash him with a dog whip."

A PETERBORO MAN DIED IN CALGARY

Deceased Had Long Experience in the West --Struck by Car.

CALGARY, Feb. 15.—W. A. Davidson, manager of the Rosedale Coal Co. was seriously injured on Tuesday 12th at the company's plant at Rosedale when he was struck by a loaded mine care on the tipple.

According to Dr. D. S. Macnab who was called out from Calgary, the injured man suffered from a broken collar bone, some broken ribs on the left side, a fracture of the pelvis and a fractured right leg. He was in too serious a condition to be removed to Calgary and was attended in the Drumheller hospital by Dr. Brogden.

Dr. Macnab said that it was a marvel that Mr. Davidson was not killed outright. It would appear that he was on the incline of the tipple when the loaded car at the top was released. This struck him with great force dragging him to the bottom of the incline.

Mr. Davidson passed away on the evening of Friday, the 15th. That the deceased came to his death purely by accident and that no one was to blame, was the verdict of the jury at the inquest.

Amid every manifestation of sorrow the remains of W. A. Davidson late manager of the Rosedale Collieries, were laid to rest in the Burnsland cemetery on Monday afternoon following a masonic service held at the Armstrong funeral home under the auspices of Perfection Lodge No. 9, A.F., and A.M., conducted by the Rev. W. K. Thompson and the Rev. Mr. Montgomery.

The chief mourners were the widow and child, and two brothers of Mrs. Davidson, Jas. Cogland, of Saskatoon, and Thomas Cogland, of North Battleford. There was a large number of operators and employes of the Rosedale mine present. These included W. C. Robertson, vice-president of the Rosedale Collieries; R. M. Young, commissioner of the Western Canada Coal Operators' Association; M. B. Morrow, Canmore; Lewis Stockett, C.P.R. mines branch Jesse Gouge, Gillis Macaulay, D. A. Macaulay and Mrs. Macaulay, J. D. Thomas, Jas. Holden and Jas. McCullough, also a large number of employees of the Company from Rosedale.

Distinguished Career

The late Mr. Davidson, had a distinguished professional career. Born at Peterborough, Ont., on June 6th 1877 and educated at the Collegiate Institute of this city, he graduated in th department of mechanical enginueering from McGill University with the degree of B.Sc. with the class of 1900. Later he obtained the degree of M.Sc., from the same university. After some five years as draughtsman and assistant engineer with the Dominion Coal Co., Ltd., he came west and for some years was mining engineer with the West Canadian Collieries Ltd., at Bellevue and Lille, in the Crow's Nest Pass. For eight years he was with the International Coal and Coke Co Coleman first as mining engineer and later as mine manager.

When the Albertan government organized Institute of Technology at Calgary in 1916, it chose Mr. Davidson as head of the department of mining and supervisor of technical instruction in mining for the province. Before receiving that appointment he had given good service to the cause of technical education in the province, having acted for two years as instructor of the senior class in mining in the night school carried on at Coleman by the provincial department of education and the Coleman school board. He had also been for some time a member of the provincial board of examiners appointed under the Mines Act.

Became Superintendent

In the Institute of Technology Mr. Davidson had charge of the organization and administration of technical instruction in mining for the province. In December, 1920, he resigned from the Institute of Technology to become superintendent of the Rosedale Coal Company, Limited, operated at Rosedale in the Drumhelle district. He retained that position until his death and rendered very valuable service to the company, not only in its operations but in planning its future development.

Mr. Davidson was a member of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy, and of the Association of Professional Engineers. He was a member of the Masonic fraternity and of the Al Azhar Temple of Shriners.

In Highest Esteem

His relations with his associates and employes were at all times of the happiest, and by all who knew him he was held in the highest esteem, not only for his professional ability but as a man who was in all things kind, straight and true. His decease is a distinct loss to his profession, to the community and the company.

His death is mourned by his widow, one child, five sisters and two brothers, as well as a host of intimate friends.

KI-MOIDS QUICK RELIEF For INDIGESTION

MRS. W. R. MORRIS FORWARDS REPLY

Refers to Several Interviews That Have Appeared.

Kingston, Ont., Feb. 28, 1924.
The Examiner, Peterboro, Ont.
To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—My attention has been called to a statement by the chairman of the Board of Education, Peterboro, appearing in the Examiner of Wednesday, Feb. 27, in which this sentence appears: "There was no occasion for Mrs. Morris to take up this question as she has."

Permit me to say that I did not open this question (the proposition to use the South Central School as a Vocational School) nor did I "take it up" when opened to the public.

My statement of Monday, February 26th, contains certain facts but no expression of opinion. I did not supply the headline. I consider it out of order to publicly express my opinion until this matter has been laid before the Advisory Vocational Committee.

In referring to the statement made in the Examiner on Wednesday, February 27, that "this proposition would take the place of the proposed High and Technical School," I was simply quoting a sentence that appeared in cold type and could be read by anybody. I did not know or care who was responsible for the statement. It, and not I, conveyed a false impression, and as it would reach the attention of many I thought the facts should be circulated through the same medium.

I am quite agreeable to informing the public on all educational matters and have done it through the press (over my own name), and at public gatherings, but to give premature information regarding unfinished business is another matter. I have never done it, as I was informed at a Board meeting that such action had never been in order.

If it is to be considered in order for the future, well and good—I will govern myself accordingly.

As to the interview in the Examiner of Wednesday, February 27, I stand by it as a statement of fact — not all the facts — some of those omitted being the most interesting from my point of view. They will be published at the proper time and place.—Yours truly,

KATE MORRIS,
Chairman Vocational Committee.

TOURIST TRAFFIC AS LUCRATIVE BUSINESS IS BEING DEVELOPED

A Rough Estimate Places Net Revenue Last Year In This District at $300,000 — Everyone In the Community Benefits

THIS IS BIG YEAR.

Greater preparations are being made this year than ever before to attract tourists to this district, and as a result of this, and of the foundation laid last year, it is expected by officials of the Trent Waterway Development Association that the influx of tourists from United States will exceed that of any previous year.

It is pointed out by Leon Frazer, secretary of the Association, who has had a great deal to do with the success of the advertising campaigns, that the results of the campaign may not show in any one year, but the benefits are cmulative. A pamphlet sent out in 1922 may bring a man who was unable to come last year, especially if another piece of literature comes into his hands reminding him of the promised pleasures along the Trent or at Muskoka lakes.

An added attraction this year is the booklet now under preparation which will be a masterpiece of its kind. One of the features of the booklet will be a complete set of charts for the waterway, hitherto only obtainable at a cost of $7.50. Accompanying the charts will be descriptive matter covering the section illustrated in each chart, and the book will be sold for the nominal price of its production. Many enquiries have been received in previous years for charts of the waterway, but these have been available only in the high-priced style. Permission has now been obtained to reproduce these government charts in smaller form for the convenience of tourists.

Ten thousand pamphlets have already been distributed, wholly given over to articles descriptive of the Trent waterway and the cities and towns along its course. At the New York motor show this year 4,500 copies of the pamphlet were distributed to interested enquirers. In addition to these booklets issued by the Association there are thousands of pamphlets distributed by the Canadian National and the Canadian Pacific Railroads, describing the beauties and attractions of this district. Information on this section is available at every station and booking office of any importance throughout United States.

Other lines of "boosting" the waterway are carried on through magazines devoted to outdoor sports, such as Field and Stream, and in various daily newspapers in Canada and United States.

Appreciation Counts

The citizens of United States are more open for tourist hints this year than ever before, on account of the reports of satisfied tourists who returned after spending ideal weeks in Peterboro' district last year and in preceding years. The Trent Waterway Association believes service is the key word of success in the tourist industry and is at great pains to supply visitors with all possible information and help as they pass through the various centres on the waterway and highways. To this end, service by merchants and citizens is advocated, since it is believed one satisfied tourist will boost the route as well as many circulars, and if service is rendered willingly and cordially there will be a steady growth of the tourist traffic through Peterborough. This city has, so far, been to the fore in this regard.

A camping site, in the opinion of the Motor League, another organization that is endeavoring to popularize this section as a tourist resort, is necessary if Peterborough is to reap the full benefit of the influx of automobile parties. A committee was appointed at the last meeting of the executive to investigate the possibility of locating a camping site this year. It consists of H. O. Pisk, A. Brown and J. A. Bertram.

The members of the Motor League believe that those who camp in the open overnight would not in any event use a hotel. The benefit from a camping site would be the purchasing of provisions by these overnight parties and the advertising they would give the city. In addition to this, many of those to whom they will tell the story of the trip will be persons who would prefer to pass their nights in hotels, and in in the end the hotels would benefit through increased traffic.

A committee has also been appointed by the Motor League to put into operation a sign at Welcome, directing tourists to the Kawartha Lakes and Peterborough. In addition to this, four signs will be erected on George street, pointing the way to the Lift Lock. These will be at the corners of Charlotte, Hunter and MacDonnell streets, with two signs at Hunter street.

As usual, the cards of welcome, nearing on the back a map of the city, will be distributed to visitors by the police force, by permission of Chief Constable S. Newhall. By the end of this season two hundred new road signs will have been placed by the Motor League. A sign is meditated at the entrance to the upper reach of the canal leading to the lift lock, directing motor boat tourists to the government dock where they may tie up while obtaining supplies and visiting the city.

Value of Traffic

That the railways appreciate the money making possibilities in the development of the tourist traffic is indicated not only in their extensive advertising, but in the arrangements which they make for handling the added business. The Canadian Pacific Railway is this year planning to operate an additional bus to the lakes from Peterborough. Last year the bus to McCracken's landing proved so successful that a second will be added, probably running to Burleigh Falls. With this enlarged service a special advertising campaign is being carried on.

It is estimated that the tourist traffic last year meant a net revenue to Peterborough and district of $300,000. This is a conservative approximation. To bring this tourist revenue the city spent $400 on advertising.

It is found in other provinces and districts by careful computation that everyone in the district benefits directly or indirectly by the tourist traffic. In Vancouver last year it is estimated $24,000,000 was the gain, and Quebec expects $50,000,000 shortly from this source.

In 1922 Ontario's revenue was $11,000,000, while Quebec's was only $5,400,000.

If a tourist spends $100 in a retail store he is adding $100 to the turnover of the retail merchant, but he is probably also adding $75 to the turnover of the wholesaler and $65 to the turnover of some manufacturer.

The home market for agricultural products is helped. In Vancouver last year it is estimated that visitors consumed 25,000 sheep, 3,500 cattle, 8,000 hogs, 42,000 bags of potatoes, 420,000 pounds of fruits and 2,100,000 loaves of bread, a large item from the standpoint of the farmer.

It is evident from the experiences of other sections of the dominion and from the experiences in Peterborough and district so far, that this tourist traffic is a decided asset to the community to which the tourists are attracted. This is recognized by the City Council, the Chamber of Commerce, the Motor League, the Trent Waterway Development Association and other organizations in the city and by similar bodies of business men throughout the district, and that success will crown the efforts of these bodies is assured by the constantly increasing interest being shown by citizens and by prospective visitors. Enquiries are already coming into the local headquarters of the Trent Association in such numbers as to promise a big tourist year.

YOUR HEALTH

DR. CLIFFORD ROBINSON

HEALTH PENALTIES

A person's highest ambition should be to have a character above reproach and a physical body able to meet every requirement that a sane, normal man or woman calls for in perfect health.

One of the penalties of a life that fails to satisfy the person who has permitted himself to fall into vicious habits is the general weakness that nature imposes upon him, both in body and mind. The weakening body calls for a lessening brain power, as his physical condition worries him to the extent of cerebral inactivity to make provisions for sickness and old age.

Fear seizes him and as a result he becomes unable to put forth the mental or physical effort which counts. He is in the grip of fear that paralyzes because it offers no avenue of escape.

Then there is the penalty of losing one's position in life. A man who is weak, fussy or worried, lacks stamina to hold his place in business or society. He cannot resist fatigue, he falters, he lacks courage and persistency. The result is failure, through wrong habits and careless living.

The habit of keeping your physical condition at its best makes for a happy life. The penalty of loss of sight, good digestion or locomotive power is sure to follow if you break the rules of hygiene and health.

Number "Scripts" Is Nova Scotia Scheme.

HALIFAX, February 29 (Canadian Press).—Abolition of the position of Chief Inspector under the Nova Scotia Temperance Act and the transfer of these duties to the Attorney-General is proposed in a Bill introduced into the Nova Scotian Legislature yesterday afternoon by the Hon. W. J. O'Hearn, Attorney-General.

The Bill, which was given its first reading yesterday, also places the direct administration of the Act under the Attorney-General's Department.

A further feature of the Bill is the proposal to number prescriptions with a view to minimising opportunities for abuse of the Act.

Recommends Returning Officer Be Permanent.

OTTAWA, February 29 (Canadian Press). — The appointment of permanent returning officers to simplify the work of organisation at election time, is recommended by the Chief Electoral Officer for Canada in his report to Parliament, tabled yesterday.

An amendment to the Elections Act is suggested empowering the naming by the Government either of an individual or a public officer such as the Sheriff by virtue of his position, to act at all times as returning officer in his county. He would familiarise himself with conditions and be in a better position to perform expeditiously and efficiently the duties of his post at election time.

The report remarks that the time required for preparation for an election in Canada is very much longer than the period consumed in Great Britain, where the system of permanent returning officers is in vogue.

HARDWOOD EMBARGO IN SHAPE OF DUTY

Hon. James Lyons Announces Policy at Meeting of Builders' Association--Lauds the North Country.

TORONTO, Feb. 29. — Within the next few days, Hon. James Lyons, Minister of Lands and Forests, will introduce in the Legislature a bill providing for an export duty, practically an embargo, on all hardwood from the Crown lands of Ontario.

Success of past embargoes, coupled with an increasing invasion of timber limits by United States interests, is the reason for the introduction of the measure by the government, according to Mr. Lyons, who stated that the townships contiguous to Sault Ste. Marie there was over six and a half billion feet of hardwood, one of Ontario's most valuable assets.

Amid aplause, Hon. Mr. Lyons made his announcement of policy last night at the annual banquet of the Ontario Provincial Builders' and Supply Association.

Both Mr. Lyons and Hon. Charles McCrea, Minister of Mines, dealt last night with the vast resources of Northern Ontario, measures to be taken by the present government for their conservation and development, and with the necessity of securing more people and more favorable conditions throughout the province.

"To the natural wealth of Ontario, the Government must look for revenue if it is to succeed in reducing the tax burden of the people," declared Mr. Lyons. "To deal with these matters which come under the Department of Lands and Forests, it may be of interest to you to know that there is at present an investment of over $190,000,000 in the pulp business of Northern Ontario, a business which gives employment to more than 10,000 men annually. Our sawmills alone represent an investment of over $75,000,000 and have over 23,000 men on their payrolls. When I tell you that nearly 90 per cent of the products of our pulpmills and sawmills is sold outside the country, you will realize the strategic position of the north country and its influence on the money markets."

Mr. Lyons devoted as well a considerable portion of his address to indicating the benefits and advantages which Northern Ontario offered to the settler, and to stating his belief that one of the chief needs of Canada was greater population.

Can The League Of Nations Or a World Court Save The World?

Prominent churchmen have hailed the advent of the League of Nations as "the Political embodiment of Christ's Kingdom on Earth" in spite of the fact that in some cases the personnel of the League is virtually atheistic. Conditions in the Old World are such as to appal the stoutest heart, and cause distress and dismay amongst all intelligent people.

The world stands at the crossroads. It is faced with the necessity of choice. Will it follow the hollow mockery of the League of Nations to economic collapse and the utter destruction of its boasted civilization.

Or will it turn ultimately to a consideration of the principles of right dealing, and unselfishly labor to bring about conditions of justice for all people?

EXPERIENCE AS NURSE CAUSES MRS. FLEMING TO ENDORSE TANLAC

California Woman Regained Strength, Following Operation, by Tanlac Treatment—Recommends It to Patients.

"I would never have believed any medicine on earth could help me like Tanlac did," is the precise statement of Mrs. Celia Fleming, 1915 Addison St., Berkeley, Calif., a practical nurse of sixteen years' experience.

"In 1904 a serious operation weakened my system so I never saw a real well day until I took Tanlac three years ago. I never seemed to be hungry, my stomach was so disordered I could scarcely retain a thing I ate, and I lost weight till I was almost a shadow. I was very anemic, and shattered nerves and sleepless nights contributed even more to my already miserable state.

"Tanlac built up my appetite and digestion wonderful and every single ailment went away. Then, with returning stregth came a 32-pound increase in weight, and from that day three years ago my health has been splendid. I recommend Tanlac to many of my patients, for it is indeed a remarkable medicine."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.

COMPLETION OF TRENT CANAL

(By R. B. Rogers)

It is impossible, in the short time at my disposal, to deal with this subject in anything like an exhaustive manner.

In this magnificent country of magnificent distances no public question is of greater importance than the question of transportation. By no other means can wealth be more evenly distributed to every class and individual in this great country of ours. Cheapen the freight on the articles of consumption, production and raw materials and you cheapen the cost to the consumer of everything that enters into the life and being of every citizen of this country.

Let me give you a general description of the present system of transportation from the West. We have at the present time as the great item of transportation from the West, grain, as I said before, but there is looming big in the near future the question of transporting Alberta coal to Ontario. Both these great items of freight will be handled practically on the same way though the facilities for loading and unloading may be somewhat different. The present system of handling grain is as follows: The grain is brought by the Canadian National or C.P. Ry. to Port Arthur and then on by rail to Montreal, or it is transhipped into large vessels of 6000 tons or over and unloaded at Midland, Port McNicol or other Georgian Bay ports or taken to Buffalo or through the Welland Canal to Montreal. That which is unloaded at Buffalo is taken by rail or through the Erie Canal to New York. The State of New York thought it wisdom to build and enlarge the Erie Canal several times in order to cheapen freight rates. Would it not be wisdom on the part of our government to complete our water ways, especially the Trent, for the same reason? Midland or Honey Harbor, the Western entrance to the Trent Canal is some 350 miles nearer to Port Arthur than Buffalo. The Trent Canal is not properly speaking a canal, but a beautiful waterway through fine lakes and rivers not more than a tenth of its length being canalling. The late Hon. J. Israel Tarte, Minister of Public Works in the Laurier Government, than whom no minister in any Canadian Government had a keener perception of the questions of transportation, remarked to the writer on one of his trips over the Trent Canal, that the Trent Canal was the proper solution for bringing our Western freight to tide water. He further said that Georgian Bay ports should be the Eastern terminus for large vessels, and if necessary the Soo Canal deepened so that still larger vessels could ply between Port Arthur and Georgian Bay ports. How Mr. Tarte's conviction was that the highest economy demanded that advantage should be taken of the long stretches of open water through lakes Superior and Huron and operating thereon the largest class of vessels possible which can carry freight at the least possible rate. That such large vessels cannot operate economically through locks and canals is borne out by Col. Symons, on whose plans the new Erie Canal and several other canals were built, when he states: "There is nothing truer than that the highest economy demands that business should be done on the ocean, lakes, rivers and canals in vessels suited to the different types of waters."

As the grain shipping season is so short in the fall, Mr. Tarte's idea was to get the largest possible quantity of grain down to the nearest possible port to Montreal during this short shipping season, thus eliminating the long rail haul north of lakes Superior and Huron, and then to rush it by barges through the Trent Canal or by rail to Montreal. Having, I think, shown that delivery of Western grain at the Georgian Bay ports is the most economical point of delivery, what is the most economical way to deliver the grain at tidewater. It is a well known axiom that freight can be moved more cheaply by water than by rail and with the fine land-locked and open water way through the lakes and rivers of the Trent Waterway I feel certain that fleets of barges holding 1000 tons each, towed by a powerful tug, can move the grain to tide water cheaper and faster than by any other means. Some years ago I collected statistics as to the quantity of grain and other produce raised in the Trent district and I found that there was 15,000,000 bushels of grain, 200,000 tons of hay and about 60,000 tons of coal consumed. I found that grain was taken from Buffalo to New York, a distance of 500 miles for 2½ to 3 cents per bushel or about 5 cents per 100 pounds. While at a point about midway on the Trent Canal to Montreal, the rate is now about 22 cents per 100. Now, if the same commodities are moved on the Erie Canal for a longer distance at about a quarter of the cost, it is in the Trent Canal we should be able to do the same on the Trent and on the three items above mentioned, and on many other items, it can be shown that the saving in freights would be a million dollars a year or the saving in a couple of years of an amount sufficient to complete the unfinished section of the Canal.

With such possibilities obtainable we are surely not doing the fair thing to ourselves or to those that come after us if we do not press with all our might for the completion of the unfinished section of the canal at Georgian Bay. With the canal in operation it would put us on a more advantageous position than if we were on the lake front as every vessel passing up or down the canal would have to stop at every lock where small parcels or freight could be loaded whereas on the lake shore not one in 100 vessels would call.

Many other advantages could be cited in favor of barge canals such as the Trent Barge Canal, for instance, let me quote again what Col. Symons says regarding the use of smaller carrying units: "In transacting the business of freight transportation between the lakes and the sea the advantages of the division of the carrying capacity (of tons of barges) into a number of smaller units capable of dividing up at terminal points and going to different ships and docks over large freight carriers as represented by the present freight steamers would be nearly as great and marked as it would be in doing a freight business along the Atalntic coast between coast towns using small vessels and by using large freight steamers." This illustrates the great advantage that barges have over large carriers. This is a very important point in favor of large traffic.

I think I have shown by comparison with freight rates on the Erie Canal that the freight rates on the Trent Canal on all heavy bulk materials such as grain, coal, iron, stone, etc., would be cut in half or lower, thus enabling the starting of many new industries such as flour mills, cement works, stone quarries and many other industries using heavy freights. To illustrate this fact, let me mention what Mr. Robert Stewart Manager of the Quaker Oats Company, has told us several times, that it was only the promise of the early completion of the Trent Canal that induced his company to locate their mills in Peterborough and that they have been handicapped ever since by the failure to complete the canal. Now, if such an expert as Mr. Stewart saw such advantages for his industry surely the citizens of this district should have vision enough to see it or take it as a fact. If it is essential for the Quaker Oats Company to have the Trent Canal completed so they can grind the grain from the West in transit, there is no reason why there should not be a dozen similar industries such as the Peterboro Cereal, located at Peterborough or at other points along the canal. We have the power and with the other facilities that we have along the Trent Canal we should have a hive of industries located along the canal. The advantage of having the Western grain ground in transit would be of immense benefit to the farmers as the by-products would be retained in this country for use in raising livestock instead of sending it overseas to raise livestock in other countries.

Mr. Stewart says that as soon as the canal is completed that he will put up the largest flour mill in the world on the opposite side of the river and put on a line of barges to bring the grain from Midland to Montreal and grinding in transit.

Nor would the cheapening of freight on heavy bulk materials which would induce many industries using heavy bulk materials similar to the Quaker Oats to locate on the canal, be a detriment to the revenue of the Railways. On the contrary, it would be of the greatest benefit to the Railways. To substantiate this fact let me quote to you what Mr. S. A. Thompson, of Indiana, who is recognized as the greatest authority on transportation on this continent and who has made a close study on the subject of waterways effecting transportation for the last 25 years and who, in his report on "Waterways as Creators of Prosperity," made to the "National Rivers and Harbors Congress," says: "That the use of improved natural and artificial waterways in cheapening the transport of coal and other low value traffic has increased the trade industries and wealth of Germany and so indirectly the revenue derived by the Railways from passenger traffic and higher class goods, and the state revenue has increased, at the same time, benefits indirectly through the increased real income and spending power of the population consequent on the augmented industrial prosperity produced by cheap water transportation."

This report of Mr. Thompson was considered so important that it has been embodied in the proceedings of the U. S. Congress from which I got it.

Surely with such an authority as the above on the benefits of waterways we the residents on the Trent Canal should awaken ourselves and press with all our might for the early completion of our canal which is the most beautiful and resourceful waterway in the world located on the direct line of transportation and diagonally across the greatest province in this wide Dominion of ours.

The retail Merchants Association of Ontario are after the government to make it practically impossible for persons of small capital to start in retail business any place in Ontario except in their own town. They want the law made so drastic that a penalty of over $1,000 could be imposed for selling a pair of shoes. If the law is made as severe as they ask, selling bankrupt stocks will be next to impossible.

What would you think of a law compelling a doctor to pay $500 license to treat patients outside the boundary line of his town? And a fine of $500 plus $500 license fee if he had neglected to obtain the $500 license? Or, can you imagine restrictive legislation gone so mad as to compel a mechanic to pay $500 license to work in any other town but his own? These two cases are no worse than the law the retail merchants are right now trying to get passed in Ontario.

Unless patriotic citizens, newspapers, Chambers of Commerce and lovers of fair play stir themselves, this very legislation will be passed.

The little "Transient Traders" unfortunately conveys a wrong meaning. "Transient Traders" does not mean merchants who come and go. A transient trader is any one who starts a store or buys out a store in any municipality except his own. True, if he remains permanently his $500 paid for license is refunded each year to the extent of his business tax. But in the case of many smaller retailers this would take twenty-five years to get his money back.

Bankrupt stocks are exempt. But, if any goods are added, even as leaders, the police pounce in.

They are asking for Transient Traders license up to $500 and fines on conviction of $100 to $500, plus the license fee. In case a bankrupt sale added and sold a pair of shoes the sale of them would incur a fine of $100 to $500 plus $500 license fee plus costs, or over $1,000.

The retailers, 125 strong, met the government last week. Action against their grab must not be delayed.

EDITOR EVENING EXAMINER:

Sir,—It is interesting to note the activities of both organizations of the old political parties in local circles The people will begin to think there must be an election coming along in the near future. According to Saturday, Feb. 23 Examiner's report of a Liberal-Conservative meeting held in the Victoria Hall. J. H. Burnham criticized the speech of Mr. Manning Doherty on the Budget of the Provincial Government by using these words, according to newspaper report: Mr. Burnham—Mr. Doherty repudiates in a fiery speech the claim of the Ferguson Government that the U.F.O. had left a fifteen million dollar deficit for the year 1922-23 alone and came back with the charge that Ferguson had spent a large amount of money. "Do you know," asked a Ferguson supporter, "that this government has had to pay the seven million dollars interest on Hydro Bonds which Drury failed to pay?" "No," said Mr. Doherty. "Well, they had," said Mr. Ferguson, etc., etc. (Laughter). Well, Mr. Editor, of course there was laughter because people are apt at times to too easily take for granted as true what old time trick politicians tell them. Here is reproduced the newspaper report of the instance so humorously quoted by J. H. B. but in what a different light. Manning Doherty: No financial man of repute would put his signature to that budget.

The deficit is made in this way: decreased revenue four millions, increased expenditure eleven millions. For that decreased revenue we hold this new government responsible. From accurate and official statements I have here said, Mr. Doherty, I say that the old government up to and including the day it went out of office, July 15th, spent $19,783,237 outside statutory expenditure and $807,462 on special warrants or a total counting the warrants of $20,590,699 for eight and a half months of that year. During the remaining three and a half month of that year this government spent $2,836,893. That is how and who spent the money.

Mr. Price—You didn't pay the seven million on Hydro interest which "is due at the end of the year."

Mr. Doherty—On statutory expenditure for the eight and a half months the old government spent $16,666,040, and the new government in three and a half months spent $27,747,668. In view of those figures and they are correct, this government can't get away with a financial tragedy and blame it on the U.F.O. (Copied from Examiner, Friday, Feb. 22). Now where is the laugh?"

It is interesting to note that the present government intimates receiving one million dollars less revenue from their crown timber lands, also intimate a loss this term of one hundred thousand dollars on the T.N.O. Railway. When Drury went into power with the object of developing the natural resources the T.N.O. Ry. had a deficit of $400,000, but he repaired its rolling stock and permanent way, and it paid its now way; because he was in favor of provincial owned property paying its own way; he has gone, now look for further deficits, less revenue from natural resources, and a general attempt to try and fool the people over the O.T.A. Special arrogance and autocracy by taking away power from the legislature as a whole, and confiding it to the government of eleven or twelve cabinet ministers. Surely such an astute politician as Premier Ferguson can see the general trend of opinion even among his supporters that the two party system is doomed to end however much he dislikes to own it.

READER.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE EXAMINER:

Sir,—The war between Modernism or old-fashioned infidelity on the one hand and the belief in supernaturalism or God on the other is waging just now with unexampled violence. Broadly speaking, the result will be the triumph of those who believe that man is the highest power and the source of all moral knowledge governing him of those who believe that God made and rules the universe, including that poor little thing called man. The triumph of man over God (don't laugh) is Paganism. The ancient paganism. But paganism, had a belief in some sort of deism while present day pagans do not believe in anyone but themselves. They believe in man and particularly in that part of him which they stand for. The pure modernist not only believes man is the last word and a law unto himself, but wishes to force that belief on others. He is so absolutely convinced that he is right and so determined to have his own way about it that he proposes to make his will law and then to force it through laws and every other commonplace crude and every day human device upon the rest of mankind. Like Mr. Raney, he will call out for his own rights with a loud and outraged voice but when others do that he laughs at them. Modernism is madness, a sort of craze that people have when they imagine they are Queen Victoria or Julius Caesar. Only just now they are imagining they are God. It is a strange malady this and notwithstanding the fact that no one could learn the difference between right and wrong in nature and therefore could not have learned it from Nature the mad modernist is determined to have his way. Of course, modernistic infidelity will vanish as it has done so often before but meanwhile think of the damage it is doing in trying to compel man to worship himself and particularly that portion of mankind now seeking to impose its will on the rest. If they are right what an awful mess of it the Deity has made. To the self-centred mind the world is a mistake. Nearly all these people could have made a far better world if they had been making it and though they think it may be a little late they are going to take it in hand now. When people realise what it all means it will die amidst the laughter of mankind. Meanwhile, what do the poor missionaries report? Increasingly numerous reports say that the foreigner is saying: "I told you so. We knew Christianity was a humbug and now Christians admit it themselves. Of course, if they wish to send us money, more power to them, but their religion has vanished in smoke." The modernists are actually saying: "Do what you (that is we) think is right and if God is any sort of a God at all He must approve of it."

A nice religion that. It's power they are after.

J. H. BURNHAM.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE EXAMINER:

Sir,—It was very interesting to read Rev. Robt. Pogue's quotations from Bernard Shaw. Will he please quote now instances showing that the Creator and the Saviour were or are prohibitionists. I think if he would that would end the argument. But there are many more like myself who feel that prohibition of anything that God has made and Christ made use of is a sin much worse than excessive drinking, bad as that is. If Mr. Pogue proposes to reform the world by Force he will have his hands full and not the least of his difficulties will be that the use of force by one set of reformers is equally permissible to any other lot. A nice highly-civilized and ultra-Christian state of affairs that will be.

Is Mr. Pogue aware that it is his coercionist methods that have aroused the passionate protests of the anti-unionists? Does he advocate force there too? Regarding the "bad sports" to whom he refers does he not know that the people who resort to force are put off the ice? Force to normal people is the very embodiment of crudeness and bad sport. Is it any wonder North America is a shambles of disorder? Mr. Pogue and his all-conquering friends may be very perfect people, at least in their own estimation but the rest of us must be allowed a little latitude, a little freedom. Mr. Pogue might have learned from Ireland what coercion did with a high-spirited people. Does he want seven centuries of murder and disorder here too? It is very nice for people to think that they are the last word but it is not so nice when they grow bumptious and manifest their superb poise, their culture, and last but not least I hope, their belief in the methods and sacrifice of the Saviour. Who could have crushed the world but let the world crush Him—that the true spirit might live. That is the model for Mr. Pogue to take. But this, I will admit, that the bootlegger who sells homebrew and is as General Williams has just reported the great menace to our life and impossible to get at—is the very good friend of the prohibitionists and thinks Mr. Pogue a very present help in time of trouble. He is the strongest of all the supporters of the O.T.A. People who respect our youth and believe as Christ did that regeneration must come from within will deplore the corruption, the excessive drinking amongst the young and the entire loss of faith which has made Ontario a by-word and a disgrace.

However, if normal decent people are not to have reasonable freedom in their private family life, and that is all they ask, but are to be hunted and hammered by other people who have lost their faith and have instituted diagonnades instead the worm may turn and when he turns others will do some turning too, believe me.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By Olive Roberts Barton

MORE ESCAPES

Nancy and Nick hid in a pink rose.

When the giant farmer's wife fished Nancy and Nick out of her milk pail, thinking they were flies, she threw them down on the grass beside her.

"Pie upon you, pesky things!" she cried. "Hasn't one enough troubles with all the work to do, without being bothered so! I hope the big green frog will get you and gobble you up—and all your relations."

The Twins had to laugh, even though their breath was nearly knocked out of them, and they were half choked with the milk they had swallowed.

"Better keep out of her way or she will put her foot on you," said a voice beside them. "Or worse still the cow may take a notion to eat the grass where you are hiding. Better come away."

And a great creature came up close beside them and looked at them with its big eyes. It appeared to be almost as large as a pony to the astonished children, but in a way, more like a camel, for it had two humps to its back. However, it was nothing so unusual—it was merely a Beanstalk Ant. Here everything was hundreds of times as big as they were at home.

"If you like I will give you a ride," offered the ant kindly. "But do hurry. I saw the rooster coming this way and if he sees us it will be 'Eeny, meeny, miny mo! I need some food so down you go' with all three. And I for one have no desire to be one of the courses of Mr. Rooster's dinner. There he comes now. Quick! Jump on."

Up scrambled the Twins—Nancy on one hump and Nick on the other, and away went the big ant bumpity bump toward his ant-hill house which happened to be right in Mrs. Giant's flower garden.

But just as he reached it, the giant's daughter came into the garden and the ant was so frightened that he scrambled into his round doorway, scraping off the Twins as he passed through in the most unmannerly way.

And Nancy and Nick, with no time to lose, climbed up a rose bush and into a big pink rose and hid.

Suddenly they felt a violent jerk. The giant's daughter was picking flowers and she had pulled off the very rose in which they were hiding.

"Oh!" gasped Nancy, holding tight. "What's going to happen next, Nick? Beanstalk Land just seems to be one escape after the other. We're always in trouble."

"We're all right!" said Nick bravely. "We might be in worse places than a nice pink rose."

"That's right," laughed Nancy.

"This is a lovely bouquet!" said the giant's daughter's voice just then. "I'll take it into the house and put it on the table. I am sure there is not a lovelier rose than this pink one in all Beanstalk Land."

With that she smelled the rose so hard that the Twins were afraid they would be caught in the draft and disappear up her nose like Willy Winkie up the chimney. But nothing more happened and the next thing they knew they were being carried into the house and set in a glass vase with other flowers on a table that looked as large as a corn field.

SAVE YOUR FACE FROM WRINKLING.

Beauty Specialist Tells How to Keep Features Clear and Healthy.

By MARIAN HALE.

NEW YORK, Feb. 29.—Wintertime is wrinkletime, according to Kathleen Mary Quinlan, beauty specialist.

"Bleak north winds and protracted cold dry the delicate texture of the skin," she says, "and make it lose its elasticity. Then the tissues underneath shrink and the first thing we know a wrinkle is getting its start in life."

Since there isn't a woman living who wants an accordion pleated face, I besought this oracle to give us a little advice.

"Cleanse, stimulate, nourish and refine the skin," she began. "You need a cleanser to free the pores thoroughly of dust and impurities, an astringent to restore the elasticity and a skin food to nourish the tissues.

Exercise Face.

"And as you apply your preparations exercise the muscles of your face by lifting and molding with the cushion parts of your fingers. To do this you must understand the muscle formation of your face.

"The muscle that controls the contour lies directly along the jaw and is attached to the jawbone in front of the ear. It should be treated with brisk movements. With the fingertips on the chin knead this muscle upward toward the ear with firm, pressing movements. Each movement should be distinct and the skin should not be stretched. It usually takes six separate movements to reach the ear, and these should be repeated frequently.

"Another important muscle is drawn from the corner of the nostril and fastened to the jawbone just in front of the ear. It should be kneaded and molded in the same lifting manner as the first muscle.

Clear Forehead.

"Next consider the muscle about the lips. With firm lifting, pressing movements mold this muscle by starting in the centre of the lower lip and follow the line of the lips around to the centre of the upper lip. Knead upward along the nose to preserve the contour.

"Relaxation of the muscles of the forehead causes the brows to droop and makes the eye appear smaller. To strengthen these, brace the forehead muscles and lift the brows, having a generous supply of skinfood on the forehead. Knead it with pressing, molding movements.

"Begin at the centre of the forehead and work downward toward the temples. Then close the eyes and press the second and third fingers directly under the brows near the nose. Press up firmly against the brows, then gently press the tissues beneath the eyes, moving inward toward the nose.

"Follow this with applications of warm oil, then an astringent applied on cotton that has been squeezed out of ice water. Keep this up every night and you needn't fear winter's winds or summer's heat."

GOOD ADDRESS KIWANIS CLUB

Mr. S. R. Armstrong Presents Interesting Paper on Public Ownership.

To-day the Peterobrough Kiwanis Club was favoured with an address by City Clerk S. R. Armstrong on public ownership. Mr. Armstrong gave a skillful exposition of the development of public ownership both in Peterborough as applied to water and electrical utilities and to public ownership as adopted in other parts of the world. The address was replete with facts and figures and it is the intention of the Examiner to publish it in full in the course of a few dayse.

President John R. Marshall presided at to-day's meeting. To-day's guests included Col. E. R. Wilson of the Customs service, Mr. Robert Hicks and Mrs. S. R. Armstrong.

J. Wells Fraser was introduced by Kiwanian Charlie Cook as a new member and invested with the emblem of Kiwanis. The booster to-day was Kiwanian Walter Lacey, who gave an interesting and instructive resume of his profession as an optometrist and the beneficial effects obtained by wearing properly fitted glasses.

The prize winners were Kiwanians Herb Gilgour, Harry Boyle and John Marshall.

Next month Lindsay will hold an open night to which the Peterborough club are invited.

ALL CHEQUE ARTISTS HAVE BEEN ARRESTED

A communication from Chief Dan Thompson of Windsor formerly chief of Peterborough police force, this morning told of the gang of cheque artists that victimized Peterborough merchants a few weeks ago.

One of the gang, giving his name as James A. Harris, pleaded guilty of one charge and was found guilty of another. He was sentenced to not less than 15 months and not more than 2 years imprisonment. After this sentence had been passed on Harris, who has so many aliases they could not be counted, Chief Thompson questioned him regarding his Peterborough activities. He acknowledged operating here, and identified the two men who were arrested in Stratford on similar charges, as those who worked with him in Peterborough. Nine city merchants have positively identified the men from their photographs, and it is probable that at the expiration of their term in Windsor and Stratford they will be brought here for trial.

In his letter Chief Thompson credits Chief Newhall with the capture. It was through the exact descriptions of the men and their methods broadcasted by the Chief after personal investigation that the men who were passing bogus cheques were capured.

Canadian Stock Exchange — And Mines

New York Stock Exchange —and Curb Pri s —

Today's Quotations and Opinion and Reviews of the Markets.

NEW YORK, Feb. 29. — (United Press).—The leading industrials reached new highs on the recovery at the start of trading in the stock market to-day, reflecting the optimism engineered by President Coolidge's acceptance of the compromise on the surtax rate and by the breaking showing of car loadings for the week ended February 17.

These loadings reached a total of 118,000 in excess of any corresponding week, demonstrating that general business was expanding at a rapid rate.

Shorts who have based their position on theory that the trade situation was unsatisfactory, made haste to cancel their contract, with the result that American Can. attained the best price on the current rally at 115 3-8, Baldwin at 134, and other speculative favorites moved up in proportion. Advancing tendencies in the general list were interrupted before the end of the first hour by the recurrence of selling in the North-Western rail group, with Northern Pacific suffering the brunt of the pressure.

This issue's break to new low ground for the year was followed by a renewal of professional offerings of Studebaker and Baldwin, which experienced point recessions from the early highs, causing unsettlement in the market as a whole.

Weakness in Northern Pacific was due to selling on the poor January showing, in which that road simply kept company with all others in the North-West. The reasoning was that as Northern Pacific earned only a fraction over its five per cent. dividend last year, the January loss of fifty per cent. in net must have a direct bearing on the future dividend rate.

One house that is a large lender of steel common, estimates the short interest at 150,000 shares, or between 15 and 20 per cent. of the floating supply.

PRESENTATIONS TO C.N.R. ROADS OVERSEER.

Mr. H. M. Hobson Left for Portland, Me., This Morning.

Mr. Harry M. Hobson just recently received the official information that his services on the Lindsay and Peterborough Districts warranted promotion. As overseer of the Roads Department in these two districts during the past few years he has proved his ability in all situations at all seasons of the year, and the men under his charge had in Mr. Hobson an overseer they liked to work for.

The promotion the C.N.R. have conferred will take him to the sector north of Portland Maine, with his headquarters in that city, on the same railway, for which district Mr. Hobson left Peterborough this morning.

Mr. Hobson's friends in the city wish him the best of success in his new field of activities.

On Wednesday the foremen and men of the Lindsay-Peterborough Districts met Mr. Hobson at the local station, and wishing him Godspeed, presented him with a well-filled purse, and an address couched in terms of regret at his departure and pleasure for having been privileged to labour with him in this district.

Last Sabbath the teachers and officers of Knox Presbyterian Sabbath School, at the close of the session, presented Mr. Hobson with an address of appreciation for his services as assistant superintendent, and also gave him a set of gold sleeve links, suitably engraved.

Again last night a deputation, on behalf of Knox Church choir, waited upon him at his home, and as a mark of appreciation presented him with a gold Eversharp pencil, with the expressed regrets of the choir members on his departure, and wishing him every happiness and success in his new sphere.

Mr. Hobson expressed his thanks on each occasion in simple terms.

Mrs. Hobson and Misses Dorothy and Marjorie intend remaining in town until June, when they, too, will proceed to Portland, Maine.

PRINCE EDWARD COUNTY ASKS GOVERNMENT FARM

TORONTO, Feb. 29. — (Canadian Press).—A deputation from Prince Edward County asked Hon. John S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture, this morning to establish a demonstration farm in that county. The deputation pointed out that Eastern Ontario was served only by a farm at Kemptville. Consideration was promised.

TARIFF REDUCTIONS FEATURE OF SPEECH

Conservatives and Progressives Will Spend Week-end in Considering Speech From Throne.

OTTAWA, Feb. 29.—(Canadian Press).—Conservatives and Progressives alike will spend the week end in consideration of the speech from the throne. At a party caucus their attitude will be formally determined and a decision reached whether or not an amendment to the address is to be presented. Any such amendment, it is felt, is more likely to originate from the Conservatives than from the Progressives.

The debate on the address next week will no doubt turn to a large extent on the tariff reductions as indicated in the speech from the throne. In parliamentary corridors, it is a feature of the speech giving rise to the most comment and there is much speculation how far the reference in the speech will be given effect.

WILL BLAME CURRY FOR DEFALCATIONS

TORONTO, Feb. 29. — Premier Ferguson said this morning that J. Walter Curry, Registrar at the Toronto Registry Office, would be held responsible to the Ontario Government for the money lost by the defalcations by two clerks in his office. The sum is stated to be $5000.

The Premier said that the clerks were employed by Mr. Curry, and that it would be up to him to make good the losses. The clerks were not bonded by the government. The alleged defalcations were unearthed by an audit.

The government has started audits in many departments, Premier Ferguson said this morning, and that many irregularities had been discovered.

"The whole trouble has arisen through the fact that no audit of receipts was ever made," said the premier. "Loose bookkeeping and lack of supervision is largely responsible for the existing state of affairs."

It is stated that the total losses through loose methods will run about $150,000. The discoveries made by the audit will mean a shake up in civil service in many departments.

TO GET HUMAN SPEECH BY ARTIFCIAL MEANS.

NEW YORK, February 29. — A demonstration of the artificial production of human speech was given last night at the monthly meeting of the New York Electrical Society, 29 West 39th Street.

Experts at the demonstration said the results were the best ever obtained in artificial voice production experiments. Yesterday, they said, was the first time an audience had heard the sounds through a loud speaker.

The sounds are produced by a combination of vacuum tube oscillators, amplified and tuned circuits which approximate the vibrations of the human vocal chords, throat and lips.

MEMORIAL TO OFFICER IN HOUSE OF COMMONS

OTTAWA, Feb. 29.—(Canadian Press).— A memorial to Lieut.-Col Harold Baker, killed in action at Sanctuary Wood, June 2, 1916, which was erected by the Parliament of Canada of which the officer was a member when he went overseas, was unveiled by Governor-General Lord Byng at the entrance to House of Commons to-day. The ceremony was the occasion of eloquent tributes to the heroic young officer and was attended by members of parliament.

YELLOW AND GREEN

Yellows and greens are blended most subtly in the new gowns and millinery, and frequetly there is a suggestion of rose and blue.

PORT HOPE SANITARY UP.

Port Hope Sanitary common made a gain of 1 1-2 to 50 1-2. The company's report is ready for the shareholders, and a good year's business is reported to have been experienced. The company, which paid 6 per cent. on the comomn in 1922, but nothing since, is said to be about to resume payments on a similar basis.

ENFORCE REGULATIONS.

QUEBEC, Feb. 29.—(Special).—Quebec may enforce strict regulations to prevent the spread of smallpox from Ontario and may scrutinize all travellers entering the province.

RELAY BROADCASTING.

KDKA at Pittsburg is sending its concerts on to the Pacific coast by means of a relay broadcasting station at Hastings, Neb. The operation is performed on short wavelengths, making this a duplicate experiment in future broadcasting.

CHEAP WALL PAPER.

Sometimes very cheap wall paper that is quite impossible on the right side has a soft ecru or buff tone on the back that makes a very acceptable covering.

WASHING GLASS.

Glass that has been washed in warm water with either soda, ammonia, or soap should be wiped at once.

BEFORE POLISHING WOOD.

All stains should be removed from wood before it is polished as they will be very noticeable if they are not.

TOWN DEMANDS $10,000 FOR LICENSING FIGHT

Cumberland, R.I., Decide to Grant License to War Veterans Giving Option for Ten Days at $10,000--Dempsey and Wills.

CUMBERLAND, R.I., February 29 (Canadian Press). — The Town Council of Cumberland yesterday voted to grant a license to the Rhode Island Department, Veterans of Foreign Wars, for a bout between Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion, and Harry Wills ,negro challenger, to be held here on 4th or 12th July.

Attachd to the resolution was the proviso that the promoters pay a fee of $10,000 to the town within ten days.

Harry W. Dyer, representing the veterans, John J. Griffin, who announced himself as the representative of Tex Rickard, New York boxing promoter, appeared before the Council to present the petition for a license. They asked that permission to hold the bout be granted immediately, and offered to pay therefor a fee of $500.00.

The Council considered the proposal in executive session and later in open meeting passed the order with the $10,000 fee added.

NEWS TO RICKARD.

NEW YORK, February 29 (Canadian Press). — Tex Rickard, boxing promoter, last night denied all knowledge of a proposed heavyweight bout in July between Jack Dempsey, world's champion, and Harry Wills, negro challenger, a license for which was granted by the Town Council of Cumberland, R.I., in which place the fight promoters said it would be held.

Rickard said he knew nothing of the proposed match and denied that Griffin was acting for him.

WALTER JOHNSON IN FINAL SEASON

Retirement Depends on His Purchase of Pacific Coast League Club.

CLEVELAND, O., February 29 (Canadian Press). — Reports which have been current during the winter that Walter Johnson, star pitcher of the Washington Americans, contemplated retiring from the major leagues after this season, were confirmed by the veteran strike-out king at Hot Springs, yesterday, according to advices received by the Cleveland Plain Dealer from its staff correspondent last night.

His retirement hinges, according to the story, on whether Johnson is able to purchase a Pacific Coast League club, for which he is negotiating. If he is successful in landing it, Johnson will manage it and take his turn on the mound.

Billy Evans Says

What part does a brainy catcher play in the career of a famous pitcher? A recent statement by Stanley Covelskie, star pitcher of the Cleveland club, that he would get along just as well without Steve O'Neill, inspires the thought. For eight years, O'Neill has caught Coveleskie and did a good job of it. Next summer Steve will be backstopping for Boston. Last season Covelskie won only 13 games. This years he says he will win 20, despite the fact he will be minus the guiding hand of his old catcher.

The history of the splitting of famous batteries shows that the pitcher, for a time at least, sadly misses his old battery mate. No doubt Covelskie feels that he will be an exception to the rule.

In the old days when Walter Johnson was at the top of his game he missed Gabby Street any time injuries or illness forced his battery partner out of the lineup. With a second-string catcher handling Johnson's delivery the umpire calling balls and strikes never felt safe until the game was over and he had escaped serious injury. It is foolish to argue that any catcher can step in and handle the delivery of some famous pitcher as well as his regular battery mate.

I have always regarded John Henry and Eddie Gharrity great catchers, yet neither of those two backstops during their stay with the Washington club could efficiently handle Walter Johnson's stuff.

Of course there are exceptions to any set rule. I have in mind the old Walsh-Billy Sullivan battery. On the Chicago club at the same time was Eddie McFarland, a catcher in most ways the equal of Billy Sullivan, yet McFarland was an absolute failure in trying to handle Walsh's deceptive spitball. It seemed to be an accepted opinion that when Sullivan passed out of the big league picture the effectiveness of Walsh would be greatly decreased.

As Billy Sullivan approached the passing out stage the Chicago club purchased a diminutive young catcher, Ray Schalk, from the Milwaukee club of the American Association. Would he try to catch Walsh?

Fandom and scribes rather laughed at the idea of Schalk being Sullivan's successor. Lack of size seemed to be his greatest fault. A light catcher like Schalk could never stand up under the strain of handling Walsh's delivery. It is a matter of record, however, that Walsh with Schalk catching continued to be the same effective twirler. It is doubtful if any catcher could have possibly handled him better.

Perhaps Covelskie is right in his belief that he won't miss O'Neill. However, we have a faint suspicion that until his new catcher gets on to the peculiar twists of his spitball delivery he will have fond memories of Smiling Steve.

SPORT EVENTS FROM COBOURG

Lot of Interest in Rural Hockey Games.

COBOURG, Feb. 29.—(Special).—It is a long time since so keen an interest has been taken in hockey by rival teams in Northumberland County as is apparent this season. At the week-end two of these teams, Hull's Corners, Hamilton Township, and The Gully, Haldimand Township, met the Cobourg rink. Hull's Corners won by a score of 5-2. Mr. Walsh was referee. The players were:

Hull's Corners—W. Hircock, R. Jackson, Gardener, H. Usher, C. Murray, Geo. Tinney.

The Gully—Ken. Haig, T. Hume, W. Cunningham, W. A. Hoskin, Harold Speer, J. Oliver.

Curling News.

Four rinks of Cobourg curlers went down to Napanee and Belleville to play in the Eastern circuit events of the Ontario Curling Association. They lost to Belleville in the evening game by 7 shots, and at Napanee in the afternoon were 49 shots up on the day's play. At the close of the game at Belleville a pleasant social hour was spent with the Bay City curlers, who served coffee and sandwiches.

FASHION PLATES OF THE GOLF LINKS

Star Golfers Shame Proud Peacock in Brilliant Hues and Gaudy Styles.

LEFT: WALTER HAGEN IN HIS "PRINCE OF WALES" OUTFIT. CENTER: ARTHUR HAVERS IN A GORGEOUS STUDY IN CHECKS AND ORIENTAL BLOCKINGS. RIGHT: OLD TED RAY IN HIS OVERALLS, SO TO SPEAK.

BY JOE WILLIAMS

Golf has made advances beyond the purely mechanical, such as are represented by the ivory-faced driver, the far-flying ball and the heavily ribebd irons.

Golf has created a sartorial style all its own. Whereas the matter of dress was of little or no consequence to the player in years past it is now a consideration of extreme importance. The well-dressed man of the links has come quite definitely into his own.

Knickerbockers cut along the generous architectural lines of a circus tent, sweaters that scream their colorful hucs to the high heavens, wool-bearing hose replete with clockings and bizarre tattings, belts that shame the rainbow, snoes as unconventional as Hollywood love—These resplendent accoutrements, and more, have made the male golfer a thing of beauty if not exactly a joy forever.

Havers a "Dandy"

Arthur Gladstone Havers, British professional champion, is now in our midst, giving exhibitions at so much per exhibit. Arthur Gladstone belongs to the school of fastidious dressers. His collections of golfing coats and exquisite sweaters is at once rare and violent.

Recently Havers went against Walter Hagen, former American champion, in a New Orleans match. Mr. Hagen himself is no meek, obscure figure on the links. His golfing attire is always faultlessly correct, and frequently unique. It is said the point appearance of these two gorgeous gents proved too much for the society reporters who cracked under th, strain of describing their sartorial splendours.

The Gallery Influence

One great golfer who remains aloof from the modern demands of style is Ted Ray, giant Britisher, who came over here and won the American open title several years ago. Ray has about as much style as a bowl of mashed parsnips, and when on the links looks more like the man who runs the freight elevator than a golfing genius.

It may be quite possible, in view of Ray's success, that dress has nothing whatever to do with skill.

And if big galleries wouldn't follow the important matches—big galleries that include more than a sprinkling of impressionable maidens, maybe the dear boys wouldn't try to outdo the lilies of the field—Or can it be that we are unduly cynical?

BOWLING

SETS UP RECORD FOR LADIES IN BOWLING

Yesterday afternoon at Solomon's Alleys Miss H. Henry set up a record for the high single and the high three games for ladies. Miss Henry rolled the sensationally high score of 258 and for her three games she had 581. This is some bowling and will take some beating. No big city lady bowler has had a high single of 258 and I doubt if any of them have rolled as high for three games.

This score shows how well the ladies are picking up the game and it sure is a wonderul effort on the part of the bowler. Some of the male members of the bowing fraternity do not roll as good as score as this one. It sure deserves a place in the Hall of Fame.

CITY TEN PIN LEAGUE

Last night in the City Ten Pin League at Solomon's Alleys the Crescents took three straight from the Lawn Bowlers and went into undisputed possesion of first place in that league.

Some nice scores were turned in by the boys, Curvin being high man with 552, Pidgeon next with 529, J. C. Green next with 520 and Sharpe with 512.

Following are the scores:

Crescents—
J. C. Green	166	168	186	—520
Pidgeon	192	174	163	—529

BRINTON CARPET LEAGUE

Last night at Solomon's Alleys in the Brinton Carpet League at Solomons' Alleys the Dominions won two out of three from the Windsors.

Nice score were turned in, Dorrell being high man for the evening with 595 and Leether next with 525. Leether had the high single of 260.

Following are the scores:

Dominions—

MERCANTILE LEAGUE

In the Mercantile League last night at Solomon's Alleys the Nashua Paper won two out of three from the Merchants Press.

Some great scores were rolled by both teams. Ballard was the high man of the evening with 651, while Miller was right on his heels with 624 and Fallon came through with 592. Ballard had the high single of 263.

Following are the scores:

Nashua Paper—

The NUT CRACKER BY JOE WILLIAMS

RUTH'S DOGS BARK.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark.—Babe Ruth has had to stop training on account of aching feet.—News item.

WASHINGTON, D.C.—President Coolidge was profoundly shocked at news from the south that Babe Ruth's expansive puppies had gone democratic, and promised an "immediate, adequate and unshrinking" investigation.

SUDBURY, Mass.—This quaint littl township was plunged into stygian gloom today when it was learned that Ruth's stylish-stout dogs have cracked under he strain. A mayor's proclamation was read to the assembled peasantry in public square and hips were hung at half flask.

LONDON—The Prince of Wales was in no position to comment officially today on the revolt of Ruth's bloodhounds when approached by your correspondent. The young gent at the moment was being dragged from under a polo horse.

MIAMI, Fla.—On hearing that the Slambino's unclipped griffons had folded up under him, Gene Sarazen registered a triple distilled look of surprise, and commented as follows: What do you think! It got Baton Rogue on the radio last night!"

NEW YORK—Wall Street tottered on the thin outer edge of o man's size panic when the news broke that Ruth's wire-haired terriers had gone on stirke. "Why on earth didn't he bathe them in Lux" the hysterical Morgans asked.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—The motion picture industry, as it is jokingly called, received the news of the Ruthian holocaust with moderate composure. "All I ask is that the public hear my story," commented Mable.

PARIS—The franc tumbled to new low levels following the collapse of the Bambino's spacious Airedales. Poincare pleads for continued optimism. "Maybe, it's just a corn," he suggests, hopefully.

SETUPVILLE, Kas.—"Of course the catastrophe will have a serious effect on the Peruvian lettuce situation, but I've always maintained that Ruth had bad footwork."—Jack Dempsey.

NEW ORLEANS—"I am not alarmed. Ruth can roll up to the plate in a wheelchair and still be able to get a longer ball on a bunt than anybody else on a home run."—Mr. Huggins (himself).

SOCCER NOTES

The regular meeting of the P. and D. F. A. will be held in the Chamber of Commerce Rooms on Monday evening, March 3rd., at 8 o'clock prompt. All representatives and executive officers are requested to attend.

It is rumoured in soccer circles that a new league will be started under the old name of "Trent Valley League" and informal notifications have been sent to local football clubs We shall "wait and see?"

An old Comrade-Caledonian player, Alex. Morris, is visiting in the city. He went back to Scotland but returned across the Atlantic last spring to Detroit. When playing, Alex. was considered the best half-back in the league.

A sure sign of Spring—the elaborate diplay of soccer trophies in the White's Sports and Athletic window which indicates a prosperous School League, Junior League and Senior League.

Fire Destroyed Jock Harty Skating Arena Where Young Petes Were to Play Tonight

KINGSTON, Feb. 29.—The Jock Harty skating arena was destroyed by fire during the night. As a result the O.H.A. junior game between Peterobrough and Kingston that was to have been played tonight, has been called off.

NIAGARA FALLS WON THE ROUND

Tied With Collingwood Last Night and Enter Semi-Finals by Margin of One.

COLLINGWOOD, Feb. 29.—(Canadian Press).—The one-goal lead secured by Niagara Falls in the first game of the play-off with Collingwood on Monday night at home was the margin by which they entered the O. H. A. Intermediate semi-finals, as the locals held them to a 3 to 3 game here last night, the score on the round being 7 to 6 for Niagara Falls. The game, which was played on rather heavy ice, was witnessed by the largest crowd of the season, and considering the importance of the struggle and the heavy nature of the ice, was well and cleanly played, and was anybody's game until the final bell.

STRATFORD SEIZE RIGHT TO FINALS

Doubled Score on Preston Last Night and Took Championship of Group by 7 to 3.

PRESTON, Feb. 29. — (Canadian Press). — Stratford Seniors played grand hockey here last night and beat the Preston team by 6 to 3, winning the round and the championship of Group No. 2 by 7 to 3. The contest was bitterly contested, and the play was strenuous, but all the fouls were minor, the visitors getting three and Arnott of the locals two.

Preston lacked the speed of the flashy Stratford crew, and in addition the playing of Dad Ashley was too big a handicap for the locals to overcome. Ashley was never better. Preston tried valiantly to stop this veteran, who has been a star for many years, but their efforts went for naught, as Ashley speeded up and down the ice at will.

The fast Stratford forwards had a big time of it. Frank Carson, "Butch" Kellerborn and Brickman formed one of the shiftiest front lines seen here in many a day. The largest crowd of the season saw the teams battle for the right to enter the O.H.A. finals.

MRS. C.E. JAMIESON WON CURLING FINAL

Finals in Mixed Curling Game for Sturgeon Trophy.

The finals in the mixed curling games for the Sturgeon Shield were played yesterday afternoon, the rink skipped by Mrs. C. E. Jamieson winning the trophy. The final score was 15 for Mrs. Jamieson's rink and 10 for Mrs. R. M. Waddell, with the personnel as follows:

Curling News

On Saturday night, at 7:30, the final game of the vice-skips' bonspiel, will be played between Larmer and Sedgwick, in a 14-end game.

On Wednesday night Larmer had to be taken from the ice, when an attack of appendicitis overtook him, and it is not likely that he will be able to compete in the finals.

Percy King finished the game for him on Wednesday night, and it is likely that he will take Larmer's place to-morrow night.

Postponed games to be played to-morrow night are:
Sturgeon vs. Best.
Connal vs. Moore.
Boucher vs. Browne.
Foote vs. Kenner.
Kay vs. Hicks.
Medd vs. Westbrooke.
Turner vs. Henry

Postponed games to be played on Saturday afternoon at 3:30 are:
Hamilton vs. Downey.
Archibald vs. Widdiss.

The cup games for the season have all been played, and any rinks coming here or going away will be to play friendly games.

PETES REACH THE O. H. A. FINALS

First Time in Eighteen Years the Feat Has Been Accomplished by Local Team.

For the first time in eighteen years since Peterboro won the Intermediate championship from Goderich in 1906, a Peterboro hockey team has reached the finals in an O.H.A. series.

Niagara Falls' feat of winning the round from Collingwood sends the Petes into the last stage of the big series, as the Falls' outfit will meet the Guelph - New Hamburg winners in the semi-finals on Monday and Wednesday nights of next week.

The finals will be played on March 7 and 10.

Had Collingwood won the round last night the Petes would have had to play in the semi-finals, but the Falls' victory sends the Blue Shirts through to the finals.

New Hamburg have a two-goal lead on Guelph, with the second game of the round to-night.

In order to keep in shape for the final test the Petes will likely meet the Aura Lee Senior team at Brock Street Rink on Wednesday night.

ST. PETER'S CLASH WITH BELLEVILLE

Go Into Third Round To-morrow in a Sudden Death Game at Campbellford.

The St. Peter's High School Hockey team will invade Campbellford to play a sudden death game with Belleville in the third round of the Interscholastic series. The winner of this game will play off for the Ontario Scholastic championship with Bracebridge, next Saturday. The local boys are in the best of shape, and with Neal, Collins and Jack Lebarr of the Junior O.H.A. team on their line up, they will give the Belleville team a run for their money.

JUNIOR GAME IN KINGSTON IS OFF

Young Petes Were All Set For a Gruelling Battle Tonight, but Rink Burned Down and the Game is Off.

The game to be played to-night in Kingston between the local Juniors and the Kingston team, in the third round of the O.H.A. race, has been postponed on account of the Jock Harty Arena being destroyed by fire last night. No official word has been received here yet as to the netx game, but it is expected that the game that was scheduled here for Monday night will be played later. The management of the team received a message this morning stating that the Kingston team would be willing to play a sudden death game here if the Peterborough management would guarantee them $200 for their expenses. This has not yet been decided upon, and it is liable that a sudden death game will be played half way between here and Kingston, the winner to go into the fourth round, if Peterborough agrees. Every team so far this season that the locals have met have run into some kind of hard luck and if this sticks with them they will likely pull through with the Ontario championship tucked under their belts.

ALICE TERRY IS ONE SCHOOL GIRL WHOSE DREAMS COME TRUE

Leading Feminine Player in "Scaramouche" Made Way to Success From "Extra."

Alice Terry is the consummation of all the tales about a school girl who entered the motion picture field and won her way to success by her own efforts. For once, in thinking of Miss Terry, one need not remember the number of failures chronicled in Hollywood—merely how one girl reached the sunlight.

Miss Terry, who plays the leading feminine role in "Scaramouche," the new Rex Ingram-Metro production coming to the Capitol Theatre starting Monday, lived in Indiana before she entered the movies—Vincennes, to be exact. Two years before she became known because of her work in "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," she attended school in her own town, living the usual life of the small city girl, and dreaming the dreams of ambition.

A Momentous Visit

On a visit to Los Angeles she was induced by some of her friends to be an "extra" for a few days. She discovered she like pictures and stayed. At that time Rex Ingram, who was just becoming recognized as a promising director, was looking for a certain type girl for Metro's production of "Hearts are Trumps." his first assignment for this organization. He saw Alice, and found her ideal for the role.

She was so successful in the film that when Ingram was given his commission by Metro to do their most important picture of the year, Ibanez' "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," he chose Miss Terry again. She was "made" and the school girl of eighteen months before was now a star in the film firmament. Her character in the picture was a victim of a loveless marriage, who found relief in a love affair with a gay Argentinian.

Miss Terry then continued as the leading player in all the Rex Ingram films. "The Conquering Power" was the next, and in this production a love affair developed between the director and his star, and they became engaged soon afterward.

Beauty Became Byword

"Turn to the Right" was another success for the Indiana girl, where her beauty became a byword with "movie fans." Then came Mr. Ingram's production of Anthony Hope's "The Prisoner of Zenda," the first of all the romantic kingdom stories. Alice was ideal for the part; indeed, it is said she formed the inspiration that caused Ingram to select the romance of Ruritania. During the making of the production the pair were married.

After an absence from one of her husband's films, "Trifling Women," she returned in "Where the Pavement Ends" as the missionary's daughter.

Now she has another sympathetic role in "Scaramouche." Rafael Sabatini's story of the days of the French Revolution gives her a splendid opportunity as the proud Aline de Kercadiou who loved the hot-headed young noble despite his reckless fights against Royalty for the People's Cause.

"Scaramouche" is a Rex Ingram production for Metro adapted to the screen by Willis Goldbeck. John F. Seitz photographed the picture.

LUDENDORFF STAR FIRST MAGNITUDE

Old War Lord Will Give Evidence at Trial Today

MUNICH, Feb. 29. — (United Press).—The appearance of General Ludendorff himself on the stand to testify in his trial, with nine others, for treason in connection with last November's beer putsch failure aroused tremendous interest in the case to-day. At the same time, it was rumored that former dictator Von Kahr, General Lossow and Col. Seissner, who were at the head of the Bavarian Government, army and police at the time of the putsch will be arrested next week.

Many witnesses have implicated these three in the plot.

THEATRES

AT THE CAPITOL

Three popular screen actors, Jacqueline Logan, Antonio Moreno and Walter Hiers, have outstanding roles in the Capitol Theatre feature production for this week - end, "Flaming Barriers," an exciting picture that tells a story of love and danger and adventure. Filmed in the little Western mining town of Burbridge, it features the charming Jacqueline as Jerry Malone, the athletic and beautiful daughter of Patrick Malone, the inventor of a fast motor truck. The tale revolves around the adventures of father and daughter, in their struggle to retain possession of their factory and invention. Antonio Moreno is Sam Barton, son of the banker who is forcing the town to bankruptcy. The son falls in love with Jerry and becomes entangled in opposition with Joseph Pickens, who holds a mortgage against Malone's factory, and is trying to marry Jerry. One of the funniest characters in the piece is Van Scythe, the efficiency expert, played in fine style by the fat Walter Hiers, whose super-efficient methods give trouble to himself and everyone else.

In somewhat conventional fashion the story unwinds. The climax is a forest fire, where some daring stunts by motor and aeroplane are done by the girl and the hero, but the lovers and the wonderful invention come out successfuly, and everything ends happily.

MANY FAMOUS PLAYERS APPEAR, "SCARAMOUCHE"

When Rex Ingram casts a picture he makes a good job of it and assures competent acting in the different roles by securing the services of the best players available. In "Scaramouche," his latest production, Mr. Ingram presents three of the best known screen favorites, Alice Terry, well known for her great beauty as well as for her ability as a screen player, has the leading feminine role in the picture. Ramon Novarro, considered one of the handsomest men on the screen, appears opposite Miss Terry in the title role of the picture, while Lewis Stone, famed as a "heavy," is seen as the villianous marquis. Both Miss Terry and Lewis Stone have appeared together in previous Rex Ingram successes, the last one of which was "The Prisoner of Zenda." "Scaramouche" opens a four-day engagement at the Capitol Theatre next Monday. It is considered to be the finest entertainment yet offered on the screen and bids fair to surpass in popularity, Ingram's earlier success, "The Four Horsemen." A story of the French Revolution is allowed ample scope for immense settings and the introduction of some remarkable mob scenes of the rioting in Paris during the execution of aristocrats. The story, from the novel by Raphael Sabatini, has proved itself one of great popular appeal, by the records set in sales of the book. Sabatini's masterful romance of youth, love and adventure in the dark and bloody days of the Revolution is transferred to the screen with that great intensity that only Rex Ingram seems capable of. Everywhere, theatre goers are declaring that "Scaramouche" is the greatest screen entertainment yet offered the public. Two shows daily will be given at the Capitol, and patrons are requested to note that because of the exceptional length of this production, matinees will start promptly at 2:15 and the night performance promptly at 8 o'clock.

AT THE GRAND

"THE HILL-BILLY."

There is more action crowded in the feature film, "The Hill-Billy," which is being shown at the Grand for the last three days of the week than is usually to be found in half a dozen screen productions. Jack Pickford is the featured member of the cast, and he has a role in this picture that fits him like the proverbial glove. His picture of the mountain lad who haves the coal-fields from the greedy grasp of speculators is a fine piece of screen work. "The Hill-Billy" is a cross section of life in the southern mountains before the coal barons entered the field, and is alive with thrilling moments and dramatic surprises. Incidentally there is a deep vein of humor that relieves the tension of the drama. The scene in the rude court-room is particularly amusing and some of the character types are unsually amusing. The scenes are all laid in the mountains, and the locale provides an opportunity for clever photography that has been fully realized in this production. As for exciting features, "The Hill-Billy" is, as has been said, well supplied. The thrilling fight on a small raft, tossed and whirled about in the rapids, comes close in realism and excitement to the rescue in D. W. Griffith's "Way Down East" picture.

Charles Murray is seen to advantage in a two-reel comedy that contains a laugh a minute and a few over, and a scenic picture completes a fine bill.

The Grand's orchestra supplies delightful music.

AT THE ROYAL

TWO GOOD VAUDEVILLE ACTS TO-NIGHT

Judging from applause received it would be hard to say which act was appreciated the most at the Royal last night.

Naio and Rizzo, who call their offering a musical breeze, are two boys from sunny Italy, with piano-accordian and violin. It is the best act of its kind that has come to our attention. Tom and Addie Leon offer a novelty comedy pantomine and juggling. The comedy is good for many laughs and they are experts in their line when it comes to juggling. It is also noticeable that both acts are clean and refined.

WM. DUNCAN BACK IN "STEEL TRAIL"

Risking one's life is a small matter in the motion pictures.

Witness William Duncan and Edith Johnson, who, in the second chapter of "The Steel Trail," Universal chapter-play, now playing at the Royal Theatre, are hurled against a semaphore post by a runaway freight car. Miss Johnson is suspended by a rope, hitched to the car and dragging the horse on which Duncan rides at breakneck speed toward the post and almost certain death.

"The Steel Trail" is a thrilling story of the building of a railroad, in which Duncan, as the fighting construction engineer, battles with the elements and with plotters inside his organization to push his road to completion.

The second chapter shows a thrilling escape from pursuers in the wilderness, a desperate fight at a meeting of radical agitators, in which the engineer pits himself against a horde of "reds" and the hair-raising semaphore adventure, in which a heavy runaway car drags the two toward death. Their escape is one of the most ingenious devices ever put into a motion picture story.

THE SCREEN'S GREATEST PHOTODRAMA IN "FURY"

Perhaps no word in the dictionary has been quite so overworked, misused and abused as "Great." It is a word that has been applied indiscriminately to many motion pictures. Once in a great while—and in this instance it is very properly applied—a photoplay justly deserves the appellation. Such a motion picture was "Tol'able David." Now comes Richard Barthelmess in another which impels us to go one step further in superlatives and say "Greater," if not "Greatest."

That motion picture is "Fury," the First National attraction which began an engagement at the Royal Theatre last night. Replete with human interest, stirring with action, flavored with a heart touch that in one moment draws a tear and the next a laugh, this production, filmed under the direction of Henry King, is a chapter out of life itself—life of the rugged sort that stretches from the bounding main to Limehouse, London, and Glasgow, Scotland.

The sea "shots" on the "Lady Spray" are the last word in striking marine photography and constitute some of the best features of this truly great motion picture.

DOUBLE PROGRAMME AT ROYAL ON MONDAY

Instead of the usual one feature production the Royal on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday next will offer two full-length attractions, Tom Moore in "Harbor Lights," and Gladys Walton in "The Untameable." Both productions are of an entirely different nature, one being an exciting drama of the sea, the other with dainty Gladys Walton is a comedy-drama with a mystery added. The usual two vaudeville acts will also be presented. Terrell and Kemp, America's youngest equilibrists and Glick and Bright, "Just a Bundle of Personality." With a programme like this Peterboro' fans are certainly getting their money's worth at the Royal.

NOW KIDS ARE HAPPY!

VALONA, Calif., Feb. 29.—Snow hasn't fallen here within the memory of Valona's oldest citizen.

Yet, despite this shortcoming, Valona was a quiet, peaceful village up to that day, a few weeks ago, when the movie folk came in with their imported snow."

The white drifts, of studio manufacture, aroused the children's curiosity. Parents were bombarded with questions. Finally, desperate measures of relief were taken.

The whole town hided a special train and went to Truckee, 400 miles away. There for a whole day the kids frolicked in real snow.

Now, woe be to the youngster who mentions snow to his dad.

"BEGINNERS' LUCK."

CHICAGO, Feb. 29. — A former state's attorney, now engaged in private practice, was appointed by the court to defend a penniless prisoner.

Court attaches, for a joke, told the defendant his lawyer was just a beginner. But in only 30 minutes the attorney had won a verdict of "not guilty."

"I can't pay you, boss," his grateful client said, "but take the name of this boss and bet on him."

"But I never play the races," his counsel insisted.

"Well, do it now," replied the defendant. "If yo's as good a beginner at the races as yo' is at law, yo'll sho' win big."

ONE MAN DEAD AND FOUR ARE INJURED

QUINCY, Ills., Feb. 29.—(Canadian Press).—One man is dead, four fatally injured and two are missing [illegible] on here to-day at the [illegible]th Star Egg Case Company's mill.

The blast was caused by too heavy a pressure in the steam boiler.

YET THEY'RE TWINS!

FLORENCE, Italy, Feb. 29. — They're twins, yet each was born in different towns. The first made his bow to the world in the little village of Brozzi, five miles from here. A doctor, fearing complications, then ordered the mother to a Florence [illegible] birth to the second soon after her admittance. There was just two hours' difference in the children's ages.

ENGINEERS HEAR A GOOD ADDRESS

Mr. W. P. Dobson of the Hydro Commission was the Speaker Last Night

At the regular monthly meeting of the Peterboro Branch of the Engineering Institute in the Chamber of Commerce last evening, Mr. W. P. Dobson, Director of Laboratories for the Hyro-Electric Commission, gave an address on the testing and inspection of materials. The speaker described the various processes, and spoke in terms of high voltage and high tension transmission. Radio sets have been installed by the Commission to supplement the present telephone and telegraph services. The high testing laboratory is used for testing motors, transformers, and other high voltage electrical apparatus. In this laboratory rubber gloves are put through a ten thousand volt test and if they are all right they are sealed and shipped to the distributors. Tests have been made in connection with automobile headlights and a correct means of focusing obtained. A headlight out of focus will always glare.

Ways and means of testing light bulbs were shown on the screen, and also the laboratory tests made on concrete work. The speaker explained that the variety of work was large but the laboratories generally managed to examine everything that was sent to them.

Society

Mr. McDonald, who was taken to the Toronto General Hospital last week, is progressing nicely, after a critical operation.

CONSTRUCTION WILL NOT BE CEASED ON HIGHWAYS

TORONTO, Feb. 29.— Premier Ferguson took occasion when addressing a deputation representing 26 Ontario counties on highway matters at noon to-day to correct an impression from his speech to the Good Roads Association last night that construction was to be stopped on Provincial highways. "What I said was that there would be more mileage taken over but we will proceed with the economic construction of these highways." He repeated the statement that the Government would not assume 100 per cent. cost of the Provincial highways.

The Premier said that the Government intended to change the system of auto licenses cost so that the man with the heavy truck and the man who used the highways continuously would pay more than the casual and local user. He said the details of the plan were not yet worked out.

MAGISTRATE HAS RHEUMATISM CURE

Not Appreciated by Rheumatic Vagrant Who Will Enjoy Jail Warmth for a Week.

James David Morrison, formerly of Muskoka, was driven to vagrancy by rheumatism, he told Magistrate O. A. Langley in police court this morning. He had been working near Jones' siding, he said, until his rheumatism compelled him to quit in favor of begging in the city. He omitted the formality of obtaining a permit.

"Have you ever been in jail?" the Magistrate asked him.

"Oh, yes."

"Just for vagrancy, I suppose?"

"Oh, yes."

"Never for being drunk?"

"Oh, yes, I forgot that."

"Well, I think I'll give you a week or two up at the jail where it's nice and warm."

"I'd sooner not, myself."

"I think you had better go up there for a week. You'll get some good meals, and the weather will be warmer when you come out."

James David Morrison went.

$20,000 NET LOSS IN KINGSTON RINK FIRE

KINGSTON, February 29. Canadian Press. — Fire of undetermined origin, but supposed to have been caused by a cigar or cigarette stub, completely destroyed the Jock Hartly arena early this morning. The building was valued at $95,000, and was insured for $75,000.

Valiant fire fighting saved the pathological building, which is situated not more than 30 feet from the side of the arena, and which was slightly damaged.

Quantities of hockey outfits owned by Queen's, Frontenacs and Circle Six hockey teams, were saved, but all three organizations lost some parts of their equipments.

DAWES COMMITTEE STILL ON THE JOB

PARIS, Feb. 29.—(United Press). —The Dawes Committee of Experts to-day heard the report of a special committee which has been studying the possibility of obtaining reparations from German monopolies. It is understood the report recommended the establishing of an allied board of control over German monopolies in tobacco, sugar, wines and alcohol.

ONLY ONE FAMILY IS QUARANTINED IN CITY

COULDN'T RENT HOME NEGRO BOUGHT BLOCK

NEW YORK, February 29. — Jas. C. Thomas, negro Assistant U. S. Attorney, was unable to rent an apartment in the part of the city where he desired to live with his wife and infant son, so he purchased a $200,000 seven story modern apartment house, he announced to-day.

It is occupied by white families and is fully three blocks from the nearest section of the Harlem black belt.

Thomas declared that negroes were coming to New York by the thousands and predicted that the Harlem "black belt" soon would absorb miles of flats and apartments now occupied by white families.

Fist Fight Breaks Up Session of French Deputies

Senator Taunts Coolidge in Bitter Partisan Battle Over Retention of Daugherty

SAYS PRESIDENT LACKS STAMINA TO DISMISS HIM

Party Passions Blazed Up In Five-Hour Row in the United States Senate Over Oil Scandal Inquiry — Attempts to Pack Investigating Committee.

GALLERIES CROWDED.

WASHINGTON, March 1. — (Canadian Press).—The row over Attorney-General Daugherty plunged the Senate into a violent session yesterday—almost unprecedented for the exchanges of bitter personalities and insinuations of misconduct. As a result action was forced over until tomorrow on the proposal for an investigation of Mr. Daugherty's official record.

The storm which broke about the investigation resolution of Senator Wheeler, Democrat, Montana, swept over all boundaries of Senate rules and decorum. There were charges and counter-charges of attempts to "pack" the investigating committee; there were attacks upon numerous officials, present and past, from the White House down, and upon the personal conduct and affiliations of presidential candidates and Senators.

Outbursts From Crowd.

For more than five hours the battle raged, amid frequent outbursts from crowded galleries, despite repeated warnings and threats from the Chair. The Senate recessed last night with the debate in full swing, but with adoption of the investigation resolution in prospect today after another hectic period of discussion.

Sought Protection.

Most of Friday's battlefield was the Attorney-General's official record in various matters, including the oil scandal. Many old charges were repeated and one new accusation was made by Senator Heflin, Democrat, Alabama, who declared the Attorney-General had written a letter seeking to protect from prosecution an unidentified Republican National Committeeman of the West. Senator Heflin said he had seen a letter to a western District Attorney saying that any favors to the committeeman would be appreciated and adding that "he is our man."

Senator Wheeler, charging the Attorney-General with seeking to "intimidate" Senators, added that President Coolidge lacked "stamina" to call upon Mr. Daugherty for his resignation.

POLICE RELEASE A STAR WITNESS

Denizen of the Underworld Helps to Send Quartette to Chair.

NEW YORK, March 1.—(Canadian Press). — "Cheeks" Luciani, confessed denizen of the underworld and star witness in the prosection of four men for the murder of two Brooklyn bank messengers, was released from custody yesterday.

Simultaneously it was announced that the men Luciani helped to convict, Morris and Joseph Diamond, John Farina and Anthony Pantano, would be sentenced Monday next to the electric chair.

THE WEATHER.

March has come in lamb-like, although this morning at 7 o'clock the thermometer stood at zero, and 3 below was registered during the night. The snowfall in February was over 30 inches, while rain fell to .45 of an inch. The temperature was below zero on 13 days, with 13 degrees below as the coldest. February was a steady cold winter month. This is the month of rapid changes and cold winds.—W. P.

TRIAL MAY RUN TO MID-MARCH

Witnesses in Delorme Case Friday Repeat Evidence of Previous Trial — No Features.

MONTREAL, March 1.—A petition of evidence by witnesses who figured at the first trial in the court of Kings Bench, the trial on the "sanity" plea and at the coroner's inquest, was given in the hearing of the charge here Friday against Rev. Father Delorme of having murdered his half brother, Raoul in January 1922. Aside from this, the only feature was the exhortation by police lieutenant Turner who keeps discipline in the court room to the spectators, just before Mr. Justice Martineau came in for the afternoon session, warning them to keep quiet, observe decorum and not make a rush for the doors before His Lordship had left the bench.

Same Witnesses.

The witnesses were Professor Albert J. Kelly, Superintendent of McGill Observatory, who gave the temperature, weather conditions, etc., on January fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth, 1922, the time when the murder was completed; an employee of the Civic Roads Department who described the state of the sidewalks on those dates; detective Pusie who told of proceedings when the victim's body was conveyed to the morgue on Saturday morning, January 7; Rene Pilon who swore he had sold twelve cross links for automobile chains to Father Delorme on January 7, about 8.30 in the morning; Edward Lyons, church warden of the Anglican church near Snowdon, who testified that there was no sign of a body in the road past the little shed where it was subsequently found, when he passed there at eleven on the night of Friday, January 6; Joseph Bousquet, jeweller, who said that on December 31, 1921 a gold watch which he identified as belonging to the victim had been brought to his store for repair; and Augene Leonard who produced a bill signed by Father Delorme, showing that two dozen links for automobile chains had been bought by the priest on January 7.

Notes of Evidence.

Father Delorme sat in the dock with a large pad and has now abandoned his pencil for a fountain pen. He also has a red pencil with which he underlines some of his notes.

It is not thought that the end of the present trial will be in sight before the middle of March.

The court was adjourned until Monday morning.

Evidence as to cars owned by persons living near the Delorme home on St. Hubert street was heard at the morning session. Witness Paul Beauchamp, who has not previously testified in the case, stated that only himself and a Mr. Cardinal in addition to the priest owned cars in that neighborhood and that his own car was locked up during that winter. Joseph H. Cardinal testified to the same effect that his car was locked up all winter.

Walsh Respected By Montana Folk.

HELENA, Mont., March 1. — Montana "home folks" were offering odds Thursday that Senator Thomas J. Walsh, chief of the investigation of the Teapot Dome scandal, "would win his case."

In more than thirty years of legal practice in Montana Walsh has a record of never having lost a battle.

Here in Montana, where oftentimes the mercury drops to 30 below zero, there's an expression: "It's colder than T. J. Walsh."

Walsh is known to his home folks as the "Human Icicle" and "Iceberg Walsh."

No one was ever known to call the Senator "Tom."

The day that Thomas J. Walsh was elected Senator men after fat jobs sought Walsh's "best friend" for introductions. They soon discovered Walsh had no close friends. Nor has he to-day.

OBREGON MOPS UP TERRITORY

Continues Advance to Regain Control of Oil Zone of Northern Vera Cruz—Rebel Leader Executed.

MEXICO CITY, March 1.—(Canadian Press). — General Luis Gutierrez, commanding the Federal military operations in the oil region, is advancing against Puerto Lobos, to which point the rebels under Jose Moran withdrew from Tuxpam, according to official advices. From Puerto Lobos, General Guthierrez will continue his advance against Tamishua, thus controlling the whole oil zone of northern Vera Cruz.

Specials from Vera Cruz report that the rebels have evacuated Alvarado and the federal forces have been ordered to occupy that port.

Special despatches say that the rebel leader Manuel Rojas, who was captured during a recent battle, has been tried by court martial and executed in Vera Cruz.

Official advices state that 2000 armed rebels have occupied Acapulco and a federal column is being organized to capture that important Pacific port. The steamships Progresso and Coahuila, now at Manzanillo, will transport these forces which probably will be under orders of General Gonzalo Escobar.

MAN ARRESTED FOR A VAG HAD $2,000

Magistrate Bradford of Bobcaygeon Got the Surprise of His Life.

LINDSAY, March 1. — County Police Magistrate Bradford was given the surprise of his life this week while adjudicating on a case at Bobcaygeon in which Richard Harry Jackson, better known as "Flying Tinker," was charged with vagrancy. Jackson had been wandering around the country during the past ten days, and during the height of the severe blizzard of last week was tramping over the drifted roads between Bobcaygeon and Fenelon Falls, seeking shelter at night with hospitable farmers. When the storm ceased, he insisted on treking to Fenelon Falls, telling the farmers on the way that he was without means. He finally gave up the trip, and steps were taken to have him committed to a county institution, where he would be well looked after. With this end in view an information was handed Constable Garlick, of Bobcaygeon, who arrested Jackson and had him appear before the County Magistrate. At the trial he surprised the Magistrate so completely that he nearly fell out of the chair when he stated that he had nearly $2,000 in the bank. He was asked to produce his evidence, but it took a little time to do so, as he had his books sewed and wired up in his waistcoat pocket which took some time to undo. Besides having $2,000 in the Bank of Commerce and in the Bank of Montreal, he had considerable cash as well. His clothes were badly torn and in rags, and he wore no underwear. How he withstood the rigors of winter is a mystery. The charge of vagrancy was dismissed, and the prisoner was advised to push on towards Lindsay, where he would secure accommodation.

SOVIET GOAL IS WORLD DOMINION SAYS ZINIEVOFF

Bolshevik Leader Frankly Declares Aims of the Russian Reds and Sees Revolutionary Progress In America and Japan—Are Active In Other Countries.

STIRRING UP JAPS.

MOSCOW, March 1.— The Communist International has full right to expect welcome surprises from the United States labor movement, declares G. S. Zinievoff, chairman of the Executive Committee, in an article appearing in the PRAVDA Friday.

Reviewing the work of the movement for the past five years and outlining its aims for the next five, he says that Communistic revolutionary theories are making great progress even in America and Japan and adds that the latter country is on the verge of a revolution "like that of Russia in 1905."

M. Zinievoff also recommends the removal of the headquarters of the Third Internationale from Moscow to another central country with a greater percentage of Industrialists than Russia, "after our first decisive victory over the European bourgeoisie."

Britain Important

Great Britain was extremely important for when "a majority of the English workers became communized the people of the suppressed East will arise and the proletarian revolution be successful throughout Europe and the aim of the Communistic International is to work unceasingly to this end."

Continuing, he said that the International had not changed its belief that revolution would march through Europe via Germany. He outlined the 15 principal aims of the Communist International for the next five years as follows:

1. — To strive in the nearest future for a proletarian revolution in Germany in which the Communists of Russia, Poland, Austria, Czecho-Slovakia and France should be ready to aid.

2.—The creation of a strong Communist Party in England.

3.—All around help to American and Japanese Communists.

4.—Assistance to the Polish party.

Assist Bulgars

5.—Assistance to the Bulgarian Communists where the events of 1923 are only preliminary to the general Balkan struggle.

6.—More and still more attention to the East.

7.—The attraction of a majority of the workmen to the ranks of the International and those countries in which Communism already is strong must prepare to direct the struggle.

8.—Where the organization is complete it must organize into real communist parties.

9.—To improve the relations between workers and peasants.

10.—Give attention to the problems of national minorities and colonial questions.

11—More attention to the young Communist movement.

12.—Full support of the "Red" trades unions.

13.—The promotion of a united front of all the Internationals.

14.—The consolidation of international discipline and order, saying: "Our policy may be directed a very short time from Moscow and afterward transferred to another central country with a greater percentage of the proletariat after our first decisive victory over the European bourgeoise."

15.—To assist the first proletarian state, Russia.

M. Zienoveff said that of the next million new members of the Russian Communist Party, one-ninety must be factory workers.

In conclusion he said: "The prehistoric war period of the Communist International Ends. Now begins the real historic struggle for the overthrow of capital and the creation of an international federation of Soviet and Socialist Republics," which he predicts would come in some big conflict within the next five years although the struggle might ebb and flow.

Women of England Want Rotary Clubs

CHICAGO, Mar. 1.—(Canadian Press).—A request from a group of English women headed by Lady Astor and Lady Rhondda, for sanction from the International Rotary Clubs to organize a Woman's Rotary in England has just been refused by the Board of Directors of that organization, according to announcement Friday from the offices, here.

The Board advised the group of English women that the present constitution of the clubs prohibits any but men from belonging to the organization. Until there is a constitutional change all applications from women's groups are being turned down.

Intimation has come from London that English delegates to the International Rotary convention in Toronto during June, will move to change the laws of the organization to permit women's auxiliaries.

POLICE FOUND PETER TOMACK

Fugitive Had Shot Himself in Northern Wilds

FORT WILLIAM, March 1. — (Canadian Press).—About half-way between Silver Mountain and the United States boundary was found late yesterday afternoon the dead body of Peter Tomack, section laborer, who shot and seriously wounded Sergt. F. B. Creasy, of the Provincial Police, a week ago. Officers who started out on the search Thursday afternoon came across the body lying in snow and under the root of a tree. It was frozen stiff, and there were clear indications that Tomack had taken his own life, turning his gun on himself.

It was quite evident, officers reported, that Tomack, after a week's wanderings in one of the most desolate parts of Western Ontario, had abandoned his attempt to reach civilization south of the line, and was making an effort to return to his former home. He had doubled back on his tracks, and was found within 15 miles of Silver Mountain, near to Snowflake Lake.

CONDEMNED MEN LEAD IN HYMNS

Murrell, Williams and Topping Have Turned to Religious Solace—Prisoners Join.

LONDON, Ont., March 1 (Canadian Press). — The grim old walls of Middlesex County Jail are echoing every morning with strais of the of the favourite old hymns, "Lead, Kindly Light," "Rock of Ages," and "Onward, Christian Soldiers," three condemned men leading the singing, while other prisoners join in the chorus.

Sydney Murrell, John Williams, and Clarence Topping no longer attempt to make little of their position, and as the days have passed since they were sentenced, they have gradually begun to seek spiritual consolation.

Last week the jail reverberated with the strains of No, No, Norah" and "My Cutie Went Away," but these popular airs have lost their charm for the three men condemned to die on 10th April.

Rev. G. O. Warner, of Cronyn Memorial Church, has been visiting the men and he speaks in the highest manner of the way in which they received his ministrations.

PEGGY KEPT HER PROMISE

That long anticipated wedding of Peggy Wood, musical comedy star, and John Weaver, poet and literary critic, finally has been solemnised. The ceremony took place in Hamilton, Bermuda. The nuptials culminated a romance of nearly two years, marked by postponements and rumours of quarrels and reconciliations.

COUNTY AND TOWNSHIP ROADS WILL RECEIVE MORE GOVERNMENT AID

Premier Ferguson Says Highway Policy Will Pay More Attention to Local Roads—New Health Department Will Be Dovetailed With the Department of Labor.

SHEAF OF ANSWERS.

TORONTO, March 1.—(Canadian Press).—Considerable private and public legislation was put through to the committee sage in the Legislature Friday. The bill allowing the Alumni federation of the University of Toronto to nominate eight of the 22 on the Board of Governors of the University, passed second reading. W. E. N. Sinclair, Liberal leader, suggested that the Government make the panel for the alumni larger and that eight be selected instead of leaving the Government the right to appoint any number it pleased from the eight nominated. The Premier objected to any compulsory features.

C. R. McKeown (Dufferin) asked the Premier as Minister of Education to investigate what he declared was an arbitrary action of the university governors. He said the board had refused to allow young men who had failed in their year to return to the university and take the year's course again. The Premier said he had not heard of any such action and thought it almost inconceivable but promised to see that no such action was allowed.

Department of Health

In getting second reading for the bill to establish a department of health the Premier said the department of labor would be conducted under the same head as that of the department of health. However, if the work so developed that a separate head was necessary the machinery would be available for creating it. He did not anticipate that such a situation would arise for some years.

Mr. Sinclair said the legislation had the appearance of the thin edge of the wedge for another department and further expenditure.

The Premier said that it was hoped to dovetail all the various branches for the promotion of health so there would be little overlapping and greater economy. To this end he asked and secured second reading for a bill putting dental and medical inspection in schools under the new department of health.

Second reading was also given the bill creating a committee of three of the house to advise the Minister of Highways. Members of the committee will be paid $15 a day for the services while engaged.

Highway System

The Premier announcing some of the government highway policy said that more attention would be paid to township and county highways although there would be no abandonment of the provincial highways. Taxation he said had become so high that many counties and townships had to cut their expenditures on local roads. He wanted the advisory committe, to help create systems instead of the haphazard systems as they existed at present. If the exchequer allowed there might be more money consideration to township and county roads.

Sam Clark (Lib Northumberland) in supporting the bill said that to the vast majority of people county roads were more important than provincial highways.

VIOLENT CLASH OF SOCIALISTS AND ROYALISTS

Mob Scene Followed Attack of Socialist Group Across French Chamber—Goaded By Taunts of Royalist Members and Personal Incidents.

WERE EXPELLED.

PARIS, March 1.—(Canadian Press).—Blows and kicks were exchanged in a turbulent session of the Chamber of Deputies Friday, and the disturbances ended only by a suspension of the sitting and the forcible expulsion of the belligerents by the Chamber attendants. The trouble occurred between Socialist groups headed by ex-Premier Painleve and Royalists and members of the Right.

It was precipitated by the Royalist Deputy, Magne, repeatedly shouting "curs" during M. Painleve's discussion of the Caillaux case, which was brought up in a debate on internal affairs. M. Mandel, who was Clemenceau's Chief of Cabinet, had held the floor for several hours with an interpellation digging up personal incidents that enraged those involved.

After a frequent exchange of compliments, M. Painleve's supporters charged across the Chamber and the fight followed. Premier Poincare watched the disturbance serenely for several minutes and then the sitting was suspended.

FREE STATE MAY HAVE A BREAK-UP

Split in the Cabinet is Becoming more Noticeable.

LONDON, March 1. — (British United Press—By Harry N. Moore). —The split in the Free State Cabinet, which was noticeable first about three weeks ago, is becoming more and more glaring. One party wants to develop Ireland along constitutional lines which afford the best hope of prosperity, while the others demand that Ireland be entirely self-supporting, want only Irish spoken, and seem to believe that it is possible to control the destinies of the whole world from Dublin.

Negotiations are now proceeding between the several factions who oppose President Cosgrave and who would prefer a leader chosen from among the irregulars.

It is not at all likely that there will be actual fighting between the several factions, but the Ministers are in disfavor and all of them were howled down at the by-election meetings that have been held in Dublin during the past few days.

The Republicans are gaining strength in the south-west of the island, chiefly as a result of the strenuous efforts of the Ministry to place the country on a paying basis.

The lost interest in the development of the last few days is the alliance of many old Unionists of the middle class with the irregulars in a new organization. All parties, however, want peace, some realizing that on this is centered all hope of economic stability and some for political reasons.

Financial News and Views

Canadian Stock Exchange — And Mines

New York Stock Exchange — and Curb Pri

Today's Quotations and Opinion and Reviews of the Markets.

NEW YORK, March 1 (United Press). — Considerable confusion marked the price movement of the closing session of the week on the stock exchange. Strength in American Woollen, Mack Truck White Motors, Southern Railway, and the local traction shares was offset by heavy selling of Northern Pacific, Market Street Railway, Westinghouse Electric, and the Virginia Carolina issues.

As a result the main body of the stocks were unable to develop a definite trend and its fluctuations were narrow and without signficance.

One thing whch was strikingly evident, however, was the complete failure of the bear crowd to extend the reactionary tendency of special stocks to other sections of the list.

Concentrated selling was employed without effect except puon the issues against which it was directed.

It was apparent that the financial community had borrowed much encouragement from the success of the efforts to restore co operation in the Republican Rails. Consequently the influence of bearish propaganda based on predictions of prolonged political unsettlement was seen to be gradually losing its force. Stocks displayed a greatly improved tone in the final dealings.

Irregular tendencies were pretty well eradicated and operations for the rise went ahead in various sections of the list. Local tractions were an outstanding feature, with good gains. In the face of a four point break to 51 in Market Street Railway prior preferred, which was affected by apprehension over the delay in taking action on the regular $1.50 quarterly dividend, substantial advances took place in the Metropolitan shares. Third Avenue spurting 1 1-2, B.M.T Common nearly 1 point, and I. R. T. 1 1-2.

Southern Railways new 1924 high at 51 was the point of interest in the railroad group.

PETERBORO AT MEETING OF FAIR BOARDS FRIDAY

Up to Lindsay and Peterborough Fair Boards to Settle Dispute Over Dates.

BELLEVILLE MEETING

(By a Staff Reporter)

BELLEVILLE, March 1—Peterborough and Lindsay Fair Boards sent delegates to a special meeting of the Central Ontario Fairs Association held in the City Hall here Friday afternoon, to attempt to straighten out a conflict that has arisen over dates for their fall fairs, both societies having settled on Sept. 17, 18, 19 and 20. Peterborough's delegation came bearing the olive branch of peace, with open minds ready to give or take as occasion required but the representatibe from Lindsay was disposed to stand pat. After the matter had been full discussed by the meeting it was decided that the association had no power to act and that it was up to Lindsay and Peterborough to settle their own dispute between themselves.

The Delegates

Peterborough's delegates were: Roland Denne, president Webber Turner, chairman of the amusement committee and Director W. S. Merrill. Joseph Hickson stood alone for the Lindsay Board of which he is president.

Among the delegates at the meeting were: R. B. Leavens, of Picton, president of the Association who presided; J. Nelson Stone, secretary, John Locke, President; and Dr. G. A. Hay secretary of the Association, of Campbellford; President W. H. Heath and ex-President Clayton Tucker of Stirling; C. W. Varcoe, secretary of Roseneath; F. M. Brintnell, W. A. Seed and J. R. Goheen of Colborne, A. Wade of Brighton W. Hill of Madoc and C.R. Brown of Tweed.

Two New Members

After Secretary Hay had explained the object of the meeting, Roland Denne stated that at the meeting of the Provincial Association in Toron to it had been found that there was a conflict in dates between a number of the Fall Fairs including Renfrew, Kingston, Picton, Peterborough and Lindsay. The latter case was serious as the towns were only 30 miles apart and if all of these fairs were held on the same date every one of them would suffer as there would not be horses enough to go around. Mr. Denne and Mr. Hickson paid the fee required and the Peterborough and Lindsay Boards are now a member of the Association.

President Denne extended a hearty invitation to every member of the Association to go to Peterborough on the opening day of the Fair there and take dinner with the directors and to bring with them as many fair officials as they pleased.

The Discussion

Mr. Hill of Madoc thought Peterborough and Lindsay should get together and settle the conflict in dates as it was too late in the year for the Association to take action. Next year with both these Fairs on the membership roll such a tangle could be averted. He questioned the right of the meeting to change any date.

Dr. Hay, the secretary, suggested that Peterborough select some other dates that would not conflict with the Fairs in the immediate district. Mr. Brintnell offered another solution of the problem, that Lindsay and Peterborough each hold a fair for three days instead of four so that both exhibitions could be given in the same week, one immediately after the other.

Webber Turner said that so far as Peterborough was concerned a three days' Fair was out of the question. There is too much invested to take any risks. If a three-day Fair was decided upon and the second day happened to be wet the show would prove a financial failure. There was a better chance to make up for such a loss by having a Fair for four days. Mr. Turner added that the Peterborough delegates did not come to the meeting to butt into any arrangements made by the Association at the annual meeting, but that they were there to get infromation and to bring about co-operation among the different boards.

What Picton Did.

C. W. Varcoe of Roseneath, referred to the independent action taken by Picton, where a four days' Fair is held. At the annual meeting the dates accepted by Picton's representative were September 16-19, but the Picton board has since changed these dates to September 23-26. This creates another conflict, as the Colborne Fair is to be held on September 23 and 24 and the Campbellford Fair on the two following days. Mr. Varcoe said that the Association was useless if its action was to be ignored in this way by the members. He regarded the request of Peterborough for a change of dates to prevent a conflict as perfectly fair.

"If," said President Hickson, of Lindsay, "Peterborough can show us any reason why we should change our dates we are willing to throw up our hands and do so."

No one appeared ready to convince the Lindsay man, who declared himself open to conviction and he even declined to accept President Denne's offer to decide the question by tossing a coin. After the delegates had travelled around in a circle and found themselves again at the point from which they started the matter was dropped and the final settlement was left to the wo boards directly interested.

President Leavers explained that he was opposed to the change of Picton's dates and that when the matter had been brought up in the Board he had voted against it.

Brighton Selects Dates.

Brighton was not represented at the annual meeting in January as at that time there was some doubt about a Fair being held in that village this year.

A Wade was here yesterday from Brighton, paid the membership fee, and selected the dates 19th and 20th September.

To Draw Up Rules.

On the motion of Delegates Hill and Varcoe, it was decided to have the executive draw up rules and regulations for the Government of the society, these to be passed upon by the members at the next annual meeting. The executive were authorised to call in J. L. Boyes of the Napanee Board to assist them, as Mr. Boyes has had years of experience in Fair work.

New Trotting Rules.

W. A. McCullough, secretary of the Canadian National Trotting and Pacing Association, explained the ew rules for racing at Fall Fairs.

From now forward a horse can race in his own class, and no matter how fast he goes he is given only a breeder's record. If, for example, a horse starts in the 2.30 class and makes the mile in 2.17 or less, he can continue to run in the 2.30 class. The object of this change is to discourage the suppression of fast time made by the horses in races at Fairs, something that was carried to extremes last year. The public, he said, are entitled to know just how fast horses are going in a race. This new role with regard to records does not hold if the horse starts on any track where betting is allowed or in the United States.

Winter racing does not give a horse a record at the time for this class of sport has been extended for one month, beginning now on 1st November and lasting until 1st April.

No horse is marked if the distance raced is less than a mile.

All fines collected go into a fund to aid injured or disabled drivers, and $350.00 was paid out for this purpose last year.

If the Association accumulates a sum in excess of 5,000, this excess is returned to the various members, but it has never attained that financial status during the ten years of its existence.

President Denne said that if a horse earned a record he should get it, as this would keep up the free-for-all class. He suggested that the Trotting Association hold its annual meeting at the same time as that of the Provincial Fairs Association so that delegates to the latter could attend the session of the racing men, and Mr. McCullough said that the idea was a good one.

One good result of the meeting was the enrolling of members of Peterborough and Lindsay, which means less friction among the Boards of the district.

Peterborough delegates disavowed any deire to do anything but work hand in hand with the smaller Fairs in Central Ontario.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 1. — The dance held in the Regent Theatre Thursday night was the record entertainment in point of attendance, since the organization of the Twelve O'Clock Club. The lucky number was held by Miss Thelma Nadoo and Ed. Goodwin. Leonard's five-piece orchestra furnished the music, and a large number of guests were present from outside points. At the Regent.

Captain Hyland promised the patrons of the Regent Theatre something special in the picture "The Midnight Alarm," which was presented for the first time last night, and taking him at his word, as they have reason to do by past experience, they turned out in large numbers, and were not disappointed. The film is founded on a true story, and the climax, a fight with a fire, is a realistic picture of a blaze in a modern sky scraper, with inmates rescued with ladders or by jumping into the life nets, while streams of water are turned on the flames without effect.

On the bill there is also a laughable farce with Larry Semon in the leading role. The programme will be repeated to-night.

MRS. ANDERSON TELLS WOMEN

How Backache and Periodic Pains Yield to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Leslie, Sask.—"For about a year I was troubled with a distressing down-bearing pain before and during the periods, and from terrible headaches and backache. I hated to go to a doctor, and as I knew several women who had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound with good results, I finally bought some and took four bottles of it. I certainly do recommend it to every woman with troubles like mine. I feel fine now and hope to be able to keep your medicine on hand at all times, as no woman ought to be without it in the house."—Mrs. OSCAR A. ANDERSON, Box 16, Leslie, Sask.

Mrs. Kelsey Adds Her Testimony

Copenhagen, N. Y.—"I read your advertisement in the papers and my husband induced me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to get relief from pains and weakness. I was so weak that I could not walk at times. Now I can do my housework and help my husband out doors, too. I am willing for you to publish this letter if you think it will help others."—Mrs. HERBERT KELSEY, R.F.D., Copenhagen, N. Y.

Sick and ailing women everywhere in the Dominion should try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before they give up hope of recovery.

WORLD MISSIONS CONFERENCE

No type of Missionary gathering that has yet been held has aroused a larger enthusiasm or carried greater promise than the World Mission Boards of the various Churches co-operating through the Missionary Education Movement.

The first of these conferences, held in London, Ontario, in November, aroused wide interest and was characterized by most remarkable success. The second was held in Montreal January 25th to 28th. With the exception of the Laymen's banquet, all sessions of the conference at Montreal were held in the Emmanuel Congregational Church.

The thorough and splendid work of the local committee, with Mr. W. H. Goodwin, of Goodwin's Limited, as chairman and Rev. T. W. Jones, pastor of Calvary Congregational Church, as secretary, assured the success of the gathering. The aim of the Conference was to arouse and challenge the church life of the city with the present missionary situation not in any one department but in all the departments of the department of the congregation.

A rousing mass meeting on Friday evening with stirring addresses from Prof. Yohan Masih, one of the strong national Christian leaders of India, who has been brought to this country by the Canadian Presbyterian Board, and Rev. Dr. Endicott, the eloquent Foreign Mission secretary of the Methodist Church, opened the Conference.

On Saturday afternoon, notwithstanding a winter storm and a temperature outside that registered 16 below, the ground floor of the spacious auditorium was crowded to the doors with children from the various Sunday Schools of the city with their teachers, who followed with intense interest the stories told by missionaries of child life in mission lands.

Saturday evening was given over to a Laymen's Banquet with Mr. Robert P. Wilder, of New York, General Secretary of the Student Volunteer Movement of North America, and Mr. Geo. Warburton, of Toronto, as the speakers. Two hundred and fifty was the limit of accommodation. This number had been carefully allotted to the different congregations of the city and the representatives were all there. Seldom have we know a banquet meeting to reach as high a level. At the close, the men expressed themselves in a resolution pledging their individual loyalty to the missionary enterprise and their effort to promote the missionary life of their respective congregations.

Sunday was a missionary field day in the city with missionaries and mission secretaries of the various Boards speaking at the church services.

Monday morning was devoted to a ministerial conference on the important theme "Pastoral Leadership in the Missionary Enterprise." In the afternoon, the Ladies' Committee demonstrated that they were not one bit behind any of the committees in charge of the other sessions by the splendid audience that gathered to listen to addresses from Miss Loretta Shaw, of Japan, and Mrs. J. T. Taylor of Central India.

The crowning session of the Conference, however, was the Young People's mass meeting on Monday evening, when the large auditorium of Emmanuel Church, ground floor and gallery, was crowded to the doors. Very real and very conscious was the Master's presence as the World Call was given by representatives from both the foreign and the home fields and the challenge presented to the large audience of young people to definitely link up their lives with Jesus Christ. In the solemn hush that marked the close, when with bowed heads they gave to Him their answer, many young men and women pledged their life and service in whatever way would enable them to share most largely in the extension of His Kingdom. To follow up these splendid Conference sessions is now the task of the leaders, a task that after all must rest mainly with the leaders in the local congregations.

Similar Conferences have been arranged for Hamilton, February 22nd to 25th, and Peterboro March 21st to 24th, while plans are under way for a number of other centers.

PROPER INSPECTION.

Among the list of legislative requests presented to the Ontario Government by the National Council of Women is the suggestion that the inspection of immigrant children in this Province should be put under Provincial authority.

In view of the Bulpitt case and the very evident fact that the present method of inspection failed in that instance, the request of the Council of Women appears to be justified.

The Province has the machinery necessary for a systematic inspection of immigrant children and their foster homes and enabling the authorities to keep in much closer touch with conditions than is at present possible.

Furthermore, the Provincial Government is willing to assume the responsibility, realizing that the publicity given the death of this young immigrant has been used with telling effect in England to discourage immigration, and that an assurance from the Government is necessary to convince the British people that there is little danger of a repetition of the Goderich tragedy.

There is a strong current of feeling that the responsibility should be delegated to the Provincial Government as likely to give more efficient and more dependable inspection than has hitherto been accorded in cases of this kind.

REDISTRIBUTION.

This district is vitally interested in the announcement in the Speech from the Throne of the intention of the Government to introduce a redistribution bill during the present session.

It is taken for granted that in the shuffling of constituencies that will be necessary the East Peterborough riding will disappear.

What re-arrangement will be most satisfactory to the people of the county?

The Examiner is firmly of the opinion that county boundaries should be respected as far as is possible.

If the riding of East Peterborough is to be done away with, as seems most likely, the best re-arrangement under the circumstances would be to make the whole of Peterborough County one constituency.

The suggestion that part of the eastern portion of the county should be thrown into a Hastings riding and the balance transferred to the present west riding, ignores county boundaries altogether, and would cut off a portion of Peterborough County, much against the wishes of the people of the district affected.

The majority of the residents of the county would prefer the combination of the present two ridings rather than a redistribution that would tear eastern townships away from the county.

"Respect county boundaries" has always been good doctrine, and there is no reason why it should be departed from on this occasion.

THE SPEECH FROM THE THRONE.

The Speech from the Throne at the opening of Parliament on Thursday was a much more complete invoice than usually has preceeded the legislative programme.

The most satisfactory feature from the viewpoint of the man on the street was the reference made to the necessity of furthering efforts towards economy in public expenditure and a reduction in taxation.

The voice of the Canadian people is calling for retrenchment, and some relief from the burden of taxation, and had not the Speech from the Throne shown that the Government was not deaf to the popular demand it would have been a complete failure.

Important legislation is foreshadowed including a redistribution bill, an amendment to the Dominion's Election Act providing for the transferable vote in single member constituencies, measures to encourage the production of Canadian fuel and to promote Canadian trade via Canadian ports, bills on race-track gambling, amending the Industrial Disputes Investigation Act, the Government Annuities Act and the Militia Act, the latter in regard to the calling out of troops in aid of the civil power, and other legislation of much significance that guarantees an interesting session.

The speech was longer than usual, and in the number of matters touched upon contained more than the usual advance notice.

It is evident that there will be much in the session of more than ordinary interest to the people of Canada, but after all the chief concern of the taxpayers will be in watching how the Government proceeds towards implementing its promises in regard to economy and tax reduction.

THE VALUE OF NEW BLOOD.

A big soap company tacks up a notice that it won't hire any salesmen who haven't been at least six years on their last job. If all employers did this, salesmanship would become a "closed profession"—no opportunity for a new man to start.

Such reasoning recalls the City Council of London, England, which years ago passed an ordinance requiring all cab stands always to have at least one hack ready for hire. Result: A fare would rush up to the lone hackman, who couldn't leave without breaking the law.

Every large business organization needs a steady flow of "new blood."

New salesmen, especially young inexperienced men eager to learn the game and willing to work hard to that end, inject new life into the organization—like a blood transfusion.

As the organization needs newcomers, so does the whole profession.

Ancient alchemists searched centuries in their laboratories for a universal solvent—a fluid that would dissolve every known substance.

Finally a young lad, a newcomer in chemistry, watched the experiments and asked blandly: "If you get it, what will you keep it in?"

That ended the search.

So with organizations, professions and trades. Old-timers, experienced, know the job so thoroughly that they get in a rut. The newcomer has perspective, a fresh viewpoint, leading to new suggestions and short-cuts.

Often a group of men becomes deadlocked trying to figure out how to do a certain thing.

A passerby pauses, hears their talk and, with a fresh and unfatigued viewpoint, suggests the solution.

Experts are fine, in their place. But there is such a thing as knowing a subject so thoroughly that initiative is lost.

Accordingly, the soap company is making a mistake in hiring only salesmen six years or more on their former jobs. The company can draw on outside organizations for its new blood. But that blood will be middle-aged instead of youthful. And, too, every organization has certain duties to its profession or field.

An important one of these duties is training youngsters to seize the torch of progress as it falls from weakened hands of the old-timers.

IS "RADIO" IRRELIGIOUS?

One of the most futile spectacles that history records is that of the well-intentioned citizen who takes his stand squarely in front of any "arrived" invention or discovery, and declares with fervent sincerity that, if the people do not fling it back into the unknown whence it has been summoned, civilization will fall to pieces, morality will be overwhelmed, anarchy will come, and the human race generally will be sent to the "bow wows." That was the highly intelligent attitude of not a few of our grandfathers toward the steam railway. They got deliberately in the way. And, as Stephenson predicted, it was "verra bad for the coo."

When "radio" was first found to be at least a practicable toy, there were journalists so little alive to the first rule of progress—which is to "keep up with the times"—that they feared for its effect on the daily newspaper. Why should people spend two cents on a paper when they could sit at home and get all the news by ear? They did not stop to think that a "radio" set would cost a good deal more than two cents an evening, that such news as it carried would be badly mixed with "bed-time stories" and hints on how to grow cab bages, and that most of the news that interested any particular subscriber must be omitted.

In any case, the attitude was wrong. The proper course of any established institution toward a new machine is not to try to pretend that it does not exist, but to recognize the inevitable and accommodate the old to the new. That institution will be most likely to survive which most quickly and most successfully adapts and takes the fullest advantage of the latest gift of science.

* * * *

Some timid clergymen are now protesting that "radio" will kill religion, because people will listen to sermons at home and not "assemble for worship." Such a protest might conceivably serve a good end if there were any chance at all that it would result in the abandonment of "radio." But, of course, this would be like expecting the abandonment of the telegraph or the telephone because certain thoroughly good men, who had grown up in a world which did not know them, feared that they might upset worthy customs or beneficial practices. The obvious thing to do is to study the telephone and telegraph, and make the best possible use of them. The wires will not come down, no matter how loud or how nobly inspired the protest.

Nor will the "wireless." Clergymen everywhere are intelligently employing "radio" to broadcast their sermons to thousands of stay-at-homes who would otherwise not hear them. That is progressive religion. That is the spirit which does not cavil because the printing press may enable millions to read sermons at home without going to church, but which seizes upon this instrument to miraculously multiply their congregations.

There is no reason, of course, why the clergymen should not insist that listening to a sermon by "radio" is not an act of worship equivalent to attendance at the House of God. They can even use "radio" to preach this doctrine to thousands who otherwise might never hear it. But while the fundamental truths of religion cannot change, the presentation of these truths to a hurrying, absorbed, sadly material generation should leave the Devil no monopoly of any swift and effective method.—Montreal Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Brantford has decided that the pay of the police force must be cut 50c a day per man, or three constables must be discharged. The policeman's life is not a happy one these days.

It is estimated that United States tourists spent $50,000,000 in Canada last year. The figure shows the commercial value of developing and encouraging tourist traffic to the limit.

The Ontario Government refuses to assume the full cost of Provincial highways, and after all there is no reason why the Province should be expected to pay the whole shot.

Two armed women robbed a New York fur store. Not long ago women only cried for fur coats.

There seems to be official pride even among executioners. Hangman Ellis protests against an amateur being given the job of hanging the two Eskimo murderers.

The Canadian National Railways shows a million dollar improvement for January. That is the kind of report the people of Canada are glad to read these days.

One thing stands out in the British Parliament, and that is, no party wants another election just now. That will make Mr. MacDonald's path much smoother—and provide many a chuckle for those who keep an eye on the manoeuvring of the politicians.

The omission of the important word "not" from an article in these columns yesterday referring to special privileges for industries quite destroyed the meaning of a sentence. It should have read: "A factory should not be valued (for assessment purposes) at the cost of erection or at its actual business valuation."

Having their assault upon the estimates in mind, the City Council can accurately be described this year as a bunch of "trimmers."

The paragraph in the Speech from the Throne which says that the Cabinet is of the opinion that reduction in taxation is of first importance, is one with which no one will quarrel.

TORONTO LIVE STOCK.

TORONTO, March 1. — Receipts at the Union Stock Yards this week were again irregular. The total receipts for the week were close to 7,000.

For export about 500 were taken. For steers prices were unchanged from the last three weeks. For full loads the top was $8.25 a cwt., but for three extra choice bullocks $8.50 was paid. For other loads the prices for the bulk were $7.50 to $7.75.

For heifers for overseas the prices ranged from 6c to 7 1-4c a pound, and choice cows were bought at 5 1-4 to 5 1-2 cents. Few short keeps were taken for export this week, but a load for further feeding here brought $7.25 a cwt.

Choice medium weight butchers held firm with the top about $8.00 a cwt., and prices ran from this down to $7.00, according to quality and finish. Best butchers in the handyweight class seldom crossed 7 cents a pound, and the majority of good ones did not exceed $6.75 a cwt.

For good butcers the average was 6 1-2 cents, and good mediums sold at 5 3-4 to 6 cents. Light heifers and steers, just useful, made 5 to 5 1-2 cents, and poor quality stuff sold at about 4 1-2 cents.

Good and medium butcher cows were easier at the week-end where the former sold at 4 1-2 cents, and some of the poorest of the mediums only brought 3 cents a pound.

Bulls were quite steady, except bolognas, which closed the week at a drop of 15 to 25 cents a cwt.

Springers except the quality wanted for the Eastern trade, were a hard sale this week when fairly good grade cows sold below $50.00 each. Choice Holsteins are holding from $100 to $120.

Select calves touched 14 cents in some instances, but 13 cents was regarded as the top on the average. Good calves sold at 12 cents and good mediums up to 11 cents. Common calves sold from 7 to 9 cents.

Light run sof lambs made a firm market all week, with prices 25 cents a cwt. higher. Ontario finished Western lambs sold this week at 15 1-2 cents a pound, against 15 1-4 cents last week. These are running about 80 pounds each. For small lots of other choice lambs the price was 16 cents, but heavy ewes and wethers sold at 14 1-2 cents. Sheep were steady at ruling quotations.

A record run of hogs made cut of 25 cents a cwt. possible, and following Monday, the packers were able to get all they wanted at $7.25 a cwt. f.o.b. This was the closing, and it is doubtful whether this week's record ren of over 15,000 will be duplicated for a while.

OTTAWA, Feb. 29.— That the departments of Marine and Fisheries and Public Works be requested to apply uniform rates of pay and conditions for engineers of these departments, conforming with the rates now applicable in British Columbia, which are marginally higher, was the purport of a resolution adopted by the National Association of Marine Engineers of Canada in convention here to-day.

Melancholy-Gloom-Despondency Tell Of Exhausted Nerves

IT is unfortunate that one of the most common symptoms of nervous exhaustion is the tendency to melancholy, gloom and despondency.

You get looking on the dark side of things.

You begin to worry and cannot see that the future holds anything better for you.

The supply of nerve force is running low and you lack the energy necessary to throw off these blighting, depressing feelings.

The depleted nerve cells must have nourishment.

They must be fed back to health and strength.

In Dr. Chase's Nerve Food you find in condensed and easily assimilated form the ideal treatment for an exhausted condition of the nervous system.

You will not be using this treatment long before you find yourself sleeping and resting better.

It will take a little time to build up the system, but you will soon find yourself more cheerful, more confident and more energetic and will be encouraged to keep up the treatment until fully restored.

Such symptoms as headaches, irritability and indigestion disappear as the nerves are strengthened and resume their functions in controlling the activities of the vital organs of the body.

No treatment for the nerves has ever met with such unqualified success as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. This is proven in many hundreds of thousands of cases, many of which are reported in the newspapers from day to day.

You will notice that while the price of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has been increased to 60c. the box now contains 60 pills instead of 50 as formerly.

Likewise Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are 35c. a box of 35 pills, instead of 25c. for 25 pills. Edmanson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

WAR LORD READ HIS EVIDENCE

Ludendorff Addressed As "Excellency" Denounced Marxism and Jews—An Avowed Monarchist.

MUNICH, Bavaria, March 1. —(Canadian Press).—General Ludendorff, one of the chief defendants in the trial of those held responsible for the Bavarian putsch last November, took the stand Friday. For three hours he read from type-written sheets, in short, staccato tones what amounted to a political speech, in the course of which he denounced Marxism and Communism. He was listened to quietly by the large crowd and addressed by the President of the court as "Excellency."

The General declared that for him the Jewish question was a racial question; that the Jews had no more right than the English or French to be allowed to obtain authority and influence in Germany. He admitted he was a Monarchist, but he considered the monarchial question insoluble at the present time.

Describing his co-operation with General von Lossow, former Commander-in-Chief of the Bavarian Reichswehr, General Ludendorff said he wanted to establish a new Germany on Bismarckian foundations.

PROGRESSIVE PARTY WILL SUPPORT KING

OTTAWA, March 1. — "If Premier King carries out the promises contained in the speech from the Throne, the Progressive Party will give him consistent support throughout the session," declared Robert Forke, leader of the Progressives, yesterday.

"It is the most hopeful sign I have seen since I entered Parliament," continued Mr. Forke.

While I have not consulted the members of the group I feel that Mr. King should be enheartened in the task to which he has pledged his party. Lest he should fear that the government might fall between two stools in losing support from within his own party and failing to attract outside support from our group, I will say that the Progressives will consistently back him up if he carries out his promises.

"I make this statement," said Mr. Forke, "in order to convey to the Prime Minister knowledge that in carrying out his programme of reform tariff reduction, decreased transportation costs, retrenchment and balanced budget, single transferable vote, branch line construction and soon, he will not be running the slighest risk of defeat at the hands of Parliament."

GRANT VOTE TO YOUNGER WOMEN

The British Commons Approves Principle of Extending Franchise to Women of Twenty-One--Bill Is Temporarily Suspended.

LONDON, March 1. — The House of Commons yesterday accepted the principle of giving women the vote at the age of 21, instead of at 30, as under the present law, by passing the second reading of the measure known as the Adamson Bill.

The measure received the large majority of 216, but then by a vote of 247 to 77 the House declined to refer the bill to the committee of the whole house, so that its future fate deends upon whether time can be spared from essential government business in the present session to put the bill through its further stages.

The measure is what is known as a "private members bill," for which the government is not responsible, and further it proposes a number of controversial changes in the existing law affecting the municipal franchise and other matters.

Deputy Leader Clynes explained that the government was favorable to the principle involved but pointed out the bill would have a better chance if it was limited to the simple matter of women's vote without these trouble making clauses. The government however would do whatever possible for it. There is a possibility, therefore, that although the government has made no actual promise the bill map be again submitted to the House in simpler form and time found to pass it during the present session.

UNKISSED THREE MONTHS. WIFE GRANTED DIVORCE

LOS ANGELES, March 1. — Charles A. Bradford lost his wife, Elsa Bradford, because for three months he did not kiss her. So she told Judge Fleming and was granted a divorce.

Mrs. Bradford testified that her husband neglected her absolutely for three months. He accused her of associating with other men, and would not work. She stated that she secured a job for her husband and this peeved him.

HIGH PRESSURE SALESMAN HELD

Arrested in Sarnia on Charge of Robbing Baker In London--Ottawa Gives Him Police Court Record

SARNIA, March 1. — James C. Sirgen, high pressure salesman, is being held by the police under the nominal charge of vagrancy, the claim being made that he was an associate of Oscar Warner, identified by a baker of the Neal Co. London, as the man who held him up during the robbery of that plant. In police court Friday Birgen pleaded not guilty and chief Lannin asked for a remand of one week pending inquiry into his movements. During a recent court case in which Sirgen figured as defendant on a charge of obtaining money under false pretences, finger prints were taken and forwarded to Ottawa, and the information returned that Birgen had figured in police court on previous occasions.

Warner was arraigned in London police court yesterday charged with the robbery. He pleaded not guilty and was remanded for a week.

WOMAN HANDLES BIG SUMS MONEY

(By Hortense Saunders.)

NEW YORK, March 1. — Three million dollars a year pass through the hands of Mrs. Bessie Brueggeman.

But don't jump at conclusions. She's no spendthrift. She is one of the most level-headed and capable women in the country.

It was these qualities that the late President Harding appointed her chairman of the United States Employees' Compensation Commission, making her the first woman to head such an independent government body.

Her work concerns 600,000 Federal employees and involves the investigation of every case of injury or death of an employee on duty and the awarding of compensation to him or his survivors.

"I worked two months in my first case," she says, "and my first adverse decision kept me awake nights for a week wondering if I might have been mistaken. My cases are never abstract to me. I get tremendously interested personally in the women and the children who appeal for aid, and who so obviously need help regardless of the legality of their claims."

One of the hardest phases of her work, she finds, is to keep humanitarian motives from overbalancing technical evidence.

"The largest number of compensation cases coming up now for adjustment are those that deal with bootleggers and liquor smugglers," she says. "Prohibition enforcement is the most hazardous occupation in the United States to-day."

Mrs. Brueggeman is from St. Louis, and before politics and affairs of state occupied her mind she was prominent there socially. She has shown so much ability in organising and leading women that there is little possibility she will ever be allowed to return to home life.

"And I shouldn't want to," she How old is the catpain?"—Answer: asserts. "The day is coming when more women are going to be appointed to responsible positions in the government, not for the sake of getting a woman's point of view or playing up to the woman's vote, but because women are qualified for the work and can bring it to the intelligence, judgment, and humanity it needs."

Income Assessment

Second reading was given a bill introduced by Findlay Macdairmid (Elgin) increasing the exemption on income assessment of householders from $2,000 to $3,000 and $300 for each child instead of $200. The municipal committee will consider this bill with that along the same lines introduced by F. C. McBrien (Southwest Toronto) Another bill extending the hours of advance polls in municipal elections also passed second reading.

A. C. Garden (West Hamilton) secured second reading for bills making it compulsory for the railway board to get the consent of electors before allowing railways to run lines through public parks; to give municipalities power to order sanitation arrangements in houses and have the owner pay for them; to enable ratepayers to object to street extensions of over $50,000 and have the cost of such applied on the general rate instead of local improvement.

Bill Withdrawn

Premier Ferguson objected to a bill introduced by Mr. Garden to allow the municipal clerk to add names to the voters list if they had been forgotten in the preceding procedure Mr. Ferguson said it was a backward step to allow clerks to revise voters' lists and at his request Mr. Garden withdrew the bill. Another bill to have members of a board of health retain their seats for three years instead of one was given second reading and referred to the municipal committee.

Replies to Questions

The following information was received by the House in replies by the government to question asked:

Amount realized on tax of race track betting 1922, $2,212,220; 1923, $1,821,963; amount wagered in 1922, $44,244,400; 1923, $36,439,269. That the Hydro Electric Commission owns all the capital stock in the Ontario Power Company; that no member of the present government is occupying apartments in the parliament buildings; that W. A. McLean resigned as deputy minister of highways and that he would get superannuation rights by an amendment to the act; that the new deputy minister of highways is S. L. Squire who gets $5100 a year, and that he did not conduct the Premier's election campaign although he addressed some meetings in favor of Conservative candidates; that the total cost to date of the Chippawa hydro development is $70,399,000; that there is 1,000 miles of rural hydro transmission lines serving 3919 rural customers and 5408 hamlet customers; that the government has not estimated the cost of a referendum on liquor that the Attorney General has given instructions to appeal to the Privy council in the Home Bank case; that he objects to trial by judge only; that he desires an early trial; that $2000 is all that is not paid to the government from race course taxes last year and there is a dispute over this sum.

Treat Head Colds With Vicks

"Never Had Anything Better," Says Ontario Man.

At the first sign of a cold in the head, melt a little Vicks VapoRub in a spoon. Inhale the vapors. Then insert some in nostrils, snuffing it well back. You will be delighted to see how quickly it helps to break up a cold.

Another way is to heat a tin cup, put in a teaspoonful of Vicks and inhale the vapors that way. As fast as the vapors lose their strength, throw out the melted Vicks and add fresh.

Vicks VapoRub, the discovery of a Southern druggist, is a combination in salve form of Camphor, Menthol, Eucalyptus, Thyme, Turpentine, etc.

It is the modern, direct treatment for all cold troubles, the successor to goose grease, camphorated oil, liniment, poultices and plasters.

Mr. Thomas Bakewell of 83 Lincoln street, Welland, Ont., says: "I tried Vicks VapoRub and found it satisfactory in every way. As a remedy for a cold in the head I have never had anything better. I melted a spoonful and inhaled it and got immediate relief and was able to go to my work the following morning. I always recommended it to anyone I know who is suffering from a cold the way I did."

Vicks is the ideal treatment for colds—both for grown-ups and for children—because it avoids so much internal dosing. Just as good, too, for cuts, burns, bruises, sores, stings and skin itchings.

At all drug stores, 50c a jar. For free test size package write Vick Chemical Co., 344 St. Paul St., W., Montreal, P.Q.

Though Vicks is new in Canada it has a remarkable sale in the States. Over 17 million jars used yearly.

HIGH SCHOOLS PLAY AN EXHIBITION GAME

STIRLING, Feb. 29.—Teams representing Stirling and Campbellford High Schools met here in an exhibition game. The score was 1-1 at the close. The ice was not in very good condition. The Campbellford team showed lots of speed and had the best of the play, but they could not beat Halliwell. Stirling has a good heavy team. The teams:

Referee—E. Leury, Stirling.

AMAZING RESULTS IN GOOD HEALTH FROM THE FRUIT TREATMENT

Intensified Fruit Juices in the Form of "Fruit-a-tives" Promptly Relieves Many Diseases

Well Known Resident of Portland, Maine

Mr. Otis M. Bryant, of 49 Anderson Street, is most enthusiastic about this famous fruit medicine. He writes "I was troubled with Constipation ever since I can remember; as a result, I have suffered from distressing headaches and pain in my left side. I tried many and various remedies for the Headaches and Constipation, without receiving relief. About four months ago, I began the use of "Fruit-a-tives." Since then, I have been free of Headaches, bowels regular, no pain in my side. After the use of several boxes of "Fruit-a-tives," I feel justified in pronouncing them a remedy of true and exceptional merit."

You have always known that Fruit is healthful. Doctors say "eat more fruit." Experts on food and diet urge the eating of fruit. But—fresh fruit is expensive—and there is only a very small quantity of the medicinal or healing principle in fruit.

Now, a 50c. box of "Fruit-a-tives" contains all the medicinal principle of dozens of oranges and apples and pounds of figs and prunes.

By the wonderful discovery of a well known physician, it is possible to obtain the medicinal properties of the fresh juices of apples, oranges, figs and prunes concentrated and intensified in a small tablet, with tonics added.

This is "Fruit-a-tives"—the Fruit Treatment—the quick, pleasant, inexpensive way to make you well and keep you well.

Seems Almost a Miracle

Just read this letter from Mrs. Clara Sloat, Perth Junction, N.B.

"For many years I was a great sufferer from Indigestion, Constipation and Chronic Rheumatism. My stomach was weak and gave me constant distress, while the Rheumatism in my joints made me almost a cripple. Physicians and their medicines did me no good. Finally, I was induced to try "Fruit-a-tives" and at once this wonderful fruit medicine seemed to help me. Soon the Constipation and Indigestion were relieved and the Rheumatism began to go away and, in a few months, entirely disappeared."

Thanks To "Fruit-a-tives," Am Once More Well

Mrs. Honore Valiquette, 1133 Notre Dame St. West, Montreal, is deeply grateful to this famous fruit medicine. She says, "I wish I could tell every sufferer in the world what "Fruit-a-tives" have done for me. For three years, I was much troubled by Bad Headaches, Nervous Dyspepsia and Liver Trouble. Then I commenced taking "Fruit-a-tives." Very soon my condition improved, and now, thanks to these wonderful tablets, I am once more entirely well."

Take "Fruit-a-tives" and get well. 25c and 50c a box, at all dealers or sent postpaid by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa, Ont.

GRAFT AND CORRUPTION IN ADMINISTRATION OF U. S. VETERANS' BUREAU

Uncle Sam Strings Out Another Line of Dirty Linen For Washing By Courts--Indictments Returned Against Forbes and Thompson In An Amazing Scandal Involving Hospitals For Soldiers.

BRIBERY CHARGED.

CHICAGO, March 1. — Charles R. Forbes, former director of the United States Veterans' Bureau, and John W. Thompson, contractor of Chicago and St. Louis, were named in four indictments returned yesterday by the Federal Grand Jury, which has spent a month investigating charges of waste, graft and debauchery in connection with Forbes' administration.

Forbes and Thompson were named jointly in two indictments charging conspiracy to commit bribery and offenses against the government, and conspiracy to defraud the United States Government.

Forbes was named alone in a third indictment on a charge of accepting a bribe, and Thompson in a fourth, charging that he had indirectly given a bribe.

In a special report which accompanied the indictments, the Grand Jury indicated that other sensational developments involving alleged graft had been uncovered, but because they were not within the jurisdiction of the court, had not been pursued.

Details Withheld.

"We do not feel," the special report said, "that it would subserve the best interests of the government for this jury at this time to make public the details of these transactions. This jury feels that it will suffice to report that they involve:

"1—Speculation by one or more officials of the Government, wherein it has been asserted that official information was used for purposes of speculation.

"2—That certain sums of money were paid to two members of Congress.

"3—That possession of a file of one of the departments for about a month was had by persons having no official connection with such department.

"—That money was accepted by certain individuals (not attorneys) for the purpose of obtaining clemency for prisoners through their intimacy with the officials.

"5—That money was collected by certain individuals (not attorneys) for obtaining through such intimacy permits for intoxicating liquor."

Bribe Accepted.

The indictments charged that Forbes, while director of the Veterans' Bureau, received a bribe of $5,000, and certain additional emoluments, on agreement to award contracts for government work to the contracting firm of Thompson and Black, of which Thompson and Jas. W. Black, deceased, were the heads.

The contracts were to be awarded, it was charged in connection with the building and equipping of hospitals for soldiers for which the government appropriated $12,000,000.

Charles F. Cramer, a former general counsel for the Bureau, who committed suicide after investigations of the department was proposed, was named in the indictments as having accepted a promise from Thompson and others of $100,000 in return for his approval of the contracts.

Agent of Contractors.

Elias Mortimer of Philadelphia, who appeared before the Senate Committee which investigated the Veterans Bureau and made briberp charges and who also appeared before the Grand Jury, was named in the indictments as having been retained as the agent of Thompson and Black, who, the indictment charged, used the Pontiac Construction Company in their operations.

STANDARD BANK RUMOUR DENIED

Vice - President Says Not An Iota of Truth in the Report of Amalgamation With Any Other Bank.

MONTREAL, March 1.— Rumors of an amalgamation of the Standard Bank of Canada with one or more other Canadian banks were emphatically denied here Friday by Thomas H. Wood, of Toronto, vice-president of the Standard Bank.

"I know that there have been persistent rumors in both Toronto and Montreal during the past week or so of an alleged amalgamation of the Standard Bank of Canada with one or more other Canadian banks," said Mr. Wood. "I can state positively that this story is made up out of whole cloth and that there is not one iota of truth in it. So far as my bank is concerned the matter has neither been considered or discussed."

He added that, at the annual meeting of the Standard Bank at Toronto last Wednesday, although most of the officers and directors knew of these rumors, the matter was not considered worthy of discussion there.

Mr. Wood deprecated the continual efforts in some quarters to continue the unsettlement of the public mind regarding various Canadian banks.

Cloak-rooms Robbed In Ingersoll School.

INGERSOLL, March 1. — It would appear that some systematic effort has been concentrated on school cloak rooms in this district of late. Teachers of Memorial school have just reported the disappearance from their coats of sums of money. Janitor Harry Leigh saw a strange woman in the school corridor just before the money was missed. Similar cases have been reported from London, Woodstock and other places.

Advice from One Woman to Another on a very important hygienic subject

Immaculacy, charm, exquisiteness under circumstances which most women find exceedingly trying

By ELLEN J. BUCKLAND
Graduate Nurse

Charm, Exquisiteness, Immaculacy, under all and every condition EVERY day! Yet, under old methods the average woman spent at least 1-6th of her time in a state of discomfort, uncertainty—and frequently embarrassment.

THIS is a subject which only a woman can understand, and on which only an expert can advise with authority. I speak as both.

I, too, experienced the handicap which confronts women in social, business or professional life. As a practicing nurse I know how to lighten it.

For science has now perfected a product which helps women live an active life without interruption. Its convenience and efficiency are amazing, for it solves a special problem in a very simple way.

THIS NEW PRODUCT IS CALLED "KOTEX"

It was perfected during the war to provide a softer, more absorbent surgical dressing. Kotex is five times more absorbent than cotton.

After the war its makers felt that Kotex would be of infinite value to women—that it would effectually solve their greatest problem. And it has.

Women have only to hear of Kotex to appreciate what it means in comfort, convenience and relief from embarrassment. It is being adopted everywhere.

A SAMPLE—FREE

You can secure Kotex at practically all drug and department stores, but I want to send you a sample. It will come wrapped in a perfectly plain package. All you have to do is to fill out and mail the coupon.

Don't do yourself the injustice of overlooking this offer, which is so easy to accept. All you have to do is to tear out coupon, fill it out and mail it to me.

Kotex is on sale at all drug and department stores. Two sizes: Kotex regular and Kotex-Super.

HEARTS AFIRE

by May Christie

The Brilliant Novelist of Modern Society

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY

Prudence Page—a charming country girl, falls in love with

Bert Traymore—a fascinating philanderer, whom a chance meeting brings into her quiet life.

Janet Mercer—Prudence's dearest friend, an older woman, plain but clever is masseuse to the delicate child of Mrs. Vansittart—a pleasure-loving, woman-of-the-world, owner of Winston Towers, a beautiful summer home, which she fills with visitors. She invites Prudence to a garden party where the girl meets

Virginia Dale—a blase beauty, whose rudeness causes the country maiden extreme humiliation. Traymore, however, comes to the rescue and the two go for a ramble over the ground of Winston Towers. They come upon a shabbily-dressed young fellow, whom they take for a poacher. Traymore orders the fellow off the grounds in a over-bearing manner which causes the stranger to turn on him, knocking him into a pool, conveniently near to hand.

CHAPTER VII.

The 'Real Gentleman'

To the surface of the pool rose Traymore, a ridiculous, bedraggled figure, panting and blowing. His blond looks—normally so smooth and shining, giving to the head a boot-button appearance that was very smart—now hung like a shaggy dog's down over his eyes. He spluttered forth:

"You'll pay for this, you swine!" and scrambled, soaking, up the bank, an absurd apparition rent with fury.

"I shouldn't enjoy me any further, were I you," said the mascular young preacher, with a grin. "Next time it won't be just a ducking. It'll be the sort of damn good licking you ought to have had as a kid, and never got. I'm ready if you are—" Then catching sight of the astounded Prudence, he pulled the pipe out of his mouth and removed the shabby hat from his head, revealing a thatch of black hair with an uncontrollable wave in it.

"I beg your pardon. I didn't notice that this—this fellow—had a lady with him. I'm sorry if I startled you."

"You had no business to behave in such a brutal way!" breathed Prudence, darting to the side of the bedraggled Traymore, and putting a championing hand upon his soaking arm. The latter young man stood hesitant, ready to spit forth fire and brimstone at his assailant, but acutely conscious of the risks. "You ought to be arrested. You ought to—" She broke off, her gaze following the 'poacher's' to a rivulet of water that was running from the dripping Traymore down the front length of her frock. "Oh! Oh!" She moved a foot or two away.

"That's right." The stranger grinned approval. "He isn't worth ruining a gown for." Then, sharply, to the other: "You can cut through the woods back to the house without anyone seeing you, so I'd advise you to run while the going's good, in case I change my mind, and give you the hammering you need. I'll take the young lady back to the Towers—"

"Indeed you won't!" Miss Prudence flung at him, turning to Traymore, only to find that gentleman already on the move. As he retreated, the latter muttered a volley of threats as to what he'd do when he was changed, and clad and in his normal state.

"Wait for me. I'm coming too," determined hand upon her arm.

"He doesn't want you. Best leave him alone. A fellow doesn't like a girl to see him in that condition. Hurts his vanity, you know."

She wheeled around, eyes flashing. How dare a common tramp address her so? (And how maddening that Traymore had shown the white feather! Of course, this perfect brute was at the bottom of the whole episode! He had caught the other at an unguarded moment, and now was glorying in his achievement! Well, she'd show the cad just what she thought of him!)

"Will you kindly remove your hand from my arm? Unless, of course, your brutality goes so far as to want to hurt me, too?"

An icy scorn was in her voice, although no fear. Odd that she wasn't in the least afraid, for tramps were dangerous fellows. But this man was no common tramp. He had quite a well-bred accent, and looked, one directly in the eyes. They were handsome eyes, dark gray, and curiously vivid in his sunburnt face. And—yes—they twinkled with a real sense of humor.

She was annoyed with herself for observing all these things . . . His face, of course, with that terribly square line of jaw and chin, was ugly. Strong, perhaps, some folks might call it. But brute force—particularly after the recent un-warranted exhibition of it—didn't in the least appeal to her! Ph, no! He lacked the slim grace, the debonair charm, the breeding of young Traymore. (Stay! Was it brooding to have sneaked off like a whipped cur, and left her to the tender mercies of this man? A small inward voice inquired.)

"I beg your pardon," said the tramp again. "I'm not used to ladies' company." He withdrew his hand. "I'm quite a boor."

"You are, indeed!" She was annoyed at the effect of the dark grey eyes upon her, and therefore doubly sharp with the owner. "Before I go, I'd like to say how much I despise your behavior—and—and you! And I hope we may never meet again!"

"Your wish is likely to be granted," replied the tramp, unruffled. "I'm not a squire of pretty dames, as I've already said."

This was too much! Prudence stamped her foot.

"You forget your place," she cried. "You had no right to offer to escort me up to the Towers. The servants would turn you out at once. You—you're dreadful—impossible. Don't you understand?"

He bowed ironically, and smiled—a smile that lit his whole face up, as though he really were amused by her. His teeth, so white and even, would certainly have defied a dentist's art. Suddenly she saw that he was quite good-looking, almost handsome!

"I bow to your verdict. If they've no use for me up at the big house, then I've certainly no use for them. It's fifty-fifty, and everyone delighted."

"What do you mean?" she stammered, astounded at this speech.

He smiled again, as though she were an ignorant child, and it amused him to enlighten her.

"I mean that the only interesting people, to my mind, are those who do some honest work in the world," quoth he. "The idlers I despise. Display of fine cars and jewels and clothes don't go to prove that the owners have anything in their brain-cells, or are equipped to give one a new viewpoint of life. It's usually the other way around. But there—I can hardly expect you to understand me, can I?"

"And why not, pray?" Prudence stood erect before him, cheeks ablaze.

"Because you judged me by externals—by the shabby clothes I'm wearing," he smiled cheerfully. "Because you haven't quite grown up. If you ever do—"—(ah! that was insult heaped on insult!)—"you'll learn that, though the world seems full of people of unlimited means whose money can buy them the entry in most places, the worth-while folks are the 'thinking ones, who hold a definite place among the workers, and whom growing people—like myself—can take a real interest in meeting. See?"

She was so startled at the 'tramp's' fluency of speech that a reply failed her. And just at that psychological moment, from behind the pair, there came a light, high laugh, the whiff of a delightful perfume, and then a woman's voice, gay and challenging:

"Hi, there, you renegade! Why wouldn't you come to the party when I specially invited you? I've been hunting for you all the afternoon?"

Prudence and the man wheeled around to confront the beautiful Virginia Dale, whose eyes—oddly provocative—were all for the 'tramp' Prudence had scorned.

"It was really rather beastly of you, Peter," she was pouting. "I waited and waited for you, and then you go and forget all about me, and put on your old fishing togs, and—"

A great flash of light dawned on Prudence. Peter? The tramp? Why, he was no tramp . . . how could she have blundered so? . . . he must be—yes—he must be Peter Armstrong the inventor . . . brilliantly clever . . . lover of children . . . the 'real gentleman' Janet had so raved about!

And she—ignorant, had snubbed him so!

Says He Is a New Man

That's Why Nova Scotia Man Praises Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Mr. J. J. Comeau who suffered from Kidney trouble, found relief in Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Lower Saulnierville, N.S., Feb. 29. (Special)— Mr. Comeau, a well known and respected resident here is a staunch friend of Dodd's Kidney Pills." He has tried them and found them good. This is what he says:

"I am over 60 years of age, and have suffered so much from Kidney troubles. I took several boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and now I am exactly a new man. I shall always remain a friend of Dodd's Kidney Pills."

It is wonderful how some people will go on suffering day after day, with aches and pains, backaches and rheumatism. They suffer because they are not aware of the fact that they get relief. Strengthen the kidneys, which are the source of the trouble, and these pains vanish.

Dodd's Kidney Pills stimulate and strengthen weak kidneys. They are used and recommended all over the world.

FIRE CHIEF HURT IN NEW YORK FIRE

NEW YORK, March 1.—(Canadian Press). — Fire Chief Kenlon, Battalion Chiefs Kavanagh and O'Hanlon, two captains and three lieutenants were included among 41 firemen overcome by acid fumes in a fire which burned stubbornly for four hours among the leather stocks in a downtown loft building last night. Nine were taken to hospital, but none was seriously injured.

NERVES RESTORED HEADACHE GONE

A Grateful Letter From a Well-Known Vancouver Nurse.

"In the summer of 1922," says Mrs. Mary Hill, of 31st Avenue West, Vancouver, B.C., "I became very anxious about my young daughter's health She was attending a commercial school, and between her close study and exceptionally hot weather she became very much run down I noticed that she looked white and seemed constantly tired, was depressed over her studies, and irritable and peevish about the house I got several tonics I had heard well spoken of, but they did not seem to help her At this stage an advertisement of Dr Williams' Pink Pills, telling of a similar case, was brought to my attention, and I decided to give this medicine a trial. You may judge of my surprise and delight when I noticed an improvement in her condition, almost before the first box was finished. She continued taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for some time, gaining in health and strength. Her headaches backaches and depression disappeared, and she again looked well and happy. She has since, I am glad to say, kept perfectly well and passed her examinations with credit.

"I must have worried more than I knew over my daughter's health, for though I have earned my living as a maternity nurse for the past 12 years, even the most trying cases did not seem to exhaust me until last fall, when I seemed to give out sudden ly. I became so nervous that I had to decline work, and I suffered from headaches and a constant feeling of depression. I attributed my condition to the fact that I was entering a critical time of life. It was my daughter who suggested that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills might do me as much good as they had done her, and after a faithful use of them for a time this proved to be the case. My nerves regained their steadiness, and my general health improved so much that I felt able to undertake my nursing duties again. I have taken the pills occasionally since, and thanks to them have been able to stand the strain of my work splendidly and still feel as well as ever. I am very grateful to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and am thankful to have found such a reliable medicine for use in my home, and I can conscientiously recommend it to any suffering woman or girl coming under my care or influence."

You can get these pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Cunard Line CANADIAN SERVICE

DISCOVERY IN DENTISTRY IS EQUAL INSULIN

Dr. Harold Box of Toronto Takes His Place With Banting and MacLeod -- Endorsed by Godfrey and Sought by United States.

FOR PYORRHOEA

TORONTO, March 1 (Canadian Press). — With a view to utilising it in public service and in public school dental work, the Hon. Dr. Forbes Godfrey, Provincial Minister of Health, has investigated what he declares to be a wonderful new discovery in the treatment of pyorrhoea, perfected by Dr. Harold Box, practising Toronto dentist.

In giving his unqualified endorsation of Dr. Box's new dental treatment, the Ontario Minister of Public Health stated yesterday that it was easily the outstanding discovery of recent dentistry, and comparable to that of insulin in the medical field.

He commented that the University of Toronto was indeed making its mark, with Doctors Banting and MacLeod and now Box, to win for it world renown.

In layman's language, Dr. Box has discovered that the dread pyorrhoea originates in the lining membrane of the tooth socket, following the effects of unequal pressure of the teeth, and that inflammation originates before the disease.

His treatment, which has been successfully effected on scores of sufferers, according to Dr. Godfrey, is to correct the uneven pressure of the teeth and grow new bone where the disease has commenced to devour.

Although facts as to the discovery are being presented to the world for the first time, dental science on the European continent and in the United States is aware of the progress made within the past few years by Dr. Box in his research work.

One or two of the biggest universities in the United States have sought their services in a teaching capacity, Columbia among them, and there have been tempting financial offers from private quarters on the other side of the border.

Dr. Box stated yesterday that his desire was to make his new cure "free as air" to the dental profession of Ontario.

Dr. Godfrey and Dr. Box are collaborating as to the best means to get the treatment to the dental profession.

New System of Fat Reduction

Here's a new way for all fat people to laugh together at that old bugaboo—Obesity. The saying that there is nothing new under the sun does not now apply to fat people any more. Here is something new for them—a new sensation, a new pleasure, a new and graceful figure, easily found by anyone who is passing beyond the limits of slimness. Everyone has heard of the Marmola Prescription: that harmless combination of fat-defying elements perfected by one of the foremost physicians. Now from the same high authority there comes another idea — the idea of condensing these same pure, harmless, ingredients into a pleasant little tablet. Taken after eating and at bedtime they help the stomach to dispose of all the fatty foods, converting them into compact, solid flesh, muscle and energy, without dieting or exercise. Marmola Prescription Tablets regulate the entire system— do for you what bodily exertion and self denial cannot do, and the fat, once routed, is gone for good. You can prove all this at a trifling cost. Marmola Prescription Tablets are sold by all druggists or sent postpaid by the Marmola Company, 4612 Woodward Avenue, Detroit, Mich A box—sufficient to bring results—is but one dollar.

POLICE CONDUCT BIG OPIUM RAID

Fifty Thousand Dollars Worth of Dope in Philadelphia Chinatown.

PHILADELPHIA, March 1.—(United Press).—Fifty thousand dollars worth of opium, hidden under the store and bqehind secret panels about the walls, was taken here early today in a sensational police raid on Chinatown. Ten Chinese drug addicts were arrested. The raid came after several weeks planning as the place was known to be a distributing centre for the drug as well as the habitation of smokers.

As the police descended on the building several hundred orientals gathered along the streets to watch the raiders.

The smokings were on the second and third floors, and the police dashed up the stairs and into them before the Chinese could moke their exit. Opium was found in every conceivable place.

IN MILLBROOK AND DISTRICT

Grace Presbyterian Church Auxiliary Had a Meeting -- Personal Mention.

MILLBROOK, Feb. 29.— The February meeting of the Women's Missionary Auxiliary of Grace Presbyterian church was held on Thursday afternoon with a large number in attendance. The president, Mrs. (Rev.) G. S. Gervan occupied the chair, the minutes being read by the secretary, Mrs. J. R. Eakins.

After the opening worship period, routin, business was conducted and the president and secretary were appointed to confer with the presidents of the sister auxiliaries of th, village Mrs. (Canon) Allen of St. Thomas church, and Mrs. (Rev.) S. T. Tucker of the Methodist church, regarding the observance of the annual Day of Prayer.

The dat, this year, announced from headquarters in Toronto, is Friday, March 7th, and further arrangements will be completed as soon as posible. It has been the custom for three Auxiliaries to unite for this occasion, and the gathering has always proved inspiring and profitable.

Mrs. H. W. Johnston took up the final chapter in the study book, "The Planting of the Faith," its contents making clear in a striking and most interesting manner the faithful labors of the missionaries both in home and foreign fields.

As an introduction to the study of the new book, "The Island Beautiful," which is to be taken up for the first time at the March meeting, Mrs. Gervan gave a brief summary of the difficulties and dangers encountered by Dr. Alexander MacKay when he went as a missionary to Formosa and planted th, Cross among its, at first decidedly unfriendly inhabitants.

Miss Viola Edith Cardwell, one of a party of missionaries which sailed for Korea last September, has been chosen as th, subject of special praye, by the Auxiliary of Grace church, and Mrs. Eakins read a most interesting account of their landing in that far-off country. Previous to entering active missionary service, Miss Cardwell, who is a sister of Mr. H. Cardwell of Wallace's Point, Otonabee River, was a member of St. Giles' church, Toronto of which Rev. S. H. Pickup, a former Millbrook boy, is pastor. There wer, eight Canadians in the party and the fact that mail from home arrived soon after they had landed in Korea, and while they were enjoying their Thanksgiving dinner together, each bravely trying to hide the feeling of homesickness that could not but be keenly felt at such a time, made the listeners realize that there was somewhat of a lump in their own throats, "one touch of Nature making the whole world kin."

The singing of a missionary hymn and the benediction brought the meeting to a close.

Mrs. W. Leith, who has been at the home of her brother, Mr. Edgar Fallis, for the past month, assisting with the care of her mother in her recent illness returned to Cobourg on Tuesday. Mr. W. A. Fallis is considerably improved in health. Mrs. J. McMillan of Port Hope is still with her mother.

Mrs. I. M. Nattrass, who have been spending the winter in Indianapolis with their daughter, Mrs. B. F. Ware, returned home this week. They spent the week end in Toronto., with Mr. and Mrs. J. Nattrass, on their way home.

A few of those from outside points who attended the Winter Horse Show in Millbrook on Tuesday were Messrs. J. McMillan, Cobourg, S. R. Caldwell, Port Hope, H. Strong, Peterboro, B. Rea, Peterboro, Mr. W. E. and Miss Lewis Port Hope, P. Boa- Queensville, W. B. Ferguson, Barketon T. Robertson, Keen, J. Smith, Bethany, P. Moncrief, Fraserville, J. O. Ball, Peterboro, N. Wilson, Perrytown, G. E. Shea, Janetville, C. F. Beatty, Elizabethville.

Mr. Jack Vance, of Toronto, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Vance.

Rev. S. T. Tucker is in Toronto this week attending an important meeting of the missionary committee in connection with the General Board of the Methodist church.

Miss Emma Kells of Toronto, eldest daughter of Mr. R. H. Kells, who is a missionary in the West but at present home on furlough, was the guest of Mrs. J. C. Kells for a brief visit this wek. Miss Kells had been addressing a meeting in Peterboro on her work in Manitoba and came to Millbrook before returning to the city.

Miss Gladys Smith, of Toronto, was the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Smith, over the week end.

Mrs. J. P. Esterbrook of Toronto who paid her official visit to the local Rebekah Lodge this week left for Lindsay on Thursday morning. "Kawartha Lodge" expected to entertain the Grand Lodge officers on Thursday, a sleigh drive being planned for the afternoon, a banquet at 6 p.m. followed by "Assembly Night" at the I.O.O.F. Hall in the evening. Mrs. Esterbrook is president of the Rebekah Assembly of Ontario.

German Separatists Prepare to Emigrate.

SPEYER, Bavarian Palatinate, March 1.—A large number of German Separatists, who have been active here in Speyer, at Aix-La-Chapelle in the northern Rhineland, and at other points where unsuccessful attempts have been made to supplant the regular governments, are reported to be preparing to emigrate to South America.

The only Separatists remaining in Speyer where the independent Palatinate Government functioned for some time, are being held under guard, engaged in sweeping and cleaning the Government buildings which they occupied as offices and living quarters during their weeks of occupancy.

WINTER WEATHER HARD ON LITTLE ON'S

Our Canadian winters are exceedingly hard on the health of little one. The weather is often so severe that the moter cannot take the little one out for an airing. The consequence is that baby is confined to overheated, badly ventilated rooms; takes cold and becomes cross and peevish. Baby's Own Tablets should be given to keep the little one healthy. They are a mild laxative which regulate the stomach and bowels and thus prevent colds. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The distribution will approximate ten cents a bushel on wheat that has been delivered to the pool up to about the time of distribution of this interim payment.

FIXED ASSESSMENT ASKED OF SARNIA.

Dominion Alloy Steel Corporation Request Council to Approve Assessment Fixed at $300,000.

SARNIA, Feb. 29.—The mater of a fixed assessment of $300,000 for the Dominion Alloy Steel Corporation came up before a special meeting of the city council, when counsel for the steel corporation asked the city to sponsor a private bill fixing the same assessment for a reorganized company. The city council, however inclined to the view that the ratepayers would have to be asked to vote anew on the proposition since it was the original company that was granted this concession at a referendum. It was pointed out that there might be some difficulty unless this course was adopted, inasmuch as the present company was a re-organized one. The sentiment of the Sarnia ratepayers, it was asserted, was even more friendly to the present company than ever, and the referendum would undoubtedly carry by even a larger majority than before.

Canadian Steamers to Use Panama Canal.

BAD BLOOD PIMPLES AND BOILES Banished By Burdock Blood Bitters

Miss Irene A. Matthews, Stayner, Ont., writes:—"I thought I would write and tell you of the experience and benefit I have derived from Burdock Blood Bitters.

Some few months ago I was troubled with bad blood which broke out on my face in the nature of pimples, boils and ring-worm, and I got so bad I really did not know what to do.

I was ashamed to go anywhere, and the itching and burning caused such a terrible sensation I could get no relief day or night.

One day a friend advised me to use Burdock Blood Bitters. I used one bottle and felt quite a relief, and by the time I had taken 3 bottles I was completely relieved.

I cannot praise B.B.B. enough and I hope anyone afflicted like I was will get the same benefit I received."

Burdock Blood Bitters is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

DEATH OF HALDIMAND MEN.

COBOURG, February 29. — Haldimand Township has been made the poorer this week by the death of two well-known citizens.

Alexander Simpson Radcliff died at the home of his sister, Mrs. William Taylor, aged 68 years. A brother James resides in Regina, and another brother, Hugh, in Rochester.

Richard Thomas Irwin, who removed here from Bancroft a year ago, and bought a farm near Wicklow, passed away aged 74 years, after a fortnight's illness. His widow and a married son reside on the farm.

THE LOST COMMA.

Messrs. Editors and Printers, men who really ought to know,
Give, oh, give us back the comma of the happy Long Ago!
Comma that divides the sentence so that he who runs may read,
Bidding suns of sense shine sweetly through the clouds that would mislead.

Never did we love the comma, as we love it now 'tis gone,
Letting sentence after sentence, blind and aimless wander on,
While we struggle through the darkness, fitting words to this or that,
Only finding as we muddle, more and more to wonder at.

Till we see that one small comma, like a bright October moon,
Could clear all in one brief instant, would the printer grant the boon.
Oh, I know full well you hate it built, please, cruel printer man,
Give us back the dear old comma and as quickly as you can!

—Kate Upson Clark, New York Times.

OFFICERS AIM HIGH AND BRING DOWN GAME.

Search For Still Leads Them to Ceiling, and Above That They Make Discovery.

HAMILTON, Feb. 29.— License inspectors searched Stephen Trotsky's house from cellar to garret yesterday and were almost prepared to give up in vain, when they went to the attic and there saw a mysterious rope dangling from the ceiling.

Giving this a pull, Inspector McCready and his fellow-officers were amazed to see the ceiling part and open downward. Disclosed to their view in the hidden recess above was a 50-gallon still, bubbling industriously away, according to the officer's report.

Stephen, who does not deny kinship with Russia's leader, will appear for trial just as soon as the contents of this Teapot Dome affair are analyzed.

EXCHANGE ON FREIGHT.

OTTAWA, Feb. 29.— In accordance with the judgment of the Board of Railway Commissioners, the rate of exchange in connection with shipments of freight between points in Canada and the United States from March 1 to March 15, inclusive, will be three and one-half per cent. and the rate of surcharge on international freight shipments will be two per cent. During the same period the rate on international passenger business would be based on four per cent. exchange.

WHAT "SEMI-TRIMMED" MEANS

The Staunton "semi-trimmed" feature ranks as one of the greatest innovations in the history of wallpaper manufacture. Instead of tedious, inaccurate trimming with straight-edge, scissors or knife, the selvage is knocked off by rapping the end of the roll on table or floor. This saves time, trouble, and muss, and ensures a neater, cleaner job.

IS there any room in your home—or maybe it's the hall—that is dull and uninteresting—in other words that needs a change and that you would like to have repapered.

Perhaps for less than you imagine you can effect a complete change and introduce into it a new note of cheer, harmony and restfulness, and you can do this best of all with Staunton Semi-trimmed Wallpaper. For this kind of Wallpaper speeds up the work of hanging, saves time and money, and does away with most of the muss and delay usually associated with paperhanging.

"Semi-trimmed," too, provides an abundant choice of new patterns and colorings, so that for every requirement can be found just the paper that will appeal to your individual taste.

But be sure you ask your Dealer to show you Staunton Semi-trimmed Wallpaper.

Can The League Of Nations Or a World Court Save The World?

Prominent churchmen have hailed the advent of the League of Nations as "the Political embodiment of Christ's Kingdom on Earth" in spite of the fact that in some cases the personnel of the League is virtually atheistic. Conditions in the Old World are such as to appal the stoutest heart, and cause distress and dismay amongst all intelligent people.

The world stands at the crossroads. It is faced with the necessity of choice. Will it follow the hollow mockery of the League of Nations to economic collapse and the utter destruction of its boasted civilization.

Or will it turn ultimately to a consideration of the principles of right dealing, and unselfishly labor to bring about conditions of justice for all people?

RED ROSE TEA "is good tea" and the choicest of Red Rose Teas is the ORANGE PEKOE QUALITY T-1

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By Clive Roberts Barton

THE GIANT'S DINNER TABLE

Nancy and Nick fie w across the room.

"My, what lovely flowers!" said Mrs. Giant as she sat down to dinner.

"Ho, ho! So they are!" declared Mr. Giant as he sat down to dinner.

"I thought they were nice, too, 'specially the roses-" said Polly Giant and she sat down to dinner.

And all the time the Twins were hiding away down in the heart of the biggest pink rose, listening to every word that was said, and peeping out curiously through the pink leaves to see what was going on!

Just then Mr. Giant took a spoonful of soup. And you should have heard him. And then Mrs. Giant took a spoonful, and you should have heard her, too!

"Such manners!" declared Nancy in a shocked voice. She and Nick had always been taught that no matter what you eat, you must never make a sound, not even when you eat celery or toast or crackers.

She was so upset that she forgot to hold on for a minute and nearly fell out of the rose on to the table cloth.

"What's that?" asked Mrs. Giant. "I do believe I saw a rose bug, Polly! I'll have to get my glasses fixed for I can't be sure of anything."

But Nancy had scrambled back to her place again with Nick's help, and although the three giants watched carefully, not another thing did they see.

"I'll put some tobacco water on the rose bushes to-morrow," said Polly. "I meant to do it this morning but I forgot. That's good for the rose bugs."

The Twins shivered. What if she had!

But there! I almost forgot to tell you what the Beanstalk giant family had for dinner. First they had fifty barrels of bean soup, then they had three fried whales; after that they had ostrich on toast with ten tons of mashed potatoes, and a dish of stewed corn stalks big enough to fill a church. Christmas tree salad came next, followed by enough ice-cream and cake to do a thousand children a thousand years.

But something dreadful happened!

Mr. Giant upset the pepper. And instantly the three of them were sneezing their heads off nearly. It was exactly as thought North Wind and West Wind and Old Whizzy Tornado were all blowing at once.

So how could you ever expect the Twins to hold on to their hiding place? There wasn't anything much to hold on to anyway, and with three cyclones all coming at them, it was simply impossible to hang on.

Nancy and Nick flew across the room and landed right in Mrs.Giant's work basket along with her needles and therad and thimble and tape measure and scissors and everything. Mrs. Giant's thimble as as big as a scrubbing bucket so you may know what an immense affair the basket was. Quite large enough for a wee boy and girl to get lost in.

But they did not get lost.

They weer going to have another adventure.

NINETY-YEAR-OLD INVENTOR TO GRAPPLE FOR CAPTAIN KIDD'S GOLD IN THE MAINE

MOSES KING, JR. (INSET) AND THE DEVICE OF HIS OWN IN VENTION, WITH WHICH HE HOPES TO GRAPPLE FOR CAP TAIN KIDD'S TREASURE.

"I'd ninety bars of gold, as I sail'd as I sail'd
I'd ninety bars of gold as I sail'd;
It's ninety bars of gold, and dollars manifold
With riches uncontroll'd, as I sail'd."

LEWISTON, Me. March 1.—This was the song of none other than Capt. Kidd himself A.nd now comes along Moses King, Jr., styling himself, "90 years young," who says he knows where some of those 90 bars of gold are buried and he's planning to search for them with a device of his own manufacture.

Just as soon as the snows and ice are gone from the Sheepscot river, ing will start out on his expedition to grapple for the chest of gold, which he says is embedded in the river bed.

When King was a lad of 20 he join ed his father's expedition up the same stream and for a similar purpose. With them went Jeremiah Trask, an old friend of the family. Trask claimed his great-grandfather had been a buccaneer with the real Capt. William Kidd the Scotchman, who was executed in London in 1701 for piracy.

Trask told his friend King his great-grandfather even helped Captain Kidd hid some of the valuable loot in the very same Sheepscot river, not far from the village of Wiscasset.

Buccaneer Trask(had willed to the fourth generation charts, maps and documents showing the location in the Sheepscot river of the buried loot.

The story goes on to tell how after repeated trips made up the stream from Wiscasset in the sloop "Glory" by Moses King Sr. Trask, a professional diver named MacGregor and young King, then a lad of 20, the party finally came across a sort of chest which they believed to be that of the notorious Captain Kidd.

But let King finish the story:

"I was just 20 at the time," he says. "I remember the experience as if yesterday had been the day it happened..

"One morning shortly after sunrise as we raising the anchor of the sloop 'Glory' to the cathead, MacGregor, the diver noticed on one of the flukes a box-like affair resembling an old chest.

"A chest it was, and we firmly believed it to be Captain Kidd's very own. It was without a doubt the same one MacGregor had found in the mud a week before but which he had been unable to extract. But the thing was apparently so very heavy and so poorly attached to the anchor that suddenly it felt off and splashed into the river again with a terrific thud. That was the last we ever saw of it.

"Though we stayed about that spot for weeks, night and day work ing and even went back on expeditions year after year we never found that chest again."

At dinner one evening last year ing told this story to a Portland banker. He was fascinated by it and said he would finance another expedition up the Sheepscot river to look for Captain Kidd's treasure chest.

King, who had long been working on a grappling device, borrowed enough money to complete his invention and it is with this device he his banker friend and a party of his torians of New England will start up the Sheepscot river in April.

And some day, perhaps, this old lawyer-author-ex-soldier, may find his dream of childhood come true.

HINT OF SPRING ON MARKET HERE

Lots of Butter and Eggs Offered at Reduced Prices.

The hint of spring peeped out of the bright sunshine that touched the farmers' market this morning. In the crisp air, its patrons lingered at the curb-side carts. Beef and pork were as plentiful as ever, the former at 8 and 10 cents a pound, the latter selling at 13 and 15 cents. A long beef tongue that its owner declared would be an excellent thing for a reporter was 40 cents. At a moderately late hour, no potatoes were on view anywhere. Carrots were 50 and 60 cents a peck, onions 80 cents, turnips 25 cents, and beans 20 cents a quart. The apple man had russets and Baldwins at 50 cents a peck, and Spys at 50 and 90 cents.

The fish man was back again in his corner section, with the awning that protects his wares from sun in summer and winter alike. On the open market, eggs were selling at 40 cents a dozen in small quantities. Upstairs, where eggs and butter were a drug on the market, the tables loaded with both, eggs opened at 48 cents, and slid down to 41 cents a dozen later. Butter ranged in price from 48 to 43 cents a pound. Cream was 30 cents a pint, and honey, in five-pound pails, 50 and 75 cents, for the amber and white varieties. Fowl was fairly plentiful also. Chickens were 30 cents a pound, milk fed 38, and hens 25 cents. A solitary goose was 25 cents a pound, and several turkeys sold for 35 cents. One monstrous turkey weighing 27 pounds was offered at 25 cents a pound, and had an admiring group of enquirers.

There was much wood on the open market. Hardwood sold in varying sizes and loads for $11 to $13.

Horses and men alike shied away from the section where snow slid in unexpected masses from a tin roof, smoking under the sun.

VOICE OF PEOPLE

Peterboro, Feb. 29, 1924.
Editor, Examiner.

Sir,—Almost daily we read of something that either Canada or some other part of our Empire is doing to make the British Empire Exhibition to be held at Wembley, England, this year a success.

In reading over the propaganda last year, one was led to believe that the underlying motive of this Empire Exhibition was to cement the ties between the peoples of overseas Dominions and the Mother Country, which, to my mind, is something commendable; but I would like to ask what assistance is being rendered by the various steamship companies by way of reduced fares, to enable those of moderate means to participate in this grand re-union of the world's greatest race.

Rumor had it last year that third-class passage would be around $85 for the round trip, which would have met with the approval of thousands of wage-earners, and enabled them to have given their families a real vacation, but from what I learn, these various steamship companies have an Atlantic "pool" and they, like the "Merchant of Venice," "want their full pound of flesh."

How many thousands of returned men would not take advantage of such a trip, and what an aid it would be to our country in securing more British emigrants. I would indeed appreciate the views of other readers on this subject, then possibly these steamship owners will realize that the time has arrived when they can "do their bit."—Yours very truly,

"CONTEMPTIBLE."

Military Ball

A very enjoyable evening was spent at the military ball given by the 4th Canadian Machine Gun Corps in the G.W.V.A. hall last evening The guests were received by Col. and Mrs. A. P. Miller, assisted by Col. and Mrs. J. Mills.

The attendance from out of town, although not as large as anticipated, included Major General Emsley, C.B. C.M.G., D.S.O., and Col. Foulkes, D. S.O., Captain Herron and Major Switzer from Kingston, Col. and Mrs Snider, from Port Hope; Col. and Mrs. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Kellar, Capt. and Mrs. Leggott, from Belleville; and Mr. and Mrs. Webster, from Lakefield.

The pretty gowns of the ladies, and the bright uniforms of the officers made a charming picture, too seldom seen in the life of the city. The decorations consisted of the various flags of the Empire, tastefully arranged by Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons.

Early in the evening a flashlight photograph, exhibited later to the guests, was taken by Mr. C. D. Mathias.

Delicious fruit juices and ices, the product of the Albion Sweets, were served in a novel manner from 10:30 p.m., until 1 a.m.

Kenneth Blood's four-piece orchestra from Port Hope, furnished music which met with general aproval.

Among the guests from the city were noticed:

Col F. Bradburn, Major Lawrie, Major and Mrs Hounsell, Mr and Mrs Stephenson, Mr and Mrs Mathias, Lt Poole, Miss Primeau, Mr and Mrs F D Hall, Mr H Templett, Mr and Mrs C Graham, Mr R Cuffe, Mr and Mrs Jackson, Mr and Mrs R G Kingan, Mr and Mrs E J. PLEA FOR GREATER TARIFF PROTECTION

One Chief Problems of the Day is Need of Capital.

One of the most successful teas of the season was given yesterday afternoon in the green room of the Young Women's Christian Association under the auspices of the Travellers' Aid Department of the W. C. T. U. Admission was by soap wrappers, which help the work of this department, and over 1500 wrappers were realized together with a nice collection in money. A large number of ladies attended from the hours of four to six o'clock, and were received by the president, Mrs. M. A. Morrison and Mrs. H. G. Walker. Mrs. E. Manning officiated at the door also. The tea table was prettily decorated with daffodils and narcissi and was presided over by Mrs. G. Helson and Mrs. R. Storey. Assistants were the committee of ladies in charge, Mrs. C. Cheverill, convener, and Mesdames Cunningham, McBride, A. Throop J. F. Morrison and the Misses Storey, McBride, Cheverill, Blanchard, McTaggart.

A very enjoyable musical programme included vocal solos by Mrs. W. R. Widdess, H. F. Doig, E. Kitney and readings by Miss Irene Breckenridge, and instrumental selections by the Misses Alma Blanchard, Ida McBride, Margaret Widdess and Vedra Storey.

MRS. S. T. MEDD GAVE TALK TO THE SCHOOL ASSOCIATION

On Thursday evening of this week, the May Home and School Association held a social evening with a programme of music. Mrs. B. Stacey occupied the chair. Mrs. S. T. Medd gave an interestinng talk on "The Child," and also made the formal presentation to the school of the piano purchased jointly by the trustees and the Home and School Association. The musical programme consisted of instrumental selections by Dorothy Stilson, Eunice Barns and Harold Robinson. A reading was given by Edith Shepherd, a vocal duet by Margaret Patterson and Kathleen Orr, and a vocal solo by Marion Ralston. Refresments were served later. The thanks of the Association is tendered Mrs. Medd and all those who contributed towards the purchase of the piano.

LIGHT OF THE WORLD WAS A HUGE SUCCESS

The Light of the World, a show put on last night by members of the Park street Baptist church in the Salvation Army Temple, was a great success. The proceeds went towards helping the Salvation Army. The temple was well filled.

The programme commenced with a saxaphone solo by seven of the Bandsmen, followed by a vocal solo by Mrs. I. Shadgett.

Mr. B. Smith gave a violin solo. Two other selections by seven bandsmen were also played.

Mr. N. Porter, who is looking after the show, explained the performance thoroughtly before it commenced.

Adj. Smith moved a vote of thanks to the members of the Baptist church who took part in the putting on of the performance, seconded by R. C. Braund. The congregation also wish to thank all those who took part in the show and also Mr. N. Porter, who is their director.

TWINE HOLDER.

A practical twine holder for the kitchen is a tin funnel that may be hung on the wall and the twine pulled out through the opening at the bottom.

When a filter is not employed in the kitchen, the water for drinking and cooking should be strained through a flannel bag which is fastened to the faucet and changed daily.

BANQUET ENDED YEAR'S BOWLING

Examiner Intershop League Finished Season With a Bang--Alderman Phelan Presented Prizes.

The Examiner Bowlers wound up their winter pastime with a dinner at the Class Cafe last night that brought together virtually all the men of the staff in a festive assembly that was a 'ten-strike' of sociability. There wasn't a dull moment from the time Charlie Mathias "shot" the gathering with a flashlight, and the National Anthem colored the celebration with its solitary touch of formality, down to the farewell chorus of "Auld Lang Syne," nearly three hours later. The fun started with a special edition of the Examiner that set the keynot of the postprandial programme packed with bright, snappy speeches, in the happy mood induced by the excellent dinner, and vocal selection ranging from solos, duos and trios to full chorus.

The victors of the Examiner's shop bowling league were duly congratulated and honored and there was consolation for those who finished the schedule at the bottom of the heap. Incidents of the games were recalled and recounted, and the entire session was so thoroughly enjoyed that it was generally suggested to the Bowling committee that a permanent organization should be formed to broaden out into other activities in which the staff could participate.

Aldermen N. E. Phelan, Mr. J. J. Solomon and Mr. Geo. King were the guests of the evening, Ald. Phelan presenting the prizes to the winning teams and individual bowlers that elicited from F. D. Craig a caution against similar liberality with the appropriations of the Finance Committee of the Council which Ald. Phelan later attended.

Mr. R. M. Glover presiding said he had enjoyed the bowling games and had found the sport decidedly healthful. He believed the members of all the teams had shared in its positively beneficial effects, apart from the pleasures of companionship and competition on the alleys. Mr. Glover congratulated the Examiner League upon its very successful season, the fine sporting spirit in which the games had been conducted, and observed that the personal contacts and associations in athletic games brightened the daily round of life and stored away happy memories.

Ald. Phelan thanked the bowlers for their invitation and paid a nice tribute to the Examiner's enterprise and progressiveness and its constructive influence upon the general affairs of Peterboro. Particularly in the promotion of sport the Examiner had been traditionally aggressive and sympathetic, and in the person of Mr. Glover the Examiner had been guided by his long experience in many arenas and by the knowledge and wisdom that experience had given him. It was befitting, Ald. Phelan said, that the Examiner within itself should be engaged in baseball, hockey and bowling, and he congratulated the "Typos" upon their spirit of camaraderie and their friendly relations with one another.

Mr. Phelan then proceeded to present the prizes. In the presenting the handsome silver cup to the Linos he commented on their great work during the season.

Mr. J. H. McCauley, captain of the Linos, in accepting the cup on behalf of his team thanked the members and Mr. Glover the donor. The Linos team was composed of: George Johnston, Leonard Hayward, Frank Grey and J. H. McCauley.

Mr. Phelan then presented the Jobbers, the runners up with second prize, which was kindly donated by Mr. James Brown. The prize was accepted by Mr. Gordon Long on behalf of his team. The Jobbers team was composed of Robert Baker, Maurice Dunkley, John Anderson and Gordon Long.

Mr. Phelan then called on the Inters team, winners of the consolation prize which was also donated by Mr. James Brown. An additional prize was given by the league and consisted of a miniature set five pins. Mr. Scates accepted these prizes on behalf of his team.

The other prizes went to Mr. Harry Dugan for the high average; Mr. Gordon Long for the high three games and Mr. Leonard Hayward for the high single.

The Programme.

The high lights of the entertainment were vocal solos by Mr. James Browne, Mr. John Anderson and Mr. Maurice Dunkley and a duet by Mr. Anderson and Mr. Brown. Their selections were chosen with an eye to the choral possibilities, and in that respect were doubly grateful. The bassos and tenors among the printers were afforded abundant opportunity for harmony revealing a wealth of latent undreamed of talent going to waste in obscurity and disuse.

Another group of entertainers were Mr. Harry Dugan, Mr. J. H. McCauley and Fred Scates, who comprise "The Nightingale Trio," and Mr. William Roberts who harked back to that big hit of a bygone day "The Day I Played Baseball." Stories by Mr. Glover, Mr. Solomon, Mr. Craig and Mr. Anderson supplied the wit and humor of the programme, and the popular choruses were features that gave the entire crowd a chance.

The Bowlers are especially indebted to Mr. George King who played the accompaniments. He contributed very materially to the enjoyment of the evening. To Mr. Bruce Hutchison of Heintzman Hall who provided a piano for the occasion the committee extends the thanks which were acknowledged to all those who helped in the banquet's success.

COULDN'T SLEEP HEART WAS BAD NERVES A WRECK

Mr. H. A. Reid, Upper Musquodoboit, N.S., writes:—"I am very thankful fro the benefit I have received by using Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

When I came home from overseas, in 1920, my heart was very badly affected by concussion, and my nerves were a dreadful wreck. I was very short winded, and could not possibly sleep at night, in fact, I was in such a condition I felt as if I did not wish anyone to speak to me. I thought I would try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and before I had taken two boxes I could enjoy a good night's rest as well as anyone.

There are lots of returned men who are suffering the same as I did, and I feel sure that if they would only try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills they will receive the same relief that I have."

SUDBURY LOST GAME BUT CAPTURED ROUND

SUDBURY, March 1. — Wolves lost at Espanola last night 6-5, but won the round 10-7, and qualified to meet Iroquois Falls in the Intermediate N.O.H.A. finals. The first game will be played here on Tuesday, March 4. Espanola led at the end of the first period 3-0, and looked like the group winners with Sudbury's four goal lead almost wiped out; but the Wolves came to life in the second, scoring four goals, all on combination play, while the paper makers got two. Each team got one in the final 20 minutes.

NEW HAMBURG DOWNED THE GUELPH OUTFIT

KITCHENER, March 1. — New Hamburg Intermediates proved to be too good for Guelph here last night, winning easily by 6 to 1, and thus taking the fourth round 10 to 3. The Hamburg team was as much better as the score indicates and they were not extended to the limit at that. Team play and speed gave the New Hamburg sextette the victory, as they had a wide margin in both these respects on the Guelph team, which played rather ragged hockey throughout, their attacks being practically all of the one man variety.

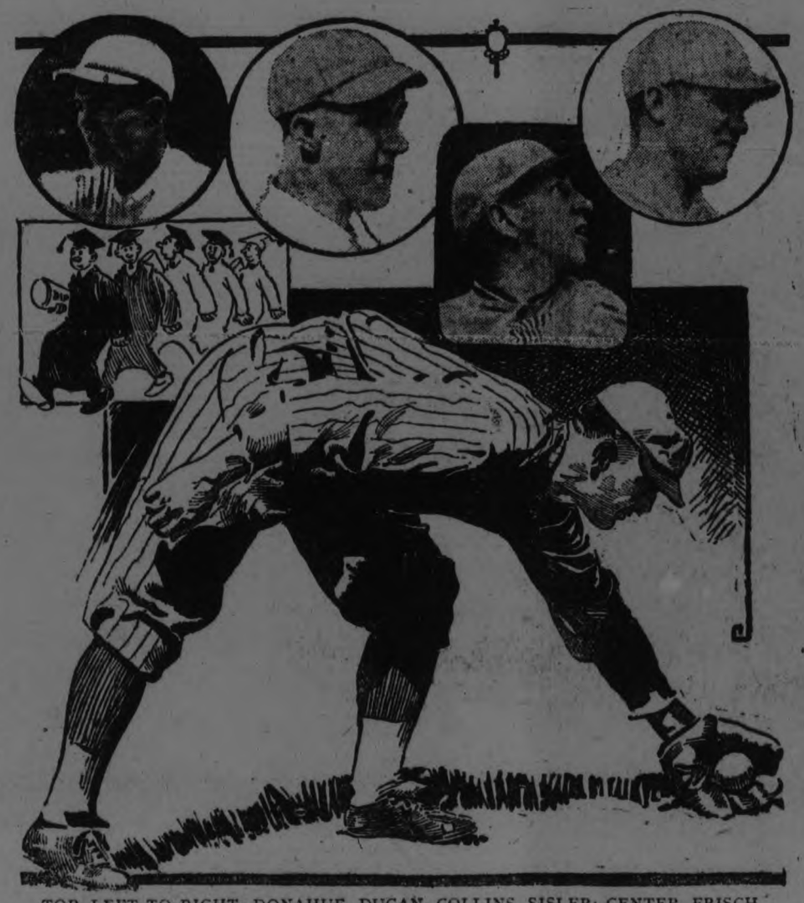
College Players Star in Majors

FIVE PREMIER BIG LEAGUERS ARE FORMER 'RAH-RAH' ATHLETES.



TOP, LEFT TO RIGHT: DONAHUE, DUGAN, COLLINS, SISLER; CENTER, FRISCH.

BY BILLY EVANS

Are the college players a good field for the major league ball clubs?

Fifteen years ago a majority of the big league managers would have ridiculed the idea.

In those days Connie Mack was the only leader who had faith in the collegian as a baseball prospect.

It was Mack who paved the way for the "rah-rah" athlete when he developed Eddie Plank, Jack Barry, Eddie Collins and Jack Coombs into big league stars.

All of them came direct from the college field and made good in the big show. They had no other baseball experience. Of course it required a few years to acquire a major league polish and become stars.

Mack's ability to visualize as to the possibilities of the collegian for a time gave him the pick of the school athletes. That time is past. Major league scouts now explore the college field as thoroughly as they do the minors.

Five College Stars.

It is a rather interesting fact that five of the game's greatest players came direct from the college field and made good.

In the matter of playing second base it would be a difficult matter to pick two more brilliant players than Eddie Collins and Frankie Frisch. Both are the educated type athlete.

Collins was dug up by Connie Mack back in 1907. Eddie was then a star at Columbia University in both football and baseball. Under the tutelage of Mack he has developed into one of the greatest infielders of all time.

Frankie Frisch is a graduate of Fordham. He stepped right into the New York Giants' line-up and made good on his first appearance. He first won fame at third base.

When McGraw secured Heinie Groh he shifted Frisch to second. At the more difficult position the talented young man showed even greater ability.

Frisch is one of the most remarkfor maximum railway service the able ball players I have ever seen. He does everything well. He is a worth successor to the great Collins in the art of playing second base.

Frisch Great Player.

Joe Dugan is the premier third baseman of the majors. He is a protege of Connie Mack, coming from Holy Cross.

In selecting a first baseman the name of George Sisler immediately comes to mind. Sisler is a Michigan graduate.

In Pete Donahue, Cincinnati has one of the leading pitchers in the majors. He is a master workman. Pete came to the Reds from a small Texas college.

Quite a boost for the college field to have five of the premier players to have received their baseball knowledge as one of the liberal advantages of a college education.

WOODSTOCK PLAYED SIMCOE OFF FEET

WOODSTOCK, March 1.—(Canadian Press).—With a two-goal lead from the first game, the Simcoe Northern Hockey League team came to the city last night, backed up by 300 supporters, bent on winning the semi-final round from the Woodstock aggregation. They were given a severe jolt, for not only did the Red and White win the round by a score of 15 to 8, but they applied the kalsomine brush to the visitors by the score of 9 to 0. The local aggregation were in great form, and they showed some clever hockey.

PARRY SOUND 5, HAMILTON 2

PARRY SOUND, March 1. — (Canadian Press).—In an extremely fast game played here last night, Parry Sound took the lead of three goals in the first game on the round with Hamilton last night, winning by 5 to 2.

The game was fast in all three periods, with the locals setting the pace, though Hamilton kept coming back for more.

SPORT EVENTS FROM COBOURG

Cobourg Baseball Club Will Be Represented at the Meeting.

COBOURG, February 28. (Special.) — Cobourg Baseball Club will be represented at the annual meeting of the Durham and Ontario Counties Baseball League, which is to be held in Walsh's parlours, at Oshawa, on Saturday afternoon. Port Hope is expected to also send representatives to this meeting. The Cobourg Club has the opportunity of joining this league, if it desides, to put an intermediate team in.

In a game in the Interscholastic League, Cobourg C. I. team, winners of this group, won from Belleville High School team here 5-4. It was a strenuous game; Cobourg was leading at the end of the first period and at the end of the second had put another one to their credit. Belleville came back and succeeded in tying the score in the first half of the last period, 4-4. Then Cobourg stepped on the gas and stopped them and the game ended 5-4 in favor of Cobourg.

"Red" Townsend, one of the High School team, is stated to have been playing with the Belleville juniors in Port Hope that night.

Mr. H. C. Higginbottom refereed the game satisfactorily.

Return Game at Belleville.

Cobourg C. C. I. team went to Belleville last night for the return game and a rough time is reported. Two Cobourg boys, Tedy Rollings, and Dug Walden, were used up, and the Cobourg team left the ice before the game was concluded. With a disputed goal awarded to Belleville the standing then was 2-1 in favor of Belleville. This would tie the teams as Cobourg won from Belleville 5-4 here. The Belleville game will be protested.

TRAGEDY MARRED HOCKEY VICTORY

Johnny Brackenborough Lost the Sight of an Eye When Struck by Hockey Stick.

TORONTO, March 1—(Canadian Press).—Tragedy cast its shadow over the O.H.A. final in group 2 here last night and probably blotted from sport one of the brightest stars in Canada, when Johnny Brackenborough, known throughout Ontario as "Spider" lost the sight of his left eye when he was accidentally hit by Hudson's stick less than four minutes after the game began, and is now in Toronto General Hospital. The Tigers, badly handicapped by the loss of the brilliant centre player won the game by 4 to 3 and the round by 9 to 4. Under any and all circumstances it must be said that they are worthy titleholders and far superior to University of Toronto team.

Brackenborough was hurt when he tried to hook the puck away just as Hudson attempted to shoot. Hudson got the puck away all right but the stick carried through and the latter hit Brackenborough in the eye.

The Stratford players who attended the game predict that they will be the next champions. They regret however, that Brackenborough will not be tble to play as they are of the opinion that with the teams at full strength two great battles would result. The first of the finals will be played at Stratford next Tuesday with the return game in Hamilton on Friday. In case mild weather, sets in the Stratford home game will be played in London. D. Chilman and Roy Brothers tossed the coin here last night and Chilman, who called heads, won.

HOCKEY GAMES CAMPBELLFORD

Double Header Last Night Drew a Big Crowd to Covert's Rink

CAMPBELLFORD, March 1. — Last night was a gala night for Campbellford hockey fans when both local teams scored a victory in the double header staged at Covert's arena. The High school winning from Stirling High 6 to 4 and the team representing Christ Church Young Men's Club plastering on an 9 to 4 defeat on Christ church team of Belleville. The ice was good and a fair-sized crowd took advantage of bargain attraction.

The High school were the first to take the ice and the kid teams dished up a very good variety of hockey, at times playing good combination and showing some good individual efforts. There wasn't much to choose between the rival forwards or defence, but young Fox in goal had it over the Stirling net guardian on handling shots and clearing. Howie Wood was the most effective man for Campbellford, bearing the brunt of the attack and using his body to good effect defensively. K. Haig was also very prominent, breaking up the rushes of Stirling, and making many trips down the ice. Parsons played nice hockey when he was fresh, but tired badly on end. The rest of the boys did their share towards bringing victory to the home team.

Elliott and H. McGee were the best for Stirling. The game was fairly clean most of the penalties being for minor offences. Line-up:

Referee—H. D. Atkinson.

The Second Game.

The second game was fast in spots and was featured by the clever playing of Jock Archer. Jack had one of his good nights, scoring 5 of the 8 goals alone and figuring in two of the others, besides doing an immense amount of checking in centre ice.

He was up against Wardhaugh, the star of the Belleville Junior O.H.A. team, and he had it over the Belleville crack like a tent.

W. Baker and J. Haig came right back after the high school game and played even better hockey than they did in the first game.

The Rev. Mr. Clarke may belong to the has-beens but he still knows how to hand out a good body check and played well throughout.

The Belleville boys looked good, but they could not get away from the persistent backchecking of the locals, and Wardhaugh seemed to be the only one with a shot that bothered Saunders.

The line-up:

Belleville: Goal, Carmichael; r.d., Buskard; l.d., Symons; centre Wardhough; r.w., W. Fowl; l.w., Anderson; subs., F. Fowl.

Campbellford: Goal, Saunders; r. d., Rev. Mr. Clarke; l.d., Beatty; c, Archer; r.w., Baker; l.w, Haig; sub, Denyes, Free.

Referee, Danny White.

KING RICHARD FEATURED IN STUPENDOUS FILM ROMANCE.

From a story familiar to millions of book lovers the world over, "Richard, the Lion-Hearted," a stupendous, pictorial romance based on Sir Walter Scott's novel, "The Talisman," has been screened by the Associated Authors with a wealth of historical interest and lavish settings.

The production inaugurates something new in the motion picture world. Although it is a complete narrative in itself, it supplies a gap in the story of "Robin Hood," which proved a sensation and shattered attendance records in every section of the country. Combined with Douglas Fairbanks' picture it presents a comprehensive record of that historical period when King Richard left England on the Third Crusade until his return and the story of the lion-hearted monarch's adventures in Palestine has been pictured with the fine sweep of an epic and the warm appeal of romance.

As the initial offering of Associated Authors, "Richard, the Lion-Hearted," coming to the Grand Theatre under an Allied Producers and Distributors Corporation release, represents the best efforts of three nationally known authors, Frank E. Woods, Elmer Harris and Thompson Buchanan. It was produced under the personal supervision of Frank E. Woods, with the other two experienced photodramatists in close co-operation.

"Richard, the Lion-Hearted," was produced on a scale that makes it truly a "spectacle." Massive sets were constructed as a background for the stirring tale that has been an international favorite for long years. Gorgeous costumes, weapons, and scores of articles typical of the period of the Third Crusade were obtained with great effort and after weeks of painstaking research. Hundreds of riders, archers, and swordsmen were rigidly trained, so that they might portray faithfully the thrilling conflicts of the Crusader King's forces and the hordes of wily Saracens, from whom Richard sought to wrest the Holy Land and the Holy Sepulchre.

"CHEERIO" TO PLAY RETURN.

The statement that "Cheerio" is coming back, will spell cheer to the "Dumbells" followers in this city.

So great was the success of this fifth and best of the "Dumbells" series of annual revues when it was given here the first time, that negotiations were immediately entered into to bring the show back for one more engagement. The move was successful and "Cheerio 2nd" will hold the boards at the Grand Theatre for two days, commencing March 14th.

Al. Plunkett, Ross Hamilton, Stan Bennett and Captain Plunkett's Overseas Orchestra have some special numbers all ready for the return engagement here, so that the show should prove equally as interesting to those who saw it on the last visit, as to those who will see it now for the first time. In fact every musical number is new.

Mail orders are now being received, and it looks like another capacity engagement for "The Dumbells."

SABATINI'S "SCARAMOUCHE" TO BE SEEN HERE ON SCREEN

Rex Ingram Production of Photoplay of French Revolution Has Been Acclaimed as One of the Masterpieces of Filmdom.

"Scaramouche," a Rex Ingram production for Metra Pictures Corporation, adapted from Rafael Sabatini's novel of the same name, will come to the Capitol Theatre for four days beginning Monday. This picture, a feature in ten reels, has played special engagements in the larger cities and comes to Peterboro acclaimed by critics as one of the masterpieces of filmdom.

Ingram, from all accounts, has surpassed his production of "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" with his picture.

"Scaramouche" is a story of the French Revolution. It tells the romance of Andre-Louis Moreau (Ramon Novarro) and Aline de Kercadiou (Alice Terry). Andre-Louis has been brought up as the ward of Aline's uncle. The Marquis de la Tour d'Azyr (Lewis Stone,) a haughty aristocrat and man of fashion, killed Andre-Louis' friend, Philippe, because of his revolutionary sentisentiments, and on the Marquis Andre-Louis has sworn eternal vengeance. To make matters worse the Marquis is courting Alice.

Andre's seditious speeches cause him to be sought for the gallows and in escaping from the pursuing gendarmerie, he joins a strolling band of players and becomes Scaramouche, the clown. Bitterness against Aline leads him into an affair with the leading lady of the troupe, but he ends this when the girl accepts attentions from the Marquis.

Skilled in fencing, Andre-Louis Moreau is persuaded to become substitute deputy in the National Assembly of France for a deputy who was killed in the series of duels brought by the aristocrats against the people's representatives. In a duel with La Tour d'Azyr, that is the culmination of his activities in the assembly, Andre-Louis wounds the Marquis, and Andre's mis-understanding of Aline's actions after the duel, further widens the breach between them.

The fires of rebellion among the lower and middle classes of Paris are finally fanned into open revolt. The patriot Danton (George Siegmann), leads the mob to the Tuileries, where the monarchy is overthrown. The Marquis escapes from the massacre at the Tuileries, and seeks shelter at the house where also is Aline, who has been unable to escape from the city. Andre-Louis comes to save her, and finds the Marquis there. The two men are on the point of killing each other when revelations are made that disclose Andre's real identity.

The thirty principal characters in "Scaramouche" include, besides Ramon Novarro, Lewis Stone and Alice Terry, who wear the triumvirate that appeared in Ingram's "Prisoner of Zenda," Lloyd ....Ingraham, ... Julia Swayne Gordon and Edith Allen.

Willis Goldbeck adapted the story to the screen, the photography was by John F. Seitz, Curt Rehfeld was production manager and Grant Whytock, editor. Costumes were designed by O'Kane Cornwell and Evamay Roth and executed by Van Horn.

ROYAL GETS DOUG. McLEAN IN "A MAN OF ACTION."

"A Man of Action," Thomas H. Ince's mystery comedy-drama, keeps everyone guessing from start to finish. Even swifter and funnier than in his celebrated comedy, "Twenty-Three and One-Half Hours' Leave," is Douglas MacLean, the spoiled child of fortune, who turns crook for a day.

This mirthful mystery story of the astonishing adventures of a young San Francisco millionaire who is forced to "swipe" his own jewels is being released by the Thomas H. Ince studios as a successor to "The Hottentot," in which Douglas MacLean recently appeared.

"A Man of Action" comes to the Royal Theatre next Monday.

AT THE REGENT

PERFECT COLORS IN "TOLL OF THE SEA."

Natural Tints in Metro Photoplay Obtained By Technicolor Process.

The announcement of the presentation of the first Technicolor motion picture in natural colors, "The Toll of the Sea," scheduled for the Regent Theatre on Monday should prove a powerful magnet for people "The Toll of the Sea" has been interested in natural color photography. The new process by which done is, according to authentic advance statements of competent critics, the fullest development of the long sought-for invention which makes possible the presentation of people as they really appear in actual life.

The principal inventor of the Technicolor process is Dr. Daniel F. Comstock, a graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and foreign institutions. For seven years he and his co-workers have given research to the problem, and the result of their experiments is shown in their first picture.

Even without the natural coloring of objects, "The Toll of the Sea" would still be an absorbing photoplay. Its story is based on a Chinese legend which tells that for every bit of joy the sea gives, it gives double the amount in disappointment. A charming young Chinese girl marries an American. He leaves her after a while, and for several years she does not hear from him. When he does return, it is on a honeymoon trip with his American bride. Lotus Flower's hopes are in vain; and she looks to the sea for the end of her unhappiness.

RELIGION AND HEALTH NO PLACE IN SCHOOLS DECLARES A SPEAKER

Dr. C. Fraser McTavish Says Women Love to Be Cut to Pieces--People Eat Too Much

OPEN CLINIC HERE

Lack of proper advertising and a mix-up in the arangements for the hall were blamed last evening for a poor attendance at his meeting, by Dr. C. Fraser McTavish, president of the Douglas Institute of Drugless Healing in Toronto, who gave a two hour lecture to a small audience in one of the Lodge rooms in the Victoria Hall building, his subject being, "Fun, Frailties, Foibles and Facts." In the afternoon, the lecture was on "The House Beautiful, not made with hands."

The speaker, who has a snappy brisk style of delivery and interlards his addresses copiously with illustrations drawn from personal experience in treating disease by the system of drugless healing, also spent considerable time last evening in relating humorous anecdotes, to carry out his contention that laughter contributes to the physical welfare of the body.

Dr. MacTavish scored the preachers and teachers and leaders of every kind in the community who failed to respond to an invitation to attend his meeting. "If it was a pink tea or a knitting party, they would be there. The skating rinks and the movies will be crowded to-night but we have very few here to listen to an exposition of the greatest necessity in life, next to salvation, and that is health. The mortality at the present time among 'teen age people is appalling, and it is largely due to the fact that the rules of common decency in life are forgotten by the average man and woman. Thousands of people are eating and drinking themselves to death.

The rule of diet with many is to eat corned beef and cabbage because all the neighbors are doing it and to express a preference for grapenuts because the King of Siam may happen to like it. Scores of people have no sense about bathing. They listen to faddists who prescribe hot and cold baths, at all sorts of different times, instead of bathing themselves whenever necessary or cleanliness in water that is comfortable to the body. The cemeteries, the houses of detention and asylums, the hospitals are crippled to-day because people are neglecting the simpler forms of life. Sunlight is good for the body as well as for the flowers. A sun-room in a house is more necessary than a cellar and yet many are afraid of the sunlight getting in and fading their carpets and curtains. Water is another necessity that is required more for the inside of the body than the outside. Water is a gift of God. There is no substitue for it, and yet many do not drink enough water in a month to fill that teacup. Fresh air is needed to make the body healthy. In regard to vitiated air, women are greater sinners than men. Night attire and bedding should be thorough ly aired every day. Many ailments too, are caused by affections of the nose, mouth and teeth. You should visit a dentist four times a year at least. Get a tooth-brush, not a fifteen cent one, but a brush costing about $1.50, and keep it in a case away from the germs that conaminate th eair, and use it, night and morning, with salt water for a nostril wash. How can you have clean oxygen filtering through a dirty nose, and how can you have clean food going down to the stomach through an unclean channel

Mind culture was just as important as physical health, the speaker asserted, and laughter was recommended as a wholesome antidote for disease. "I don't know why people are going about with such sober faces nowadays. Perhaps it's because they have something sober to think about." The speaker's recital here of several good jokes and his admonition to his hearers to laugh heartily brought an effective response, one woman laughing previous to the conclusion in nearly every instance.

Inattention to promises, the failure to keep one's word, was also scored as a present-day evil. "Me and my wife and my son John and his wife, us four and no more" seemed to be the attitude of many people to their own affairs and those of their neighbors.

"Do you know that in Canada about half of the babies born die before they are five years of age, that out of every thirty 'teen age boys, ten die before they reach thirty years of age, and that the aver age age of people on this continent and that of Europe is thirty-three years of age. And most of this condition is due to the fact that people fail to take advantage of God's goodness in providing them with sunlight and fresh air and water, in attending to the nose and mouth and the eliminative parts of the body. Our bodies were never intended to be cut to pieces as they are being treated nowadays. When will they start to cut off a piece from the left ear or the little toe? They may in time. Women, God bless them, love to be cut to pieecs. I don't know why it is, but they do. I am not speaking now of the honest and reliable surgeon who saves your life, probably, by cutting out a diseased appendix, but of the charlatans who fatten on the life blood of the race and grow rich by the sufferings of their victims. How do you know that your appendix is out. There are many conscientious doctors whom you can trust, but what about the unscrupulous type who tells you a certain thing and then it turns out to be false?" Speaking of the clinic for drugless healing which is being started in Peterboro, and of the succes of the clinic recently established in Lindsay, the speaker asserted that for certain diseases, such as epilepsy tuberculosis, cancer, or Bright's disease, he made no claims for his system, but for ailments such as fevers, asthma, constipation, skin trouble, rheumatism, neuritis and neurasthentic disorders the drugless system was far above the drug and the knife method of cure.

Included in the system were instructions in first aid work, in connection with accidents, fire, poison, drowning, etc. Violet Ray instruction manipulative methods and physical culture. In war time, the British Government gave the institute an order for $4,000 worth of equipment for the base hospitals in France and Flanders, and the speaker quoted several notable names as patients of the institute.

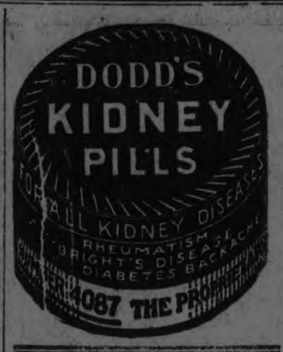
"The most prevalent disease in the world to-day is stubbornitis," said the doctor, "people won't do what they ought to do. They allow dirt to clog up their physical machine and then wonder why it stops. The proper name for most disease is simply dirt. And they clutter up their minds with spoken profanity and obscenity and the reading of the cursed American trash which is flooding this country, and has for its object just four things; an attempt to tear down the marriage relation, and disrupt home life, to turn our allegiance from the Union Jack, and to destroy our faith in Almighty God. It would be a godsend in Peterboro if all the trash that comes in here of this sort; "Sassy Tales" and "Spicy Stories" and such literature, were piled up on some street and set fire to, to clean up your homes and dens and libraries." Children of five years of age were capable of shocking profanity, the speaker asserted and gave an experience of his own in a Toronto street car when he overheard two young people, "dressed to the pink of perfection," planning an evening at the home of two two other young people where they would sit around the fire and read a certain lascivious French novel barred from the mails, and brought into this country under a ban.

"Do you know that the commonest procedure in our dance halls to-day among young people is to order the girls to park their corsets before going on the floor? And vet we say everything is well, like the ostrich with its head in the sand. I don't know where Canada is heading for. On the night before the earthquake in San Francisco, a woman of the streets in a public hall caricatured the person of Jesus Christ. God says: thus far and no farther. We are all asleep at the switch. Do you know what is the matter with us to-day It isn't the German menace, or the conflict between Roman Catholicism and Protestantism or between labour and capital, or between political parties or the question of the foreigner in Canada. It is simply that we are forgetting God. When will people wake up and put first things first The thing that is never mentioned in polite society to-day, and that is extremely old-fashimoned, is prayer. We spend hours and hours in feeding our faces and decorating our bodies and searching for amusement, but how much time do we spend in talking the situation over with God?"

"In the public schools, the two great essentials in the realm of education, religion and health, have no place. We spend thousands of dollars on non-essentials, and years in cramming our children's minds with things like algebra and Greek that they will never use, not ten in one thousand of them, but never a word about God or the salvation of the soul, or the place of the liver in the body's make-up. Health and salvation are relegated to a corner. Teachers should spend as much time in trying to better these conditions as they do in trying to better their salaries."

Dr. MacTavish, who announced similar lectures to be held at regular monthly meetings of the new clinic in the future, ended his talk with a demonstration and explanation of the Violet Rays used aspart of the system of drugless healing.

An allusion to the evils of vaccination and the use of anti-toxin was made in the course of this section of the speaker's talk, the doctor instancing the case of a New Jersey woman whom he claimed had died neighing like a horse after being inoculated with anti-toxin obtained from a diseased animal, whose side was cut out as it lay in agony.



THAT HANG-ON COUGH MUST GO

Home Made Cough Mixture Best of all for the Cough that Sticks.

MAKE IT YOURSELF IN TWO MINUTES

The coughing season is on and every home should have a supply of the best cough remedy to be had, and as you can make this supremely excellent cough mixture yourself why pay high prices for the common kind.

Get from any druggist one ounce of Parmint (double strength)—to this add a little granulated sugar and enough water to make one half pint—that's all there is to it.

Then when any member of the family starts coughing or catches cold in chest or head, or has acute catarrh, you are prepared as you should be.

And the children love to take it. With speed almost beyond belief, this home made cough mixture stops the toughest hang-on cough, and all because in it there is a substance (too costly for ordinary cough syrups) that immediately covers the membrane like a soothing, healing poultice, and blessed relief comes at once.

And you should also bear in mind that any remedy that overcomes catarrh, partially or wholly, is bound to be of benefit to those who are troubled with head noises and catarrhal deafness.

Get Parmint and get better.

From the Skinnerville Signal.

"Every day, some new crisis made in Germany or elsewhere, arrives in this country, and while they may make some timid persons nervous, they can't throw a scare into us. We have met many a crisis in our day, and are used to them. A crisis which cost us $147 visited this office last spring. We advertised Cohen's Pants at fifty cents a pair when the right price was three dollars and fifty cents. It was a typographical error but we had to make good to Cohen. The entire stock was sold in two hours, which proves the value of the Signal as an advertising medium, but the experinece was not so cheerfuls for us personally. Cohen is looking for another crisis of this kind, but as we now have each ad proof read thirty-three times, we guess he will have a long wait.

"Another crisis that we met with great fortitude wa when the chain lowering the editorial page to the press-room parted, and the form was pied on the head of our colored janitor which, for once, was full of intelligence. We blocked the page up with three war cuts, half a yard of the laws of the State of New York ad, and a bottle of Smith's Life Saver, and went to press on time. There is no crisis that can get the bulge on us. We can handle them as well and as quickly a we do job printing, and in the highest style of art."

Avoid Operations For Appendicitis by Bathing Internally With Warm Water.

Hundreds of operations for appendicitis have been avoided by the "J.B.L. Cascade."

These lettters from among many in our possession should convince you that Internal Bathing brings positive results. Mr. James McLaughlin, 91 Evanston St., Winnipeg, writes: "I bought a 'J.B.L. Cascade' for the cure of a bad case of appendicitis. My doctors told me I must have an operation at once. I had spent more than $50 in doctors' bills, but the Cascade completely removed, in a few days, every trace of soreness and pain. I eat and sleep well now, have regained my former weight, and am now in perfect health."

A Mother from R.R. No. 1, Leamington, Ont., writes: "About two weeks ago our eldest son took sick with cramps in the bowels so bad he could not move. Our doctor gave him hypodermic injections and ordered him to the hospital to be operated on at once. Before doing so, however, I induced him to use the 'J.B.L. Cascade,' and in less than a week he was up an around, and has been well ever since. It also cured me of severe headaches and constipation. I cannot praise the Cascade enough. It certainly is a wonderful invention."

If you have constipation, headaches, appendicitis, or feel languid and not just right, don't drug yourself, bathe internally. The "J.B.L. Cascade" is being shown and explained at the Warne Drug Company.

At the Grand last time To-night.

MANY CHILDREN TOIL FULL DAY.

Six Children Found String Tags in Tenement For 20c Per Thousand.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Baby hands in New Jersey tenements string milk tags at 20 cents the thousand, make powder puffs at 55 cents the gross and put French knots on camisoles at 15 cents the dozen.

And these same hands have aroused legislators and child welfare workers to their defense.

New Jersey Law Lax.

New Jersey lawmakers forgot all about them and New York sweatshop bosses, unable to escape the New York regulations against tenement home work, sent their work across the river to be done by the children of Jersey City.

Nobody bothered, nobody cared, until suddenly there arose in his wrath a young and fiery Italian settlement worker—Corrado Riggio by name.

Riggio sent to the authorities 12 cases of children, overworked, undernourished, weary and sodden eyed.

The authorities investigated. The 12 cases spread to a thousand!

It was not always poverty that forced these children to work. Frequently it was greed.

One family investigators found, owned the tenement in which they lived. All of the seven children were subnormal. The oldest—a boy of 16—had the mentality of a child of 4. An 8-year-old girl had never been to school. The baby of 8 months had had only one bath since its birth because the mother was too busy making French knots.

Works at 4 a.m.

And yet this mother and her children, assisted by a boarder, working steadily, were able to earn only $6 a week.

Eight-year-old Vido—a member of this family—was so busy with his needle when inspectors called that he took no interest when candy was offered him. A settlement worker unwrapped the candy and put it in Vido's mouth before he would eat it.

Thirteen-year-old Marianna, Vido's sister, was used to getting up at 4 o'clock in the morning to start her embroidery work. It was 7 o'clock when investigators called and in that time Marianna had earned 20 cents. The morning was yet dark and the only light came from a flickering gas jet, Marianna was so busy that she did not look up when someone put a string of beads around her neck.

"I used to do that kind of work," said Marianna's sister, "but my eyes gave out. Marianna's fine at it, though. It's such a pity she has to go to school."

Never Play.

Up in a dark three-room rickety tenement, six children were stringing tags for milk cans at 20 cents a thousand. The oldest was 10, the youngest 4. By working steadily, they told investigators, they could do a thousand tags in half an hour.

"But when do you play, baby?" asked someone of Julie, the 4-year-old. And Julie answered, "Never."

Frogs for pajamas, powder puffs, clocks on stockings, paper flowers, the pulling of bastings and the trimming of seams, all such work is the sort that childish hands can do. And they do it.

Less Than 5 Cents an Hour.

Investigators carrying their survey into three other New England cities found 5,000 children at work under the age of 16.

Half of these were earning less than 5 cents an hour. Threetenths were retarded from two to three years in school.

Generally they work in the filthiest of surroundings. Children with communicable diseases lick the strings that are fastened to the milk tags. A child with a skin disease was found working on powder puffs that later went into a paper bag marked "sanitary."

But already, through the efforts of Corrado Riggio, three sweatshop bosses have been convicted and sentenced in Jersey City. There was no child labor law to convict them under, so New Jersey's child welfare law was called into play. The convictions are believed to be the first in the country.

Hard To Decide.

"I have often been asked," said the old scribe, "whether I would rather work on a morning or an afternoon paper, and I'll be hanged if I can tell. When I go to bed at 3 a. m. I prefer work on a morning paper, and when I can quit work at 3 p. m. I like the evening paper game."

Lacking in Detail.

During a recent snow storm, a cub dashed into the city room and wrote: 'Lugo Pasquel. while shovelling snow in a manhole, slipped and fell in the sewer this morning."

He handed his copy to the City Editor who said: "Well, what became of the man? Is he dead or carried out to the sea?"

"I don't know," replied the cub. "They got his shovel out while I was there, and I guess he's somewhere near it. Shall I go and find out?"

"Yes," said the City Editor; "and if they haven't found him, jump in in the sewer and search for him yourself, and ask him for his photo."

Home-made Remedy Stops Coughs Quickly

The best cough medicine you ever used. A family supply easily and quickly made. Saves about $2.

You might be surprised to know that the best thing you can use for a severe cough, is a remedy which is easily prepared at home in just a few moments. It's cheap, but for prompt results it beats anything else you ever tried. Usually stops the ordinary cough or chest cold in 24 hours. Tastes pleasant, too—children like it—and it is pure and good.

Pour 2½ ounces of Pinex in a 16-oz. bottle; then fill it up with plain granulated sugar syrup. Or use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup, if desired. Thus you make 16 ounces—a family supply—but costing no more than a small bottle of ready-made cough syrup.

And as a couch medicine, there is really nothing better to be had at any price. It goes right to the spot and gives quick, lasting relief. It promptly heals the inflamed membranes that line the throat and air passages, stops the annoying throat tickle, loosens the phlegm, and soon your cough stops entirely. Splendid for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway pine extract, famous for its healing effect on the membranes.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

THE GOVERNMENT SHOULD OWN ALL RADIO PATENTS

The Power of the Government to Acquire the Use of All Patented Inventions is Stressed.

LONDON, March 1.—(Canadian Press.)—The Imperial wireless telegraphy committee, in a report to the government published Friday, recommends that the government should own all wireless stations in Great Britain for communication with the British overseas dominions, an exception being made for Canada. It is recommended that for Canada the competition of the post office with the Anglo-Canadian wireless now existing, be continued.

It is recommended that the legislative or administrative facilities be afforded to private enterprise to develop communication with countries outside of the British Empire.

The power of the government to acquire the use of all patented inventions is stressed in the report. The recommendation being made that if the necessity arises the state will exercise its power with regard to all wireless patents.

This feature of the report was considered as an adverse to Marconi interests, as indeed is the whole tenor of the report and Marconi shares, in consequence, were quoted lower in the afternoon on the stock exchange.

An official report made by a committee of this nature is almost invariably followed by the drafting of the government bill embodying the recommendations made.

Such a bill introduced in parliament under the government auspices is assured in normal conditions of an early passage into law.

FINANCE COMMITTEE TURNS DOWN SALARY

Chief Newhall Has Not Yet Received Wages for November and December--No Love Affair, Says Alderman.

A discussion of the advisability of appointing a man to collect arrears of poll, business, and income taxes followed the presentation of a statement of the 1922 tax roll to the Finance Committee last night. It was finally decided to write to the tax collector suggesting that he take steps to collect these taxes early in the term, before the taxable persons leave the city.

Mayor J. J. Turner presented a written motion to pay Chief Newhall the salary due him from November and December last year, totalling $412.00, but a straw vote showed no one in sympathy, and the motion had no seconder.

When the Mayor had stated his case, Alderman Crowe took issue with him and declared the Chief should wait a while yet.

"Let him cool off. On principle I can't see our way clear to pay it. It's too quick. I want to save our dignity," Alderman Crowe said.

Alderman Phelan said Chief Newhall sued the city and lost, and the city is not legally liable to pay his salary.

Alderman Fife said he did not approve of going to Court in the first place, but when the Council decided to go through with it he declared it would be no love affair, and the parties should be bound by the decision of the Courts. "As for his increasing the claim to give us a test case, that's all fudge and tommyrot. I can't see how I can use the people's money to pay a case the city won. The Chief didn't sue on his estimate but on his salary. He made it a personal matter."

Mayor Turner presented two arguments for payment, one being the amending of the claim which the Chief was not bound to do, so that the city would have the right of appeal to the highest Court; and the second argument was the paying of the men. His Worship did not think the discrimination should be made between the Chief and his men.

Unusual accounts presented with the routine business last night were: From the Department of Provincial Highways, for maintenance of the highway from Peterborough to Scott's Corners, a distance of nearly six miles, $7,781.84 This is 20 per cent of the total cost, $38,909.18 for two years. The account must be paid within six months.

An account from the Mothers' Allowance Commission for December totalled $903.50, and an account from R. R. Hall, K.C., for his services in connection with the defence of the C.G.E. assessment appeal, $500.00.

There were present Alderman N. Phelan, chairman; Mayor J. J. Turner Aldermen Stocker, Fife, Crowe, and Morrison.

WEDDING BELLS

WYATT—HICKEY.

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Peter's Rectory last evening, when Miss Elizabeth Hickey became the bride of Wilbert Wyatt.

The bride was assisted by her sister, Mrs. P. McGlynn, while Mr. McGlynn supported the groom. Rev. Father Costello officiated.

After the ceremony they motored to the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. McGlynn, 126 Park street, where a dainty wedding dinner was served. The happy couple left on the 516 a.m. train for Windsor, where they will reside.

KITCHENER MAN IS BEING HELD IN U.S.

NEW YORK, March 1.—(Canadian Press).—Edward Smith, of Kitchener, Ont., who is said to be specialized in the robbing of drunken men, was held as a fugitive yesterday in Tombs Police Court to await extradition papers from Chicago, where he is charged with attempted murder and robbery. Henry Alexander, assistant district attorney, said that Smith had told him that he and two other men had "rolled drunks" in eighteen cities, including Chicago, Cincinnati, Buffalo and Detroit.

BIG DEATH ROLL FROM EXPLOSION

Eight Are Known to Be Dead, Twelve Missing and Many Injured---Shook Earth for Miles.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J., Mar. 1.—(Canadian Press.)—Eight people are known to have been killed and twelve more are believed to be dead, while a hundred are believed to be injured in an explosion which destroyed the storage building of the Aminite Company on the property of the Nixon Nitration Works at Raritan, near here to-day.

The explosion shook the earth for miles around, and wires were knocked down from the force of the blast. Hurry calls have been sent for doctors and amblances to the surrounding cities in New Jersey. The cause of the explosion is not known.

Society

The friends of Mrs. Hazen Ritchie, a well-known former resident of Peterboro, now living in Vancouver, will be pleased to learn that she is expected in Peterboro for a two months' stay about the end of April.

Mrs. Margaret Ingram, of Hunter Street West, has been confined to her bed for the past ten days with an attack of grippe.

Mr. John McMillan, formerly of the Munro House staff, has been appointed steward of the Toronto Athletic Club.

The many friends of Mrs. H. Gilbert will regret to learn that she is ill in Nicholls Hospital, where she underwent an operation on Thursday morning.

Mrs. A. Marion, of Montreal, is visiting her sister, Mrs. H. T. Brooks.

Mrs. Winifred E. Brown left for New York this week.

The Misses Irene Collins and Margaret Fraser, of Georgetown, spent the past week at their home here.

Messrs. Jack Parr and Wesley Marchment of Georgetown spent the week in the city.

Miss Lillian Armstrong left this afternoon to spend the week-end in Toronto.

Under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of Knox Church, a well-attended talent tea was held at the Manse on Thursday afternoon. The guests were received by the president of the society, Mrs. R. J. Martin, assisted by Mrs. I. MacPherson and Mrs. M. C. Mackinnon. Mrs. D. W. Clark showed the ladies into the tea-room, where tea was poured by Mrs. R. J. Clifford and Mrs. R. Johnson, assisted by Mesdames Lang, Watson, Henry, Gillis, Trussler, a committee of ladies convened by Mrs. John Londerville. Mrs. H. Anderson attended at the door. Decorations of tulips were very pretty and spring-like. A good musical programme included instrumental selections by Mrs. M. C. Mackinnon, readings by Mrs. H. M. Hobson, a piano duet by the Misses McCannon, and vocal solos by the Misses Ina Allen and Violet Buckham.

Miss Helen Ross of Toronto, is the guest of Miss Dorothy Rattenbury, Bolivar street, over the week-end, attending the military and bankers' dance.

Mr. F. C. Bishop of Buffalo, is spending a few days with his parents, 553 Homewood avenue.

DEPLORES DANCE CRAZE TENDENCY

Cardinal Logue in Lenten Pastorial Refers to Dance Mania.

ARMAGH, Ireland, March 1 (Canadian Press). — Modern women's tendency toward daring dress and a growing mania for dancing are scored by Cardinal Logue, Primate of Ireland, in his Lenten pastoral to the Archdiocese of Armagh.

The pastoral, which will be read in all Catholic churches to-morrow, says:

"The dress, or rather the want of dress, of women of the present day, is a crying scandal. There seems to be a rivalry among them as to how little dress they can wear without incurring universal reprobation. We see enough of this in everyday life, but if we can judge from the advertisements in the newspapers, we do not see the worst.

"What shocks one most is to see persons presenting themselves for holy communion in these dresses. I often have felt the impulse to pass them over.

"Another abuse is dancing, especially the all-night dances. Latterly there semes to be a regular mania for dancing. As to the character of the dances I know nothing, especially those imported dances, some of the names of which I see in the newspapers, and certainly the names are bizarre enough. Those who do know, tell me they are the most objectionable on the score of morality. They see mto be an outcrop of corption of the age."

WEALTHY COUNT WILL PLAY AT THE OLYMPIC

PARIS, March 1.—(United Press). —Count Halm Von Hoogstraeten, husband of Millicent Rogers, the $40,000,000 American heiress, emerged from seclusion to-day to announce he had arranged to represent Austria in the Olympic games at tennis.

The Count, who says he is the former champion of Austria, said he would get into shape by playing matches on the Riviera, partnered with Vincent Richards.

A GOOD PROGRAMME ST. PAUL'S CHURCH

Mrs. Jessie Alexander Robertson Entertained Large Audience.

St. Paul's Church auditorium was filled to capacity last evening to hear again Mrs. Jessie Alexander Robertson excel herself in a well-balanced programme, under the auspices of St. Paul's Fraser Auxiliary.

The chair was ably filled by Mr. H. R. H. Kenner.

Opening the programme an organ solo, "The Storm," by Mr. M. B. Chenhall, received well merited applause.

"European Impressions," by Mrs. Jessie Alexander Robertson was not only humorous but interesting and instructive, and brought home to her hearers, as she alone so well can do, glimpses of Europe. The impressions created by Canadians on Europeans, and visions of the old lands as seen through a Canadian's eye.

Mrs. Hazel Davidson McClelland excelled herself in a vocal selection "A Star," and received hearty applause.

An impersonation of "Weddings Are Funny Things" by Mrs. Jessie Alexander Robertson was certainly a gloom-chaser, and demanded an encore. This was responded to by a recitation, "There Are Fairies" in in Our Garden."

Miss Greta LeBarr, soloist of St. Paul's Church, gave a fine interpretation of "The Piper of Love," and continued applause brought forth as an encore, "You'll Get Heaps of Lickings."

"A Voice from a Far Country," by Mrs. Jessie Alexander Robertson was the story of a peasant girl with a naturally beautiful voice, attracting the attention of wealthy summer visitors, who paid for her tuition. After years of training and hard work she attained success, and eventually becomes a noted singer for a phonographic house. On her birthday she sends home a machine to her aged parents. The voice from the phonograph was ably represented by Mrs. Hazel Davidson McClelland, who in her own sweet and winsome style, gave "Home, Sweet Home."

"Should Women Propose" by Mrs. Jessie Alexander Robertson brought forth a flood of applause.

A vote of thanks was conveyed to the attending artistes by Mr. H. R. H. Kenner.

Accompanists of the evening were Mrs. Harold Young, Mrs. W. A. Greenslade, and Miss M. Rannie.

REPARATION EXPERTS DEAL WITH RAILWAYS

PARIS, March 1.—(United Press). —Two sub-committees appointed by the international reparations experts continued to wrestle to-day with the problems of the control of Germany's railways and the supervision of receipts from monopolies on sugar, tobacco and liquor which it is proposed to establish.

The general question of supervision of German finances was discussed by committees with the proposed gold bank and the budget.

THE BOTH PARTIES DISOWN CHURCHILL

Will Have a Slim Chance of Being Elected in Bye-Election.

LONDON, March 1st.— (British United Press.)— Winston Churchill will not have the support of either the Conservative or Liberals in his fight for the seat of the Abbey division of Westminster and his chances of winning the seat are exceedingly small.

I hear this on most reliable authority and the general opinion among the organizers of all political parties is that Churchill will be snowed under.

He has made a strong attempt to gain the support of the Conservatives, especially by his letter addressed to Mr. Camp, the defeated Liberal at Brunfee at the by-election which Arthur Henderson won by a big majority.

The die-hards who exercised powerful influence in the city of London do not welcome the return of Churchill to the Conservative fold after his long sojourn in the Liberal camp and for the moment he is politically disowned by both the two older parties. Churchill is to-day the most tragic and the saddest figure of the old coalition. He will undoubtedly find a place in the commons eventually however, for he is still a comparatively young man, but the political situation must undergo a great change before he will be welcomed in either party, especially the Conservative.

NOTICE

On and after March 1st, 1924, the General Insurance Agency which has been carried on for the past twenty-one years by the undersigned firm, will be continued in all its branches by Roy A. Dixon, son of Mr. A. E. Dixon, Solicitor, and Frank J. Hurley, of Winnipeg, Man., son of the late Dennis Hurley, trading under the name of Dixon and Hurley, successors to C. Young & Son.

We take this opportunity of expressing to our clients our sincere appreciation for the confidence they have placed in us, and earnestly solicit the continuance of your support to our successors, both well known and popular young men, who have lived in Peterborough the greater part of their lives, and whom we have every confidence will prove themselves worthy of the Insuring Public.

The change will not effect the Policy Holders in any way, and our successors will occupy our office premises, 278 Water street, and no inconvenience or interruption will be caused by the transfer of the Agency.

All accounts due the undersigned up to Feb. 29th must be paid to them on or before March 15th, and any persons having accounts against our firm are requested to send statements to the above address on or before that date.

PETES TO PLAY NEW HAMBURG OR FALLS' TEAM

Only Three Contenders Now Left in the Intermediate O.H.A. Race.

The team the Petes will have to overcome to win the Intermediate championship will be either Niagara Falls or New Hamburg.

Only the three outfits are left in the running, the flying Dutchmen eliminating Geulph last night by a total score on the round of 10 to 3.

New Hamburg and the Fal's gang will clash on Monday and Wednesday, and the survivors will tie into the Petes on Friday, March 7, and Monday, March 10.

New Hamburg's decisive win over Guelph shows them to be dangerous contenders, but local sentiment seems to favor Niagara Falls' chances to win out.

New Hamburg have won 16 straight games and are due for a loss, according to the law of averages and the dope generally.

BIG CROWD FOR FAST JUNIOR GAME

Kingston and Petes Meet at Brock St. Rink on Monday Night.

The Junior race is down to six teams—Kingston Circle Six, Peterboro, Hamilton, Owen Sound, Parry Sound and Kitchener—and a win for the young Petes in the series with Kingston, which opens here on Monday night, will send the Peterboro crew into the semi-finals.

Owing to the destruction of the Kingston rink, the game which was to have been played in Kingston last night will be staged at Trenton on Wednesday, and the Petes will have the first game at home on Monday.

There should be a record Junior crowd out for the fixture. The youngsters have been playing clever hockey, and their expenses have been heavy. On both counts they deserve the support of the fans. The battle between MacDougall, the diminutive centre player of the Petes, and Kirby, who plays a similar position with Kingston, should alone be worth the price of admission. Kirby comes touted as a star, but the local fans are looking to McDougall to give him a lively tussle in centre ice.

The Petes are all in good shape, and are hopeful of setting up a lead that will carry them through.

MacDONALD PROPOSES TO POINCARE CANDID DISCUSSION OF PROBLEMS AS BASIS OF UNANIMITY AND PEACE

Recognizes Disappointments of France in Peace Treaty and German Reparations But Declares That Desires of Both Countries For Security Are Identical Although Viewed and Approached From Different Grounds—Anglo-French Accord Essential to Peace in Europe.

POINCARE HOPES FOR CO-OPERATION

LONDON, March 3.—(Canadian Press).—The new Labor Prime Minister, in his desire to create a more favorable atmosphere for the initiation of negotiations which he hopes may result from the labors of the two expert financial committees now sitting in Paris, and also probably with the coming French elections in mind, and had a further exchange of letters with the French Premier, M. Poincare, the text of which was issued from the Foreign Offices at Paris and London last night.

This correspondence is noteworthy on Premier Macdonald's side for his extreme frankness in stating the British viewpoint and his opinions on the policy France has pursued since the war. Never before, not even in the famous Curzon despatch, which expressed the British view that the occupation of the Ruhr was illegal, has British suspicion of French action and motives been so candidly stated. And the fact that M. Poincare, in his rejoinder, takes no umbrage at this frankness—so new in European diplomacy—is in itself considered a most favorable sign, although M. Poincare's letter is little more than a repetition of his many speeches on the same subject.

No Concrete Proposals.

Neither of the Premiers will make any attempt to formulate concrete proposals until the expert committees have reported. Mr. Macdonald again shows that his main hope is to attain such a state of affairs in Europe as should induce the United States to co-operate in the reconstruction of Europe.

M. Poincare repudiates any design to annex a particle of German territory, concerning British suspicions of French motives in giving military assistance to the "Little Entente" countries, declares that the French aims are absolutely peaceful, and he only desires that England should co-operate with the same group of countries for the purpose of maintaining peace in Europe. M. Poincare seems to think that it will be a long time before the committees are able to present their reports. In the meantime, he re-echoes most of the British Prime Minister's aspirations for co-operation by the two countries in the interests of a just settlement, and on the whole, the correspondence, although it does not materially advance, certainly does not diminish the chances of an ultimate settlement.

Unreserved Recital.

Premier MacDonald's letter to M. Poincare, which is dated February 21, says that, encouraged by the friendly nature of M. Poincare's reply to his former letter, he desires to prepare the way for a more complete mutual understanding by an unreserved recital of "the difficulties with which I am faced and the manner in which I myself envisage the situation."

He does not desire to enter into details or advance specific proposals, but explains that: "My present purpose is to make clear to you that to my mind the differences and alterations of the past were in most cases not wholly unavoidable and to assure you of my readiness to re-examine the whole problem in its larger outlines and more essential elements."

Contrary To Treaty.

Declaring that he wishes not only to interpret the views of his own countrymen but sympathetically to realize French opinions and needs, Mr. MacDonald proceeds:

"It is widely felt in England that, contrary to the provisions of the Versailles Treaty, France is endeavoring to create a situation which gains for it what it failed to get during the Allied peace negotiations. The view of this section of my countrymen is that that policy can only perpetuate uncertainty and dangers of a condition, not of peace, but of war, and that in the end it will destroy whatever temporary security France may gain.

"There were many people in France who imagined that with the complete defeat of Germany they would be automatically freed forever from a menace which I fully realize was real; some thought that in order to attain absolute security the French frontiers should be extended to the Rhine. They were disappointed in this expectation. They were offered, instead, a joint guarantee by Great Britain and the United States. With the abstention of America this offer lapsed, and the French people have since, with some justification, been seeking other more tangible safeguards to replace it.

"With regard to reparations also the French public have suffered disappointment. Neither the virtually unlimited expectations aroused at the moment of victory, nor the more specific assessment made in 1921, has been of any real relation to the economic situation as it stands today.

England Unmenaced.

"The position of this country is entirely different. Our security by land and sea remains unmenaced. But our economic existence has been gravely endangered owing not to the inability of Germany to pay a certain sum in reparations, but to the acute and persistent dislocation of the markets of Europe, occasioned mainly by the uncertainty of the relations between France and Germany, shown so clearly by violent fluctuations in the value of its currency, and the ultimate uncertainty in the relations between France and ourselves.

"Thus, it has come about that the people in this country regard with anxiety what appears to them to be the determination of France to ruin Germany and dominate the Continent, without consideration of our reasonable interest and future consequences to a European settlement; that they feel apprehension of the large military and aerial establishments maintained not only in eastern but also in western France; that they are disturbed by the interest shown by your government in the military organizations of the new states in central Europe, and finally, that they question why all these activities should be financed by the French Government in disregard of the fact that the British taxpayer has to find upwards of £30,000,000 yearly as interest upon loans raised in America and that our taxpayers also have to find large sums to pay the interest on the debt of France to us, to meet which France herself has as yet neither made nor propounded, so far as they can see, any sacrifice equivalent to their own.

Remove Basis of Fears.

"Such popular sentiments, erroneous though they may be, are factors which both you and I are bound to take into consideration. I am heartily anxious that you and I together should try to give both these sections of French and British opinion some sense of confidence that the basis of their fears and resentments is being removed.

"It is not my present purpose to enter at any length into such questions as the Ruhr and Rhineland occupations, or the Palatinate, beyond saying that no one who has to observe British opinion today can afford to overlook the urgent necessity of coming to arrangements regarding them without delay.

"I see little prospect of our being

No Photographs From Camera Men

NEW YORK, March 3.—(Canadian Press).—Prince Viggo, of Denmark, cousin of King Christian, sailed for Europe yesterday on the Olympic, saying he would return next June to marry Miss Eleanor Green, of New York.

The Prince professed to be annoyed by the persistent photographers, whom he had also encountered on his arrival.

"They took my picture," he exclaimed, "and promised to send me some copies, but they never sent me a single one."

JURORS GIVEN WEEK-END REST

Panel in Delorme Trial Saw Movies Saturday and Played "Five Hundred" In Evening — Resume Duty To-Day.

MONTREAL, March 3. — Rev. Father Delorme was present in court Saturday morning listening to the sentences that were imposed, including two of twenty years each. Subsequently he was taken back to Bordeaux jail to await resumption of his trial Monday morning.

The jurymen in the case were given a good time over the week-end. They were the guests of the Quebec Board of Moving Picture Censors at the latter's hall here Saturday afternoon where they were entertained with comedies and some of the new pictures that are being censored there.

In the evening they played "500" at their hotel with a constable as official scorer.

Sunday morning they all attended mass at Bonsecours church and in the afternoon they were taken for a tour of the mountain in a large sleigh.

A week of sensational developments and of hard fought battles between counsel for the defence and Prosecutor is looked for this week. It is thought that an especial effort will be made to bridge the "gap" that now exists in the evidence as to what happened between eleven on the night of Jan. 6 and two in the morning of Jan. 7, between which hours it is supposed the murder took place.

Estimates are that the Crown may close its case by Thursday. It is thought that presentation of the case by the defence may take four days longer.

CONTRACTOR LAID MOST OF LONDON (ONT.) SEWERS

LONDON, Ont., March 3.—(Canadian Press)—Christopher (Chris) Leathorn, one of the most prominent and progressive water works and sewer contractors in western Ontario succumbed to a lingering illness Sunday morning at his home at Elias Street. Mr. Leathorn was in his 76th year.

A resident of London for the past 55 years, Mr. Leathorn a well known figure in industrial and municipal circles of this part of the province and through his efforts to advance the cause of sanitation, was regarded as one of the cleverest waterworks contractors in Ontario.

More than 90 percent. of the sewer and waterworks construction in London and district has been done under his supervision and he also installed waterworks in Strathroy, Petrolia, Goderich, Stratford and other centres.

DYNAMITE CAP INJURES THREE FORD CITY BOYS

WINDSOR, March 2. — Three Ford boys were seriously injured this afternoon when a dynamite cap which they had picked up, exploded.

The injured are Peter Rymen, 12 years old, 1228 Drouillard Road, the right hand shattered; Thomas Bymitch, 10 Deming Road, and Stephen Cylka, 12, 1280 Brouillard Road, cut about the head and chest.

Rymen is in a dangerous condition and may die. The boys were taken to the Hotel Dieu.

EYES DESERVE PROTECTION

Why go on straining them? Eyes behave better and last longer when taken proper care of, besides the added comfort of using the right glasses when needed. See W. H. Lacey, Optometrist, 410 George St., Phone 1160.

SONS WILL INTRODUCE HENDERSON IN COMMONS

Unique Spectacle When Labor Member-Elect For Burnley Takes Seat To-Day—Conservatives May Endorse Churchill As Anti-Socialist Candidate In Abbey Division of Westminster.

LONDON, March 3.—(Canadian Press Cable.)—The unique spectacle of a father being introduced into the house of commons by his two sons will be witnessed to-day when Rt. Hon. Arthur Henderson takes his seat as the member for Burnley to which he was elected on Friday.

Granted that Winston Churchill takes the field in the Abbey, Westminster by-election, it seems likely that no fewer than four others will enter the fight with him. The liberals are preparing to run Scott-Duckers who has some political reputation in the neighborhood. George Parkinson proposes running as an independent conservative and the official conservative choice which will be made to-morrow will lie between J. M. Gatti, vice-chairman of the local caucus and Otto Nicholson, nephew of the late member. It is understood that laborites also propose to contest the seat.

Favoured by Baldwin.

There is a general impression that Stanley Baldwin, the conservative leader, favors Churchill's candidature as likely to strengthen his side in their determination to fight the government's alleged socializing principles. The conservatives however in the Abbey division as in other parts of the country show reluctance nowdays to accept the bidding of party headquarters. While the Abbey caucus consented to invite Churchill to address them they made it a condition that in so doing they committed themselves in no way. Under such circumstances Mr. Churchill declined to accept the invitation. The general impression is that Churchill is likely to stand as an independent anti-socialist but if he finally declines the fight will be between the two conservatives. The constituency has been strongly conservative for many years.

Churchill Willing.

Churchill yesterday issued a statement definitely expressing his willingness to stand as an independent constitutional candidate for the Abbey division of Westminster (London) if assured that this is the general wish.

Mr. Churchill declares: "I have no intention of changing the position I have occupied for nearly twenty years on the main questions of public policy but I wish to work effectually with the conservative party in resistance to the socialist party and its allies whoever they may be. There must be scores, even hundreds of thousands of Liberals throughout the country who conscientiously feel as I do and see at this juncture no reason why they should not co-operate with the conservative party on the lines of the King's speech of the late government and Mr. Baldwin's recent declarations on the fiscal question. To take such action implies no abandonment of principle nor acquiescence in any reactionary proposal. On the contrary it is the only way a foundation can be built for the establishment and maintenance of a strong, tolerant and progressive government."

Minority Rule.

Churchill's statement roundly denounces the three-party system as entailing for an indefinite period minority rule. Finally he emphasizes that a grave conflict with the socialists must come within a year and that everyone must choose sides.

The by-election is rendered necessary by the death of the member, Brig.-General J. S. Micholson.

Poured Gasoline In Furnace; Woman Dies.

NEW GLASGOW, N.S., March 2.—Mrs. H. M. Andrews died at her home in Stellarton, near here early this morning as the result of burns sustained last night, when she poured gasoline on the furnace fire. There was a sharp explosion and the woman was horribly burned. She lived only a few hours.

BELIEVES WIFE DEFRAUDED HIM SEEKS FREEDOM

Elderly Husband Declares He Was Deceived By Wife's Claim to Relationship to Old Lee Family—Says She Came From Orphanage.

WIFE DENIES IT.

NEW YORK, March 3.—All the dismall, dreary life of a girl called "Ella Lee," sometimes "Susie Lee," and sometimes merely "Ella"—a girl born in poverty and obscurity in Clarkesville, Tennessee, brought up in an orphanage in Nashville, later to spend years in the winking lights of questionable resorts—

All this sorry picture was paraded before Justice Wasservogel and the jury as Caruthers Ewing, once of Memphis and now a New York attorney, sought to show that Beverly D. Harris was "framed" and deceived, that his wife was a fraud and that his marriage to Eleanor Elaine Lee should be annulled.

Denies Sordid Stories.

And the girl threading through the picture, witnesses swore, was the Mrs. Harris sitting before them, unmistakable for all her costly clothes and fresh-tinted skin. This, her counsel vigorously and confidently deny.

Charles C. Warfield, stating his business as that of travelling salesman "with a line of novelty goods" working out of Memphis, testified that he had known Eli Rayner" for fifteen years," but "didn't know he had any business except for running a poker store."

Yes, he had been in his (Rayner's) place, the witness said, "the poker room he ran in the Clarendon Hotel annex." Any ladies there? Well, he'd never seen any around except Ella. The same person who sat before him there, Mrs. Harris? Yes, there she was sitting. Any drinking with her back in Memphis? Sometimes, in Eli's apartment. Who with? Oh, just Eli and Ella and himself. Yes, he gambled himself, sometimes.

Earlier in the day a shriveled little old woman with an unsteady step, but the fire that never flickers in her voice, got to the stand, waving off a court attendant who jumped to help her. She gave her name as Mary C. King, of Battle Creek, Mich. Yes, Mrs. King. She'd been twice married and once divorced; first husband still living, she was sorry to say.

In her early years, Mrs. King had lived in Clarkesville, Tenn. Her voice was a bit shrill and her shrunken lips worked incessantly. A little round gold locket hung from a black ribbon tight around her throat and a "picture hat" crowned with ostrich feathers balanced precariously on her head.

Shows Faded Photos.

When Mr. Ewing asked Mrs. King if she could identify the defendant, Mrs. Harris, the little old lady fumbled at her reticule and brought forth a faded photograph. It disclosed two girls in checked calico dresses with pig-tails down their back. "That's my daughter, there," she pointed to one, "and the other one there is Susie Lee, calling herself Elaine now."

Here Mrs. Harris banged a small, beautifully manicured fist on the table and stamped a satin-shod foot.

Met Elderly Woman.

In a long deposition Mrs. Hosea Harris, the elderly woman from Hamberg, Ark., through whom the pretty Elaine Lee met Beverly Harris and whom she called "Auntie." Mrs. Harris (of no relation to the plaintiff nor the Harrises of the defendant's family) said:

"I was at lunch by myself in the hotel at Eureka Springs, Ark., when she (Mrs. Harris) came over to my table and said: 'I understand your beautiful daughter has married and gone away.' If she'd been an angel from heaven I couldn't have been more surprised."

Then Mrs. Harris related how the girl had presented Rayner as her uncle, told of their beautiful home in Memphis and of her connection with the famous Lee family, saying Stocker Lee was her father. She told how she accompanied the girl to Houston, Texas, where they met Beverly Harris in the Rice Hotel through Congressman McLemore. She confessed to having asked the

40,000 Vaccinated In Border Cities

WINDSOR, March 3.—(Canadian Press).—Four new cases of smallpox were reported Sunday. The locations where the sufferers live are all on the east side of Windsor.

Dr. Fred. Adams, Medical Health Officer for the Border Cities, said that not for three or four days will the Board of Health be able to determine definitely whether the smallpox epidemic is under control.

The disease has already claimed 12 victims, while more than 50 cases in all have been reported and are under quarantine. At least 40,000 persons have been vaccinated. The emergency offices opened by the Board of Health at 8 London street east, will be kept open for some days yet, for those who apply for free vaccination, and free treatment by Border doctors has been ordered continued by the board. The Isolation Hospital established at the Grand Central Hotel, Sandwich street east, will be kept open for cases which may develop.

HEART STOPPED DECLARED DEAD RECOVERS LIFE

Japanese Prince, Aged 90, Had Entered Valley of Shadows — Newspapers Announced Death — Doctors Astonished at What They Declare "A Miraculous Recovery."

CHANCE TO LIVE.

TOKIO, March 3.— (Canadian Press).—Prince Masayoshi Matsukata, whose death was announced yesterday and for whom the entire nation went into mourning, is alive today and has a bare chance for recovery, according to statements made by physicians this morning. The Prince was pronounced dead at 11.15 o'clock yesterday morning when his heart and respiration stopped. Shortly thereafter, however, he began to show faint signs of life.

By what the physicians pronounce "a miraculous recovery," Matsukata, who is in his ninetieth year, slowly came back to life. The astonished physicians worked over him desperately and in the afternoon he had so far regained consciousness that he was able to acknowledge by pressure of his hand the presence of Viscount Makino, the Emperor's messenger.

All the Tokio newspapers but two carried stories of the Prince's death, together with lengthy obituaries.

Montreal Grocer Shot In Fight With Bandit.

MONTREAL, March 2.—Infuriated at his plucky resistance, a young bandit late Saturday night shot Dominico Colucci, 65, three times. The attack occurred in Colucci's grocery store in the east end of the city. His assailant with an accomplice escaped empty-handed. Colucci is reported to be in a very serious condition.

OTTAWA HOUSE GETS DOWN TO DEBATE TODAY

Long Drawn Out Debate Will Start This Afternoon--No Time Limit

THE HOME BANK

OTTAWA, March 3. — (Canadian Press).—The House of Commons gets down to business this afternoon with the opening of the debate on the address. The motion for the adoption of the address in reply to the speech from the Throne will be moved by F. L. Kelly, Liberal, Cape Breton North, and will be seconded by E. A. Lanierre, Liberal, of Nipissing. After formal speeches have been delivered, Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, leader of the Opposition, will give the keynote for the Conservatives. These three speeches are expected to occupy most of the afternoon, and Prime Minister King is scheduled to reply in the evening.

The length of the debate is as yet unsettled, but it is generally expected that it will run into the next week. Foreshadowing of the tariff reduction contained in a speech from the Throne is regarded as likely to arouse considerable discussion, and there are a number of other questions, including banking and labor conditions, in Cape Breton. It is also suggested that charges made recently against two members of the Cabinet in connection with the Home Bank may be aired during the week.

There is no official announcement as to whether Mr. Meighen will move an amendment to the address, but it is reported unofficially that such action is probable.

POLICE USED TANKS TO DISPERSE A MOB

Over a Hundred Communists Arrested in City of Jena.

BERLIN, March 3. — (United Press).—Police, using tanks, dispersed a "Red" mob and arrested 150 Communists in the city of Jena, after several persons had been wounded in a sharp fight between the "Reds" and local Fascisti.

Two of the men arrested are members of the Thuringian Diet.

The Fascisti organization known as the "Jungsturm" was staging a demonstration Saturday when the Communists attacked them, attempting to break up the meeting. The police restored order.

General Von Der Goltz, reactionary leader in the Kapp Putsch, was greeted with loud cheers as he told the young Fascisti to prepare for a war of liberation.

"Good-bye, until we meet at a second battle of Leipzig," he cried dramatically, referring to the battle which freed Germany from Napoleon.

FIRE IN BUSINESS BLOCK

THAMESVILLE, Ont., March 2.—Fire starting from an overheated stove in the general store of Elmer Cox at midnight on Saturday caused several thousand dollars' loss. The men's furnishings and grocery store of George Hardy next door, was damaged by smoke and water, while the Opera House, above the stores suffered greatly from the same cause. The loss is covered by insurance.

The block is owned by Miss S. Ferguson of Thamesville.

SMALL WORKERS SLAVE IN SHUCKING OYSTERS IN THE LAND OF THE FREE

Child Workers Go to Work In the Morning Between Three and Four O'Clock

LABOR LAW FARCE.

(By ROY J. GIBBONS)

BILOXI, Miss., Mar. 2.— Hush! It is the children's hour.

Between 3 and 4 each morning it comes ushered in here as regularly as clockwork to the accompanying tumult of a hundred factory sirens, which proclaim the event for Biloxi's tiny workers in the shrimp and oyster canning factories.

Mingling their wail with the roar of the sea, these blaring sentinels call into the cold hours before dawn an army of boys, girls and women, bidding them haste to work lest daylight steal in and find them unoccupied

Tots, 5 or 6 Years Old, Work with Mothers over Steaming Oysters

Most children who work in the oyster canning factories are tiny tots. From 5 to 14 their ages run. Many of the smaller children work with their parents, contributing their efforts to the common family shucking pail.

All day long you can see them in moisture-laden rooms, bending over cars of steaming oysters, shucking away at the shells and filling little pails with the meat for 5 cents a pound.

The workers stand swaying back and forth with a rhythmic sort of motion, which experienced shuckers say, enables them to increase production.

Empty shells are thrown on the floor. These, as they accumulate, afford treacherous foothold to the women and children who climb the slippery piles in an effort to reach farther and farther for the oysters as they empty the cars.

Practically the same method is pursued in the preparation of processed shrimp, except that the shrimp are iced, and the women and children who work on them are called, pickers, or peelers.

Those who shuck oysters receive sharp cuts which often become infected from the oyster shells and from the knives employed in the process.

The shrimp picker is attacked by both an acid in the shrimp head and a sharp thorn or prong which projects from the head.

This burning substance, which has the odor of strong ammonia, escapes from the shrimp when the shell is broken, preparatory to squeezing out the meat.

When it gets on the picker's hands, as one factory worker, a boy of 12, remarked: "It burns like hell, mister."

To protect themselves, the oyster shuckers wear gloves, and later in the season when they become shrimp pickers or peelers, they wear gloves, too, and likewise bathe their hands in alum water to make them hard.

Shrimp pickers say they cannot work more than a week at a time.

"You gotta give your fingers a chanct to heal up," a little girl of 11 and the veteran of three factory seasons advised.

On the other hand, factory owners and employers of the child and women workers say they try to minimize the hazards attendant upon the picking and shucking. They report that only careless and inexperienced persons are injured.

In one factory to which the writer gained uninvited entrance despite the usual signs forbidding visitors, he was puzzled by the consternating effect his presence had upon the workers.

Children fled from his sight in all directions. Some hid beneath shucking tables, and others, who were small enough to escape detection that way, scurried to retreat under the ample tent of their mother's dresses.

When he had been placated, the head "straw boss" of the factory explained the reason back of all this flurry.

"Federal Child Labor Law Caused Us Trouble, but It's Knocked Out"

"Them kids ain't old enough to work," he said. "and they think you're an inspector. I taught them to run away when anybody that was strange came into the factory.

"But we haven't got anything to be afraid of, though, because the government hasn't any more authority to make the kids stop working. I'm glad they knocked out those federal child labor laws. They sure caused us canners a heap of bother while they were in force."

From Biloxi's oyster and shrimp canning industries, which aside from tourists comprise the town's chief support, is estimated to come 80 per cent of the country's supply of this sort of tinned seafood products.

In corresponding ratio, as the factories are necessary to the town, so are the women and children necessary to the canning factories.

Northern visitors down to catch some of the Gulf sunshine have been known to complain to hotel managements about that "confounded fanfare of trumpets just at daybreak when I'm getting set for a second snooze."

Perhaps they never learned till now that the whistles were calling to little ones to announce the children's hour.

BEER BLOC WORKING OVERTIME IN HOUSE

Hope to Get Better Grade of Beer Through Next Congress.

WASHINGTON, March 3.— (United Press.)— The "Beer Bloc" being formed in the House expects to get 2.75 per cent. beer law through the next Congress.

As the first step toward this goal each member of the "bloc" which it is claimed now numbers 60, will introduce a beer bill in the house this week. The sixty beer bills will be identical. They will provide for legalization of the manufacture and sale of 2.75 per cent. beer, cider and fruit juices.

RECEIVER FOR LAND COMPANY

Millions Invested in the Irrigation of Southern Alberta--Adverse Wheat Market Hurt Sales of Land.

LONDON, March 2. — The appointment of a receiver for the 7 per cent. debentures of the Canada Land Irrigation Company, brings a statement from the company as follows:

"It will be recalled that nearly 3,000,000 has been invested by British investors in this undertaking whereby water was successfully brought over one hundred miles to centres of the drought-stricken area of Southern Alberta. The irrigation works to-day are in good working order. The grave agricultural depression however which began in the latter part of 1921 has rendered it increasingly difficult to carry on without substantial assistance from the Dominion or the provincial government but all proposals have now been definitely rejected by both of the governments. Meanwhile general conditions in western Canada so far as they affect the company's property and enterprise have grown steadily worse. The low price of wheat and other products, the heavy freight charges, excessive taxation, dear labor, restricted credit facilities, and the high cost of living have so operated against land sales and collections of instalments on land sold, that the directors are of the opinion that the present position and prospects do not afford justification for advising the stockholders to find fresh capital."

OBITUARY

Temperance Union Had a Leap Year Tea—Personal Mention.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 3. — The Women's Christian Temperance Union had a very successful Leap Year tea in the Sunday School room of the Methodist Church on Friday, February 29, from 3.30 till 5.30. Quite a large number of ladies were present. Mrs. R. Ballantyne, the President of the society, was the chairwoman, and opened the meeting and announced the programme. After a hymn and prayer and Bible lesson, the following programme was given:

Reading, Mrs. R. Moore; solo, Mrs. C. W. Turner; reading, Mrs. Hammond; solo, Miss K. Connor; recitation Miss L. Hay, and encore, solo, Miss N. Hoover; piano solo, Miss L. Weston.

Then refreshments were served by the committee. The afternoon was enjoyed by all present. The proceeds amounted to over sixteen dollars.

On motion of Mrs. Weston and Mrs. Scarlett, a vote of thanks was tendered to those on the programme, and also to the board for the use of the S. S. room.

Ladies' Aid Meet.

The regular meeting of the Ladies' Aid of the Methodist Church was held at the home of the President, Mrs. Stone, on Thursday afternoon. Eighteen ladies were present. The regular business was taken up, then followed a discussion regarding the renovating of the Sunday School room. On motion a committee was appointed to meet and consult with the board about it. The members of the committee are: Mrs. Stone, Mrs. R. Moore, Mrs. Irwin and Mrs. Turner.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. C. B. Williams. At the close Mrs. Stone served lunch.

Personals.

Misses Norah and Marion Gillespie, Booth street, left Friday morning for Riverside, California, where they will make an extended visit with their uncle, Mr. Vanblaricorn, brother of Mrs. Gillespie.

Mrs. W. Dickey and son, Mr. D. Scott, who have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Phillips, left this week for their home in Govan, Sask. They will stop off in Toronto for a couple of days before going on home.

Mrs. D. W. Douglas, Booth street, entertained a number of ladies at bridge on Thursday night.

Miss Brunelle, Front street, entertained a number of ladies and gentlemen at her home on Thursday.

Mrs. Thomas McCook invited a number of ladies to her home for euchre Thursday afternoon. The winners of the prizes were Mrs. Earl Williams for points and Mrs. H. Townsend for lone hands. At the close of the game the hostess served refreshments which were enjoyed by all. Mrs. Ernest McCook favored the company with a solo.

Mr. Ernest Bedford of Kingston was in town on Friday to see his mother who is ill.

Mrs. Hess of Hastings is visiting Mrs. (Rev.) Elliott at the Methodist Church.

Mrs. Lawson and Mrs. Stimers of Toronto are spending a week with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Runnells, Sebastapool street.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry McMullen on Front street lost their little baby of five days old. The funeral was held at Burnbrae.

Mr. Joe. BeDean on Bridge street is seriously ill.

BARON WRANGEL HAS ARRIVED IN FRANCE

PARIS, March 3. — (British United Press).—Baron Wrangel arrived here and is now reported to be conferring with Grand Duke Nicholas, the accepted leader of the anti-Bolshevik party.

It is believed that Wrangel's white army staff, at present in Jugo-Slavia, will be soon forced to leave that country, following the probably recognition of the Russian Soviet Government. Wrangel may decide to go to the United States, it is learned.

STORAGE INCREASE LIGHT.

FORT WILLIAM, March 3.—The smallest increase in grain stores at the head of the lakes since navigation closed, was recorded last week, the shipments being a little increased, while receipts were a quarter of a million bushels less. As a result the amount in store was only increased by less than a half million bushels, leaving the elevators still able to handle a few cars of grain.

While a number of the public terminal elevators are filled to their capacity two or three of them could still contrive to store a few thousand bushels more.

BELLEVILLE WON IN CAMPBELLFORD

Close Game With Twenty Minutes Overtime Before Locals Were Eliminated.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 3. — Belleville High School and St. Peter's School of Peterboro played a sudden death game here Saturday morning to decide the High School championship of the East, and Belleville won, after 20 minutes' overtime, 6 to 5. The winners will go up against Bracebridge in the finals for the scholastic title.

Both teams put up a snappy game with Peterboro having rather the better of the play. They are a better balanced team, and played good combination in spots. They should have won in the regulation time, but luck was against them, and when it came to the overtime they didn't have as much left as Belleville.

The game was the most exciting played here this winter. First one team would be leading and then the other.

There was no score in the first period. Half way through the second frame Peterboro bulged the twine for the first goal of the game, and a few minutes later made it 2 to 0. That was the biggest lead either team had, and it did not last long, for Belleville threw everything they had into the attack and got one goal back, and just before the end of the period Weir slipped another past Lebarr from a face off in front of the Peterboro net.

Peterboro had much the better of the period, and should have had a lead to carry tinto the third frame.

With the exception of Weir, Townsend, and Mathews, none of the Belleville boys displayed the brand of hockey the Petes did. Townsend and Mathews were all over the ice, and their incessant back-checking put a crimp in the Petes' combinations. Weir was rather slow to warm up, but was getting better all the way.

Peterborough grabbed the lead again early in the third period, but Belleville evened up soon after, and a little later forged ahead for the first time during the game. But with two minutes to go, Milloy carried the rubber down to the defence and slipped it over to Collins to put the teams on even footing again.

The bell still found them deadlocked.

There was no score in the first five minutes of the overtime, but in the second five Weir went through alone to put Belleville ahead, but made a bad mistake a minute later when he wandered away from his position and left Mathews alone; and when Milloy and Collins broke away together it was easy for the pair to beat Mathews just before the end of the first overtime.

They battled away the first half of the second overtime without a score, but Weir redeemed himself by scoring the winning goal half way through the second half and the Belleville boys played a careful, defensive game, and held the Petes out for the balance of the fray.

While not detracting any glory from the Belleville boys, the kids from the Lift Lock City were more outlucked than outplayed.

Final score—Belleville 6, Peterborough 5.

ALL FOODS SHOULD BE SEALED.

The medical profession very generally advocate that all food products should be sold in sealed packages. All cities rigorously inspect butcher shops to prevent meat from being infected; many prohibit milk from being sold in bulk, and gradually this will come with everything. "SALADA" was the first to introduce the package idea as regards tea, over 32 years ago, and 'SALADA" is still a little purer and a little better than other teas. It has by far the largest sale.

NEW HAMBURG SENATOR DEAD; THIRD VACANCY

OTTAWA, March 3.—(Canadian Press).—Word has been received here of the death of Senator Ratz at Guelph Hospital. His death makes the third an Ontario vacancy in the Senate, the other two being one each in New Brunswick and Quebec.

Senator Ratz was a lumberman and president of the South River Co. He was elected to the House of Commons at the general elections in 1896; defeated in 1900 and re-elected in 1904. He was summoned to the Senate in 1909. He was a Liberal in politics and resided in New Hamburg, Ontario.

C.N.R. AGENT RESIGNS.

MONTREAL, March 2. — Announcement is made at the head offices of the Canadian National Railways here that Arnold Aronovici, general continental agent in Europe for the system has resigned. Mr. Aronovici acted for the Canadian National Railways in the purchase of the Hotel Scribe at Paris.

It was announced at Ottawa in an unofficial way some weeks ago that Mr. Aronovici had left the service, but the sttaement was not then confirmed at headquarters here.

SEYMOUR BARN LOST IN FIRE

Lantern Exploded With Disastrous Results--Stock Saved--Campbellford News.

(By Staff Reporter.)

Campbellford, March 3. — Arthur Merriam, tenant on what is known as the Thomas Locke farm, on the sixth concession in West Seymour, a short distance from the town limits, was engaged at work in his barn early on Saturday morning, when a lighted lantern which he was using suddenly exploded. In a short time the building, a substantial frame structure, was in flames. The only stock in the stables were two horses and a cow, and these were saved. The barn and contents were a total loss, A silo was also destroyed.

Mr. Merriam's lease of the farm expired on Saturday and the farm was recently purchased by James Forestall, who was to take possession on the same day. The barn was insured by the former owner for $1000 but this will not be sufficient to replace the building.

Home from Toronto.

Reeve Chas. Davidson and Councillor G. A. Kingston have returned from Toronto where they represented the town at a meeting of the Good Roads Association, and at the same time interviewed the Deputy Minister of Highways to ask for a grant for a new bridge at Campbellford. A report of the sessions of the association and of the interview with the Deputy Minister, has already appeared in the Examiner. The delegates will give an account of their trip at the meeting of the Town Council to-night.

Roy Bell who went to Toronto with them on automobile business has also returned.

Buried at Warkworth.

J. A. and J. C. Anderson drove to Codrington on Saturday to attend the funeral of their cousin, the late Jas. Sutherland, an account of whose death appeared in these columns on Friday. The funeral was one of the largest ever seen in that district. Religious services were held at the family residence, by Rev. G. S. Hammond, pastor of the Presbyterian church at Warkworth, assisted by Rev. W. F. Caffley of the Norham Circuit. Mr. Hammond who preached the sermon, extolled the Christian character of the deceased, who during the 50 years of his residence in the district had enjoyed the esteem of all who knew him. His private and public life were alike above reproach, and he remained to the last faithful to his religious precepts that had been imparted to him in his youth. Thirty years ago he had given up his connection with the Warkworth church, when it had been decided to use instrumental music in the service, but he still continued to maintain the family altar which he had set up in his home.

The remains were interred in the cemetery at Warkworth, Rev. Mr. Hammond officiating at the grave.

The pallbearers, all cousins of the deceased, were: J. A. Anderson, J. C. Anderson, James Ross, William Ross, George Walker and Fred Moore.

Mrs. Stapleton, the aged sister of the deceased, who resided with him since the death of her husband, is seriously ill and was unable to leave her bed on the day of the funeral.

Died at Cobourg.

William Smith, known as Well Digger Smith on account of the vocation which he had followed in this town and district for years, died Saturday in the House of Refuge at Cobourg, to which institution he was sent from here last fall. Supt. McMillan telephoned here inquiring if the deceased had any living relatives in Campbellford. As there are none the remains will be buried in the Potters' Field.

Behold, a New Prophet.

Unmindful of the discomfiture that has overwhelmed the daring spirits who predicted an open winter, a new weather prophet has arisen to court a similar fate. This individual detracts from the gaiety of a notion inclined to hope for the best by prophesying a late spring. Like all other forecasters he has an alleged system upon which he establishes his theory. There was fog here on February 26 and the new prophet has it that there will be cold weather and frost up to the corresponding date in May. He also claims that he is supported by the meteorological records for the past century or longer.

Speaking of spring, an East Seymour farmer who was in town Saturday, reported ground hogs running at large in his district.

Sacred Concert.

The fifth in the series of sacred concerts which the Northumberland Regimental Band is giving this winter was held Sunday night in the Regent Theatre and as usual the building was crowded to capacity, a number of the audience, including several ladies, being obliged to stand in the rear of the theatre during the programme. By common consent the concert was the best yet given, the programme containing several high-class numbers and the members of the band, by their faultless execution, showing the results of their long hours of practice for the entertainment, which, like all the others previously given, was highly appreciated.

Major J. M. Bygott, commander of the local company, presided. He thanked the public for their generous support of the concerts and again referred to the fact that the use of the theatre for the entertainments was donated by Capt. Hyland absoltuely without charge.

There were two special and favorite features on the programme. Charles Mitchell rendered a saxaphone solo. Bandmaster Cowell, accompanying him on the piano. These solos by Mr. Mitchell are now a regular fixture at the concerts and never fail to win an encore. The applause which greeted his performance last night was the highest compliment any musician could receive.

Another favorite was Herb. Leonard, a member of the Band, who is as proficient in vocal as in instrumental music, always assured of a warm reception from a Campbellford audience and who on each appearance in public seems to be improving both in the selection and the execution of his numbers. His first solo last night was "Asthore" and in response to an enthusiastic recall he rendered, "The Song That Reached My Heart."

The proceeds of these concerts, aside from what is donated to charitable objects, is used for the purchase of new music and three such pieces were heard last night for the first time in Campbellford—"Sunset on the St. Lawrence" by Heller, "Martha" by Floton and "Evening Thoughts" by Charles Rockswell. The old favorite hymns rendered were "Onward Christian Soldiers" and "Tell Me the Old, Old Story," the audience standing and singing the latter selection.

The collection amounted to $25.27.

Rev. C. F. McIntosh Ill.

Rev. C. F. McIntosh, pastor of St. Andrew's Church, is confined to his home by illness. His services yesterday were taken by Rev. C. Shaw, a retired Baptist minister, now residing at Menie, who preached very acceptably both morning and evening. Mr. Shaw was obliged to retire some time ago on account of ill-health, but it is hoped that he will soon be able to resume permanently the work in which he was so successful.

At The Regent.

There will be no pictures shown at the Regent on Monday or Tuesday, as the theatre has been engaged for the dramatic performance. On the four remaining nights of the week the bill will be Priscilla Dean in her latest and favourite presentation, "Drifting."

WHEAT GRADES NOT DEFINITE

Government Inspector at Winnipeg Recommends More Precise Definition of Canada's Number 1 Northern.

WINNIPEG, Man., March 2.—Canada's famous Number 1 Northern grade of wheat that has become the standard of cereal values throughout the world must be defined more definitely, declared George Serley, chief government grain inspector, before the Royal Grain Inquiry Commission yesterday. At present, he said, the definition is that No. 1 Northern shall contain 60 per cent. of hard red spring wheat and 40 per cent. must be of the same varieties, but may be slightly bleached or softened by the weather or soil conditions, and well cleaned, which is the same as commercially cleaned. For the No. 2 grade, witness said the Act stipulates that it must be reasonably clean ed, but there is a little difference in practice in these two descriptions. Number two grade may have some weed seed in it, and foreign matter, which could not be permitted in No. one. In future definitions he thought the explanation should show the foreign substance percentage permitted in the grades.

Witness declared that the inspection department had nothing to do with establishing commercial grades this being left entirely to the standard board.

In discussing spreads and qualities of grain going into the different grades, and the reasons, Mr. Serle said that in deciding on the quantity of bleached or other damaged grain going into a product that is to be disposed of on the world market it must be remembered that if it has not the right color it will not command the standard price. As an illustration of how the outside buyers regard these things he gave the following illuminating example:

In 1921, because so much of western Canada wheat was bleached and sprouted, he made a concession to the producer by admitting more of that quality into the Number Three grade. The practical effect of that ruling was that the spread between Numbers One and Three started in October at 5½c and gradually increased until the end of May, it had advanced to 14c a bushel

FUMES IN GARAGE KILL TORONTO MAN

Found by Daughter After Two Hours -- Garage Had Been Closed For Some Time.

TORONTO, March 3.—(Canadian Press).—Overcome by carbon monoxide fumes from the engine of his motor car while alone in his garage, Col. James George, Maple Avenue, chartered accountant, well-known also in military and literary circles in Toronto, was found dead about 7.30 p.m. yesterday.

Col. George was last seen alive by members of his family about 5.15 p.m. when he was observed to be going toward the garage. As it was thought that he had afterwards gone out motoring or for a walk, no alarm was felt about his non-appearance for more than two hours. His daughter, Mildred, then went to the garage and found her father lying there lifeless. The garage had been kept tightly shut for some time, and in the close air fumes had evidently acted so quickly upon Col. George that he had lapsed into unconsciousness before he could make a move to regain the outer air.

The late Col. George was in his 66th year. He was born in Kingston, Ont., and was the son of the late Rev. James George, Vice-Chancellor of Queen's University.

FEDERAL HOUSE DEBATE OPENING

Conservatives in Militant Mood Expected to Inject Unusual Piquancy Into Addresses--Two Ministers Under Fire.

OTTAWA, March 3.— (Canadian ress).—Debate on the address opens in the House of Commons to-day and the speeches of mover and the seconder over, the three leaders will enter the lists.

Generally regarded as more or less of a curtain raiser to the real work of Parliament, the debate on the address this year will be lent unusual piquancy. Encouraged by provincial victories in Ontario and by by-election victories in the federal field of the Maritimes, Conservatives are in a militant mood They are expected to bring down an amendment to the address. It may attack the Government on general policy as outlined in the speech from the Throne or it may attack certain members of the Government more particularly in regard to their relations with Home Bank. In either case, the carrying of the amendment would be tantamount to a vote of want of confidence. The precise terms of the Conservative amendment if one is submitted have however, it is intimated still to be formally determined. A party caucus to this end is probable.

Liberals, so they declare, will not be hesitant in meeting the attack. There were rumours of two possible resignations from the Government but the rumours so far have come to nothing. The two ministers in question, Hon. E. J. McMurray, Solicitor-General and Hon. James Murdock, Minister of Labour are evidently preparing to defend thier actions on the floor of Parliament, if need be. In Government circles, in fact, the view is put forward that the charges are not likely to have and serious consequences on the life of the administration. There will it is stated be a prompt reply to any accusations.

Indications of Government policy so far as further revealed in the debate will be eagerly followed. Intimations in the speech from the Throne of coming tarriff reductions and other concessions to agricultural interests are generally accepted as a veering on the part of the Government towards the Progressive point of view, and there is keen speculation as to what the Government has precisely in view.

Certain agricultural implements may go on the free list although to such a course there would be opposition. Rural credits are to come before a committee of the House and some definite proposals may be submitted.

In other directions the House is likely to hear much this session of ways and means of helping the farmer. Renewed efforts towards a closer Liberal-Progressive understandinig would not create much surprise.

DEAN OF CARLISLE

LONDON, March 3.—(Canadian Press Cable).—Rev. W. E. Moll, Newcastle-on-Tyne has been appointed Dean of Carlisle in succession to the late Very Rev. Hastings Rashdall.

HASTINGS AND THE DISTRICT

Death of Mr. Ernest Fitzgerald -- Skating Party in Village.

HASTINGS, March 3.—The death took place on Saturday evening of Loretta Lamey, wife of Ernest Fitz-Gerald, of Campbelford, at the home of the deceased parents on the Gravel Road.

Deceased has been ailing for some time but her death came as a sudden shock to her relatives and friends.

She leaves to mourn her loss her husband and one little girl; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Lamey; five brothers and two sisters, namely, Thomas and Joseph of the Cobourg Road, Ben of Detroit, James and Arthur at home; Teressa of Windsor and Ida on the Cobourg Road.

The funeral will leave the family residence of Mr. Jas. Lamey at 9 o'clock a.m. Tuesday, March 4, and will proceed to the Church of Our Lady Mount Carmel, where Requiem Mass will be held.

Interment to take place in the Roman Catholic Cemetery.

Skating Party.

A social evening and skating party was held by the Young Peoples Society of St. Andrews Presbyterian Church on Friday evening.

The meeting opened by singing and prayer, and the reading of the scripture lesson by Miss Mary Spooner, from Matthew, the fifth chapter, verse 1-12.

The topic was taken by Kathleen Clapper, "What Jesus said about Happiness. A hymn and reading by Pearl Abbott, also one by Dorothy Kerr, Mr. Thos. Chaplin then took charge of the business part of the programme. The business being concluded the party journeyed to the skating arena and after a couple of hours skating returned to the church where refreshments were served. The rest of the evening was spent in music, games, and a contest, the latter being won by Mary Spooner and Beryl Hill.

The secretary was instructed to write the secretary of the Young Peoples Society in Norwood inviting them to spend a socal evenng here in the near future.

Funeral To-Day.

Word was received in Hastings on Saturday of the death in Lakefield of Roy Tyler, a former resident of this district.

The remains are being taken to the home of his mother, Mrs. Stanley Cornrite, of Trent River. Besides his sorrowing wife, he leaves one child. The funeral service will be held on Monday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock under the Orange Order. Interment to take place in Centre Church Cemetery.

First Dip of Year.

Mr. R. Walsh, a local drover, was taking some cattle from the C.N.R. Station to his farm, when one of the animals, becoming frightened, jumped into the river above the locks. Men had to cut the ice to the end of the wharf, and by fastening a rope to the animal, it was drawn to shore by a team of horses, none the worse for its sudden dip in the cold water.

Council Meeting.

The regular monthly meeting of the Council will be held on Friday evening, 6th March, in the Council Chamber.

Two of the most important matters which will come up before the board will be the regulation of poolrooms and the differences which have been existing between the Council and the Fire Brigade.

Plant Closed Down.

Hastings looked the deserted village on Sunday evening owing to the electric light plant being closed down for repairs.

SCHOOL CLOSED WITH A SOCIAL

Centre of Activity at Keene Will Be Missed.

KEENE, March 3.—The Agricultural School which has been held here the past three months closed on Friday. The Town Hall where the school was held has been a place of activity which will be missed, by both pupils, and those living in the vicinity. On Thursday night, a very enjoyable dance was given by the pupils of the school and their friends.

Jack Dinsdale who has been visiting at the home of his grand-father Mr. Archibald McIntyre, has returned to his home at Peterboro.

Mrs. Petonie and little daughter, Margaret, who have been visiting friends in the village have returned to their home at Peterboro.

Ice harvesters are busy getting in their season's supply. It is reported to be very good this year.

Mr. and Mrs. Ames Boutillier of Kingston, are guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Richardson.

Messers Joseph Taylor and Stanley Braden are in Toronto this week on business.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Spriss of Roseneath were guests last week at the home of Mr. James Richardson.

Post Office Inspector, Mr. Strange of Ottawa was in the village on Wednesday.

Mrs. Downs has returned to her home at Yarker.

Miss Anna Short was taken to Nicholls Hospital, Peterboro, on Thursday.

Weathering a Storm which Every Business must Eventually Face —

In certain circles the story is not new.

The firm, a prosperous hardware partnership, had been developed from small beginnings by the two partners, Matthew Taylor and John Mann.

Taylor was a hard-headed practical man, wise with years of wholesale and selling experience.

Mann, on the other hand, knew little about hardware, but was an expert all 'round business man and accountant.

The two, each an expert in his own line, had combined almost perfectly to build up the business. "Indispensable" was the word they used in describing each other.

And then, just when they were on the threshold of greater things, Matthew Taylor fell ill and died.

Money was "tight." The future of the business hung in the balance. And, but for one thing, the prospect of a bad failure would have stared John Mann in the face.

Years before, John Mann had insisted that they provide for an emergency of this nature by a $25,000 North American Life Business Policy. The receipt of this substantial sum turned the tide.

John Mann was able to maintain the firm's credit standing; he engaged a capable executive to take over his deceased partner's duties; and what would otherwise have been a disastrous storm was weathered successfully.

Every man who approaches the "indispensable" class in your business, should be insured. Not until this has been done is your business safeguarded.

TOMORROW'S RECEPTION.

Arrangements have been made to extend a royal welcome to the members of Canada's Olympic hockey team, world champions, when they arrive in Toronto tomorrow evening, and it is fitting that this honour should be paid to the gallant band of athletes who have won so much honour for their native land.

In their capture of first place in the Olympic hockey honours at Chamouix, the Canadians not only proved themselves expert hockeyists, but they enhanced the reputation of this country by their sportsmanship and their conduct both on the ice and off.

These things are as desirable as victory, and it is gratifying to know that Canada's representatives met every test with flying colours among the world's sportsmen.

They were in every sense most excellent ambassadors from Canadian sportdom, and the publicity value of their spirit to France is not to be under-estimated.

The players deserve well of their fellow-Canadians, and tomorrow's reception in Toronto has been richly earned.

They have the assurance that the cheers of the Queen City admirers are echoed everywhere throughout this broad Dominion, and that Toronto is merely acting for Canada.

KEEPING UP THE ROADS.

The Ontario Government proposes to inaugurate a system by which the owners of heavy trucks and of cars which most frequently use the highways will have to contribute more to the upkeep of the roads than they do at present.

No details of the plan have yet been announced, but with the principle involved there can be no quarrel.

It has long been felt that truck owners have not been paying their fair share of the cost, especially the owners of trucks which are used regularly in freighting.

On the Kingston Highway there are several fleets of such trucks operating between Toronto and Eastern towns, maintaining a regular freight service.

The wear and tear upon the road surface by each of these big machines with their heavy cargoes is manifestly much greater than would be done by many times as many lighter passenger cars, and it is time that this condition was recognized.

How the Government proposes to deal with the question the Premier has not seen fit to disclose, but public opinion will back him in a policy that will apportion the cost of maintenance as far as possible in accordance with the extent to which various cars use the highways.

The present system completely fails to meet the conditions in this respect.

A FINE SPIRIT.

The action of the members of the Brantford Police Department in unanimously deciding to accept a cut in wages of $15 per month in order that the force shall be kept at its present strength, speaks well for the kindly spirit of the individual members and the esprit de corps of the whole Telephone City police force.

The alternatives offered were a cut of 50c per day per man, or the discharge of three members of the force, and in order to save the positions of the three junior members the rest of the force have voluntarily agreed to work for $180 a year less than the salaries they have been receiving.

It would have been easy for the policemen who were sure of their positions to have taken no action in the matter and thus assured themselves of their full salaries at the expense of the three mmbers in line for dismissal.

In these days when the cost of living still soars high above pre-war prices a decrease in income of nearly $200 a year is not to be accepted as a matter of small consequence.

Yet to the credit of the Brantford police let it be said that every man consented to make the sacrifice for the sake of his comrades whose positions were in peril.

It was a fine spirit these men showed, and the incident shows that Brantford has a police department of which the citizens may be proud.

In fact, in view of the attitude shown by the police, the average citizen would rather pay the few cents taxes saved by the transaction than to have the sacrifice fall so heavily upon a handful of men.

"A POUND OF FLESH."

If a private firm, taking advantage of a court decision that held it was not legally compelled to pay, although the moral obligation was clear to everybody, refused to pay wages to an employee whose work had been performed satisfactorily, the average man would quickly condemn the firm as a collection of dead-beats and do as little business with them as he could help.

The City Council in its persistent refusal to pay Chief Newhall his wages for the last two months of last year leaves itself open to a similar condemnation.

Legally the Council is on sound ground; ethically its position cannot be defended.

The moral obligation to pay a civic servant for work done on behalf of the city when there is no quarrel as to the amount of his salary and no criticism of the work itself is clear and not to be denied.

True, Chief Newhall took action against the city and lost.

What of that?

The real point at issue was not whether he should be paid, but whether the Council had the power to reduce the estimates of the Police Commission.

Every citizen understood that, and few there were, or are, who wanted or who want to see the Chief of Police or any other civic official deprived of his admittedly earned salary simply because two civic bodies quarrel over the question of their respective powers.

There is some reference to the dignity of the Council being saved by this refusal to settle a moral obligation.

Had the city fathers taken the first opportunity after the court decision had been rendered to pay in full the salaries of every member of the department, including the Chief, and had made it clear that the fight had not been against them but rather to establish a principle in which the Council believed and which they felt that the majority of citizens endorsed, the dignity of the Council would have been perfectly safe.

Civic bodies are looked to to assume a somewhat loftier plane than satisfies a Shylock who sticks to his bond and wants his pound of flesh.

KNOWING CANADA.

Hamilton civic authorities put up a strong case for one of the factories there that has been forced to shut down because it cannot stand the competition of foreign countries with depleted currencies.

The oil producers of Western Ontario are protesting that their whole industry is endangered by reason of a cut in the bounty on crude oil just at a time when production costs are high and the selling price fickle.

Without arguing the pros and cons of these cases, the question suggests itself—does the Government know as much as it should about the business of the country, or does it form its opinions largely at Ottawa?

It is a long way from the farm or from the factory to Ottawa—not long in miles, but long in that close contact that gives a Government the benefit of positive first-hand information on the condition of manufacturing, agriculture or business in general.

A leading London manufacturer was asked if any Government official ever came to see how the state of trade was, or how existing arrangements were working; he replied that the only way in which a case could be presented to the Government was by sending a deputation to Ottawa. That means that certain conditions have been at work for some time before the Government hears of them, and it would not hear of them at all were the businesses affected not to go to tell the Government about it.

The same thing obtains in agriculture to a large extent. True, there are both Provincial and Federal Departments of Agriculture, but they do not come as close to the people actually engaged in agriculture as they should.

At various times Ministers of the Government have made trips through Canada, seeking and securing first-hand information about the business they were elected to administer. Notable among these trips was that of Hon. W. S. Fielding and the late Hon. William Paterson shortly after the return of the Laurier Government in 1896. That was a good move, and one that should be repeated, not once or twice, but many times. The answer will be that a Cabinet Minister's time is largely, if not altogether, taken up at Ottawa. There are, no doubt, very heavy demands on his time, but the fact remains that he is thereby losing a great opportunity of personal acquaintance with the problems of the people whose prosperity or failure has been entrusted to his administration. An election is about the only thing that drives Cabinet Ministers from Ottawa.

The country as a whole would appreciate an allotment of time of the Ministers that would permit them to get out now and then, meet the people and understand their problems.—London Advertiser.

GREATER PRODUCTION.

When times are hard, it is the most natural thing in the world to conclude that the best method to woo back prosperity and plenty is by increasing production. When people are in need of the necessaries of life and out of employment, what more plausible slogan, on the face of it, than the cry "Greater Production?" This advice has been so loudly and persistently proclaimed and seems so reasonable that people may be forgiven for still believing that if everybody got down to work for as many hours a day as possible, the economic worries of society would soon disappear. Yet some of the best, if not the most popular, observers of the workings of our present industrial system tell us that there is very little wrong with the machinery of production. They tell us that the fields, factories, workshops and mines of the world can produce all the necessaries and most of the luxuries that mankind desires—and that with a surprisingly small expenditure of human energy. There is one feature of modern commerce which will make this contention appear reasonable to the average man. This is that the great difficulty of modern business is not to procure products, but to sell them. One has only to scan the advertising pages of the average magazine or newspaper to find that the skill of the printer, the cleverness of the artist, and all the persuasive ingenuity of some of the most masterly users (or mis-users) of words are exhausted in an effort to induce people to buy. Every billboard shrieks its invitation to buy. Advertising has become a business, a profession, a science. It has its own masters, and is producing a literature of its own. Guided by the most recent developments in the field of psychology, and calling to its aid the very latest discoveries in all the sciences, it consecrates itself to its work as the high priest of the business of selling. Then there are the further inducement offered the consumer: Do you want an automobile, a piano, a suite of furniture, a gramaphone, a threshing-machine, a kitchen range, a house to live in, or a carpet-sweeper? If you want any of these or a thousand and one other things, you can get them for a small initial payment and very easy monthly payments? What does this mean? If it means anything at all, does it not mean that the difficulty of the producer of today is to find a market? Does it not mean that the factories are able to supply not only the actual, existing, effective demand, but that they are grasping to supply the potential demand of the next five years right now? Does it not mean that if the effective demand existed, the factories could produce twice or three times the amount of goods they are producing now? It means all of these things, and it should prove that there is little the matter in the field of production today. Our trouble is that we can not consume what we can easily produce. That is, to some extent, due to wasteful and expensive methods of distribution, but chiefly—indeed, almost entirely—to our out-of-date, inequitable, unjust, decrepit, financial system. Modern industry might be represented by a cartoon showing an up-to-date, fully equipped express train, full steam up and whistle shrieking, and in front and tarding it, an unconcerned nonogenarian ox-cart jogging along at four miles an hour. The train would represent our production equipment, and the ox-cart our financial system.—Saskatoon Progressive.

LITTLE CONFIDENCE IN AGRICULTURAL SCHOOLS

Western Member Would Close Them Up—Few Return to Farm.

WINNIPEG, Man., Mar. 3—(Canadian Press)—Students coming home from the Agricultural College upset everything on the farm, and institution should be closed so that rural schools could again resume operations, declared F. Y. Newton, conservative, member for the constituency of Roblin, during the debate on agricultural estimates in Provincial Legislature Friday night. Another member suggested that College be closd for three years while still another wanted immediate amalgamation of the College and Manitoba University, declaring that not ten per cent of city students who attended former took up rural life.

Wm. Ivens, Labour member for Winnipeg, was against closing of the institution, saying: "Those who advocate such action belong to time of Nero." Labor, he asserted, champion ed better education for farmer and education for every child.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, March 3 (Canadian Press). — The domestic trade in cash grain was dull on Saturday. The flour market was without change. A moderate business was passing in millfeed, and there was a fair trade in rolled oats. The egg market continues weak at the recent decline in prices. Total receipts from May 1 to date have been 19,631 cases in excess of the same period a year ago. Trade in potatoes is fair. There was no new development in the baled hay market. The tone of the butter market is easy. Total receipts from 1st May to date have been 155,026 packages below the corresponding period of 1922-23. The cheese market continues extremely dull, with no quotations. Total receipts from 1st May to date have been 135,403 boxes more than in the same period of the previous year.

STERLING RATES.

MONTREAL, March 3 (Canadian Press). — Sterling exchange rates were quoted here on Saturday:

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, March 3 (Canadian Press). — Wheat advanced in price on Saturday, helped by the announcement that the import duty would soon be raised and by estimates that farm reserve stocks are the smallest since 1918.

Closing quotations were strong, 3-4c to 1 1-4c net higher, May $1.11 1-8 to 1.11 1-4 and July $1.11 1-8.

Corn made 1-2c to 3-4c to 7-8c gain and oats 3-8c to 1-2c.

In provisions the outcome was 2c to 7c decline.

Buyers had the advantage from the outset in the wheat market, and the finish was at about the day's top figures. Demand, however, lacked volume until the stimulus from the tariff news was given added force through attention to the prospective scarcity of domestic supplies.

According to figures from a leading authority, the United States has only 94,000,000 bushels of wheat left for export and carryover, an amount 7,000,000 bushels less than was actually on hand on 1st July last year.

It was estimated that the Dakotas and Minnesota, taken together, have only about sufficient wheat for seed requirements. The upward tendency of the market was further emphasised by reports that the 1924 yield of winter wheat would be 545,000,000 bushels as against 572,000,000 bushels in 1923.

FARMER HANGED HIMSELF BECAUSE OF POOR HEALTH

CHATHAM, Ont., March 1—(Canadian Press). — Henry Bourdeau, well nown Raleigh Township farmer committed suicide this morning by hanging himself in his barn. Continued poor health is thought to have been the reason for his action. He was about 45 years of age, and is survived by his wife, five children, his mother, one brother and three sisters. Dr. T. L. McRitchie, coroner will leave this city early this afternoon for the Bourldeau Farm, near Tilbury to conduct an investigation.

SAYS UNITED STATES IS GREAT COMPETITOR

MONTREAL, March 3. (Canadian Press). — Emphasising that the United States was Canada's great competitor and that "we cannot keep our taxes up and they put theirs down, because if we do that dollar bill is going there for investment," Walter G. Mitchell, K.C., M.P., advocated lower taxation in Canada at the fourth annual banquet of the Rubber Association of Canada, held here last night.

Citizenship responsibilities were dealt with by the Rev. Canon Cody of Toronto, who also urged fairplay for those elected to the Government of the country

C. N. Candee, of Toronto, the retiring president of the Rubber Association of Canada, said the sales tax was no law, and that it was the duty of business men to support it.

BELIEVES WIFE

Congressman if he knew "any nice gentlemen" to whom she might introduce her "niece."

The deposition related further Harris's visits to Elaine, chaperoned by the elderly Mrs. Harris, in Mineral Wells, a Texas watering place, of their rapid courtship and engagement, and of the girl's request that she (Mrs. Harris) "borrow $6,000 from him because I need a trousseau." Mrs. Harris said Elaine had talked about her sister Carrie, and confessed that Carrie was born out of wedlock.

Judge Oeland, who described himself as a lawyer and a friend of Beverly D. Harris almost from the time the young Beverly was a messenger boy in Dallas, Texas, was heard. He told of two conferences with attorneys for Mrs. Harris, the first in August, 1919, and the second in May, 1921.

Agreed to Ask Divorce.

As a result of the first conference, in which the wife was represented by Attorney Harry Uterhart, a separation agreement was entered into by which Harris agreed to pay to his wife $1,000 a month.

By the terms of the second contract, negotiated by Attorneys Stanchfield and Levy for Mrs. Harris and dated May 7, 1921, the wife agreed to go to Reno at once and institute suit for divorce on the payment of $5,000 for disbursements, the $1,000 alimony to be continued until her remarriage.

Both these contracts were introduced in evidence and a letter from Judge Oeland to Harris, then in Texas, reviewing the terms of the contract, contributed the following to the record:

"I am now convinced the lady intends to go to Reno to get a divorce with the purpose of remarriage."

This second contract, it was brought out, came about after a visit of Harris to Memphis, where he involuntarily came across information as to his wife's past and her relations with an Eli Rayner, described as a professional gambler.

Because of Mrs. Harris's bitter denials of these allegations and her protest that even the rumor of them would spoil her chances of remarriage, the second contract provided a clause of secrecy by agreement, Judge Oeland said.

Wanted To Be Let Alone.

At one time the decorous and snowy-haired witness made it known that he "convinced Mrs. Harris's lawyers Stanchfield and Levie that Beverly D. Harris didn't really have anything," for "they thought he was wealthy. She had said so."

At another time he said on behalf of the fifty-three-year-old banker, sitting so erect and so attentive there in the front row of his Tennessee witnesses:

"His only desire was to be let alone, to be allowed to make a living for himself and this woman."

And again, speaking of the time Mrs. Harris was living at the Hotel Plaza after the second contract:

"—but every day he was receiving threatening letters from her."

In his cross-examination George Gordon Battle, trial counsel for Mrs. Harris, closely went into the terms of the second contract as it applied to the continuation of alimony, with a view, it appeared, of showing that Harris failed to live up to this agreement. Mrs. Harris some months ago won an action against her husband for failure to pay this alimony.

Beverly D. Harris resigned as Vice-President of the National City Bank because the publicity preceding his annulment suit was "burdensome and hurtful" to his employers.

He traced the whole history of his business and life—told how he had worked as a runner in the American National Bank of Dallas when he was fifteen—of his rise through hard work—of his first marriage in 1899 and the death of his wife.

How He Met Miss Lee.

At the Rice Hotel in Houston, in 1915, when his friend Representative McLemore said one day, "Harris, the most charming girl I ever saw, a Miss Elaine Lee, of the blue-blooded Tennessee Lees, is stopping at this hotel and I want you to meet her," the banker had replied:

"I'm hard at work and I wouldn't meet the King of England."

Harris smiled as he recalled this conversation.

But his friend prevailed, and a few evenings later Harris was presented to the bewitching Miss Lee "and her aunt, Mrs. Hosea Harris," in the lounge of the hotel.

And her the banker said:

"I thought she was charming, especially her voice. She had a pretty voice."

His counsel, Caruthers Ewing asked, and he answered:

"She told you she didn't associate with the Lees of Memphis?"

"Yes, she said she didn't like the others, that her mother had become estranged from them, that her father's brother owned the Lee steamship line."

Sue or Not Sue?

Harris says his wife was Sue Ella, o'r Suella Lee, daughter of Saluda Ann Harris Lee, born in Clarkesville, Tenn., just before the death of Saluda Ann's husband, Sam Lee.

Defendant says she is not Sue Ella; that Sue Ella was eight or nine years older; that she herself was Elaine, daughter of Saluda Ann and Eli Rayner.

Harris told a complete and unshaken story of his meeting with the Southern girl and her "aunt," Mrs. Hosea Harris, in the Rice Hotel at Houston, Texas; of his absorption in his work, of his hasty courtship and marriage with the girl he believed to be a member of the distinguished Lee family of Memphis; of his adoration of her; their later marital infeclicities; of their separation; at last of his visit to Memphis to receive, inadvertently, information of the past of one Sue Ella Lee identified as his wife—and her life with "the gambler," Eli Rayner, in an ill-reputed Memphis hotel.

Always Respectful.

The banker preserved a straightforward dignity, referred always to his wife with respect, and whenever it became necessary to identify her in his testimony called her "this lady."

George Battle, through the first deposition offered, disclosed that it was the intent of the defense to prove that there was, indeed, a Sue Ella Lee, daughter of Saluda Ann Harris Lee, of Clarkesville, Tenn. This same Sue Ella Lee, they sought to show, was a half sister of Eleanor Elaine Lee, born out of wedlock, about 1895, to Saluda Ann, eight or nine years after the death of her husband.

Carrie "a Cousin."

As to the sister, Carrie, that the plaintiff alleged to be the illegitimate child born about 1895 to Saluda Ann, the defendant represented Carrie as a "cousin of Elaine," and, in reality, the nameless daughter of Saluda Ann's unmarried sister, Mollie Harris.

The deposition of this sister, Carrie, now Mrs. E. Davidson, giving her age as thirty-three, and her address as Cedar Point, Tenn., explains that she was brought up in the house of Saluda Ann Lee, and had always thought of Saluda Ann as her own mother, until years later she learned she was the daughter of Morrie Harris.

Elaine, she said, was a good deal younger than herself, and had been taken away to live in Mississippi when she was "just a few months old." She said:

"There was lots of mystery about Elaine. People seemed to think she was Eli Rayner's daughter."

Had Facts From Husband.

Carrie said both that she was the "sister" and the "cousin" of Elaine. She even said that the eldest sister, Rosha (the Mrs. Cordor, of Indianola, Miss., with whom Harris had correspondence), and the sister Sue Ella visited her once in 1911.

She gave as her reason for contradicting her testimony that her husband knew nothing of the family skeletons and that she did not want him to find out.

The deposition of Mrs. Alice Grant Harris Pace, of Sunflower County, Miss., was introduced by the defense. Mrs. Pace said that her first husband, Harris, was a brother of Saluda Ann Harris Lee, mother of both Sue Ella and Eleanor Elaine, whichever may be the present Mrs. Beverly D. Harris.

Mrs Pace testified:

"About 1896 Saluda Ann died. My husband made arrangements for the burial and brought back to my house a ten-month's-old baby, christened Eleanor Elaine, Saluda Ann's child. She stayed with me for ten or eleven years and then I turned her over to her sister, Rosha, now Mrs. J. W. Cordor.

Supported By Rayner.

"Mr. Eli Rayner of Memphis supported Elaine while she was with me. He insisted that she have a governess and the best of care. Yes, sometime she and her sisters, Rosha and Samuella "(or Sue Ella)," visited Memphis and they told me they stayed in Mr. Rayner's apartment."

Testimony in support of Mrs. Harris's claims was introduced in court yesterday by her counsel.

The defense introduced a deposition from James M. Lee, 75 years old, who lives near Dover, Tenn., on the John Lee homestead. Mr. Lee said James Lee, founder of the Lee line of steamboats, was his own blood uncle, as also was Samuel Lee, by whose wife, after his death, the present Mrs. Harris was born.

Eli Raynor, the Memphis man with whom Mrs Harris was said to have lived for a number of years, calling him uncle, denied in a deposition that his relations with Eleanor Elaine Lee had been improper.

MACDONALD

able to attain any agreement on such matters unless we are first able by frank and courageous discussion to achieve some unanimity in regard to the essential purposes to which these problems are merely subsidiary.

Common Desires.

"For when I consider our relatoins in their wider aspects I do not feel that our essential objects are so divergent. The French people desire security; the British people cherish that identical ideal. But, whereas France conceives security as security against Germany alone, the British Empire attributes to the word a far wider significance. What we desire is security against war.

"Similarly, the French people desire reparations. They conceive of it mainly in its concrete form of payments by Germany from physical damage occasioned upon French territory. The British people also ardently desire to repair the devastation of war, but for them this devastation is to be interpreted in wider terms—in ruined markets, in vanishing purchasing power, in the decline of shipping and foreign trade, in fallen and fluctuating currencies, in unemployment.

"Before we can discuss this question, however, we must clearly await the reports of the two expert committees, and I do so with the hope that they will draw your country and mine together. I see no reason why this problem, if approached from its wider aspect and if considered in conjunction with the Cognate problem of Inter-Allied debts, should not on an early day be solved.

Would Influence Europe.

"Here again, if France and England can but agree, the co-operation of the other European countries will be assured and it will be possible for us to approach the United States, not as debtors disputing one with the other, but as a united Europe, anxious by mutual sacrifice and arrangement to cure the ills from which our people are now suffering.

"It is on such a basis that I should wish to discuss with you our outstanding problems.

"I repeat, my dear Premier, that the condition of Europe can only, I fell convinced, be remedied by joint action between France and Englad, undertake with full sympathy for their respective requirements and with wise regard for the interests of the world at large. For such co-operation I am fully prepared."

EIGHTEEN DEAD SCORES INJURED TOWN A WRECK

Windows Shattered Ten Miles Distant From Nixon, New Jersey — High Explosives Blew Factory Apart--No Trace of Eighteen Men Who Were Repairing the Roof

Destruction Complete.

BRUNSWICK, N. J., March 3. — (Canadian Press). — The number of known dead as the result of Saturday's disastrous T.N.T. explosion and celluloid fire at the little town of Nixon, today was placed at eighteen. Only one additional body, the torso of a woman, was found Sunday. Rescuers who worked in the smoking ruins throughout the day said eight persons are missing, six are unaccounted for and six are being treated for injuries sustained in the disaster.

Eighteen men were doing repair work on the roof of the building when the explosion occurred and in so far as can be learned none of them has been seen since.

Seventy-five persons are understood to have been working in the structure at the time of the catastrophe.

The building in which the explosion occurred was a brick structure about 800 feet long and 200 feet wide. The building was literally ripped apart, debris was thrown for hundreds of yards.

A great sheet of flame shot from the biulding, burning debris dropping down on nearby wooden structures which had been partially destroyed by the blast.

That in which cellulous products were made was quickly a mass of flames and fire began to take hold in other buildings

Whole Country to Rescue.

Meantime the whole countryside turned out in every sort of vehicle to assist in the rescue work. The roads became a great confusion of automobiles, ambulances, fire waggons, and pedestrians, all milling around in the mud and water.

Men and women employees who were fortunate enough to escape death staggered out from the blinding, billowing smoke which hid the burning structures. Many of them were wounded, several with most of their clothes burned or torn off, numbers of them cut and burned, they were all of them black from head to foot.

They were helped to hospitals or homes by the townsfolk, who also were active with first-aid until the physicians arrived from Camp Raritan and neighbouring cities.

Still Fit of Fire.

The explosion was felt throughout the countryside and was heard over a wide area. Windows were shattered in towns ten miles distant.

Flying embers from the fire ignited clumps of trees and farm buildings.

In the settlement itself the explosion and fires wrecked every structure.

The hollow in which the nitrate plant, built for war work, lies was nothing more than a pit of fire at four o'clock.

An Enquiry To-day.

An inquiry into the cause of Saturday's explosion and fire here which killed eighteen persons and destroyed forty buildings, begins today, in charge of Assistant prosecutor John Toolan of Middlesex County.

Fifteen persons are still in hospital and two are missing. Inquiry was called to determine cause of disaster and fix responsibility.

More than twenty thousand sightseers visited devasted premises yesterday. Heat of debris and possibilitiy of further explosions forbade extended work until ruins cool down which may take number of days, no thorough search for other victims will be made.

Don't Leave Film

On your pretty teeth

See how this new way combats it

Your teeth are coated with a viscous film. You can feel it now. Even when you brush teeth, much of it clings and stays.

That is your teeth's great enemy. That is what mars their beauty, that is what destroys them.

Let this free test show you how millions now combat it.

That cloudy coat

Film is that viscous coat you feel. It clings and stays, because old-way brushing cannot effectively combat it.

Soon it becomes discolored, then forms dingy coats. Teeth by the millions thus become unsightly.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

No one can hope to escape such troubles without fighting film.

Now there are ways to do that, due to modern research. One way disintegrates the film at all stages of formation. One removes it without harmful scouring.

Dental authorities have proved these methods effective. A new-type tooth paste has been created so all might apply them daily. The name is Pepsodent.

Leading dentists the world over now advise this method. Careful people of some 50 nations use it every day.

A test will show

Pepsodent results are very quick and convincing. It does more than fight film. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is there to neutralise mouth acids. It multiplies the ptyalin in saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits on teeth.

These combined results bring quickly a new conception of clean teeth.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth become whiter as the film-coats disappear.

What you see and feel will soon convince you that this method is essential. Cut out coupon now.

Protect the Enamel

Pepsodent disintegrates the film, then removes it with an agent far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

Baby's Bedding

LITTLE woolly blankets—how soft and fluffy they must be kept for the Baby.

And linen, and fine raiment—they must not chafe or irritate his tender skin.

Baby's bedding must be washed as carefully as you would bathe his tender little self. No strong soap must be allowed to shrink or coarsen his dainty blankets, or make them stiff. There must be no harsh rubbing of his tiny garments and linen until they are fuzzed up, and rough.

Wash Baby's bedding in Lux. The delicate flakes dissolve instantly into a rich, generous suds that can be squeezed through and through each fabric until it is clean, and as sweet and fresh as when you first bought it. Don't let bedding get harsh and scratchy. Keep it soft and fluffy with Lux.

PETERBORO DISTRICT FARMERS RAISE GOOD TYPE OF BACON HOGS

Government Grading Inspector Here Comments on Splendid Type of Hog Produced and Tells of Recent Receipts.

It's beginning to be quite a habit for some farmers to raise all select bacon hogs, for during the past week several farmers delivered hogs to the plant here, all of which graded selects. Mr. J. A. Crowe, of Warsaw, had twelve, Royal Howden of Omemee six, E. G. Mullen, Smith Township, eight, D. Lynch seven, J. A. Shaughnessy eight, J. Garvey six, J. Thorn five, T. Bell four. This is a splendid record for these farmers, particularly from the fact that they were all from the one litter. These men are producing the class of hogs that the marekt requires, and are thus obtaining the ten per cent. premium that the packers are now paying for this class of hog.

Mr. D. A. McKinnon, the Government grader at the Peterboro plant, reports that these hogs showed good breeding back of them, were well fed and marketed at the proper weight, while are the main essentials in the growing of select bacon hogs. The weight for select bacon hogs is 170 to 220 at the packing plants or stock yards, and 180 to 230 at country points.

Mr. McKinnon further reports that a number of farmers are bringing in hogs that are too thin to get into the select class, and they seem to be of the opinion that the market wants or calls for a long thin hog. This is a decidedly wrong idea. Thinness in a hog does not put it into the select bacon class. That condition known as market finish, or ripeness for the block, is as imperative in a lean hog as in the lard type. The sucessful farmer will know how to bring his hogs along from birth without a break in their development, but he will also know exactly when to stop in order that he may sell the fruits of his six or seven months' labor in the bloom of condition and so win the 10 per cent. premium.

Some of the chief causes why hogs do not grade selects are as follows:

1. Poor breeding or crossed with the non-bacon breeds, such as the Berkshires, Chester Whites, Poland Chinas, Duroc Jerseys, Hampshires, and Large Black. The Yorkshire and Tamworth in the order mentioned are the only two recognized bacon breeds in Canada, with a small percentage from the Berkshire.

2. Heavy feeding after weaning; Pigs pushed on heavy fattening feeds such as barley, buckwheat and corn, too soon after weaning.

3. Poor feeding: Pigs starved in early life or held until old, coarse and rough, before they are up to market weight.

4. Underfinish: Pigs not finished to the desired 1¼ inches of fat down the back. Generally through lack of feed or a mistaken idea of what the finished bacon hog really is.

5. Over or underweight: Over 200 at the market. Fed too long, possibly waiting for a rising market, or marketing before hogs reach 170 lbs. at plants.

At a recent meeting of the Joint Swine Committee held at Ottawa on Feb. 20th, the following resolution was passed for recommendation to the Minister of Agriculture.

Moved by Mr. J. D. Brien, seconded by Mr. S. E. Todd, that the following changes in weights be recommended to the Minister of Agriculture, to be made effective by Order-in-Council by April 1st, 1924.

"That select hogs be 170 to 200 w.o.c. or 180 to 230 lbs. for fed and watered hogs at country points.

"That thick smooth be 160 to 210 lbs. w.o.c. at stock yards and packing plants and 170 to 220 at country points and for fed and watered hogs at stock yards.

"That heavies are hogs over the maximum weights of selects and thick smooths and up to 260 lbs. w.o.c. or 270 lbs. at country points and for fed and watered hogs at stock yards.

"That shop hogs be 120 to 160 w.o.m. and 130 to 170 lbs. fed and watered and at country points.

"That extra heavies are hogs weighing over 260 lbs. w.o.c. or 270 and over at country points and for fed and watered.

"That feeders are all unfinished hogs of any weight."

BOY'S BAD COLD TURNED TO BRONCHITIS

The frequency with which bronchitis develops into pneumonia is appreciated by very few mothers. The danger of pneumonia is, probably, well understood too, but how many mothers take into consideration that a neglected attack of bronchitis frequently leads to this dangerous disease.

We would advise all mothers to give their children Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup the first moment they show any symptoms of a cold or cough as by doing this they save them from an attack of bronchitis or pneumonia.

Mrs. Lawrence Quick, Sandwich, Ont. writes:—"My little boy, six years old, had a bad cold which turned to bronchitis. I tried every thing I thought would be best for it but did not see him getting any better. I was told to try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and after giving him two bottles he got wonderful relief. I cannot praise it enough.'

REFERENDUM DISCUSSED BY TREASURE SEEKERS

On Sunday, March 2nd, the Treasure-Seekers A.B.C. of St. James' Sunday School, after adopting a sympathetic memorial to Miss Spence referring to the loss of her brother, the Rev. Hamilton Spence, the class being largely represented, listened to a short and pointed address by one of its members referring to the possible referendum on the O.T.A., in which several important points were brought out.

1st—That temperance legislation rests with the people themselves as this is a democratic country.

2nd—That a referendum rests with the people themselves as the Government has said that when they were satisfied that public opinion was strong enough to warrant a referendum they would give one.

3rd—That it was the duty of every temperance and Christian organization to show absolutely where they stand upon the question of the referendum by pouring resolutions, etc., upon the Government if we lose by default in the first round we get what we deserve.

4th—That in the case of a referendum that we make the answer so decisive that no Government will dare to make a political football of such an issue, This Rowell, Hearst and Drury did and all were defeated.

A HEALHY CONDITION.

Local telephone calls—that is, other than Long Distance—increased in 1923, according to the Bell Company's Report, by 6.36 per cent over 1922. For the past year they averaged 3,435,811 per day. Long Distance calls increased 11.4 per cent., there being an average of 38,389 daily. Whatever, the exact significance of these big figures may be, one thing occurs to us—the vast volume of personal, voice-to-voice intercourse going on amongst us every day must go a long way to straighten out endless differences and promote general enlightenment and better human relationships. Ignorance and misunderstanding can not long survive this impulse to "talk it over."

GERMANS FIGHT TO GET IRON CROSSES.

Government Negligent About Post War Honors Declare Those Waging Move.

BERLIN, Mar. 3.—Seventy thousand Prussian-front soldiers, after more than four years, are still fighting to get iron crosses awarded to them toward the end of the war. They have a legal claim to them since they have been recommended for decoration by their army leaders.

When, in February, 1922, the Reichstag discussed the matter in a plenary session, the Minister of Defence declared in a speech that he considered it "a point of honor" with him to help every front fighter to get his decoration "if he deserved it." The Prussian Diet carried a resolution to the same effect, and the Prussian Premier gave his consent. But since then nothing has been heard. In fact, none of the soldiers ever got his iron cross.

Berlin nationalist papers are launching a violent attack against the Prussian Premier, Dr. Braun, whom they charge with having denounced post-war decorations as a "militarist farce." Applicants having participated in more than eighty actions or skirmishes in the course of which they were wounded are said to have been designated by him as "unauthorized claimants." It is further asserted that about 50,000 iron crosses are still available for distribution and that, if they should not be distributed, applicants would content themselves with being granted a document confirming their legal claim to them.

SKIPS' BONSPIEL WON BY SEDGWICK

Both Rinks Battled for Fourteen Ends in a Closely Contested Game

In a fourteen end game played on Saturday night for the championship of the Vice Skips' bonspiel, Larmer's team, which was skipped by P. King, lost out to Sedgwick's quartette by two shots after a very interesting and closely contested game of clever curling. Both rinks played a good game and showed good sportsmanship throughout. Three postponed games were also played, with A. W. Archibald and W. R. Widdiss playing the closest game of the three. Carl Browne was the high man of the night with a score of 15, while W. R. Widdess and R. M. Hamilton were tied for second place with a total of 12 each.

"REVILED NOT AGAIN"

(From an editorial in the "Hamilton Hearld.")

Powerful arguments in favour of Church Union were presented at the meeting in St. Paul's Church last evening by three speakers representing the Presbyterian, Methodist and Congregational Churches. But to many of those present the most impressive featur of the meeting was not so much anything that was said as what was left unsaid. Not a syllable was spoken that was out of harmony with the spirit of Christian fellowship and brotherly kindness—nothing which betrayed any rancor against the leaders of the Anti-Union movement in the Presbyterian Church. There was not even any criticism of that movement or its leaders. The speakers were content to put before their hearers the case for Union.

This forbearance was in marked contrast with the spirit manifested at the Anti-Union meeting held in the same church some months ago. On that occasion much of the speaking (doctors of divinity being the speakers), was made up of vituperation of the Unionist leaders Presbyerian members of the Union Committee—some of them ministers revered for many years throughout Canada as men as of unblemished character as well as distinguished for high scholarship and eloquence—were accused of deceit, willful falsehood and even found among these prominent Unionist so charged was Rev. Dr. Pidgeon, ore of the speakers at last night's meeting. He has been a shining mark for the shafts of Anti-Unionist speakers and writers. But last night he "reviled not again," and thus manifested the spirit of the Master.

Whatever may be thought of the reasoning of the Presbyterian Anti-Unionists in the flood of correspondence which fills so much newspaper space these days it is a noticeable fact that in the qualities of forbearance and restraint, of tolerance and good temper and Christian charity, the Unionist disputants are conspicuously superior.

FASTEST JUNIOR GAME OF SEASON

Petes Are in the Best of Condition and Will Be Fighting All the Way To-night.

The local Junior puck-chasers will be seen in action to-night with the noted Kingston aggregation, who are coming here full of confidence. The Petes have had a long rest and will be seen to-night at their best. They are confident of a wip over the boys who put Belleville out of the running handily, and will be out there scoring all the goals they can as they will need a lead to carry with them to Trenton on Wednesday, where Kingston's home game will be played. Although the Peterboro fans are proud of their centre man, Harold McDougal, the Kingston team also boast of a man who plays the same position as McDougal, and who is also of the same size and calibre. The game is sure to be a corker, and a large crowd of fans are expected to be on hand to give the two teams the once over.

PLEADED GUILTY AND WERE FINED

Queen's Students Appeared in Police Court at Kingston Today.

KINGSTON, March 3 (Canadian Press). — Edward Dolan, John McKelvey, Eric Thomas, and R. Hunter, four Queen's students, pleaded guilty in the Police Court here this morning to charges of assault upon F. B. Pense, a Kingston newspaperman, and were fined $25.00 and costs.

They were ordered to pay damages which were sustained by Pense.

They were defended by Francis King, K.C., and T. J. Rigney, K.C., prosecuted.

Given permission by Magistrate Farrell, Mr. King declared that the students admitted a technical plea of taking the law into their own hands. Had they had the benefit of legal advice, they would not have taken such action.

Counsel stressed the difference between intent in the law and intent in the minds of the young men.

In conclusion, he said he felt that suspended sentence would serve the interest of justice, but that if it were not considered enough, then the fine should be made as light as possible. It was simply a college prank, he declared.

Mr. Rigney said he had no intention of minimising the seriousness of the offence, and the students should have it brought home to them that they were under the law.

"It is a begging question," continued the Crown Attorney, "to say that they thought they were doing service to their Alma Mater. If such is the feeling among students to-day in the universities, then that feeling must be stopped."

Addressing the students, Magistrate Farrell said that things are done in colleges by tradition, and go on for years and years. Things which, but for traditions, might be brought into a Court of Law, at any time. It was different to step out from the University precincts, seize a citizen, and carry him away to try him. Soldiers were not above civil law, he said; no more were students.

PRESS COMMENT ON FRANK TALK

German Public Opinion Welcomes Speech of Premier MacDonald.

BERLIN, March 3 (British United Press). — German public opinion welcomed Premier MacDonald's frank talk, believing it will serve to clarify the atmosphere.

The sole press comment thus far is the Post's observation:

'Poincare's answer, externally, is a ready acquiescence to MacDonald's thoughts and proposals. In reality, it is a highly controvertible defence of Poincare against MacDonald's frank grounds for the deep mistrust which is felt by Britain's population against the French policy.

"Even in this serious discussion Poincare insists that his gigantic armaments and his deliveries of arms to the small middle European confederates are only directed against the spirit of revenge of a disarmed Germany."

MUSKRAT MOST VALUABLE FUR

Nearly Four Million Pelts In Canada Exceed Five Million Dollars — Fur Production In Canada Higher Last Year.

OTTAWA, March 3. Canadian Press. — The total value of the raw fur production of Canada for the season of 1922-23, was $16,761,567, according to a report prepared by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. This amount represents the value of the 4,964,000 pelts of fur-bearing animals taken in Canada during the season. Pelts of ranch-bred animals constituted aproximately 3½ per cent. of the total value. Compared with the previous season an increase of 597,000 is shown in the number of pelts, and a decrease of $667,300 in the total value. As in the previous season, muskrat is first on the list in order of value.

The total number of muskrat pelts shown for the whole of Canada for the season 1922-23 is 3,846,000 valued at $5,078,000. While fox furs are valued at $3,015,000; beaver, $2,462,000; mink, $1,371,000; marten $1,046,000; and silver fox $773,000.

The average prices for the principal kinds of pelts for the season of 1922-23 were generally lower than for the previous season, the exception being marten, red fox and ermine, prices for which were higher.

Of the provinces, Ontario ranks first in value of raw fur production with a total of $3,617,000, followed by Quebec with $3,000,000, Saskatchewan with $2,243,000, and the North-west territories with $2,171,000. Alberta, Manitoba and British Columbia had each a production valued at over a milion dollars and the Yukon territory had a production valued at $199,000. The combined values for Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia, and New Brunswick amounted to $738,000, the principal item for each of the provinces being the pelt of the ranch-bred silver fox.

Within the last few years fox farms have been established in every province of the Dominion and the latest statistics available show that in 1922 there were 977 fox farms of which less than half were situated in Prince Edward Island.

Successful Sale.

Mr. Alex. Donald held a very successful sale on his premises, Seymour East, on Thursday afternoon before leaving to take up his residence in Campbellford.

The day was exceptionally fine, and a very large crowd gathered to the sale. The auctioneer, Mr. Battersly, of Campbellford, began at the appointed time, and bidding for the various articls was quite lively.

The chief interest of the crowd centred in the fine herd of high-grade Holsteins which held the record last year at the local factories. One of the cows sold for 91.00, purchased by Mr. Fred Hay, and ten other cows averaged $65.00 each. The total proceeds of the sale amounted to more than $2,000.

Early Chicks.

Mr. Jack Little has the first batch of chickens otu this year in Seymour East. He set a hen some time ago with fourteen eggs, and it hatched out twelve checkens, which are doing well.

Cobourg and District

COBOURG, March 3.—Mrs. Catharine McCullough, widow of the late John McCullough of Fenella, Haldimand township, died on Monday at the home her son, Mr. Robert McCullough, Hamilton township. For seventy-eight years a resident of these two townships, she saw many changes during three quarters of a century. Mrs. McCullough was born near Edinburgh, Scotland, and left for Canada with her parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Ferguson, when she was six years old. He mother died at sea on the voyage over. It was shortly before the family came here that the townships of Asphodel, Dummer, Douro and Otonabee which before had formed a part of Northumberland county, were separated from it, and included in Peterborough. Many old country people came in during the early forties and the two counties began to fill up with settlers. After her marriage to the late John McCullough, who died six years ago. They made their home at Plainville, Hamilton township for a few years and then Mr. McCullough bought the farm at Fenella upon which they resided for many years.

Mrs. McCullough is survived by two sons, Hugh in Alberta and Robert of Hamilton township and by three daughters, Mrs. Murphy in Alberta, Mrs. Dougall in Wauhashene, and Mrs. Walter Sherwin of Orono.

The funeral took place on Wednesday afternoon. The services were conducted by Rev. T. G. McKee, pastor of Baltimore Methodist Church. The interment was in the Presbyterian cemetery at Coldsprings.

Word has been received here of the death in Italy of Chevalier diaz Albertine, Chevalier and Madame Albertine left a year ago or more to spend some time on the continent and with a party of freinds were expecting to sail for home shortly. For the past twenty-five or thirty years they had spent much of their time in Cobourg, and have many friends throughout Canada and the United States. A son, Mr. Raphael Albertine resides in Toronto. Mr. Albertine some few years ago conducted the Arlington hotel here for a time. He was a native of Cuba, and held important positions military and otherwise in his native land.

MAKING MONEY MAKE MONEY

Brief but Important Lessons in Finance, Markets, Stocks, Bonds and Investments.

..The wealth of the world over a long period of time does not mount up as fast as money compounded at a moderate rate.

The average man thinks that his chances of accumulating any money at 3 or 4 per cent compound interest are pretty slim. Yet, if one of our ancestors had invested a penny back in the days of Christ, at 4 per cent compounded semi-annually it woul be worth many times the wealth of the whole world today.

From 1850 to 1912 the wealth of the United States increased at the rae of 5 per cent., and it is the richest nation in the world. Even this increase was due to a great extent to a mounting population since the per capita wealth only increased at the rate of 3 per cent.

Apparently then, the average man with his savings account does not need to be discouraged at his speed of accumulation after all, since he is keeping up with the richest nation, and in advance of the rest of the world.

WAS FATALLY INJURED.

LONDON, Ont., March 3.—(Canadian Press).—Mrs. James Baker, aged 72, Childers Street, wandered away from the home of her niece, Mrs. J. I. Hill, with whom she resided, late Friday night, and early Saturday morning was found lying between two tracks of the Canadian National Railway three miles away, with one leg badly injured, and suffering from other hurts caused by a train which had struck her. She was taken to the Victoria Hospital, where her death occurred Saturday night.

How Other Cities Solve Problems

Avoid Tax Increase.

Mayor Jutten called a private session of the Board of Council on Friday afternoon in Hamilton, when chairmen of the committees were asked once more to revise their estimates with a view to making it unnecessary to increase the tax rate this year.

His Worship emphasised that, with estimates of all bodies at their present figure, a substantial increase in the tax rate for this year would be inevitable. He called on the chairmen of the non-independent boards to point the way to a reduction to the members of such independent bodies as the Board of Education and others. The utmost co-operation was promised by those present.

Education Costs Are Big.

The agitation against the increased amounts being asked for in several districts by the School Boards was echoed in Perth during this week, when the Town Council referred back the 1924 estimates on schools for a conference with the members of the Board of Education.

After the conference it was seen that the Board of Education estimate would not be reduced, so that the only course open to the Council was to add htree mills to the tax rate to cover the extra amount for schools, htus making the local rate 46 mills. The proportion of school taxes to the total assessment is now about 40 per cent.

HIS SLUGGISH LIVER MADE HIM FEEL DROWSY AND TIRED ALL THE TIME

When your liver becomes sluggish and inactive your whole health suffers, and the only way you can get back to feeling right is to make your liver right.

This you can do by the use of Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills as they will stimulate the sluggish liver clean away all waste and poisonous matter from the system, and prevent, as well as relieve, all complications arising from a liver that has become inactive.

Mr. E. Hazel East Florenceville, N.B., writes: —"I had been troubled with my liver and felt drowsy and tired all the time, and was unable to do my work with any comfort. I took your Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills and to-day I am a different man, and would not be without them in the house."

FIREMEN DANCE AT LAKEFIELD

Younger Set of the Village Enjoyed Social Affair—Boys' Rink Has Been Popular All Winter—Personal Items.

LAKEFIELD, Mar. 3.—The Firemen's Dance held on Friday evening was not as well attended as usual but it was an especially nice dance at which the younger set pre-dominated although the older people were fairly well represented also. As is often the case at a smaller dance there was plenty of fun and a sufficient number of partners for the young ladies to be assured lots of dancing. Hendren's orchestra provided the musc.

Plans are being made for a larger card party for the brigade to be held after Easter as there is at the least estimate three times as many people in Lakefield who play cards as who dance and who would no doubt enjoy an evening at cards.

Boy's Rink.

Master Harding Stuart has had a busy season at his rink on Queen street. He has no complaint to make regarding lack of patronage. Some wonderful games of hockey have been staged there which has provided amusement and excitement for Harding's large circle of friends. Another boy who has a rink at his home is Emerson Kemp of "Kentucky," who has also been generous to his friends with invitations to "come over for a game."

Gerald and Rollie Kennedy have a small rink in their yard on Chippewa Avenue to which their friends gather when tired of the crowd on the larger edifice near by.

The stork left a son at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Roseborough of Smith on February 20th.

Quite a number of Peterboro young people drove to the rink on Friday evening and spent a pleasant evening skating.

Snow shoeing and skiing are very popular among the young folks this year and there is some talk of a club being formed next year. The weather man has been generous with both quality and quantity of snow needed for this popular sport.

Two brief sketches "The Dressing Gown" and "The Little Schoolhouse," are being put on in the Memorial Hall on Tuesday evening under the auspices of St. John's church. A musical programme is also provided. The Grove orchestra are supplying music.

Miss Lelia Burgess of Peterboro spent the week end in the village.

Mrs. W. J. Charlton was called to Smith's Falls on Thursday by the illness of her sister, Mrs. Morris.

Mrs. Lewis and sons of Dinsmore, Sask., were guests of Mrs. J. C. Harvey this week.

Mrs. Anderson of Trenton is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. Morin.

B. C. LAWYER DEAD.

VANCOUVER, B.C., March 2. — Charles Wilson, K. C., noted British Columbia lawyer, died yesterday after an illness lasting from early in February. He was born in London in 1841, and came to British Columbia in 1881.

Mr. Wilson was attorney general in 1903 in the Cabinet of the late Sir Richard McBride.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By Clive Roberts Larton

THE SEVEN-LEAGUE BOOTS

And the good lady sat down in a rocking chair.

"Now then, good wife," said Farmer Giant when dinner was over "as I wish to go to the Market Town this afternoon with two sacks of grain to exchange for a barrel of sugar, I will want my seven-league boots."

"They are all ready for you, Hiram!" said Mrs. Giant.

"Fine!" said Mr. Giant. And the socks that I always wear with them, are they ready too?"

"Oh, I forgot," exclaimed Mrs. Ginat, all in a flutter. "They are in my darning basket. One of them has a bole in the toe. I shall mend it right away."

And the good lady sat herself down in a rocking chair and reached for her darning basket, where Nancy and Nick were hiding in her thimble.

At that minute Mrs. Giant finished threading her enormous needle and reached for her thimble to put it on.

But it would only go on half way, for her finger touched the Twines who began to squirm and squeal like two little mice in a trap.

"Ouch!" yelled Nancy.

"Ouch!" wailed Nick.

"Bugs!" shrieked Mrs. Giant, giving her thumble such a loss that it flew out of the window and for all I know may be on the moon at this very minute.

But the twins didn't go with it! They slid out the very instant Mrs. Giant threw it away, and lo and behold, Nancy landed in one of the seven-league boots and Nick in the other.

"What it it, good wife?" cried Mr. Giant, rushing in to see what the trouble was about. "Is it robbers"

"Ugh!" exclaimed Mrs. Giant, giving herself a great shake. It was two bugs! They were in my thimble.

At that very minute Nancy was away from here. Now I've lost Nancy.

But of course, the Twins still had on the magic green shoes that the Fairy Queen had given them to climb the Beanstalk with, that obeyed every wish they made.

So you know what happened! The seven-league boots began to take steps the minute the Twins finished wishing. And right before the astonished eyes of the giant family, the boots walked calmly out of the front door and down the road to the Market Town.

"They are bewitched! cried Mr. Giant.

"Let them go," declared Mrs. Giant. "Good riddance, I call it, to bad rubbish."

REGINA, Sask., aMrch 2. — Leave for the Mennonite Land Sales Company to carry two appeals in the famous Mennonite Land Case to the Privy Council, was granted yesterday by Chief Justice Haultain.

The company seeks to offset a King's Bench order upheld in the Appeal Court, cancelling the contract between the Mennonite colony trustees and their firm; and secondly to offset an Appeal Court judgment preventing the registration of the company mortgages on 10,000 acres of the colony lands.

PRINCESS LOUISE OF BELGIUM DEAD

BRUSSELS, March 3. — Princess Louise of Belgium died at Wiesbaden on Saturday according to despatches received here.

Much romance has been woven into the story of Princess Louise, who sought to correct an unhappy marriag by an elopement, and who suffered the affliction of confinement in an insane asylum, of virtual disinheritance by her father, King Leopold, of the pressure of creditors, who seized effect and sold them, and finally the death of the lover with whom she had lived for twenty-five years.

After losing him she steadily declined, taking no more interest in life and subsisting by the bounty of the royal family.

HEARTS AFIRE

by May Christie

The Brilliant Novelist of Modern Society

Peter Armstrong.—the brilliant inventor, of whom Janet Mercer has spoken as a 'real gentleman'. He is clever, ambitious and reliable. Virginia Dale is deeply interested in Peter, whom she realizes will amount to something some day.

CHAPTER VIII

An Awkward Situation

"If I come down to Pear-Tree Cottage to-morrow afternoon, will you give me a cup of tea, Peter?" begged Miss Virginia Dale in her most fascinating voice.

She stood there on the pool's edge, gazing up at Prudence's 'tramp' as though he were the only creature on the earth. As for Prudence herself, she might be a mere pebble on the bank, for all the notice that the other girl took of her.

Prudence was acutely conscious of the very awkward situation. Her own escort ignominiously fled . . her crude error as to the social status of this man . . . and now t be the unwilling 'gooseberry' in a love-scene!

But it was in no lover s tones that the shabby fisherman replied, unhesitatingly:

"I'm no great hand at making tea, Miss Dale. Indeed—"—turning with a twinkle towards Prudence—"this young lady here will bear me out when I tell you I've no social graces of any sort!"

Virginia crinkled her pert nose in disdain. She didn't even glance at the flushed cheeks of the other maiden.

"Some people have no common sense," she critically observed. "But as for social graces, I like you better without 'em, Peter. You couldn't be a 'lounge lizard' if you tried."

"Heaven forbid!" The grey eyes crinkled into the most delightful little furrows at the corners.

"But just the same, I'm coming down to tea to-morrow," said the young beauty in the ravishing gown, with a determined air. "I shan't permit you to be such a hermit, Peter. It's bad for you never to have a woman around the place."

He grinned again. Against her own judgment, Prudence had to admit there was something really charming in that smile of his.

"How about old Nannie for a sweet feminine influence? She's as deaf as a door-post, as silent as the grave, and never interferes with me. My ideal woman, in fact." He turned to Prudence, laughing. "Old Nannie cooks and cleans for me," he said, explanatory-wise.

Virginia tittered angrily. He went on:

"I'm spending the whole of to-morrow in my laboratory at that new experiment I'm working on—as a penance for playing truant to-day."

Virginia flung a sharp look at the 'difficult' young man, and then at Prudence. Had the two had a rendezvous here by the stream? And was there anything between the pair of them? It was bad enough to have this simple country maid walk off with Bertram Traymore—her especial property—but it was maddening to think that she was chasing Peter—oddly attractive, oddly elusive Peter, who was so different from the others!

Peter was looking quizzically at her, as though he read her thoughts. Sometimes she had the uncanny feeling that he possessed a sixth sense, and did know what was passing in her mind! He said now, chaffingly:

"I didn't come here expecting to meet a lovely lady . . no, not one, two lovely ladies . . " he corrected himself. "Nor was I like Narcissus, gazing into the pool at the reflection on my own beauty—being an ugly chap and well aware of the fact. The right to fish in this pool and down stream is included in the rent of Pear-Tree Cottage, Mrs. Vanstart being my landlord—so I came here to woo the elusive trout."

So he'd had the right to fish these waters, after all! thought Prudence, harking back to Traymore's officious conduct, and its summary rebuke. This Peter man had behaved abominably, but of course there had been provocation . . .!

"If you won't give me tea to-morrow, I shall put on overalls and come right into the lab. and help you with your work," announced Virginia Dale.

"Too dangerous!"

"Too dangerous?" she cooed at him. "Don't you know a woman loves to play with fire?"

(How bold she is! thought Prudence, her own cheeks a-flame. If only she could slip away unnoticed . . .!)

"I was speaking of my experiment, not of myself." Did the man's lip curl a little? "I assure you I'm distressingly safe. Quite un-DonJuanish. Almost a back number."

Not for Virginia's sake, but on behalf of her whole sex, did Prudence hate him at that moment, with his self-sufficient air.

"If you'll excuse me, I will go. No, don't come too." She moved as though to turn away.

He made bad worse by saying, with a twinkle:

"I promised your friend to see you safely to the Towers,"—and fell into step beside her, Virginia on the other side.

"I don't need an escort, thank you." (She would show him!)

"Oh, yes, you do. An escort—and a chaperon. We're filling the bill, aren't we, Miss Dale?" He glanced quizzically at Virginia, who tossed her head in real annoyance. Did the man really think she was much older than this chit? A chaperon, indeed? How dare he? But of course he was just teasing!—tantalizing creature that he was!

"Call yourself a backnumber, but don't include me in it!" she flung back with assumed archness. "Miss Page and I are very much of an age, as a matter of fact."

"I am nineteen," said Prudence in prosaic tone.

"And never been kissed, I'll wager," tittered the other girl, annoyed at the naive announcement. She herself would never see twenty-five again.

Prudence flushed up, and was silent. The recollection of Traymore's stolen kiss sent a little tremor through her, thrilling as it had been. Would he hate her now? she wondered. He had been too hasty with this Peter man, and had come off worst in the encounter. She had been an unhappy witness of the scene.

But—yes—she cared for him. No use denying it.

"I won't come any further. I'm too disreputable," said Peter Armstrong, as they neared the house. Prudence walked on, leaving the other girl to bid adieux to him. Hateful man!

A turn in the path revealed the garden-party in full force. And—yes, it was he—in an immaculate, dry suit and looking very handsome—Bertram Traymore, strolling directly towards her, with a smile upon his face!

In To-morrow's Instalment, Prudence is an Unintentional Eavesdropper.

YOUR HEALTH

DR. CLIFFORD ROBINSON

The best way to reduce your surplus fat is to stop the amount of fat-producing foods which you either knowingly or unknowingly eat every day.

The people who make and market fat cures are skilful students of human nature. They know that when most people get fat they have a desire to get thin.

In other words, the so-called fat cures are built along the path of least resistance and appeal to those who wish to do the trick of turning from one kind of person to another by simply swallowing a little dope, or rubbing on some potent fat reducing salve, that will cause your extra avoirdupois to fade away like mist before the morning sun.

But the fact is, it can't be done with any degree of safety. Diet selection must be governed by certain fixed factors, and a carefully acquired knowledge of real food values.

If one will but study the proper food required to keep the metabolic process in perfect working order, a diet for flexible muscles, solid bones, firm teeth, normal flesh and a perfect life stream with correct weight will result.

Don't let the flashy advertisements that spell your ruin physically draw you into the clutches of the "fat faker." It hardly seems necessary for a physician to issue any such advice, but present conditions seem to warrant it. The heart is often the first to feel the damaging effects of fat reducing nostrums.

When I say you should eat less, you do not have to fast or go hungry. Your own physician will give you the advice necessary for proper food and exercise.

In taking any fake fat cures you are in danger of attacking the body at a vital point with fatal results.

He (nervously).—What on earth will your father say when he knows we're engaged?

She.—Oh, he'll be simply delighted. He always is.—Tit-Bits, London.

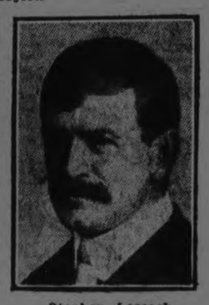
Leacock Once Made This Soothing Suggestion for an Ignorant Son to His Irate Papa

"IT is an amazing fact, but it is nevertheless true, that Mr. Rudyard Kipling or Sir James Barrie, or, let us say, ex-President Eliot, of Harvard, would fail hopelessly in English if they tried to pass the entrance examination of any American or Canadian university. King George, from whom presumably the King's English flows as from its fountain source, might get perhaps half-way through a high school in the subject."



Stephen Leacock

This is the opinion of Mr. Stephen Leacock. For ten years, he tells us, he was a schoolmaster. For those ten years he carried away nothing in money and less in experience.

But fortunately for us, unlike the bitter experience of many months, they have provided him with the material for his amusing volume, "College Days."

In this he continues, with his usual humor, his thoughts of English as she is taught at college.

As for Shakespeare, I doubt if he knew enough of what is called English by our education departments to get beyond a kindergarten.

As to passing an examination on one of his own plays, such as set by our colleges for matriculation, he couldn't have done it; he hadn't the brains—at least, not the kind of brains that are needed for it.

These are not exaggerations; they are facts. I admit that when the facts are not good enough I always exaggerate them. This time they don't need it.

The greatest nuisance of all to the schoolmaster, in Mr Leacock's opinion, is the parent who does his boy's home exercises and works his boy's sums. Probably his intentions are of the best, but:

Whenever I found myself correcting exercises that had obviously been done for the boys in their homes I used to say to them: "Paul, tell your father he must use the ablative after pro."

"Yes, sir," says the boy.

"And Edward, you tell your grandmother that her use of the dative case simply won't do. She's getting along nicely and I'm well satisfied with the way she's doing, but I cannot have her using the dative right and left on every occasion. Tell her it won't do."

"Yes, sir," says little Edward.

Once a parent who did not do the boy's exercise, but felt that he must have an active share in it, after letting him do it himself wrote across the face of it a withering comment to Mr. Leacock which read:

"From this exercise you can see that my boy, after six months of your teaching, is completely ignorant. How do you account for it?"

Mr. Leacock sent the exercise back to him with the added note: "I think it must be hereditary."

CUTE WAY OF MODERN MISS TO BREAK IT TO FATHER

AS instancing the independence of the modern society girl, Lady Askwith recently told a delightful little story concerning a young woman of twenty-two, or thereabouts, who came home one day in unusually high spirits.

"Well, dad," she cried, throwing her arms round her paternal relative's neck, "everything's settled. I've arranged our wedding for early in February."

"But I never knew you were engaged," said the astonished father.

"My dear old dad," she said, "don't you ever read the papers?"

PLEASED TO SEE HIM—GO

NOTHING can exceed the polished urbanity of Lord Curzon's manner.

"Lord Curzon was wonderfully kind when I called upon him," an American said the other day. "His manner was cordial in the extreme," continued the gentleman from across the herring pond. "Several times he got up and shook hands with me before I came away!"

Carried Collection of Colored Pencils—Used Blue and Red Ink Pens—Master of the Art of Concealing His Hand—Death of Sir Richard Muir, Great English Counsel.

IT was when Sir Richard Muir began to marshal the evidence against him that Dr. Crippen felt he was doomed.

Never, perhaps, in the history of the Old Bailey has there been a trial more dramatic in incident, never one more intensely followed by the whole world.

Behind it all an impassionate figure of justice incarnate, was Sir Richard in those months of 1910. Remorselessly, deadly in accuracy, the great counsel's cross-examination of the little medical man after one of the most brutal poisoning cases of a wife in criminal history, reconstructed, piece by piece, the scattered puzzle blocks of evidence, that inevitably brought the prisoner's doom nearer minute by minute.

And now the great counsel will be heard no more. Death called him suddenly from influenza and double pneumonia in his 67th year.

Yet, so long as the art of cross-examination is studied, the fame of this formidable counsel will not fade. He studiously eschewed "fireworks," preferring to rely on the deadly logic of facts, which he was wont to marshal in a masterly way.

To prisoners and opposing counsel there was something hypnotic about Sir Richard's calm, deliberate methods.

These could not be better illustrated than the incident related by Lord Hewart, the Lord Chief Justice, at the Old Bailey Bar mess dinner in 1922.

Lord Hewart recalled that in one of the first cases in which he was engaged at Liverpool Assizes he heard with fear and trembling that Richard Muir was against him. He had heard of Muir as a sound and careful lawyer, with a great reputation, and he watched, as if fascinated, his opponent's preparations when the case was reached. He saw Sir Richard produce a large bundle rolled up in an indiarubber band.

Those were his carefully-made notes. He then put down side by side a red pencil, a blue pencil, a green pencil, a pencil with green one end and red the other, a blue ink pen, a red ink pen. Passages in his notes and copy-letters were scored underneath in blue, or red, or green, and Muir afterwards confessed to him, when questioned on the subject, that "red" at least meant danger. He admired Muir's conduct of the case immensely, and they had been friends ever since.

In appearance Sir Richard was short and thick-set. He looked more like a successful merchant than a prominent criminal barrister. He had a kindly blue eye, which one does not usually associate with a public prosecutor.

However, on occasion, he could be severe. His remorseless cross-examination of Crippen, which lasted three hours and 48 minutes, will stand out as one of the most famous performances in the history of the criminal bar. The kindliness had gone out of his blue eyes that day.

Many people will remember the grim manner in which he opened his speech for the prosecution, particularly the solemn way in which he described Mrs. Crippen's disappearance.

"From that moment," he said, "she passed out of the world that knew her (pause) as completely as if she were dead (pause).

"She left behind her everything she would have left behind her if she had died (pause). Money, jewels, furs, clothes, home, husband, (pause), all left (long pause).

"Crippen, the prisoner, made up his mind

Sir Richard Muir

he was driven so desperate that he determined to get rid of her. As a doctor he could easily obtain drugs, and he decided on hyoscin, a little-known drug, used as a sedative and very powerful. After the dinner party on January 31 he gave his wife a glass of stout containing hyoscin. An hour later Belle Elmore was dead.

"The knife with which I dismembered the body I flung over the garden wall at night,' added Crippen. And, search as I would, I could never discover it.' Somewhere, rusted and stained, that damning bit of evidence lay hidden in the bushes of a suburban garden while Crippen was f'ghting for his life!"

Despite the vigor and thoroughness of his methods, it could never be said that Sir Richard fought for convictions. He was always scrupulously fair. Long years as a crown prosecutor had perhaps given him a cold, unflinching manner, and he certainly had on occasions a sceptical and penetrating glance; but he was a man who concealed beneath the surface much sensibility and kindness. In his work he never forgot that the prosecuting counsel exercised the functions of a minister of justice

Sir Richard David Muir, who was born at Greenock, climbed to his high position from quite humble beginnings. His father was a shoemaker. Previous to his migration to London he was employed in the office of a Newfoundland merchant. Arrived in London, he studied at King's College, and while awaiting success at the law he looked—as many others have done—to journalism for a livelihood. The Times engaged him on its parliamentary staff, where he acquired so complete a mastery of shorthand as to earn for himself the name of the "writing wonder." He was called to the bar at Middle Temple in 1884.

He also appeared in many other famous trials, including the following: Stinie Morrison, Smith (Brides in the Bath), Seddon (poisoning case), Ronald True, who was convicted of murder and reprieved, and the Brixton taxicab murder trial last year. Recent cases in which he was engaged at the Old Bailey included the Lord Alfred Douglas libel trial.

Then came Crippen's ordeal of near four hours under cross-examination.

Sir Richard was a master of the art of concealing his hand. Seemingly innocent questions were put at first to witness. Then counsel would unexpectedly start on another track and with dramatic suddenness return to a previous subject, making it impossible for the man in the box to invent plausible explanations.

Crippen proved himself on the whole a skilful witness, but under the baffling cross-examination of Sir Richard his composure completely deserted him, and when he left the box it was realized by all in court that his fate was sealed. This was the peroration:

If the remains are not those of Belle Elmore, what conceivable explanation is there? None has been offered.

Who mutilated her body and put the remains there? Who but the tenant had the opportunity, the skill, the access to the pyjama jacket, pieces of which—Crippen's own pyjama jacket—were found in the grave?

And Sir Richard was right. Many people have not yet forgotten Crippen's cry from the dock as the jury returned with a verdict of guilty. In loud, emphatic tones he exclaimed, "I still protest my innocence."

Strangely coincident with the death of the great counsel is the published assurance in Old Country newspapers of one of the only two men competent to speak, that Crippen, hanged for the murder of his actress wife thirteen odd years ago, confessed to his crime before he went to the scaffold.

Thus the popular belief that he died proclaiming and protesting his innocence to the last is shattered. How Crippen killed Belle Elmore and buried her mutilated body in a cellar in Hilldrop-crescent, N. W.; how he fled the country with Ethel le Neve, his mistress; how the couple in disguise were arrested on an Atlantic liner—these are episodes in the story well remembered to this day.

Writing in the 'Express,' Mr. Newton Crippen's solicitor, says: "Prison governors, wardens, chaplains, all denied that he had confessed. Nevertheless, he did—and to me. During a certain period of the proceedings, at one of our interviews, at which I was accompanied by a secretary, Crippen made a full confession of the murder. He told me the story of his life with Belle Elmore; how she grew bad-tempered and slovenly, and was gradually dragging him down. He told how, after a trip to America, she boasted to him of a lover who wished her to remain with him there. Finally,

A NOVEL PETITION

KNOWN years ago on the stage as "The Gibson Girl," Mrs. Evans, wife of Major J. M. J. Evans, M.C., and the proud mother of a baby boy, tells a delightful story of a small girl who was saying her prayers.

"And please God," she begged, "make Rome the capital of Turkey!"

"Oh, darling," exclaimed her mother, "why do you say that?"

"Because I put it like that in my examination papers to-day," came the reply.

Guarded Room Mystery Caught Even New York

Leading Financiers of the City Came to Col. Shaw and Floated His Mine

COL. GEORGE A. SHAW, the well-known veteran mining promoter, who is over 80 years of age and still actively engaged, likes to tell the following story as typical of American enterprise.

It was back in the early nineties when the colonel was trying to float the Silver Mountain Mining Company. In and about Toronto it had been impossible to interest capital in the proposed venture. Packing a large leather grip full of samples of silver ore, the colonel proceeded direct to the Hotel Astor, New York city, where he was at that time practically unknown. "I want a room and bath for myself, and I want the adjoining room to store my grips. These are fully insured, but I want a special man to be put on guard, and no one, not even the maid, must be permitted to enter this room, except in my presence," the colonel told the clerk as he registered. Lifting his eyebrows in surprise, the clerk asked no questions and proceeded to accommodate his new guest.

Col. Geo. A. Shaw

"That afternoon," relates the colonel, "half a dozen newspapermen visited my room in an effort to get a story of the mysteriously guarded room adjoining mine. Of course, I would say nothing—not that day. The following day, however, I let it be known that the mysterious room contained samples of the finest ore ever mined in northern Ontario. Within twenty-four hours I was visited by several of the leading financiers in New York, and within three weeks after my arrival I was on my way back to Toronto with an agreement to pay me $10,000 in cash, which they paid, and further to form a $2,000,000 company into which they were to put at least $25,000 for working capital and give my partner, Oliver Daunis, and me 30 per cent of the company's stock fully paid up. And now, as I look back thirty years, I am glad to say the venture on the part of my new American friends proved to be a great success, for as far as I can estimate the various owners took over a million and a half out of the mine I sold them."

WRITING in a contemporary Mr. James Douglas points out that Miss Mabel Normand, the Los Angeles film actress, is one of the few cinema artistes who have never been divorced. It seems a pity to drag up a thing like that just now.—Punch.

WOULDN'T BE A TOMCAT SAYS G. BERNARD SHAW

Other Material Was Just as Good Advertisement for Mrs. Pankhurst's Meeting, She Wrote Back

DR. C. J. O. HASTINGS, Toronto's genial medical health officer, when officiating recently at the opening meeting of a health gathering told a good story about Mrs. Pankhurst who is now a Canadian citizen interested in the social hygiene movement and whom Dr. Hastings characterizes as "a motherly soul, whom to know was to love."

Mrs. Pankhurst

"Years ago when this effective lady was engaged in the militant suffrage campaign in England," said the doctor, a man who was present at one of the big rallies in Albert Hall, popped up and yelled at Mrs. Pankhurst, 'If you were my wife, I'd murder you. 'If I were your wife, you wouldn't have to,' retorted Mrs. Pankhurst.

"I can't remember that this ever happened to me," said Mrs. Pankhurst to the doctor after the meeting, but I can tell you what did happen to one of the speakers for suffrage. After she had said her say, just such a man as you describe rose heatedly to shout, 'If you were my wife I'd poison you.' 'No you wouldn't,' said she, 'I'd do it myself.'"

Another witty incident in which Mrs. Pankhurst crossed swords with Bernard Shaw is recalled by his new play, "Saint Joan."

Shaw's belief in the equality of the sexes is well known and has been a leading factor in both his writings and his life.

"We knew," said Mrs. Pankhurst, "all of us in the suffrage movement in Britain, that Bernard Shaw was theoretically with us. So, on one occasion I determined to try him out as a practiser of his preachments. We were soon to have a large meeting in Albert Hall and I wrote to Mr. Shaw and asked him to address us. He wrote back promptly to say that he not only believed in suffrage for women but in their duty to fight for it. "But," continued he, "if you or anybody else thinks that I am going to be the tame Tomcat of the suffrage movement or any other women's movement in this country, you will find yourself mistaken. I shall not be able to speak at the Albert Hall meeting."

Mrs. Pankhurst did not take this chivalry from Shaw sitting down. She replied to him in due season to this effect. "Dear Mr. Shaw. So sorry that you did not see your way clear to speak for us in Albert Hall, but it did not matter. We wanted you principally as an advertisement, and we found other material which did us just as well."

Booth's Retort Crushes Vanderbilt's Son-in-Law

Veteran Lumberman Considered His Time Was Most Valuable — Quietly Pocketed $250,000 Deposit

MANY anecdotes are told of Mr. J. R. Booth, the 96-year-old lumberman of Ottawa, whose granddaughter was married last week to Prince Erik of Denmark.

At one time he gave an option on his railway—the Canada Atlantic, afterwards sold to the Grand Trunk for about $13,000,000—to the Vanderbilt interests, who sent Dr. Seward Webb, of New York (son-in-law of W. H. Vanderbilt), to Ottawa to interview Mr. Booth. He arrived in his private train of three cars, with an observation room over the locomotive.

J. R. Booth

The doctor, immaculate in a seal skin coat, top hat, patent leather shoes and diamond ring, emerged on the station platform for his interview at 8.30 a.m. Mr. Booth was across the tracks in a reefer coat, flannel shirt, and bowery cap.

Dr. Webb walked up and down, nervously, for nearly half an hour, glancing frequently at his watch. Finally, he said to a station hand: "Do you know where Mr. Booth is?"

"He's over there," replied the man, pointing to the magnate.

The doctor picked his way across the tracks and greeted Mr. Booth by saying: "I've been waiting for you for over twenty minutes, and my time is valuable."

The lumber king replied, quietly: "Well, I've been waiting for you for over half an hour, and my time is more valuable than yours."

Incidentally, the option was not taken up and Mr. Booth quietly pocketed the $250,000 deposit.

GREATEST COMPLIMENT EVER PAID TO CLERGYMAN

THE Bishop of London is never tired of impressing upon his clergy the necessity of tact and carefulness in dealing with individual members of their flocks, and as an example of his meaning he once cited the following story:

A curate in a poor parish, whom we will call Mr. Brown, had left, and the vicar was going his rounds, when he met a certain old woman.

"Well, Mrs. Smith," said he, "so Mr. Brown has gone away from us at last."

"Yes, sir," replied the old dame, "and I'm sorry for it. I don't 'old with curicks as a rule, well knowin' what a noosance they are pokin' their noses into our places just when they b'aint wanted. But Mr. Brown was different; he allus know'd when it was washin' day."

"I regard that," remarked the Bishop, "as one of the greatest compliments ever paid to a clergyman."

Disillusioned

"CAN I sell you a set of Shakespeare?" asked the affable agent.

"I don't think so," replied the patient person, "but I won't say for sure. After thinking over a lot of things I've been persuaded to buy almost anything seems possible."—Answers.

Balieff Throws Chairs at Company Then Pours Jokes Into the Wounds

Creator and Conductor of La Chauve Souris Looks Like Bulgy Butler—Made Fame in the Dumps and Depths—Cabaret Cafe Was Called "The Bat" Because Bat Flew Out—Clapped Into Jail by Lenin

By R. C. READE

THE full-moon face of Nikita Balieff for the first time is at last going to take a rise out of Canadians.

This creator and conductor of La Chauve Souris, in Russian "Letutchaya Muish" and in English "The Bat," is the world's unique jester. He is Coquelin and Charlie Chaplin, Gallagher and Shean, Will Rogers and Raymond Hitchcock, Puck and Grimaldi all rolled into one, a super clown and a super wit, a reincarnation of the mediæval fool who was his monarch's wisest counsellor.

He is bald as an egg, but he has never had a shower of them. He loves to shut his eyes and stick out his tongue at his audience, but he is not blind as a bat to humanity's foibles. He looks like a bulgy butler or a paunchy Punchinello and has Billiken eyes and a cherubic face as childlike and bland as that of Bret Harte's Ah Sin.

Nikita Balieff

But this innocent is a Russian Peck's bad boy, accustomed to say bold impudent things. In his Balieff scrambled English he teaches his audience the Russian A, B, C, and then scolds them because they can't learn it. The other day he said to a Chicago audience, "Z'Americans are nozzo vurr smart. You have what you call the thick head. When I vas littel babe I learn Russian much more quick than you."

When Czar Nicholas visited him in his Moscow cellar he put the autocrat of all the Russias through his alphabet, and said, patronizingly, "Soon you will speak Russian as well as English."

Lenin came to his show, and he tried the same kind of public familiarity, but the Soviet frowned on court jesters. Lenin clapped Balieff, it is true, but into jail. Balieff will never discuss this incident. "The thought of it," he says, "is too, too bitter."

He ought to be used to massacres. He is an Armenian. He played as a school boy, and his father put him into his factory. As soon as he was in charge, the only production was the production of plays. He joined the army at the time of the Japanese war, but deserted it at Vladivostok for a musical company. He got put in the clink for his Glinka.

Balieff has as great a genius for raising money as for raising laughs. The Moscow Art Players were stranded in Berlin and he borrowed $16,000 for them. They made him secretary, but would never let him play. At last he got a one-line part, but, after the 250th rehearsal, on the eve of the first performance, it was turned into a mere walk-on part. Then he became Cousin Theodore in Knut Hamsun's "In the Claws of Life." His role consisted in opening his mouth to speak, never speaking, for some other character constantly interrupted him.

They made him the slice of bread in Maeterlinck's "Blue Bird," but he wanted the whole loaf. This master of gab wearied of the gag and went into a cellar near the Kremlin, not to sulk, but to laugh. His cabaret cave was called "The Bat," because when the door was first opened a bat flew out of it. Now whenever Balieff opens his mouth an epigram flies out of it.

Before he came two years ago to the Century Theatre roof and the top of the amusement stage, he made his fame in the dumps and in the depths. His first cellar was a cafe for artists only. They ate and literally drank in his jokes. His second cellar was a little larger, but still only for the profession. In his third cellar he let in the tired business men of Moscow and charged $6, real gold dollars, which is more than he has ever charged in America.

A Balieff show is an omnium gatherum of everything Russian and of everything farcical and artistic everywhere. It is full of Balalaikas and Pavlovas and Bekst landscapes. He mimics Russian tragedy and Italian opera. Perhaps its nearest equivalent in English is Bottom's Pyramus and Thisbe in Midsummer Night's Dream.

But always in the beginning is Balieff, his lips red with murdered English like the following, "Denickts nom-ber-r-r onde progrom isde pfooden soldiers." Here is another characteristic prologue: "Ere come my grand quart. Two gret Ressian theatre fight for zis quart. Z'Moscow theatre she want him to sink in Petrograd. Z'Petrograd theatre she want him to sink in Moscow. Zey sink a Spanish limonade. You don't understand z'Spanish? I make it izzy for you. Zey sink him in Ressian."

This highbrow with the horse laugh though he mocks at the "Russian soul" has himself a Russian soul. When he is in a rage he throws chairs at his company and then pours jokes into their wounds. His wit is like the bat. It flies best by night. He never mourns except in the morning.

This fat man, whom all the world loves, loves his own stomach more than anything else in the world. He likes a menu as exotic as his Chauve Souris. "My Russian soul," he has said comically, "is in my stomach."

Another of his witticisms is, "My first play was about a distillery. Now I play in the dry country."

He gets $4,000 a week, but when he took out his first American naturalization papers he exclaimed: "I starf no more. Now I have a certificate to teach z'American."

Last winter he was asked to be the judge of the smallest foot in an actress' beauty show at the Plaza Hotel. The final pair were placed on a dais and Balieff slowly bent his corpulent form to their feet. He searched the floor in mock bewilderment and exclaimed, "Where are zese feet? Zey are too small. I cannot see them."

President Beatty Helps Proves Real Railroader

DORVAL, about ten miles west of Windsor Station, Montreal, is one of those little places where nothing much ever happens. Commuters use it going to and from pretty homes on the nearby banks of the St. Lawrence river. At other times it's a quiet enough place, particularly on a summer's evening about eight o'clock when commuters have commuted and the workers are at rest. That is why the station agent there, working long after regular hours one evening not long since, appeared to be a very lonely young man, even though he was too busy at his desk to notice it.

E. W. Beatty

He was a young agent, temporarily on the job to replace a man on holidays, and the monthly balance sheet, the first he had ever tackled, refused to balance with that exactness considered desirable in Canadian Pacific circles. Vainly he put one set of figures against another until the prospect of an all-night job began to be unpleasantly assured.

At a point where hope seemed about to finally dissolve, footsteps sounded from the other end of the station platform. They advanced until the fading evening light at the doorway was blocked by a figure, and a voice asked:

"Do you know if No. 17 is going to stop here to-night?"

The young agent did not know, and he said so. He knew little except that the balance had to be found if it took a week. The stranger walked up and down the platform while two friends who had come with him engaged in conversation at the far end. He had spoken as one who knew something about trains, he might even know something of station agent's balances. The young man was desperate enough to try anything, besides the stranger's face was not unfamiliar; he had seen it somewhere, probably about Windsor Station, where railroad men pass and repass like bees in a hive. Desperation impelled him to the platform.

"Are you a railroad man?" he asked.

Obviously astonished, the stranger admitted that he was.

"Do you know anything about balance sheets?"

The stranger did, and a moment later both he and the agent were busy with cash book, delivery book and outstanding sheet until, fifteen minutes later, the noise of No. 17 slowing up outside brought the joint operations to a close, but not before several elusive items had been brought to book.

"You ought to be all right now," said the stranger, going to the door. "Check over the rest of the figures and you'll probably find your balance." So saying he left the station and saw his friends aboard the train.

As he turned to leave the platform the youth hurried after him. "I'm ever so much obliged to you," he said. "Do you mind telling me your name?"

"Beatty," replied the stranger, but his pleasant nod and "good night" seemed to in no way dispel the agent's sudden consternation.

"Are you the president?" gasped the youth.

"Yes," replied Mr. Beatty. "But that isn't important; the main thing is to get that balance sheet right."

KINGSTON CIRCLE SIX MEET JUNIORS TONIGHT

First Third Round Game to Decide the Representatives of Eastern Ontario In Junior O. H. A. Play-Offs—Youngsters Should Draw a Big House.

The best junior game of the season should be seen at Brock St. Rink tonight when the Kingston Circle Six team will clash with the Peterboro Juniors in a third round fixture that promises to be as full of features as an egg is of meat. The Easterners are a big, fast crew and in Kingston their chance of bringing home a championship are regarded as rosy. Tonight will give local fans a chance to pass their opinion. The Petes are not allowing the stories of the Circle Six team's prowess to frighten them in the least and they figure on cutting themselves off a lead big enough to carry them through the return game which will be played on Wednesday night at Trenton. H. H. Jacobi will referee both games which means that the teams will have to settle down and play clean hockey from the drop of the hat. The ice will be in good and everything points to a memorable game. In view of heavy expense under which the young Petes are operating there should be a bumper crowd on the side lines.

RANGER HURT IN PRACTICE

Cut in Face on Saturday Night Required Three Stitches—Struck Top of Goal Post.

It has been decided that consistent practicing will do as much good in keeping the Petes on edge for the O.H.A. finals than an exhibtion game in which there might be casualties so that the game proposed for Wednesday night has been abandoned.

The blue shirts worked out Friday and Saturday night, will lay off tonight to watch the Kingston-Peterboro Junior battle and will finish their training with stiff practice tomorrow and Wednesday nights. This should put them in the best of condition for the battle with either Niagara Falls or New Hamburg for the championship. The two semi-finalists clash tonight and Wednesday and the winner meets the Petes on Friday and next Monday.

Ranger was the victim of an accident at Saturday night's practice when the net was shifted in a scrimmage and his face came into contact with the top of the goal post. He sustained a cut near his mouth requiring three stitches to close. The injury is painful but will not keep "Biffer" out of the final games.

FIRPO-ROJAS FIGHT NEGOTIATIONS FAIL

BUENOS AIRES, March 3rd. — Negotiations for a fight between Luis Firpo and Romero Rojas, the chilean heavy-weight, following upon Firpo's acceptance of Rojas' challenge hav, failed to bring about an agreement for a match. Aside from inability to find a promoter, Rojas insisted upon a training period of two months and Firpo is not willing to delay his return to the United States for so long a time. Rojas will leave to-day for Santiago where it is said he will take a rest of one month before leaving for the United States, where it is expected he will resume his boxing carreer and the management of Rex Rickard. Rojas recently announced that he had accepted an offer from Rickard for three fights.

C.P.R. DEFEAT C.N.R.

MONTREAL, March 2.—Toronto C. P. R. hockey players, numbering four St. Mary's O.H.A. players, defeated an All-Star team from the Montreal Canadian National Railways Hockey League 5 to 1 in an exhibition game which featured the weekly scheduled card of the C.P.R. inter-department series here Saturday night.

McGILL WON CUP.

MONTREAL, March 2. — McGill won the last game of the series played with the University of Montreal for the Pierre Beaubien Cup, emblematic of the Intercollegiate Hockey championship of Montreal here Saturday by a score of 6 to 0. By this victory McGill finished the three-game series with two wins while other game was a draw. Their goal margin for the three games was eleven.

Must Remove Eye To Save the Other

TORONTO, March 3.—At the General Hospital private pavilion Saturday afternoon it was decided that Johnny Brackenborough, Hamilton Tiger hockey player who was injured at the Arena on Friday night, must be operated upon.

The operation has been made necessary on Brackenborough's left eye in order to save the right eye. Dr. Clarence Hill, eye specialist, who is in attendance, after consultation with other specialists, decided that the operation was absolutely necessary.

The little fellow advised the surgeons to perform the operation when told how serious his accident really was.

GAME AWARDED BY EXECUTIVE

Incident In Semi-Finals of Vice-Skips' Bonspiel at Lakefield — P. Spence Won Tanner Trophy.

LAKEFIELD, March 3. — After beating J. H. Payne by 12 to 3 in the semi-finals, G. G. Connell lost the vice-skips' championship on Saturday night to P. Spence by the score of 10 to 4, who becomes the holder of the E. A. Dawson silver trophy until next winter.

The semi-finals developed a controversy over Thompson Braden's win from Spence by one shot.

Spence protested the game before starting it, on the ground that his opponent was playing two seconds instead of a lead and second, and the protest was upheld by the committee, who awarded the game to Spence. Braden refused to replay the game, and Spence went into the final, which he won handily from Connell.

The scores in the bonspiel were as follow:

First Round.

J. M. Simpson 14	W. W. Leonard 7
C. Lake 7	J. H. Payne 13
G. Charlton 5	G. G. Connell 12
E. A. Tanner 10	Jas. Millar 9
R. D. Murduff 8	T. Braden 9
H. G. Fitz-Gerald 8	W. J. Charlton 9
P. Spence 9	N. Payne 5

E. W. Bailey bye.

Second Round.

Simpson defaulted and J. H. Payne wins.

Connell 13	Tanner 7

BENTLEY SEEKS FAME AS BATSMAN

CRACK SOUTHPAW OF NEW YORK GIANTS DISLIKES PITCHING

LEFT TO RIGHT: JACK BENTLEY, GEORGE SISLER; IN CIRCLE, BABE RUTH.

BY BILLY EVANS.

Is Jack Bentley to go the way of two other famous southpaw pitchers, Babe Ruth and George Sisler?

If so, the belief that a great batsman is more important than a star pitcher is vindicated all the more.

Babe Ruth came to the American League as a great pitcher but brought with him no reputation as a batsman. He first became an outstanding star as a pitcher.

Just when Ruth reached the top of his game as a pitcher, was recognized as the leading southpaw of the American League, he began to show signs of being a worthwhile batter.

Babe first jumped into the swat limelight by his ability to every now and then connect for a health drive that would break some long-distance home-run record. His batting, however, was streaky. There was a question if he would keep it up if played as a regular.

Ruth at the time was with the Boston Red Sox. Ed Barrows was managing the club. He decided that Ruth playing regularly in the outfield would be more valuable to Boston than as a star pitcher working every fourth day.

Made Sweeping Change.

The idea was scoffed at but Barrows had the courage of his convictions and went through with it.

The thought of Barrows that Ruth was more valuable playing regularly than as a pitcher in a sense revolutionized baseball. It resulted in giving the game the greatest slugger of all time, who became a national idol. It also created an era of swat that has proved decidedly popular, since in the last five years all attendance records have been shattered.

Along came George Sisler. Direct from the University of Michigan, he soon won his spurs as one of the leading southpaws of the American League. In addition Sisler could hit and was wonderfully fast.

Sisler Followed Ruth.

Bobby Quinn, then directing the St. Louis club, decided that Sisler should be played regularly to get the full benefit of his remarkable ability. He was first tried in the outfield, then shifted to first base. He became the premier at that position. In 1922 he was voted the most valuable player in the American League.

Jack Bentley came to the New York Giants as a pitcher. He also brought with him a reputation as a great hitter and a mighty good first baseman.

Weakness of the New York twirling staff caused Bentley to be used as a pitcher by Manager McGraw. He won 13 out of 21 games last season, a fine showing in his first year. Bentley, however, doesn't care to pitch. He likes to hit. He wants to play every day. He says his position is first base.

One of these days McGraw may shift Bentley to his favorite position. Then he may duplicate the feats of the great Babe Ruth and the incomparable George Sisler.

OTTAWA LOST IN HAMILTON

Big Crowd Turned Out For Game That Had No Bearing on League Standing—Score Was 5-2.

HAMILTON, March 3.—Position means nothing to Hamilton hockey fans, for despite the fact that the outcome of Saturday's game here between the Hams and Ottawa had absolutely no bearing on the league standing, close to four thousand people turned out and they were treated to a game made up of good and bad hockey in which the Hams emerged victorious by a score of 5 to 2. Ottawa started minus Nighbor at centre and Heberts in the nets in place of Glint Benedict. The absence of these two stars made the Ottawa defence easy to penetrate and only bad shooting on the part of the Hamilton squad prevented them from running up a much larger count on the League leaders.

QUEEN'S WON FINAL.

MONTREAL, March 2.—Queen's won the intercollegiate basketball championship on Saturday afternoon when they defeated University of Toronto team in the play-off in the gymnasium of the Montreal Amateur Athletic Association by 21 to 20. The game was one of the best and most spectacular witnessed in Montreal this season with the result in doubt until the call of time.

MCGILL SKI-JUMPER MADE GREAT FLIGHTS

MONTREAL, March 2. — By winning the ski jumping championship at Cote Des Neiges Hill on Saturday afternoon, Leonard Lehan earned the title of international intercollegiate champion for the McGill University squad. Lehan's exhibition of jumping has seldom been supassed on the hill of the Montreal Ski Club. He made three special fine jumps, obtaining distances of 110, 109 and 112 feet. His style also surpassed that of his competitors. Mann, of Dartmouth, was second in the jumping, also showing a smart performance.

New Swimming Record Made By Sybil Bauer.

ST. PAUL, Minn., March 2.—One world's record was broken, and a United States mark shattered in the Central A.A.U. swimming championships at the St. Paul Athletic Club last night.

Sybil Bauer of the Illinois Athletic Club, established the new world's record for women by swimming the 100 yard breast stroke in one minute, 13 2-5 seconds, bettering her former mark by two-fifths of a second.

In the 220 yard breast stroke, Bob Skelton, of the I.A.C., made the distance in 12 minutes, 56 3-5 seconds, or two seconds faster than the former United States' record held by himself.

BILLIARD CHAMPION

LONDON, March 3.—(Canadian Press Cable).—In the final of the British amateur billiard championship at Burrough's hall last night W. P. McLeod of Middlesborough the present holder of the title beat J. Graham Symes the former title holder, the score being 3,000 to 2,862. McLeod took the title from Symes last year.

P. R. liner Metagama. They left for their homes on Sunday.

SKATING RECORD.

CHRISTIANIA, Norway, March 2. — Oscar Mathieson, the professional skater, to-day established a new world's record for the 1,000 metres, (1,094) of one minute. 31 3-5 seconds. The weather was bad snow falling during the exhibition.

INSULIN PRODUCTION COST CUT IN BRITAIN

LONDON, March 3.—(Canadian Press.)—The finance committee of Middlesex hospital and medical school state that the costs of the preparation of insulin have been so reduced by the employment of a new water process devised by Doctors Dodds and Dickens, now being used by the bio-chemical department of the Bland-Sutton institute of pathology, that they are able to greatly reduce the price to the hospital. An immediate reduction to something under two shillings is recommended after allowing for a margin of profit.

The committee confidently anticipates that a further substantial reduction of the price will be possible. This insulin is being supplied only to the hospital and for experimental purposes.

PERTH MAGISTRATE.

The NUT CRACKER

BY JOE WILLIAMS

THE BELLIGERENT CHILI BEAN

Tex Rickard, wholesaler in tin ears and busted beaks, threatens to import one Quentine Romero Rojas, self-confessed heavyweight champion of Chile and exhibit him before the pop-eyed gaze of American yokels.

Mr. Q. R. Rojas is said to have won the heavyweight championship of Chile by kicking a 14-year-old Maltese kitten on the whiskers, scoring what practically amounted to a clean knockout. Mr. Rojas is not only the best heavyweight champion ever produced in Chile, but the worst one. Chile has never been afflicted with any kind of heavyweight champion before, and is striving nobly to hide her shame.

Whether Rickard will bring Mr. Rojas over now or wait until late summer, when the import duty on cheese, hams and other perishable vegetables is attractively reduced, is a detail that remains to be worked out.

Mr. Rojas will be tossed into the ring with Battling Tomatoes and the Fighting Bolgonas of the Great Stuffed Tribe and will proceed to build up a reputation as a European super man, wilder than Herrin, Ill., and tougher than a gold-toothed soubrette.

Some bright young writer will pick out a picturesque handle for him, like "The Hot Pepper of the Chile Bowl," and the docile Dempsey will be persuaded to step forward and enact the leading role in another edition of "The Battle of the Simpery."

Interment will be private and owing to the native abhorrence of Chileans to slavish manifestations of grief, flowers will kindly be omitted.

Mr. Rojas probably will last about as long against a third-rate American heavyweight as a good man's reputation in a Washington oil probe but this won't keep the customers away. They are gluttons for punishment and their favorite dish is European hoakum, served hot and often.

In Barnum's day the birth rate was one a minute. By the introduction of efficiency methods and daylight saving time, Rickard has doubled the output.

Bill Lange came over from Australia with a heavy coat of lurid press agent paint and was knocked into a state of enduring coma by a dock hand. Bomb Wells wore out a full set of hand-engraved chins bouncing around on sundry American canvas mats. Carpentier would have gone over bigger as a Shubert chorus man. Firpo gave the fish a momentary thrill and then curled up with an apologetic quiver. Mr. Rojas is not expected to violate any of these old world customs.

Tex will now lead the Turnstile Quartet in that sentimental ditty dedicated to the Boxing Boobs of America entitled, "And the best of it is, they liked it, they like it!"

DUNDEE VS. MORAN.

NEW YORK, March 2.—Johnny Dundee and Pal Moran were matched yesterday to fight 15 rounds to a decision at Madison Square Garden March 14. Dundee is world's featherweight and junior lightweight champion, but neither title will be at stake in the Moran fight. Dundee received the decision in a previous fight at the Garden, February 2.

Sleet, Snow and Piercing Winds Made Conditions Unfavorable For Players --Attendance Was Small

LONDON, March 2.—(Canadian Press Cable.)—Sleet and snow and piercing north-east winds added to the trials of players in the Association Football League games Saturday. The fact that only Manchester City of next week's teams engaged in the cup ties, won 3 to 2 against Middlesboro, probably indicates that the clubs are cautiously husbanding their resources. Barely ten thousand spectators watched the ding-dong game in which Bolton played a scoreless draw with Burnley.

A similarly small attendance on a snow-covered ground watched West Bromwich and Chelsea draw at two goals each .Chelsea really deserved to win thanks to the importation by that club of two Corinthian players and Brown who has just been transferred from West Ham and who put in a good performance by scoring early in the game.

The scoreless draw between Swindon and Portsmouth brought out a gruelling fight and Portsmouth's goal keeper Kane saved his club by frequent thrilling displays in the nets.

Arsenal's new forward, Ramsay from Kilmarnock, gave a most impressive display and largely contributed to the club's three to one victory over Liverpool.

Brown netted both of Huddersfield goals when the league leaders, Cardiff City, were downed two to none.

Pagnam of Watford, Brown of Darlington and Whitehurst of Rochdale, scored three goals each in their respective matches.

Playing with Fowler as centre forward whom they have just secured at a big fee from Plymouth, Swansea just managed to beat South End two to one. The win was the result of a penalty.

Sheffield United were for a time non-plussed by Clay's offside policy, but when they proceeded to solve the problem in workmanlike fashion the game was theirs and they defeated Tottenham by two to one. Tunstall scored both the Sheffield goals one of which broke the net.

Bournemouth's goalkeeper, Lock, retired injured in the first five minutes of the game against Queen's Park which his team, however, won by 1 to 0.

Queen's Park had their chance but failed to convert a penalty. A blizzard made the game against South Shields on the Stoke grounds, which ended in a goal-less draw, a farce and the groundsmen were clearing the obliterated touch lines with brooms while the game was in progress.

Stratford Transfers Game to London Ice.

STRATFORD, March 3. — Arrangements were completed Saturday by the management of the Stratford Hockey Club to play the first of the finals of the Senior O. H. A. championship in London, Tuesday, instead of having Hamilton come here. Fear of soft ice was the reason given for making this change.

The plan is not likely to be very favorably received by faithful supporters here who would undoubtedly prefer to see the finals played at home. A block of 1,500 seats has been secured for Stratford fans and there will be a special train to London.

CANADIENS SENT ST. PATS BEHIND

Flying Frenchmen Defeated Irish by 4 to 1 --Enter Playoff.

TORONTO, March 3. — (Canadian Press.)—Canadiens qualified to meet Ottawa in the National League play-off by defeating St. Patricks here on Saturday night by 4 to 1. The flying Frenchmen won decisively, even more so than the score indicates, for the winners held the upper hand all through the bitterly fought contest.

Habitants had the offensive power, Irish had not.

And there is the story of the game in as many words.

The men of Dandurand conveyed the impression to more than 7,000 fans that Ottawa will have a mighty hard road to hoe in the play-off series and the chances of the Eastern professional championship going Montreal-wards have never been brighter since little Napoleon added his fighting personality to the ranks of the N.H.L. leaders.

Canadiens' fast, tricky forward line brought back memories of the famous Lalonde-Pitri-Berlinquette combination of other years. The young attacking contingent of visitors was at their best and they swarmed in around Goaler Roach like angry hornets.

Their attack bit deep into Irish territory and on losing the puck the Irish forwards rushed back to take up their positions in front of the slow-breaking St. Pats' puck carriers. Noble and Dye were smothered on the wings and Adams could not pierce the Cleghorn-Couto second line. When the Irish did threaten the ancient George Vezina rose to the occasion and blotted out their efforts with brilliant saves.

Canadiens took the lead in the first period when they scored midway in the session, but the visitors' attack so overshadowed the Noble-Adams-Dye efforts that the fans were given an unmistakable inkling of the final result. Again in the second round habitants counted, but when Noble came back with the Green's first and only goal, prospects brightened. Loose checking presented Joliat with an opportunity which he did not overlook and the locals ended the period two goals behind.

Another tallk in the final session put the game far beyond reach and the visitors played "rag" with the puck at every opportunity until the end.

AT THE ROYAL

DOUBLE PROGRAMME AT THE ROYAL TO-NIGHT.

Instead of the usual one production offered by most theatres, the Royal has contracted for two, both featuring stars with a large following, the ever popular Tom Moore in a thrilling drama of the sea, and dainty little Gladys Walton, the star that resembles Mary Pickford in "The Untameable."

The extraordinary experiences of a girl who possessed a dual personality, a nature that amounted virtually to a dual identity, are presented in "The Untameable."

The girl's character existed in two distinct realms, one good, the other evil. In a way, her life was that of a femine "Jekyll and Hyde" existence.

Her more natural self was that of a sweet, charming and generous girl, but she was affiicted with a terrible temper that occasionally got beyond the grip of her control. In this state of mind, she was cruel, selfish and overbearing.

Through the hypnotic influence of a skillful and unscrupulous doctor, the vicious side of her nature was accentuated and her nature became virtually the subject of his will. Her real personality became distorted and was eventually almost entirely masked through the strength of the doctor's mental power over her.

"The Untameable" is a screen version of Gelett Burgess' famous novel, "The White Cat," and presents a question that is distinctly unusually and dramatically interesting. Herbert Blache directed.

In presenting these two attractions the Royal management advise us that nothing has been cut from the programme. The usual comedy and two vaudeville acts will be given, and patrons are certain of their money's worth at the Royal.

"OPPORTUNITY NIGHT" AT ROYAL THURSDAY.

Next Thursday night at the Royal marks the commencement of a series of amateur nights, in addition to the regular vaudeville and picture policy. Cash prizes will be given to all contestants, and the audience will be the judge. Applicants desiring to compete should leave their names and addresses at the box office. Every assistance will be given in the matter of rehearsals, stage deportment, make-up, etc.

PICTURE FANS WANT BIG ACTION THRILLS.

Action!

That's what photoplay fans want.

In "A Man of Action," running at the Royal Tuesday, Thomas H. Ince has produced a mystery-comedy that's all action from start to finish.

There's a little love, a plot the fans can't guess until the end, plenty of laughs and a big thrill. With never a minute's let-up, "A Man of Action" is accurately described as a "movie that moves."

Here's the plot in brief: Douglas MacLean plays a silk stocking youth with more dough than ambition. The girl he loves (Marguerite de la Motte) has enough pep for a whole boarding school. She drives him out to do something—and he does!

We'll say he does! He gets mixed up with a band of crooks, who blackjack him into robbery of his own mansion. What a mix-up! Cops, crooks and kisses!

The cast of "A Man of Action" is a strong one. Douglas MacLean is a big favorite with the fans —especially the ladies. And Marguerite de la Motte, featured in "The Three Musketeers," has the principal feminine role.

AT THE REGENT

"THE TOLL OF THE SEA" COMING; FIRST PHOTOPLAY IN NATURAL COLORS.

Heralded as an invention which is destined to revolutionize the production of motion pictures, the new natural color process will be shown to the patrons of the Regent Theatre on Monday when the first Technicolor photoplay, "The Toll of the Sea," is presented. Highly enthusiastic advance notices have been sent broadcast about this photoplay, and the most distinguished critics have agreed that at last motion pictures in natural colors are a reality.

"The Toll of the Sea" has been photographed by an entirely new process It is not, strictly, a development over older forms which have been previously tried and found wanting. It is instead a radiacl departure in photography, and to arrive at its successful culmination two noted scientists gave seven years' research. That they have reached their goal cannot be questioned, for the photoplay is said to have scenes of surpassing loveliness in which the characters and settings are as real as they are in actual life.

The story that is told in this motion picture has many of its episodes laid in China. The selection of this picturesque country is admirable for the purpose of displaying effective coloring and every opportunity is presented to show vivid hues in strangely beautiful settings.

It must not be understoood, however, that "The Toll of the Sea" is merely an experimental picture. The story that is unfolded is keenly interesting. It tells of the sad fate of a charming Chinese girl who marries an American, only to be forgotten when her lover returns to his own country. He returns to her, of course, but it is on his honeymoon, and his new bride is an American girl. His little son and its Chinese mother waited a long time for his coming and when he does come he only adds to her unhappiness. The solution of the problem confronting the girl, and her way out of her sad plight is thoroughly in keeping with the character of the story.

A splendid cast is seen in the various roles. Anna May Wong, a Chinese girl of charming personality and excellent pantomimic skill is seen as little Lotus Flower. Her's is a remarkable performance, restrained, sympathetic and thoroughly human. Kenneth Harlan is equally fine as Allen Carver, the American lover, Beatrice Bentley is the American wife, and Baby Marian is the unfortunate son of the unhappy Lotus Flower. Others in the cast are Etta Lee and Ming Young.

AT THE CAPITOL

BACK OF THE FILM IN THE PRODUCTION OF "SCARAMOUCHE"

How the Paris of the French Revolution was built in Hollywood.

The enormous amount of money and material used in making a big film spectacle is illustrated in the case of "Scaramouche," Rex Ingram's production for Metro of Rafael Sabatini's story of the French Revolution, which opens at the Capitol to-day for four days.

"Scaramouche" easily exposed as much film as "The Four Horsemen," which held the record for some time. More than 500,000 feet of film was used during the "shooting" of the picture.

The amount of raw film consumed however, is only one item in the cost of producing pictures of any size. The actual "shooting" process is not the chief expense, what is "shot" makes the debit side of the ledger mount up.

The biggest item was the construction of sets representing the palace of the Tuileries, an old chateau and city streets of Paris of 1789. Kennels, pens, stables and cages had to be built for dogs, pigeons, ducks, cats oxen, horses, canaries, peacocks and other birds and animals. Carriages and coaches had to be reconstructed with perfect historical accuracy. Costumes had to be made for the 10,-000 persons who appeared in the mob scenes. There were uniforms for the soldiery, and outfits of special magnificence for players representing the nobility.

11,200 Persons Involved.

The total number of persons involved in some capacity in the production reached the figure of approximately 11,200. Ten thousand of these made up the mob that rushed through Paris when the Revolution broke. Of those with definite other places in the picture's making were 30 principal players, 34 assistant directors, 8 research experts, 22 cameramen, with their assistants, 23 property men, 65 electricians, 55 costumers, 54 wig makers, 11 architects, 630 carpenters, 75 plasterers, 88 painters and scenic artists and 48 chauffeurs and teamsters.

On the sixty-acre location where the duplicates of streets in Paris, Gavrillac and Rennes were constructed, 412 tons of cobblestones were used for paving, besides 610 tons of gravel and sand. For the building 762,264 feet of lumber were necessary. Also 340 tons of plaster, 4,000 pounds of nails, and 200 tons of casting plaster.

The task of handling the great crowds made it advisable to have each person entirely under the control of Mr. Ingram. To do this the members of the mob were practically guests of the film company through each day on location, being fed and cared for. Four special electric trains of three cars each were engaged to transport them to the studio every morning. Behind the big set, special dressing rooms and wardrobe houses had been built. Each of the latter were labelled "Students," "Peasants," "Noblemen," "Gendarmes," or some other classification of French citizenry.

The world is full of tombstones!

MARSH EXPEDITION OBJECT QUESTIONED

BALBOA HEIGHTS, Panama, March 3rd— (United Press)— A question has been raised here whether the Marsh expedition from Rochester, N. Y., apparently seeking "Blonde Indians" in the Darien country, may not in reality be exploring valuable rubber lands in the interests of Henry Ford.

Local scientists who accompanied Professor Marsh and his American colleagues into the Tuira River Valley, where rumour had it that a white tribe, with all the characteristics of the Indian Save Red Skins, dwelt have returned disgruntled. Their return was the signal for gossip that the expedition had more than one purpose.

Prof. Marsh is continuing the search.

SCORES GERMANY FOR NOT PAYING VICTORS

BRUSSELS, March 3.—(Canadian Press). — Cardinal Mercier, Belgium's heroic war cardinal, has issued a pastoral in which he alludes frequently to after-war disappointments, including the impoverishment of Europe and the gathering of immense fortunes by profiteers. He scores Germany for her evil determination "not to pay the Allies for organizing fictitious bankruptcy and for provoking economic perturbations."

FRESH ATTEMPTS TO ASSASSINATE ZOGUL

ROME, March 3.—(United Press) —A fresh attempt has been made to assassinate Albania Premier Zogul, a despatch from Scutari said to-day. FOREIGN WEEK Y.W.C.A.

This is foreign week at the local Y.W.C.A. Each year our Canadian Associations raise money to extend Association work among the girls in China, India and Japan. This year a large map in the hall of the Y.W.C.A. is marked off in squares and with the slogan across the top "How many shares will you take" Working under Miss Walton and Miss Mary Elliott are two teams equipped with smaller cards of the same plan, and each side is selling shares in the foreign work at 10c a share, and each side trying to sell out the other. A square on the large map represents $1and each collector is aiming at getting ten shares on her smaller cards so that she may have a square on the big map.

Attention is called this week to the sewing meetings in connection with the coming gymnasium exhibition. Monday, Wednesday and Thursday afternoon of each week from 2 to 5 are reserved for sewing and all who can will be most welcome.

The Bible study class has been changed from Tuesday to Thursday evening.

There is still room in the Tuesday Home Nursing Class for a few more members.

On Wednesday evening at the Home Nursing Class a lecture on "Communicable Diseases" is being given by one of the doctors. This lecture will be open to all who wish to attend.

Sunday, March 9th will be the last sing song of the season. A collection in aid of the Foreign work will be taken.

CARD OF THANKS.

We beg to thank the matron and nurses of Nicholls Hospital, especially Nurse Stone, also Dr Mann, (The Ladies Auxillary G. W. V. A.), Woodmen of the World, I. O. Oddfellows, Employees DeLaval, and all kind friends who tendered their kind sympathies, and sent floral tributes in our late bereavement.

Yours very sincerely,
Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Wiggins.

CAVE EUCHRE PARTY.

Members and friends of the Woodmen of the World, to the number of about a hundred and fifty, attended a euchre party and dance held under their auspices on Friday evening. Excellent music was provied by Messrs. Tucker and Follis. Ladies of the society looked after ample refreshments. Prizes for cards were won by Mrs. G. H. Rowe and Mr. Thos. Chapman, with consolation awards to Miss Little and Mr. Bruce Meeks.

A HUGE OUTLAY.

Gross additions to the plant of the Bell Telephone Company in 1923 amounted to $12,693,582.83. Of this amount, land and buildings cost $457,909.83, central office apparatus and subscribers 'telephones to $4,-668,478.96 and exchange and long distance lines to $4,626,785.88.

A huge capital outlay this! The fact is that telephone service, local and long distance, is found so effective for the purposes of all classes of the community, that the demand increases out of all proportion to the growth in population.

ST. PAUL'S NOTICES.

A meeting in the interest, of Church Union will be held Tuesday evening at eight o'clock, to be addressed by Dr. Pidgeon of Toronto.

The mid-week service Wednesday evening. Last Wednesday largest in years. Make this even larger. A most wonderful letter from Maud Ackeson, giving an account of the breaking out of a revival, will be read.

Ladies' Aid Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

A special prayer service will be held on Friday afternoon at 3.30, when all the Women's Missionary Societies of the city will meet in a union service for foreign missions.

A correction: The special sermon announced for two weeks from yesterday to "Dads and the Lads," will be given next Sunday evening. Dads and Lads take notice.

LAST GREAT CENTRE OF LAST GREAT WEST

The Rev. M. R. Kingsford gave a lecture Friday evening in St. John's school house, on British Columbia, illustrated with slides. Many beautiful photographs of the mountains were shown. Geologically speaking the Rocky Mountains are comparatively new, being formed by the cooling of the earth's crust, and the point where the earth has buckled has formed mountains. To a botanist British Columbia is a happy hunting ground for rare mountain flowers, each thousand feet above the sea unfolding a complete new variety.

To the game hunter the Rocky Mountains supply a diversity of sport, the mountains goats being perhaps the most interesting. The great game preserve for buffalo at the National Park at Banff, was shown and at the same place the hot water baths (110 deg. Fah.) and parties of mountain climbers. Many isolated lakes of rare beauty, like Lake Louise and Morlaine Lake, are there, as well as the larger bodies of water in the Okanagan and Kootenay Valleys, bordered with a fringe of orchards.

British Columbia is a vast country, fabulously rich in gold, coal and silver, forests, fisheries and fruit lands. The population of the whole province at present however is only equal to on-half that of the city of Montreal.

It is the last great centre of the last great west and will one day come into its own.

VITAL STATISTICS IN MONTH FEBRUARY

During the month Dan Cupid accounted for only five weddings; there were five for the same month last year. The stork recorded thirty-nine birth during the month. For the same period last year there were 54 births. The death toll for the month was 24, which is 12 less than for the same period last year.

Customs Receipts.

The Customs receipts for the month were $68,856.83, which is much less than last month.

No Building.

For the month of February, 1923, the building permits amounted to over $4000 while this year there was no building going on in the city at all and the carpenters are finding it pretty hard to get work.

KING HAS A COLD.

LONDON, March 3.—(Canadian Press).—King George is confined to Buckingham Palace, suffering from a cold. On the advice of his physicians he has cancelled various important engagements he had made for the present week.

CALIFORNIA AND PACIFIC COAST TOURS

During the winter the Pacific Coast States and British Columbia offer a haven of refuge from our rigorous climate, particularly Sunny California.

California has become famous as a winter tourist region because of its excellent climatic condition, its varied and magnificent scenery, the possibilities it affords for all kinds of outdoor sports and recreations, its splendid motor roads, sea-bathing, etc.

The Canadian National Railways offer a wide choice of routes embracing rail and sea trips. Travel one way through Canadian Rockies via Jasper National Park and Mount Robson, the North Pcific Coast Route to Vancouver and Victoria, Seattle, Portland, San Francisco and Los Angeles.

Any agent of the Canadian Nation Railways will be pleased to furnish full information regarding these tours.

WEDDING BELLS

RUSSELL—LYNCH.

COBOURG, March 3.—The marriage took place in St. Michael's Church here of Miss Katharine Lynch, daughter of Mr. Edward Lynch and the late Mrs. Lynch, of Caven, Ireland, and Mr. Hugh Russell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Russell, Cobourg. Rev. Father Corkery conducted the ceremony. The bride, who was attended by Miss M. J. Robson, wore her travelling suit of navy cloth, with sand satin hat, and she carried Columbia roses. The bridesmaid wore a navy suit and grey hat. Mr. J. Jones was groomsman. Mr. and Mrs. Russell left for a trip to Detroit and other points before taking up residence in town. —Toronto Globe.

GRANT—MURRAY.

A quiet wedding was solemnized by Rev. Dr. G. C. Pidgeon in the Bloor Street Presbyterian Church, Toronto, on Saturday evening, when Leila May, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Murray, of Port Hope, became the wife of Mr. R. Cameron Grant, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hector Grant of Orillia. The bride was attended by Miss M. Austin, and Mr. John M. Grant, brother of the groom, was best man. After April 1 Mr. and Mrs. Grant will be at home at 745 Bloor Street West.—Toronto Globe.

OBITUARY

DR. H. R. GARBUTT DEAD

The death took place in Toronto yesterday of Dr. H. R. Carbutt from ptomaine poisoning, after an illness of one week. The deceased was a brother of Mrs. Ford Turner, of this city, who was called to Toronto on Saturday.

WILLIAM H. PETHICK.

The death occurred last evening of William H. Pethick, 315 Maitland avenue, after a lingering illness. The deceased, who was 53 year of age, is survived by his sorrowing wife, two daughters, Myrtle of Toronto, and Willa at home; three sons, Russell and Frank at home, Clarence of Bracebridge; also three sisters, Mrs. Percy Hunter of Calgary, Mrs. John Serymecour of Rochester, and Mrs. Wm. Whitford of San Francisco; and one brother, Frank, of Rochester

The funeral will take place from his late residence on Tuesay, March 4th. Service at two o'clock under the auspices of the Canadian Order of Foresters.

JAMES SCOLLARD.

The death took place in Ennismore last evening of James Scollard, one of the oldest residents of the township, who had lived there since his birth, 86 years ago. The deceased, whose wife predeceased him some years ago, was the father of twelve children, eleven of who are living, nine daughters: Mrs. William Harrington, Mrs. J. P. Flood, Mrs. W. D Cavanagh, Mrs. T. T. Cruagis, all of Ennismore, Mrs. Patrick O'Connor, of Toronto, Mrs. Charles Connolly of Edmonton, Mrs. William Houlihan and Mrs. M. A. Spang, of Grand Rapids, Minnesota; and Miss Mary at home, and two sons, William, of Peterboro, and Frank, at home. Another daughter, Mrs. James Killen of Ennismore, died three years ago.

Bishop Scollard of North Bay, is a nephew of the deceased.

The funeral will take place at 10 o'clock on Wednesday morning from his late residence to St. Martin's church, Ennismore, thence to St. Martin's cemetery.

FREDERICK AGNEW.

The death occurred on Sunday, March 2, of a life-long resident of Peterboro, in the person of Frederick James Agnew, in his 48th year. He had been ill for several weeks, and for the last five days had been confined to his bed. He was a faithful member of the Mark Street Methodist Church, and was employed at the Peterboro Planing Mill as a machine hand.

There are left to mourn his loss, besides his sorrowing wife, two daughters, Madge and Margaret, at home; four sons, Leonard of Orono, Cyril, Harold and Gordon, all at home; one brother, George, of this city, and two sisters, Mrs. Calbert, of Fenelon Falls, and Mrs. Jordan, of Galt.

The funeral will take place on Wednesday, March 5, at 2 o'clock, from the late residence, 550 Harvey Street, and proceed to the Little Lake Cemetery, where interment will take place.

Rev. R. Bamforth will officiate.

BIRTH.

WALLACE.—At Nicholls Hospital, on Sunday, March 2nd, 1924, to Mr. and Mrs. James F. H. Wallace, 512 Dickson street, a daughter.

KINGSTON.—On Saturday, March 1st, at the Cottage Hospital, Toronto, to Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Kingston, of Thorold, a son (Peter Bradley.)

DIED.

PETHICK— On Sunday evening, March 2nd, at his late residence, 315 Maitland avenue, William H. Pethick. Funeral on Tuesday, March 4th. Services at 2 o'clock under auspices of the Canadian Order of Foresters.

IN MEMORIAM.

CHILDS. — In loving memory of Alice Childs, beloved wife of Andrew Childs, who died on 2nd March, 1921.

We watched her suffer day by day,
It caused us bitter grief
To see her slowly pine away
And could not give relief.
Her wearly hours and nights of pain,
Her troubled nights are past;
And in our aching hearts we know
She has found sweet rest at last.

Canadian Stock Exchange And Mines | New York Stock Exchange and Curb Pri

Today's Quotations and Opinion and Reviews of the Markets.

New York, March 3, United Press —News developments over the week end left the speculative situation unchanged and the principal interest at the start of the new week in the stock market converged upon special movments in individual stocks. Virginia Carolina Chemical preferred broke to a new low at 87-8 compared with last week's high of 18½, depressed by the receivership announcement.

United States cast iron pipe continued its sensational advance, reaching 77¼. Interests responsible for this rise were also active in Fisher body which mounted to a record, 1924 high at 208 3-4. Price movements through the first hour continued confused; the irregularity encouraged the professional operators to resume their aggressiveness on the short side. Th rubber shares were subjected to renewed pressure on the thory that th poor 1923 results rendered them especially vulnerable.

United States rubber declined to a new low for the year at 31 3-4. Unsettlement in the group started selling among the Industrial leaders, fractional recessions taking place in Baldwin and Studebaker.

The Coppers developed a better tone, helped by American Smelting's favorable showing in 1923. Conflict price movement kept market in a confused state in the late morning.

Pressure was directed against the Leather shares. The Northwestern roads also had to absorb additional selling which spread to some of the eastern lines, including Delaware and Hudson which dropped to 108 against last week's high of 112 3-4, and New Haven which recede fractionally on large offerings.

Numerous strong spots however served to offset the general heaviness. The Tractions displayed special strength: B M T preferred reaching a new high on the movement at 55.5-8. Utah Copper to-day declared its regular quarterly dividend of $1.

RADIO

A Northern Electric fan reports that for the first time, he listened to a programme of orchestra dance music from Toronto on Friday evening. He has had Montreal a number of times, but this was the first Toronto station picked up. Another listened to the opening programme of the new Ottawa station, a day or so before.

Peterborough radio fans have less success getting Canadian stations than with the U.S. broadcasters, but Northern Electric sets bring them in if any will.

CANADIAN NATIONAL TRAINS IN HEAD-ON

Engine Crews Jumped Into a Snow Bank Before the Impact.

STRATFORD, March 3.—(Canadian Press.)— Two Canadian National Railway trains, passenger and freight, met head-on near St. Paul's this morning, but luckily there were no casualties among the passengers and crews. Both engines were badly damaged, the passenger engine buckling half way through the baggage car behind. The main factor in the escape of the passengers was that the baggage car was of steel construction. The crews of both engines jumped into snow banks just before the impact.

PASSPORTS TO EUROPE ARE TO BE INCREASED

OTTAWA, March 3rd.—(Canadian Press). — Persons who are planning to visit Europe during the coming Spring and Summer will find that they must pay more for their passports. On the fifteenth of this month. The fee in confection with the issue of the passport will be advanced from two to five dollars while the fee for the renewal of a passport, now one dollar, will be increased to two.

HAREM MEMBERS ARE TO SAIL FOR ALEXANDRIA

CONSTANTINOPLE, March 3rd (Canadian Press).—All members of the Calip's harem are expected to sail for Alexandria on March 15th, in consequence of the movement for the abolition of Calispsate. Prince Orchan, grandson of the late Sultan Abdul Hamid and a student at the Robert College is on the list of those to be expelled.

BOY FOUND BEATING HIS WAY ON ENGINE

OTTAWA, March 3.—(Canadian Press).—Jed Embree, aged 15, who told the police that he was "beating his way" to join his father at New Westminster B. C., was found riding the tender of an engine on the Imperial Limited, here, early this morning. He stated that his married brother at Port Hawkesbury with whom he had been living, had turned him out of his home.

GOOD HARDWOOD AT TWO PRICES

Nine and Ten Dollars Cord in Stovelength

We have had numerous inquiries for our good Hardwood at Ten Dollars a Cord, delivered from the Cars. It is nearly three weeks since the last car was shipped in, and now that our sawmill is running, we may not ship in any more cars for another month. However, to meet the demands of our many customers for the best and biggest wood value in the City, we have a quantity of good Hardwood that has been in our Dublin Street Yard since last November, which we will sell out as long as it lasts at Nine and Eleven Dollars a Cord, cut in stove lengths. Call and see the wood, and take your choice. It is all good Hardwood and will not last long at this price. Get your order in early — W. H. Baker, Peterborough Planing Mill. Telephone 1452J.

REDUCTION OF NATIONAL DEBT HELD UP AS AN ACHIEVEMENT BY PREMIER KING IN CROSS-FIRE WITH MEIGHEN

Government Will Balance the Budget For First Time Since 1912-13, Premier Asserted — Opposition Leader Emphasized Exodus of Canadians to the United States and Described Speech From the Throne As "Electioneering Document."

OPENING CLASHES IN PARLIAMENT

OTTAWA, March 4 (Canadian Press). — Premier King and Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, leader of the Opposition, met in debate on the floor of the House of Commons on Monday. It was the opening phase of the battle on the Address—a phase which opened placidly enough with public galleries only half filled. But as the afternoon wore into evening, galleries crowded and set speech was broken with interruptions, with sharp retort and rapid rejoinder.

Mr. Meighen followed the formal speeches of mover and seconder. He spoke under the evident handicap of a cold. He first analysed Canada's export and import trade, declaring that examination gave ground for serious reflection. Exports of Canadian farm products other than grain were decreasing; there were greater exports in raw wood; Canada was shipping raw materials to feed the workshops of other countries.

Hegira Across Border.

He then demanded to know what single effort of the present administration had resulted in the least advantage to the people of Canada. He emphasised the exodus of Canadians to the United States. He quoted official American figures to show that in 1921, the exodus was an average of 4,410 per month; in 1922, 5,198 per month; and in 1923, from April on, it was 17,595 per month. "This" added Mr. Meighen in caustic tones, "is the fine fruit and flower of the policy of the Government. This is the bright, illuminating sun that dawned as soon as they got into their stride."

Mr Meighen, speaking of the King-Crerar conversations, asked how often the performance was to be repeated. The Speech from the Throne was an "electioneering document," a bid made for the support of Progressives.

There was also an intimation that the duty on agricultural implements would be removed. When had it been the practice to announce the removal of a duty before the introduction of the Budget? "Why this departure now?" Mr. Meighen asked. "I don't need to ask the gentlemen at my left (the Progressives). These are the white, round stones that are expected to do the work. "It did not matter whether business was dislocated or artisans deprived of their work if the Government could enlist the support of the Progressives.

"Puffs" for Government.

The speech contained much praise for the Government. "Never did self-puffery attain the stage of perfection that it has in this Speech from the Throne," Mr. Meighen declared. He referred to the use of the words "stabilisation and equalisation," saying these "charmed words" have now taken the place of "co-ordination."

Some of the paragraphs of the Speech were "only a collecion of hopes mixed in with the zig-zag philosophy—the twilight musings of the members of the Government."

Mr. Meighen referred to the result of by-elections since the Government took office. Some of them the Government had won by greatly decreased majorities. Others they had lost. Of old, the Prime Minister had been wont to read important lessons from results like these.

Planted a Candidate.

In connection with the North Cape Breton by-election, Mr Meighen said that the Minister of National Defence (E. M. MacDonald) had brought a Labour candidate into the field in order to protect the Government candidate. If he had not done it himself, he had consorted with his associates to bring the Labour man into the contest with the result that 1,60 votes had been taken away from the Conservatives.

Mr. MacDonald immediately rose and denied the truth of the statement. "I must ask that it be withdrawn," he said.

Government supporters called out "withdraw," and the Speaker was forced to intervene.

Mr. Meighen finally accepted Mr. MacDonald's statement and the Speaker said that he understood the charge that Mr. MacDonald had brought in a Labour candidate had been withdrawn.

Mr. MacDonald declared that nothing in the Opposition leader's part in the Cape Breton election reflected any honour upon him, to which Mr. Meighen retorted that at least he had stood by what he had said.

Halifax Promises.

Taking up the election in Halifax, Mr Meighen recited the promises of an elevator at Dartmouth Pier, a railway extension, and a fisheries station, and described it as "the most brazen attempt at constituency bribery on record save only in Kent".

Mr. MacDonald interrupted again protest against being saddled with the responsibility of having made all these promises. He denied that he had promised the pier or the elevator and added: "Why should I not mention a biological station?"

"Oh, it would be beneath the Minister of National Defence to promise a pier or an elevator," remarked Mr. Meighen, "but a fishery station is all right."

Premier's Address.

Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie-King resumed the debate after the dinner recess. He warmly congratulated the mover and seconder of the Address, then proceeded to reply to the charges made by Mr. Meigehen in the afternoon.

Mr. King expressed his astonishment at the "mildness" of Mr. Meighen's remarks.

During the past eight months the Opposition leader had been delivering speeches in every part of Canada in which he told of the burden of taxation and debt which this country was supposed to be suffering under because of the mismanagement of the Liberal Government.

"On this pilgrimage of woe," said Mr King, "in which he was the chief mourner, he has with difficulty restrained himself from super-flights of condemnation. Now, when he comes back to this House armed with the privilege of moving a vote of want of confidence in this administration he fails to take advantage of this privilege and prefers to leave most of the extreme statements he has to make to the press. He has not repeated them here to-day."

When the Prime Minister went on to discuss by-elections, a sharp exchange between himself and Mr. Meighen resulted.

Appealed to Electors.

The Prime Minister said that when a seat had fallen vacant in the his Government had not hesitated to go to the electors at once. This might be contrasted with the state of affairs under the previous Government, which, said Mr. King, would continue to conduct the business of Parliament with several vacant seats because it was afraid to face the voters.

At this point Mr. Meighen interrupted to inquire: "How many vacant seats?"

Mr. King: "I don't remember. One or two anyway."

Mr. Meighen protested that the Prime Minister had implied there were more and Mr. King retorted that he "only wanted to bring the leader of the Opposition to his feet."

During the next few minutes there was a continual give and take of repartee between the two leaders.

Caused Dissatisfaction.

Mr. King remarked that for two years after the Liberal Government was returned to power it had brought on a by-election whenever a seat was vacant and never lost one. The Conservative Opposition had been able to win a couple of seats recently by means of "sectional appeals." He would like to point out that some changes made in the personnel of Government Railways in the Maritime Provinces had caused dissatisfaction amongst Government supporters in that part of the country which undoubtedly reacted against the Government. But those changes had been made by the management of the Canadian National Railways appointed to put the National road on its feet and given a free hand in the matter of re-organisation. In other words the Government had suffered because it stuck to its policy of no politics in the National Railways.

Mr. King referred to Mr. Meighen's protest yesterday afternoon against a reference in the Speech from the Throne to an impending change in tariff policy. Mr. Meighen, he said, had implied that this should not be done.

Mr. Meighen rose to protest that what he objected to was an implication of a specific alternative in the tariff. This had no place in the Speech from the Throne.

Never Submitted.

The Prime Minister proceeded to read from the Speech from the Throne delivered during Mr. Meighen's administration which said that a tariff board was making an investigation of trade conditions and recommended certain changes in the tariff to relieve taxation and that certain proposals would be submitted to the House. "Those proposals never were submitted" declared the Premier.

Then Mr. King read from the Speech from the Throne in 1897, which also approved of the principle of tariff revision. "Both these references in advance to impending tariff revision were specific enough," said the Premier. "The promise made in 1897 was carried out. The promise made by my right honourable friend in 1920 will ve carried out by another Liberal administration."

Says Many Returned.

Mr. King said that Mr. Meighen's figures concerning the number of Canadian who had gone to live in the United States did not tell the whole truth about this matter. The American Government might keep a record of Canadians coming in. It had no record of those who had returned to Canada. These were estimated at 60 per cent. of the number who left Canada, according to a recent report from Canadian officials in the United States.

The Prime Minister said that Mr. Meighen appeared to think it extraordinary that he should consult with Hon T. A. Crerar and Hon. Charles Dunning in regard to conditions in Canada. He had, said Mr. King, been seeking information from a great many sources, and Messrs. Dunning and Crerar were asked to come to Ottawa because he felt that they would have valuable information for him. He had also talked with other prominent members of the Progressive Party during the recess and since the session started in order to gather information.

Unity of East and West was one of the most important ideals to be attained. The Government had set itself to find a policy sufficiently national and Canadian for men who feel that they could support it not because of party affiliations, "but as citizens of the country who are anxious to see it prosperous, united, and strong."

Unite East and West.

"We have set ourselves this task, and I make this appeal to gentlemen opposite who come from the West," said Mr. King. "We as a Government have undertaken seriously to do the best we can in the light of the knowledge we have to bind Eastern and Western Canada together. We cannot do it ourselves, but we say to honourable gentlemen that if they are prepared to give us the support which we need to carry out the policies which we believe to be in the national interests, we shall be able to accomplish the task that is before us. In making that statement I am not saying more than my friends from the West have said repeatedly, namely, that they are prepared to stand by this Government gives expression to the policies which it is pledged to carry out."

Debt Reduced.

Mr. King declared that the instruments of production were the capital with which men had to work with. Just as soon as the finances of the country would permit the Government felt that there should be some relief from the burden of taxation on implements of production for the development of natural resources. He remarked that Mr. Meighen hadn't mentioned ont or two things which were in the Speech from the Throne. One of these was the reduction in the National debt. In the year 1919-1920, when Mr. Meighen was a member of the Government, the addition to the National debt was $92,000,000, the next year the increase had been $81,000,000.

Mr. Meighen interjected that a proportion of this increase was due to war gratuities, soldiers' settlement expenses, and other war obligations.

Mr. King went on to say that in 1922-1923 the present Government had added but $31,000,000 to the debt.

Mr. Meighen: "That is entirely wrong, and the financial statement shows it."

Mr. King stated that the increase was $31,500,000, to be exact. During the present fiscal year the Government had been freed from a portion of the war obligation, and for the first time since 1912-1913 the Budget would be balanced. There would be an increase in receipts over the expenditures.

Explosion Cause Baffles Experts

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J., March 4.—(Canadian Press).—Investigation into the causes of Saturday's explosion at Nixon, four miles from here, which killed 18 persons and destroyed forty buildings, has as yet revealed no chemical expert who can account for ammonium-nitrate causing all the damage of the explosion, Assistant Prosecutor J. E. Toolan, of Middlesex County, said last night.

After Monday's examination of chemists, experts and others, Mr. Toolan said that all the experts whom he has questioned since Saturday have been unanimous in stating that ammonium-nitrate is not dangerous, can be handled like sugar or salt, and that it is a harmless product. He further stated that there was some substance present which should not have been there and that his office is trying to learn how it got there.

Daugherty Probe Postponed Until Details Planned

Hearing of Witnesses In Inquiry Into the U. S. Department of Justice Will Begin Next Week—No Developments In the Senate.

WASHINGTON, March 4. — Tentative plans for beginning the investigation of Attorney-General Daugherty and the Department of Justice were made by the special Senate committee yesterday, but Chairman Brookhart said the actual hearing of witnesses probably would be delayed until next week.

The committee appointed Senator Wheeler, Democrat, Montana, author of the investigation resolution sub-committee of one to determine the first subject of inquiry and when the hearings should open.

The committee meeting was Monday's only development. There was no discussion of the Attorney-General in the Senate.

At the White House it was said no communication had been received from Mr. Daugherty, although news despatches from Miami had quoted him as expecting to send some message to the President during the day.

White House officials said yesterday that President Coolidge did not care to dignify by comment the declaration of Frank A. Vanderlip Sunday that the President had asked but not received the resignation of Attorney-General Daugherty.

The story repeatedly has been denied by all of those in a position to speak authoritatively.

MILLIONS FOR FARM CREDITS

Bill Proposing Loans to Enable U. S. Farmers to Diversify Their Crops Described As "Paternalism Run Rampant."

WASHINGTON, March 4. — Strenuous opposition yesterday greeted the appearance in the Senate of the first special farm relief measure—the Norbeck-Burtness bill—proposing the loan of $75,000,000 to finance diversification. Declaring it was "paternalism run rampant," Senator Fletcher, Democrat, Florida, said it was time to call a halt upon such a measure.

"We are proposing to loan this money," he said, "for the purpose of enabling the one-crop farmer to keep livestock on land never adaptable for grazing or to raise other crops where the land will not produce but one. We have already gone the limit along this line."

Senator Fletcher's attitud was understood to be that of several other senators on the Democratic side and of some Republicans. An effort of Senator Ladd, Republican, North Dakota, to end debate at 3 o'clock to-day was blocked by notification from several senators that they desired to discuss the measure.

Desire Assistance.

The North Dakota Senator, having reported the bill from the agricultural committee, assumed charge of it on the floor. He contended the Government owed special consideration to the Spring wheat farmers because of the evils they had suffered through the war time propaganda which at once increased production and decreased consumption. Every other class in the United States has been aided, he said, either by the tariff or through direct or indirect subsidy.

Several amendments already have been proposed to the bill, which would increase the amount carried to $105,000,000. Among them is a provision offered by Senator Barsum, Republican New Mexico, which would add $20,000,000 for loans to banks in the north-west. Senator Fletcher said the purpose of this was to "bolster busted banks."

Centralize Authority.

"The whole tendency," he said, "is toward further centralization of authority in the Federal Government. Can you imagine the Secretary of Agriculture supervising this fund without taking some control of the farms he aids, of the Comptroller passing out his funds without retaining some control of those banks?

"Of course if the idea is to establish a good campaign fund, I have no doubt that fifty or a hundred million properly handled would be very effective."

Senator Bursum here interjected the remark that "the Senator certainly does not want to leave he idea that any administration would capitalize the miseries of farmer," and Senator Fletcher replied he had "merely suggested that in passing."

Trapper's Strychnine Poisoned Many Cattle.

SUDBURY, March 4. —Charged with leaving strychnine capsules in a field in Broder township, causing the death of many cattle, Albert Myholm is held here by the provincial police. He is a Finnish trapper. Provincial analyst will be brought from Toronto to testify. It is claimed Myholm put out poison with a view to securing pelts of dead animals.

CONSERVATIVE MEMBER DECLARES TEMPERANCE ACT FARCE AND FOLLY

W. C. Weichel of North Waterloo Says That Bootlegging Flourishes and Prohibition Has Put the Liquor Traffic Underground--Hon. F. C. Nixon Defends U.F.O. Government and Criticizes the Budget.

BILLS ADVANCED.

TORONTO, March 4. — At the afternoon session of the Legislature on Monday, Alex. Lewis (Con., North East, Toronto) got a second reading for his bill enabling municipal councils by a two thirds vote of the council to buy fire apparatus up to $20,000 value without a vote of the people. The limit at present is $5,000. Another clause of the bill would enable unincorporated villages to purchase fire fighting apparatus and be assessed separately for it in their municipality. Hon. Manning Doherty was opposed to allowing councils to spend such large sums of money without a vote. The bill however was referred to the municipal committee.

Major Gray (Leds) got a second reading for a bill providing that if a municipality hires a second engineer on work that the first engineer must be notified officially. The lack of such a clause had been the cause of litigation.

Wiliam Keith (North York) passed a bill through second reading giving townships adjoining urban centres th right of regulating electrical workers.

Second reading was given a bill by J. C. Milligan (Stormont) providing for an appeal by corporations against assessment. At present the appeal must be taken out by an elector. The amendment makes it read "persons assessed."

Nixon on Budget.

Hon. H. C. Nixon, former provincial secretary, continuing the debate on the budget, said that it was felt by many that Col. J. A. Currie in expressing his ideas against the O.T.A. was voicing the sentiments of the government, which was afraid to express them officially.

"If he is not expressing the opinions of the government there is surely an insurrection in the Tory camp" he continued.

"But I wonder how far wrong it is to say that when the Houses rises the government will feel that the time is ripe for a referendum, and that we will have one in June. The revenue from a system of government control would approximate four million and that is what the provincial treasurer has announced he will make up in revenue this year?"

Mr. Nixon got another declaration from the Premier that the Liberals would remain the official opposition. The Premier added that the law was clear on the matters of groups, and that anyone leading 15 members or over secured $1500 additional.

Credit for Kapuskasing.

Mr. Nixon said the budget speech contained no budget at all. He understood budget as meaning forecast. He announced that the Liberals had not moved an amendment that he would have moved one. He thought there had been some fine distinctions drawn as to what was capital expenditure and what ordinary. Anything that was of lasting benefit to the province he argued could be capital. He took credit to the U.F.O. Government for the remaking of Kapuskasing, and reminded the House that the present Attorney-General (Mr. Nickle) in a report on Kapuskasing had condemned it, and that in commenting on the report the premier had stated that Mr. Nickle was not a good Tory anyway.

"Will he say that to-day?" asked Mr. Nixon. He condemned the expenditure of money on a moving picture plant without a vote of the House, and advised the government to get away from its 'doubting Thomas" attitude on the provincial savings bank.

Ferguson Vindicated.

W. C. Weichel (Con., North Waterloo) said that the people of Ontario in the election had vindicated Premier Ferguson of slanderous charges. Ontario, he said, wanted immigrants who would work, and industry and the welfare of the people demanded that Canada have a tariff as high as that of the United States. He advocated an immediate embargo on pulp wood. He also said there should be a subsidy, if necessary, to bring Alberta coal to Ontario. He defended the Kitchener police against the charges that they were not trying to enforce the temperance act.

Prohibition Failure.

He attacked the O.T.A. vigorously, declaring that "prohibition does not prohibit, but puts the liquor traffic underground."

"The most flourishing industry in Ontario to-day is boot-legging. Men have made hundreds of thousands out of it. That revenue should come to the province. Personally, I think I am a temperance man, because I am moderate." He pointed out that the Western provinces had changed over from prohibition, and said that Quebec had enough sense never to have tried it. "You can't put a policeman's club behind a man to make him good, he said. "The law must be written in the heart before it can be effective. The history of the O.T.A. has been a failure, folly and farce."

He attacked Hon. W. E. Raney for his article in a Toronto weekly paper on the Quebec liquor situation. "That is no way to try to be on the best of friendship with our sister province —that is not choosing a good spirit towards our fellow Canadians," he said.

Theunis to Form Belgian Cabinet

BRUSSELS, March 4.—(Canadian Press). — M. Theunis, whose ministry resigned last week after a defeat in the Chamber on the Franco-Belgian economic convention, seemed likely last night to agree to form his third cabinet, provided he gets certain assurances of support from the Flemish Party. His decision to re-enter the banking field has been weakening under pressure from many sources that he remain in power to clean up the reparation problem. If he accepts the formation of a new cabinet, it will be reduced to eight ministers.

The change in the attitude of M. Theunis was noticeable after he had an interview with King Albert. In the course of the conversation they discussed the exchange of letters between Premiers Poincare and MacDonald.

EXPERTS AGREE ON GOLD BANK

All-Day Conference With President of the German Reichsbank--Reports Are Expected By Full Committee on Wednesday.

PARIS, March 4.—A final agreement has been arrived at by the Reparation Experts and Dr. Hjalmar Schacht concerning the form of the new gold bank which the President of the Reichsbank proposes to set up. This gold bank is to be absorbed later by the bank issue which the experts committee will recommend to the Reparation Commission. The sub-committee having the bank under consideration was in conference with Dr. Schacht all Monday. It will report to the full committee Wednesday when the bank section report to the Reparation Commission probably will be adopted.

The experts committee will recommend that the bank of issue be located in a neutral country, probably Holland, The Hague being favoured as the seat.

The sub-committees on the German budget and railroads will endeavour to finish their work to-day so as to report to the full committee Wednesday. It is now expected that the experts' report will begin to take shape at that session.

Reginald McKenna will be back in Paris Monday for the final meeting of the committee which has been considering the exodus of German capital.

LABOR IN SOCIAL WHIRL.

Former Coal Miner Now Owns Full Court Regalia—Sword and All.

LONDON, March 3. — There are stern, unbending Socailists who continue to write to the labor press urging that labor should have nothing to do with the "mummery and flummery" of court ceremonies and social entertaining, but labor is not making any violent break with tradition in this or in greater matters.

Tom Griffiths, formerly Welsh coal miner, now treasurer of the King's household is not wearing any modified court dress, but the old historic uniform in full glory, black velvet coat, steel buttons, knee breeches, silk stockings, buckled shoes, sword and cocked hat.

Mrs. Noel Buxton gave a Labor reception last Tuesday, which was not very different from that of the usual "crushes" of political hosesses. It was held in a hotel. The men wore morning dress but many of the ladies were elaborately gowned. There was a considerable sprinkling of university professors and distinguished writers and artists among the labor enthusiasts present.

EFFECTIVE PUBLICITY.

Just as with every enlightened organization nowadays, the Bell Telephone Company finds that it pays to advertise. The Annual Report of the Company says: "Through the press, addresses by employees, demonstrations before public bodies, and by invitations to our exchanges, we have continued our policy of telling the public freely of our service problems. There is evident benefit from these frank statements, both in general understanding of telephone service and in more effective use thereof. This ready response of the public is helpful and encouraging, and is much appreciated."

Belasco to Close Theatre Because of Actors' Union

Theatre An Art Not a Shop, Says Dean of American Stage—Principles of Organized Labor Do Not Apply to Art--Close Engagements On Road.

NEW YORK, March 4.—(Canadian Press).—Declaring he no longer could accept the principles of the closed shop as applied by the Actor's Equity of the American Federation of Labor, David Belasco yesterday announced he would, before June 1, close the engagements of all his production on tour and darken his New York theatre.

Among prominent members of the Actors' Equity whose contracts with Mr. Belasco will expire in the next few months and, he says, will no be renewed, are Lenore Ulric, Lionel Barrymore and David Warfield.

Mr. Belasco's decision was announced in a statement in which he said that, although he had worked beside and made friends with officers of the Actors' Equity, he "does not feel that the principles involved in forming the American Federation of Labor apply to the theatre, or in fact, to any art."

"The theatre is not a shop, it is an art," he said. "No manager worthy of the name goes in it for money. We all die poor; but the theatre goes on. Others comes to take our places, and we must think of them. I dare not be called a shirker twenty years hence."

DELORME DUMMY USED IN COURT

Gruesome Presentation of the Murdered Youth's Clothes Considered Preferable to Handling By Jurors — Trial Retraces Previous Evidence.

MONTREAL, March 4.—Strong objection to the introduction in court of the so-called mannequin or dummy, which is, as a fact, a clothes hanger with a wooden foot plate and a knob on top, on the ground that it is too gruesome, repulsive, awe-inspiring and unclean, were made by the defence counsel at the trial here on Monday afternoon of Rev. Adelard Delorme, on a charge of having murdered his half-brother, Raol, in January, 1923.

The dummy wears the blood-stained and mud-bespattered garments which Raoul Delorme was wearing ot the time of the murder. It was produced in court during the trial in the King's Bench Court here last summer. Alban Germain, K.C., for the defence, protested that to show this exhibit in court would be revolting to the jurymen and everyone else. "It is as gruesome as it is useless," he said.

R. L. Calder, K.C., Crown Prosecutor, objected that the only other alternative would be to have all the other witnesses manipulate each garment, a procedure, he thought, which would be fully as unpleasant and repulsive.

"I confess," said Mr. Justice Martineau, "that I am not very anxious to have this exhibit in court. I read in a newspaper that the audience trembled when it was brought in. However, Mr. Calder's explanations are very reasonable. I think it is preferable to have the mannequin in rather than to have the witnesses and officers of the court manipulate each garment."

No new Evidence.

The dummy was then brought into court. Father Delorme paid no attention to it. During the afternoon session the evidence brought out no new facts. Chief Turgeon, of the Cote St. Michel police admitted that the 'blood stains' near the Cote St. Michel road had on analysis turned out to be a harmless fluid.

Ambroise Gravel told how he discovered the blood stained cap which Raoul Delorme had worn lying in the road as he drove to work on the Saturday that the murder was discovered.

Joseph Desjardins, a farmer of St. Michel, told of having seen a pool of blood 15 inches in diameter, about 3 feet from the roadside. He informed Chief Turgeon and showed him the spot. This was later found not to be blood.

Chief George Rioux of the Provincial Police produced quilts found in the possession of Florence and Lily Delorme.

Objection to the production of these quilts was over-ruled by the judge.

Hector Duranceau, ticket agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway, told of Father Delorme coming to claim a rebate on the return ticket bought by Raoul Delorme. The unused portion was from Montreal to Ottawa. The accused filled in the regulation form, applying for a rebate, and signed it "Adelard Delorme, priest, 190 St Hubert Street, Montreal."

Jury Object to Hotel.

In the morning session complaints were raised by a juryman as to the conditions at the hotel at which the jury was being housed. During the noon session the jury were moved from this hotel to another nearby.

The court suggested that the hours of the afternoon session be prolonged from 4 to 5 o'clock, and this was at once accepted by the jury.

The longer hours will go into effect to-day.

CITY COUNCIL HAD BIG BILL ROUTINE WORK

Turned Down Application for New Chinese Restaurant With Notice Given to Re-open the Question--Several By-laws Passed Three Readings.

TWO DEPUTATIONS

A long list of names, seventy one in all, was attached to a petition presented last night asking the city council not to grant a license for a Chinese Restaurant on George Street in the premises lately occupied by the Taplin Shoe Company.

The granting of such a license, the petiton said, means injury to the business of residents carrying on a restaurant business in the city as well as hotel keepers, and it will cut down the amount of money expended in other restaurants and hotels among English speaking people, while a large part of the money paid to Oriental help is not used in Canada.

In addition to this, the petition continued, the Chinese restaurant is injurious to business in the immediate neighbourhood of it.

R. R. Hall, K. C., appeared for Hum Brothers, and said the objections might reasonably apply to any other man entering business in Peterboro.

"There must be a demand from the public," he said, "for these people to enter into the business."

Hum said he would keep his Charlotte Street restaurant open if he can get the lease extended and the proposed George Street restaurant would be operated in addition with a lease of seven years.

Alderman Meyers said the Chinese restaurants do not look well on the main streets of the city and moved to reject the application for a licence. He was supported by Alderman Phelan.

Alderman Maher said this is a delicate question. The council is desirous of complying with the wishes of the greatest number of citizens but a great many names were appended to the petition of men who were not intimately concerned with the question. Applying the general rule, Alderman Maher said he was inclined to grant the request.

Alderman Crowe said he had previously spoken in favour of granting the request and the best people in the city patronize the Chinese restaurants. They must, therefore, want the restaurants. "Dealing man to man," he said, "we don't want to be unfair and make distinctions. Why shouldn't this man get a chance People on George Street are having hard times to pay their rents and this man is willing to take the lease.

I would like to see some system whereby we would have some control of the prices. They can charge a man anything they like. I think we should specify what can be charged for an ordinary lunch.

So far as I'm concerned I am representing the people and I have an idea that the residents would sign a larger petition than this one."

Alderman Stocker changed his stand on the strength of the petition and would support Alderman Meyers.

The amendment moved by Alderman Maher and seconded by Alderman Crowe and supported by Alderman Morrison and McIntyre in favour of granting the licese was lost on a casting vote by the Mayor.

A motion renewing licenses for several eating houses passed on proposal of Alderman Phelan.

Alberta Coal Test Will Be Published In Full This Week

The Examiner will this week tabulate the results of its investigation into the use of Alberta coal in the homes of Peterborough, and publish the results at the end of the week.

A large number of persons who tried this fuel have written expressing their opinions, but there is still a number of reports to come in. If citizens will return these before Thursday it will materially aid in the compilation of statistics which it is hoped will indicate whether or not the people of Peterborough consider Alberta coal a good investment and satisfactory in everyday service.

Thursday is the last day these reports will be of service.

FRENCH FRANC STILL CONTINUES TO WEAKEN

Paris, March 4. United Press. — The French franc continucd to weaken to-day with the dollar at 24.10, and the pound sterling at 105.50.

A government financial authority told the United Press the continued fall of the franc was due to world-wide speculation.

"Many are selling short of francs. They are likely to experience heavy losses soon," he said. Other financiers claim that the latest slump is due to the month-end need of industrialists for foreign currency.

APPOINTED AGENT OF THE CONSERVATIVE PARTY.

LONDON, March 4.—(Canadian Press).—H. E. Blein, assistant managing director of the Metropolitan District Railway, London Electric Railway, City and South London Railway, Central London Railway, and London General Omnibus Company, Limited, has been appointed principal agent of the Conservative party in succession to Sir Reginald Hall. Sir Reginald resigned a few days ago as a result of criticism for having urged former Premier Baldwin to call the general election in December last, which proved the downfall of the Conservative Government.

DISCUSS SOLDIER BONUS.

WASHINGTON, March 4 (Canadian Press). — The form of payment of a soldier bonus occupied the attention of spokesmen before the House Ways and Means Committee yesterday at the opening fo a three-day session of public hearings.

Several propositions, including a plan to limit the bonus entirely to paid-up insurance policies for all veterans who served more than sixty days, were presented to the committee by members of the House who have introduced Bills.

SEYMOUR COUNCIL HELD A MEETING

List of Accounts Passed Road Improvement Discussed.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 4. — The Council of the Township of Seymour met in regular session yesterday, with all the members present and Reeve G. S. Vonvolkenburg in the chair. Minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted. Communications and accounts were read and considered.

James Clark made application for compensation for sheep killed and took the necessary affidavit.

An agreement for purchasing a strip of land from Henrietta Anderson along the road to Bradley Bay, opposite Lot 10, was discussed, and, on motion of Deputy Reeve Nelson and Councillor Milne, the Reeve was instructed to sign the necessary document.

W. Dracup, Reeve of Rawdon, and their road superintendent, Mr. Stout, waited on the Council regarding an account for the Rawdon and Seymour boundary. A compromise was effected, and a cheque for two hundred and thirteen dollars and seventy cents was passed in settlement of account to date.

Mr. Dunham made a final return o fthe collector's roll for 1923, showing a balance of uncollected taxes of $126.62, $7.18 being exemption, and a further amount of $7.24 for income being in Court at present, leaving a balance to return against land of $111.18.

Moved by Councillor Peake, and seconded by Deputy-Reeve Nelson, that whereas a new system is to be inaugurated in connection with the construction and maintenance of the roads of this Province and as legislation is now being considered to that effect, and whereas the main highway between Belleville and Peterborough leading through Stirling and Campbellford is mostly under the system of county roads, and in view of the importance of this highway as a leading artery of traffic between these two cities, therefore be it resolved that this Council is of the opinion that the protions of the said highway that have not been taken under the County Provincial system, should be made part of that system, and respectfully submit this proposition to the consideration of the Government of the Province of Ontario, and that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the Deputy Minister of Highways and to the local representative.—Carried.

The clerk was instructed to forward the measurements of cedar advertised for to Mr Spencer of Havelock and also to ask Mrs. Anderson to have deed of lands, purchased by the township prepared and ready for the April meeting.

The following accounts were then ordered to be paid, and the Reeve instructed to sign orders for the same, viz:

S. Babcock, $5.00. James Clarke sheep killed, $12.00. James Williams work on island road, $50.00. G. A. Hay, salary, express and stamps, $120.37. Municipal World, Dog Tags, $16.95. W. Dracup, balance of Rawdon Boundary, $213.70. H. Dunham, balance of salary and stamps, $112.85. E. Mitchell, road work and grave, $90.00. Making a total amount of $658.87.

The council then adjourned to meet Monday, April 7th, 1924, at 1 o'clock p. m.

OBITUARY

JAMES DILLWORTH.

WARKWORTH, March 4.—James Dillworth died Monday at the home of his nephew, Thomas Dillworth, near Bradley's Corners, in Brighton Township, aged 86 years. He had, in spite of his advanced age, enjoyed excellent health up to Tuesday of last week, when he suffered a stroke, from which he never rallied.

The deceased, who was a native of Ireland, came to Canada when a boy, and lived for some years near Marmora. Later he moved to New Ontario, where he took up farm land. For the past two years he had resided with his nephew, in whose home he died. His wife died some years ago, but he is survived by a son and daughter, who reside in New Ontario.

The funeral will be held to-day to the McPhail Cemetery near Wooler.

VESUVIUS ACTIVE AGAIN

ROME.—The activity of Vesuvius, which began mildly a short time ago, has grown more serious. Enormous blood-red flashes have been lighting up the whole cone, which appears to be red-hot, and smoke and cinders shot out in large quantities.

COUNCIL MEET IN WARKWORTH

Resignation of W. H. Nelson Was Accepted--Officials Named.

(By a Staff Reporter.)

WARKWORTH, March 4.— W. H. Nelson's resignation as deputy-reeve of Percy was accepted at the March meeting of the Council held here on Monday. On motion of Councillor Poole and Atkinson. Councillor Fairman suggested that, the resignation lay on the tabl, to give Mr. Nelson a chance to reconsider and so save the township the expense of an eletion but on this point he was over-ruled and finally th, resignation was unanimously accepted.

An ordinary municipal election costs the township about $120. As at the election to fill the present vacancy there will be only two candidates, the work of the officials will be light. With a view to economy, a new scale of compensation was set, on resolution of Councillor Atkinson deputies to receive $4 instead of $6, and poll clerks $2 instead of $3. Constables will be paid $2 as at the regula, election and the rent for polling booths was set at $4.

Election March 29.

There was a long discussion over the matter of setting a date for the nomination and special election. Councillor Fairman and Akinson submitted a resolution to defer this matter until the April meeting there contention being that voters could turn out with less inconvenience during latter month. Councillor Poole insisted upon disposing of the question with all legal expedition but his motion to that effect was not seconded.

The opinon of the Councillors is that if an independent candidate—some person other than either John Allan or ex-deputy Reeve Nelson, be nominated, that he will be given election by acclamation, and that the township will be saved a heavy expense.

The council went into session at 11 a. m. and with an hour for lunch were still doing business at 7 p. m. At that hour they finally agreed to a bye-law setting, th, nomination for March 22 and the electiton one week later. Saturday was chosen so that the public schools may be used as polling booths.

To Unseat Other Members.

There is talk in the township of unseating other members of the council but so far no definite action has been taken, and the present agitation may result in nothing.

Those members marked for disqualification are Reeve McCubbin, and Councillors Fairman and Poole. The Reeve held the position of pathmaster when elected to his present position. Councillor Fairman is a commissioner of the Percy Municipal Telephone Company, and it is alleged that Councillor Poole forfeited his seat by selling wood to the municipality.

None of the three is worrying. Reeve McCubbin calls attention to the fact that every member of a rural council is a road overseer by virtue of his office, and can be unseated only if he makes a contract with the township.

Councillor Fairman claims that the telephone system, although a municipal line, is independent of the council and that the business of both does not conflict.

Councillor Poole's son, who resides with his father, delivered the wood in question at the town hall and received the money for it. The councillor himself did not appear in the transaction.

Pathmasters Appointed.

The 124 pathmasters in the township were reappointed. Nearly all of these will hold over but the new over seers are as follows: District 8, Wm. Greenley, district 13, William McKenzie; District 24, William Ireland; District 28, John Cooney; District 32, James O'Reilly; District 37, John McCleary; District 39, Frank Watson; Distrct 40, E. Ingram; District 44, William Partridge; District 48, Levi Jewell; District 51, Joseph Trotter; District 82, F. O'Rorke; District 84, William Forrestalt: District 86, George Patridge; District 103, B. Isaacs; District 107, Thomas R. Brown; District 111, W. Mitchell.

The statute labor of Alfred Armour, J. R. and Sam Moir, Frank and Edmund Collins, who live in District 57, in which N. Bibby is the new pathmaster, was commuted, as these residents have waited for some time, or putting in their work on another beat. They will be given an opportunity now to work out their statute labor provided they do so in the proper district.

New Poundkeepers.

Four new poundkeepers out of the 31 in office, were appointed as follows: District 13, H. Skinkle; District 24, Fred Hendy; District 28, Thomas Downs; District 30, Roy Oliver.

The 34 fence viewers were all reappointed.

School Attendance Good.

School Attendance Officer Thomas Allan submitted the reports from 12 of the 13 schools in the town ship, all of which contained the information that the attendance was satisfactory and that there were no cases of truancy. The school that failed to report as required by law, will be notified that unless it does so the omission will be brought to the attention of the Department of Education.

A Month of Grace.

The collector was allowed until the April meeting to return his roll. There are some taxes still outstanding and the Council feel that these cases are entitled to some consideration.

Constable Phillips' Complaint.

Constable A. Phillips, although duly empowered to enforce the law in two counties and in the police village of Warkworth, is in receipt of no salary. Not only so, but he has been compelled to purchase his own handcuffs and revolver. Last spring there was a small epidemic of burglary and other crime in Warkworth which the constable cleaned up, but for all his trouble the village allowed him nothing, and the county authorities refused to pay anything but his tax bills. He laid these facts before the Council yesterday, but Reeve McCubbin told him that the township could do nothing for him. He added that he had been informed that if such bills were properly presented at Cobourg they would be laid before the Counties Council and that that body, he was convinced, would order them paid.

CAMPBELLFORD COUNCIL MEET

Local Improvements Discussed -- Want Belleville-Peterboro Road Improved.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 4. — Mayor A. J. Meyers, Councillors Kingston and McDonald will act as a special committee of the Town Council to do everything possible to have the road from Belleville to Peterboro, which passes through Campbellford, made a county Provincial highway for its entire length, something which it is now only in sections. This action was taken at the regular meeting of the Council last night on the suggestion of the Mayor, and on motion of Reeve Davidson and Deputy-Reeve Dorie, the mover nominating the members of the committee.

Councillor Kingston made a report of the result of the delegation's visit to Toronto to attend the Good Roads Association meeting and to ask for a grant for the Campbellford bridge. As the law now stands, a grant is impossible. The highway officials told the delegation that a grant could be made if the approaches to the bridge were bordered by agricultural lands. An advisory committee is to be appointed by the Legislature to consider the highway problem, and the chances are that they will advise that Government aid be given to bridges such as the one at Campbellford. At all events, the delegation was encouraged to hope that eventually their request would be granted.

If the Belleville-Peterborough road is taken over as a county provincial highway it will mean that this town will receive provincial aid for paving its streets that form a link in the roadway.

The Seymour Council, at its session yesterday afternoon, adopted a resolution asking that the Belleville-Peterborough road be made a provincial highway. The councils of Stirling, Rawdon and other municipalities interested will be asked to join in this resolution, copies of which will be sent to the Department of Highways and the local representatives. A similar resolution sponsored by Deputy-Reeve Dorie and Councillor McDonald, was adopted by the Council last night.

Joined the Association.

Reeve Davidson reported that the delegations had been so impressed with the work of the Good Roads Association that it had been decided to join the organization, authority to do so having been given by the council when the members of the delegation were appointed.

To Hold Special Session.

On motion of Deputy Reeve Dorie and Councillor Abernethy, it was resolved to hold a special session in the clerk's office next Monday evening to consider the sewer question. It is now proposed to construct trunk sewers on Sebastapol and Second street to take care of the sewage from adjacent streets when the system is extended. The residents on these streets petitioned only for sewers to meet their own needs, these to be paid for under the Local Improvement Act, and as trunk sewers will cost more than the kind asked for the question of taxing the cost arose.

Town Solicitor Humphries wrote City Solicitor Johnston of Toronto, explaining the situation here and asking as to the policy adopted by Toronto under such circumstances, whether residents on adjacent streets should be made to pay part of the costs of trunk sewers that were to benefit them, but not at the present time. Information was also asked as to how the cost was assessed.

The Toronto solictior said that there was nothing in the Act by which residents could be taxed for a sewer for which they had not petitioned. In his opinion the only way out of the difficulty was a general tax for sewer construction. It might, however, make a difference if it could be shown that the adjacent streets would receive immediate benefit in the way of drainage from the construction of a sewer on another thoroughfare.

The Paving Question.

Councillor Redden expressed the hope that no paving should be done this year as he believed that the town was not ready for the expenditure. Mayor Meyers said that there was nothing definite before the Council, although a representative of a paving company had been in town for some days getting signatures to a petition for paving. Just what success he was meeting with was not known. The Mayor believed, however, that even if no paving is done this year it is a good idea to keep up the discussion in order to ascertain how the ratepayers feel on the matter.

Auditors' Report.

Mrs. C. W. Turner and Miss Nellie Hoover, town auditors, have completed their work and at last night's meeting appeared before the Council and handed in their report. This was referred, without discussion, to the Finance committee.

The Spur Track.

The question of the spur line which has not been in use for some years, was again before the Council. An official of the C.N.R., when in town last week, told Mayor Meyers that the company were anxious to take up the rails and the opinion seemed to be general among the councillors that the road was no longer of any benefit to the community. As the legal status of the situation is not clear, Town Solicitor Humphries, on motion of Reeve Davidson, will be asked to make a report as to the agreement made some years ago between the company and the town.

WINDSOR EPIDEMIC IS STILL RAGING

Two More Succumbed Yesterday Afternoon, Making the Total of Seventeen.

WINDSOR, March 4.—(Canadian Press).—With the death of two patients yesterday at the Isolation Hospital here, the list of fatalities from the smallpox epidemic now stands at seventeen. Joseph Laurin, Caron Avenue, Windsor, and Mrs. Elizabeth Guthrie, of Monmouth Road, Walkerville, who had been ill since last Friday, succumbed to the plague in the afternoon and were buried an hour later.

Although the situation is reported "well in hand," there are a number of suspects under observation in whom the period of incubation will not elapse until next week.

Justice Logie yesterday, by a long distance telephone, ordered the postponement of the Spring Assizes at Sandwich until March 17.

TUESDAY, MARCH 4, 1924.

THE WINDSOR OUTBREAK.

The outbreak of smallpox in Windsor and the border district generally gives some reason to fear that unless a general quarantine of the infected area is decided upon the disease may spread over the Province.

The type of smallpox encountered in Windsor is the most virulent that has been found in Canada for forty years, according to Medical Health Officers.

Fortunately, however, the disease differs from epidemic influenza inasmuch as there is an effective method of preventing a general infection.

Vaccination will prevent the Province from being overrun, and several municipalities are already putting up a barrier against smallpox by making arrangements for vaccination clinics.

It is of particular significance that of the fifteen people whose deaths were reported in the Windsor district up to Sunday night, not one had ever been vaccinated, and the doctors in touch with the situation declare that the disease is so deadly that fifty per cent. of the victims who have never been vaccinated cannot recover.

There is no occasion to be panic-stricken over the situation, yet the need of precautions are indicated by the developments at the Border.

ONE LAW FOR EVERYBODY.

Kingston students who took the law into their own hands and assaulted a newspaper reporter because an article written by him did not meet with their approval, have been treated to a sharp lesson by being haled into Police Court and fined.

In this case, as in the recent episode involving Toronto soldiers who lashed a comrade, the Attorney-General of the Province will receive the congratulations of the majority of people upon his determination to see that neither students nor soldiers have any special privileges over the general public.

There is one law for all, and soldiers who try to take advantage of barrack-room customs and students led away by college traditions have to be taught that that law cannot be broken with immunity by anybody.

The spirit of mob law is rampant in the United States, and Canadians should be on their guard against a similar development on this side of the line.

Hon. Mr. Nickle's firm stand in these two incidents, one of them involving students in his native city and of a university of which he is a Governor, will do much to show that Ontario proposes to leave the administration of the law to the proper authorities, and that any other individuals who attempt to arrogate to themselves such administration will find themselves in an awkward position.

THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

Voting is taking place today for the election of the fifteen members who will comprise the Executive Council of the Chamber of Commerce for the year ending Sept. 28, 1925.

Thirty have been nominated, and the field is composed of such fine executive material that any fifteen selected are bound to be of excellent service.

The Chamber of Commerce is making steady systematic progress, and is attracting to itself each month representative new members.

Many activities are grouped under the wing of the Chamber, and the organization has made a place for itself in the community life of Peterborough that would be most difficult to fill.

There has been no boom about its growth, no fireworks, no spectacular promises of a doubled population in ten years or anything of that kind.

But those responsible for the management of the Chamber have visioned many opportunities for service, have undertaken those that could be dealt with and kept in touch with others for future action, and in a score of ways about which the general public knows little or nothing have contributed to the work of making Peterborough better, more modern and more prosperous city.

It is interesting to note that at the annual meeting, which takes place a week from tonight, arrangements have been made for an address by Dr. Horace L. Brittain, Director of the Citizens' Research Institute of Toronto, to give an address on taxation.

He is one of the foremost experts on this subject in Canada, and his speech will be full of meat for municipal voters to chew upon.

A WRONG THAT NEEDS RIGHTING.

In pressing for a refund of the luxury tax paid by them on unsold cars at the time the luxury tax was repealed in December, 1920, the automotive dealers of Canada have succeeded in enlisting the support of newspapers throughout the country, and the claim should receive the most favourable attention of Parliament during the present session.

The complaint of the automobile dealers, which involves a sum amounting to $1,250,000, is founded so surely upon justice and common sense that it is difficult to see how the requested refund can be logically refused.

The history of the case is interesting.

Back in the spring of 1918 the Government of the day put into effect a luxury tax for the purpose of raising additional revenue for war purposes, and the automobile was included in the list of things classed as luxuries.

The tax on automobiles, varying from 15 to 20 per cent. of the value of the car, was collected as near the source as possible.

In other words, the dealers were forced to pay the tax before they sold the car and the levy was made retroactive, the tax being collected on all cars in stock and in transit from the manufacturer.

For a while there was no trouble. The tax was passed on to the buyer.

But in December, 1920, the luxury tax was suddenly abolished, and the dealers throughout Canada found themselves in a position where they were stocked up with cars upon which they had paid the tax and utterly unable to pass the levy on to the consumer because the manufacturer set the retail price.

The result that instead of being a tax upon the people who bought cars, which was clearly the intent of the luxury tax, the tax in this instance became a direct levy upon the automobile dealers whose losses were very heavy.

Dealers in other luxuries received a refund from the Government of the amount paid for unused luxury tax stamps, and even automobile manufacturers received a refund of the sums they had paid on unsold cars in their retail branches.

The automotive dealers alone were left holding the bag, and the injustice has not yet been corrected.

They were not given a chance to recover their losses, and, in fact, have been discriminated against to an extent that amounts to downright confiscation.

The facts are not disputed, the dealers have a clear case and the Government should have no hesitation in seeing that justice is done.

WHERE THE GOVERNMENT COULD SAVE.

Counting sessional indemnities the Dominion Government Cabinet costs in salaries just $119,000 a year.

The cost of the United States Cabinet (which governs 11 times as many people) in salaries is $108,000 a year.

Doesn't this suggest something to Mr. King?

To come straight to the point, does Canada, with nine million people, require fifteen Cabinet Ministers, while the United States, with one hundred million people, worries along with eight Cabinet Ministers?

We are inclined to answer in the negative.

* * * *

Why, for example, does Canada need a Secretary of State? What does he do? In most countries the Secretary of tSate has charge of foreign affairs. In Canada that duty is performed by the Prime Minister, who is also Minister for External Affairs. As a matter of fact all that the Canadian Secretary of State does is to look after the incorporation of companies—a duty clearly belonging to the Department of Trade and Commerce. He could be dispensed with tomorrow, and all the emoluments and paraphernalia that goes with his office abolished, and there wouldn't be as much as a tremor in the administrative machine.

There is the Solicitor-General. What does he do? In England the Solicitor-General pleads court cases for the Government; and this is likewise true of the United States. In Canada it is only on the rarest occasions that the Solicitor-General appears in court. As a matter of truth, long periods have frequently elapsed when the Government got along without a Solicitor-General—and nobody suffered. This portfolio, and all that goes with it, could be wiped out tomorrow, and officials of the Justice Department could exercise its functions without the slightest loss.

There is the Minister of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment. This department is being slashed—why not the Minister? How is it that Britain and the United States have managed to re-establish their soldiers without the creation of a new Minister? In any case, even admitting that a Minister helped in early repatriation days, surely it is as plain as a pikestaff that now, when the work of the department is largely diminished it (with pensions) belongs to the Ministry of Defence!

There are the Departments of Railways and Canals and Public Works. They undoubtedly should be merged into one. And the reasons are: (1) because all the duties of both come under the category of public works; and (2) because the work of the Railways Department has all but disappeared. One Minister could handle these two departments; and their merging would save thousands of dollars.

Finally, there is Agriculture and the Interior. These also might be united. They are both concerned with the same thing, the development of basic resources; and, with the gradual handing over of the West's natural resources to the Provincial Governments, the work of the Interior Department is rapidly diminishing.

* * * *

These merges would save the country in Ministers' salaries alone $50,000 a year. But that wouldn't be all. The real saving would be in the elimination of overlapping, the wiping out of expensive secretariats, in the abolition of an overhead that must easily reach into at least $200,000 a year.

Two hundred thousand dollars a year may seem a small amount. But supposing one adds to it $331,000 that might be saved by a reduction of the indemnities of members and Senators by $1,000 a year, it represents a saving of over half a million.

That, we suggest, is an amount large enough to challenge the attention of Mr. King.—Ottawa Journal.

The merchant was one of the old type and said: "Why should I spend money on advertising when I have been here for twenty-five years? Everybody knows my business and how I do it." The press agent replied: "Look at the church across the street. It has been there for seventy-five years. Everybody knows it and knows it is good, and yet they ring the bell every week for an hour."

Whatever Your Skin Trouble

Zam-Buk

IS THE RIGHT THING TO USE

WHEN discovered 25 years ago, Zam-Buk revolutionized the treatment of skin ailments. Nothing since has approached it for real medicinal value. Zam-Buk is unequalled for the way it soothes pain, allays inflammation, draws poison out of a wound or sore, and overcomes eczema, saltrheum, psoriasis, scalp trouble, blood-poison, etc.

Zam-Buk's unique success is due to certain rare and costly herbs exclusively used in its manufacture. It is no fatty, pore-clogging ointment, but a pure, refined balm that soaks naturally into the tiny pores of the skin, and thereby attacks disease at its roots. Zam-Buk makes the whole skin healthy.

A box of Zam-Buk should be kept handy on every homestead.

W. LASCELLES-SCOTT, F.S.Sc. says:—"Zam-Buk's constituents are exclusively of herbal origin; it contains no irritating mineral drugs and animal fats. Moreover, its astringent and balsamic constituents render Zam-Buk an emollient of rare healing power. In my opinion, Zam-Buk is well adapted for treating superficial injuries and skin disorders."

Dr. PATTERSON SHIBLEY, of Wyoming Avenue, Washington, D.C., says:—"For years I have employed Zam-Buk in my practice, and I know of nothing to compare with it for skin troubles, from roughness and irritation to chronic disease. I would never hesitate to recommend this herbal Zam-Buk amongst my own patients."

Dr. ANDREW WILSON, Ph.D., M.B., the famous Medical Authority, says:—"Zam-Buk may be relied upon as an ever-ready antiseptic dressing which has the additional advantage of unique soothing and healing properties. Zam-Buk exercises a special action on torn and severed tissues, keeping them clean and helping them knit together again."

Leading Scientists Have Tested ZAM-BUK and found it excellent for the skin.

Omemee Correspondence

OMEMEE, March 4—The Orange Hall, Omemee, presented a welcome appearance on Wednesday evening, when the members of L. O.L. 113 entertained their wives and a number of friends, totalling about thirty-five. Orange and blue streamers were artistically strung about the hall which added much to the decorations.

After a short programme, and oyster supper was provided, along with an excellent menu of other good things to which all did justice.

Mr. Joseph T. Beatty acted as chairman and after a brief speech called on the following:

Recitation, Alta Moncrief; address on "The Value of Standards", Rev. Mr. Weir;; reading, Mr. Thomas Rice; address on "Friendship" by Rev. J. Black; violin solo, Mr. Harvey Hall; address on "Protestantism" by Rev. E. W. Rowland; recitation, Mr. Thomas Rice; violin solo, Mr. H. Hall.

After the hearty rendition of the National Anthem the gathering dispersed, the guests being loud in their praises for the pleasant entertainment provided by the Orange brethren.

Presentation To Teacher.

Miss Crystal Courtney, who is about to sever her connections with the Omemee High School and go with her parents to Lindsay to reside, was pleasantly surprised on Friday afternoon, when the scholars took occasion to present her with a fountain pen. An abundance of home-made candy had been provided and a social time was enjoyed at the close of school after which the following address was read, to which Crystal suitably made reply:

Omemee, Feb. 29, 1924.

Dear Crystal:

We, the boys and girls of the Omemee High School have assembled for the purpose of extending to our fellow pupil, Crystal Courtney, the best wishes for her happiness and success in her new home.

You have always been to us the embodiment of good in our work and play. We greatly regret your leaving, but here express our happiness for the community into which you are about to enter. We have always found you a true friend and a good sportsman, always willing to take part in the various activities of our school and social life.

So, in order to express in some small measure our deep regret on losing one of our popular and active school friends, we should like to take this opportunity of presenting you with this fountain pen. Not only do we desire this pen to be to you the constant reminder of your former school pals, but also serve a further purpose, namely of penning some lines to us.

Your old school pals of the Omemee High School.

Mr. and Mrs . H. Lamb were business visitors to Lindsay on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. A .Ford and son, have returned to spend a few days in town, after visiting Dunsford friends.

Mrs. Milton Sherin has returned home after visiting Mr. and Mrs. W. Kerr of Lindsay.

Mr. and Mrs. B. Courtney were in Lindsay on business Thursday.

Mr. Dunk of the Toronto Ammunition Company was in town on business Wednesday.

Mr. W .J. Cox of Philadelphia, visited Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Mitchell in town this week.

Mr. Charls Ivory was a visitor to Toronto on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Jones and son, of Peterboro, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. B. Courtney.

Mr. Jas. Brown of Lindsay was a business visitor in town on Thursday.

A sleighload of young people from Omemee attended the dance in the Community Hall at Reaboro, on Wednesday evening.

Reeve W. D. Stinson and Councillors James Magee and L. A. Southworth and S. J. Mackey, representing the Board of Trade, composed the deputation to Toronto on Thursday, to interview the Ontario Legislature in regards the public highway.

AN UNENDING DEMAND.

The luxuries of to-day are the necessities of to-morrow Modern standards make indispensable commodities and services that only a few years ago were the possessions of only a small circle. The Annual Report of the Bell Telephone Company says: "Service is now required of us in homes and small places of business which, a few years ago, could not have been considered as a possible market. Thus within our present boundaries, the telephone field is broadening daily."

Telephone installations have increased about ten times as fast as population in the last decade.

150 WITNESSES IN LUDENDORFF TREASON TRIAL

Defendants Admit Having Agreed to Revolt But Were Double - Crossed By Von Kahr When He Feared the Movement Would Fail.

ABANDONED GENERAL

MUNICH, Bavaria, March 4. — The testimony of all the defendants in the treason trial, in which General Lundendorff and Adolph Hitler are the chief figures, was completed Monday afternoon, and to-day the task of hearing one hundred and fifty witnesses, including Dr. Von Kahr, the former Bavarian dictator, and General Von Lossow, commander of the Reichswehr, begiins.

The substance of the defendants' testimony was designed to put the onus on Von Kahr, Von Lossow and Von Seisser, former Chief of the State Police, as having agreed to the putsch, but as having backed out at the last moment without giving Lundendorff and Hitler any hint of their intentions.

In other words, the defendants were all agreed that they had been double-crossed by the three officials with whom they had conferred frequently, and that the putsch did not succeed because it lacked their support which they had promised. It appears from the court records that Von Kahr, Von Lossow and Von Seisser believed that plans of revolt had been extensively organized, and even had the support of the North German junkers, but withdrew about the time it started, when they realized that it was nothing more than an impulsive beer-hall movement, which could not succeed.

Von Kahr, who was called by his followers, a Super-Bismarck when he became dictator, is considered the most important witness. He will testify to-day or Wednesday.

PRESENTATION TO NORMAN WATKINS.

Receives a Purse of $75 From Bensfort Club on Eve of Departure.

At a social evening of the Bensfort Club last week the feature event was a presentation to Norman Watkins, one of the township's returned soldiers, who is leaving to take up residence in Otonabee. Mr. Watkins was presented with a purse of $75 and an address.

The evening was opened by an address from Mr. W. C. Wood, the president of the club, after which there was community singing, a duet by Miss Laing and Miss Fisher, and a solo by L. Walliman.

Then came the presentation by President Wood, while the address was read by George Morrison.

Lunch was served at the close of the programme and the rest of the evening was spent in games, music and dancing.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of our dear little girl, who departed to live with the angels, March 4th, 1923:

We loved her, yes, we loved her,
But Jesus loved her more,
And He has sweetly called her,
To yonder shining shore.

The golden gates were opened,
A gentle voice said, Come,
And with farewell unspoken,
She gladly entered home.
Sadly missed by Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Montgomery, grandmother, sister and brothers, Hastings, Ont.

Prisoners and Juries Agree on Sudbury Jail.

SUDBURY, March 4.—More prisoners pass through Sudbury district jail in the course of a year than any other jail in the province outside Toronto, but the place is described as a vermin-infested fire trap by members of the local legal fraternity who seek Board of Trade co-operation in agitation for a new jail. Recommendations to this effect have been made by grand juries for the past ten years.

Russian in Hospital Disparaged the Scotch.

SUDBURY, March 4. — William Trotsky, Russian, is in a serious condition in hospital here, and William Scott is held on remand following a fight outside a local hotel. Trotsky refused to lend his assailant fifty cents, it is claimed. Scott, who is a Gaspe Scotsman, and speaks only French, says Trotsky made insulting remarks about the Scottish race.

Simple Way To Take Off Fat

There can be nothing simpler than taking a convenient little tablet four times each day until your weight is reduced to normal. That's all—just purchase a case of Marmola Prescription Tablets from your druggist for one dollar, the same price the world over. Follow directions—no starvation dieting or tiresome exercising. Eat substantial food—be as lazy as you like and keep on getting slimmer. And the best part of Marmola Prescription Tablets is they are harmless. That is your absolute safeguard. Purchase them from your druggist, or send direct to Marmola Co., 4612 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich.

NEWS OF BETHANY AND THE DISTRICT.

Several Social Events in the District — Personal Mention.

BETHANY, March 4.—The progressive euchre party held on Friday evening was the largest yet held. Twenty-eight tables were required to accommodate the large crowd. Mrs. F. C. Dawe won the first prize for ladies and Mr. Harold Palmer for gentleman, the consolation awards going to Mrs. Fred Reynolds and Mr. W. Saunders respectively.

The concert and box social held on Wednesday evening was well attended. Mr. A. Monk acted as auctioneer and the thirty boxes ranging from two dollars down to sixty cents. The play "Jack's Wife" put on by Lifford talent was exceptionally good and has its humorous side each one taking their part to perfection both in words and expression. The Ladies Aid are to be congratulated in securing this play. The proceeds of the evening amounted to sixty dollars.

SNOW CRUSHED IN HOTEL SHEDS

MARMORA, March 4—The sheds of the St. John's Hotel collapsed Thursday afternoon under the weight of the great quantity of snow on the roofs. Seven horses and several cutters and sleighs were in them and the great winder is that not even a single horse was injured although some of the sleighs and cutters were smashed so badly hat their owners could not go home with them.

Mr. Louis Le Clair was in town on Wednesday.

Mr. Smith of the Massey-Harris Co. Ltd., made a business visit to Marmora on Thursday.

Farmer's Club Met.

On Wednesday evening the Farmers' Club of Springbrook held an oyster supper in the Oddfellow's Hall. After the supper a varied programme was given in the Orange Hall.

Mr. H. Heath gave several solos which were well applauded. Mrs. Heath and Mr. Tanner sang a duet. Several reels of motion pictures were shown one being merely a comic selection the others showing how tobacco can be planted and grown to great advantage in Ontario.

Mr. Hoover, Mr. McMullen and the agricultural representative who had shown the pictures each spoke for a few minutes.

Mrs. Ben Osborne sprained her foot last Tuesday .

Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Boyd were visitors in Tweed on Wednesday.

Mrs. F. S. Pearce and the girls of "Miss Fearless & Co." went to Tweed Wednesday afternoon. A good crowd attended the play. The girls have had great success wherever they have given their play. They hope to visit Belleville around the Easter season .

As the season for winter sports is drawing to a close everyone is trying to make the best of the few opportunities left them.

Snow-shoe tracks are seen going in all directions. The rink on Tuesday and Wednesday was well-filled with the young people who hate to see the ice going.

Mr. James Danford of Bonarlaw, attended the sale of Mr. J. H. Clare in Tweed.

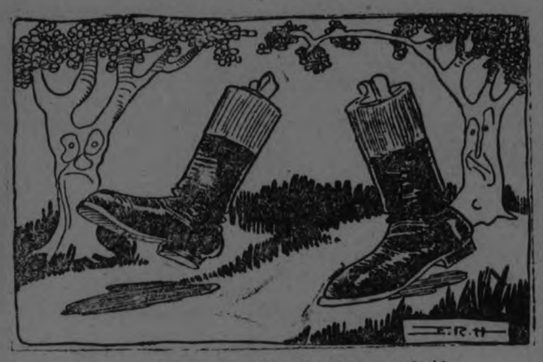
ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By Clive Roberts Earton

TO MARKET TOWN



Of course, it looked as though nobody was inside.

Nancy fell into one of the seven league boots and Nick fell into the other.

That's where they landed when they fell out of the giant woman's thimble.

And wishing themselves away from the giant's house, the seven league boots started down the road toward the market town

Of course, it looked as though nobody was inside the enormous boots because neither of the Twins was big enough to even so much as fill the heel of one of them.

"Nick, are you all right?" called Nancy.

"Yes, are you?" answered Nick.

"Sure," called back Nancy. "We're going somewhere. Let's stay in and see what happens."

"All right!" said Nick. "There's a little crack in mine and I can peep out."

"So can I!" cried Nancy.

Just then they met a horse belonging to one of the giants of Beanstalk Land.

With a loud snort of surprise, Mister Horse kicked up his heels and [illegible] so fast that all the Twins [illegible]

"We must have scared him," laughed Nancy.

"You mean the boots did," said Nick. "It must look funny to see a pair of boots walking along and nobody in them. Here comes somebody else."

Both Twins peeped again to see who it was. It was an old lady from the Market Town with a basket of groceries which she had received in exchange for her butter and eggs.

But the minute she spied the seven league boots walking along alone, she uttered a loud shriek, dropped her basket, picked up her skirts, and ran away so fast that if it hadn't been for all the spilled sugar and tea and beans and rice, the children would have almost believed they never had seen her at all.

"If everybody is going to run like that, we shall soon have Beanstalk Land all to ourselves," said Nick.

And indeed it seemed true, for just then a rabbit hopping along, took one look at the boots, and nearly climbed a tree in his hurry to get away. Never did a bunny—even a giant bunny—run so fast.

Pigs, ducks, chickens, dogs, cats and people all fled for their lives the minute they spied the seven league boots walking along without an owner.

And as everything in Beanstalk Land was so very, very, very big, it tickled the Twins almost to pieces to see them all rushing away like so many mountains.

On went the boots—on and on and on toward the Market Town where everybody gathered on market day.

And by and by the Twins arrived. Or that is, I should say, the boots arrived, for nobody had any more idea that the Twins were inside than I have that there is a hundred dollars in my pocket.

Down the street they marched until they came to the square where the market was. And then—such a scrambling and rushing and screaming and knocking down and falling over as there was!

It will take another story to tell you all about it.

HEARTS AFIRE

by May Christie

The Brilliant Novelist of Modern Society

Peter Armstrong.—the brilliant inventor, of whom Janet Mercer has spoken as a 'real gentleman'. He is clever, ambitious and reliable. Virginia Dale is deeply interested in Peter, whom she realizes will amount to something some day.

Virginia openly seeks Peter's admiration and ignores Prudence. Prudence realizes her mistake in thinking Armstrong an ordinary poacher but refuses to soften her hostility toward him. Traymore returns immaculately clad in a fresh outfit.

CHAPTER IX

In the Shadow of the Hedge

"I was just coming to fetch you little lady" announced young Traymore airily "and to apologize for that infernally awkward scene down by the pool. If you hadn't been there I'd have given the chap the thrashing of his life. But because he was a boor was no reason why I should follow suit."

"Of course not" defended Prudence quickly. "You were wonderful the way you acted."

The young man shot her a quick look. Did she mean to be sarcastic?

But no. Her pretty face held only a flattering mixture of concern and admiration.

"It was only your presence that made me hold myself in. Any fellow who makes a row in front of a girl ought to be kicked."

She nodded in agreement.

"After this show's over I'm going down and have it out with him" proceeded Traymore gaining confidence. "I'll teach him his proper place."

"Oh don't." The girl's face was full of a quick concern again. Vision of the other's muscular dexterity down by the pool rose up before her. "He's awfully strong . . ."

This was a tactical error an actual aspersion on Traymore's brawn! He thrust out his chest at once.

"I'm not such a weakling myself." He reddened. "And I'm certainly not afraid to tackle him if that's what you mean. Brute force doesn't alarm me in the least."

"He's not a tramp after all" said Prudence sorry for her error but not knowing what to say to make amends. "He's the Peter Armstrong who lives in Pear-Tree Cottage and who does experiments—"

"I know. I know" said Traymore testily. "If I'd thought he was a common tramp would I have left you with him as I did? I know all about the fellow darn his insolence!"

"He says he has permission to fish in that neighborhood—"

"Making up to you was he?" Her companion's voice was full of resentment. "He ought to have gone down on his knees and apologized."

"He did apologize" said Prudence with her native honesty. "When he struck you he hadn't seen me."

"The dickens he hadn't! And I suppose when he did see you you absolutely bowled him over?"

She flushed in hurt silence and drew away from him. Traymore spoke again.

"Shouldn't be a bit surprised if the whole thing was a frame-up just to get me out of the way so's he could talk to you!"

This was too much.

"How can you speak like that when it was you who picked a quarrel with him?"

"Huh?" Traymore shot her a sidelong glance. "He'd be flattered if he knew the champion he's found in you wouldn't he?"

Quick sensitive tears sprang to her eyes.

The inquisitor continued:

"You haven't by any chance fallen in love with him have you?"

"How can you say such a thing?" stammered the girl. "Why I—I hate him. I—I'm in love with nobody." Her lips trembled.

The man's face softened.

"Not even a little teeny bit with me?" With all the beguilement of the courting male the query came ever so gently so that she just caught it and no more.

A thrill shot through her heart. Unhappiness and doubt were all forgotten. Spring-time reigned again.

"And what do you think of Peter Armstrong?" Janet Mercer asked her as the two girls walked home that evening.

"I hated him" said Prudence quickly. "He's so brusque and rough-mannered. I dare say you'd call him one of Nature's gentlemen but I dislike that sort of thing."

("The poor child is infatuated with Traymore" thought her shrewd friend but said nothing.)

Subsequently days were full of ecstasy for Prudence. Blossom in the apple-orchard . . . sunny skies . . . and love! Each day she met young Traymore at some rendezvous and they spent hours together . . . hours of enchantment for the little country girl when time itself seemed to stand still and listen to the lover's vows and sighs and promises.

"I mean everything to you don't I Prudence?"

"Everyhting in heaven and earth. You always will Bert dear. I—I've been wondering—if you wouldn't come in one evening and meet father and mother. I—I've told them about you—"

"What! And I particularly asked you not to say one word about our love until I had the right to claim you—"

"I—I didn't Bert. I remembered. I just said you were a — a friend of mine."

He looked relieved and mollified.

"Oh well I will come one of these days. When the mood takes me darling. You know how much I enjoy having you all to myself. Why drag others in?"

"But it's only father and mother. They're such dears." She would look at this masterful lover with pleading eyes.

"Come on cheer up. You know I love you best when you're gay and lively. A feller doesn't like a girl to mope."

One day however he did promise to take supper at the cottage on the following evening. Prudence spent long hours polishing up the silver and arranging flowers. Every thing must look its very nicest for Bert.

Her mother wore her best silk dress and Prudence one of her prettiest frocks.

"The place doesn't look so shabby mother does it?" the girl anxiously inquired for the tenth time.

"No darling. Besides he won't notice anything but you." The sympathetic woman knew exactly how her daughter felt. "You look a picture to-night and no mistake."

They waited for a half hour then an hour . . . and no one came.

"Young man's forgotten his engagement" said Prudence's father in a matter-of-fact tone. "We can't wait any longer. I'm as hungry as a hunter."

It was a silent meal. Prudence's ears were keyed up nervously to all souuds in the road.

But by nine o'clock she knew he wouldn't come and made excuses for him though her heart was heavy.

It was nearly ten when she contrived to slip away from her mother's sympathetic eyes and down the road past a little thicket where a nightingale was singing madly to his mate.

If only Bert were with her! What a perfumed night of spring it was!

Along the road came the chug-chug of a motor-car. Prudence pushed into the shadow of the hedge as a two seater came along with a girl at the wheel and a man beside her. A young moon was up and there was something vageuly familiar in their outlines. It couldn't be . . . Oh no . . .!

"Don't be silly Bert" drifted towards the hedge in Virginia Dale's spoilt tones. "I can't drive and be made love to at the same time—"

And then a man's low laugh—so dear and so well-known to the shrinking listener in the hedge—

"Girls like you will always be made love to Jinny!"

In To-morrow's Instalment Prudence's Hopes Are Dashed.

Sure Way to Get Rid of Blackheads

There is one simple, safe, and sure way that never fails to get rid of blackheads, that is to dissolve them. To do this, get two ounces of peroxine power from any drug store—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub over the blackheads briskly—wash the parts and you will be surprised how the backheads have disappeared. Big blackheads, little blackheads, no matter where they are, simply dissolve and disappear. Blackheads are a mixture of dust and dirt and secretions that form in the pores of the skin. The peroxine powder and the water dissolve the blackheads so they wash right out, leaving the pores free and clean and in their natural condition.

YOUR HEALTH

VERTIGO

Many persons are subject to attacks of vertigo, which may be called plain dizziness. Looking at objects high in the air, or remaining in one position with the vision fixed downward, often causes this condition. Some people who ride backward in a train or automobile are also subject to this vertigo or dizziness which, if continued for any appreciable length of time, frequently results in rather severe nausea and a nervous, weak inactivity of the body. These conditions which have been mentioned are merely physiologic and are not the result of any disease conditions, but may be traced to lack of training in certain uses of the bodily powers in different situations and positions or for other reasons hard to explain.

Pathologic vertigo is another kind of dizziness which may appear at times in a rather moderate way as the result of some organic brain disease or disturbance. It may result from some ear defects (aural vertigo). In certain kinds of neurotic patients, those suffering from neurasthenia, psychoneurosis or from congenital nervousness suffer vertigo and onother cause may be from cerebral anemia or transitory cerebral intoxication.

In younger persons, the ordinary attacks of vertigo may be guarded against to a certain extent. Habits of eating at regular hours aid in a marked degree in reducing dizziness, either on arising in the morning or under conditions which strain exMM under conditions which strain the eyes or muscles to a far greater extent than usual. Careful attention to the blood condition, circulation and blood pressure will aid in avoiding vertigo.

Advanced cases in older persons or in neurotic types must be treated in a most careful way by a physician. The symptoms in such cases are often indicated by fear of this secret drain on the system, and also by what is termed autosuggestion.

CHEERING THE INVALID

Almost every individual has a certain amount of healing power in thought, touch, word and action. This sympathetic power for giving comfort, hope and stimulation to the invalid we should never forget. The psychology of our actions on such occasions is of real curative value.

Optimism in abundance must be your program, when dealing with the invalid or shut-in. Its power for restoring health is marvelous. Words of cheer and hope have helped many a weary sufferer through long days and sleepless nights.

The physician knows well that the return to health and strength is as much a condition of wanting to get well as it is from his skill in operation or treatment. Should the patient be at a distance from home and loved ones, it is well to remember that there is a rather definite limit, varying in degree more or less, according to the temperament of the patient, beyond which your absence, to console and sympathize, does not make the heart grow fonder.

Serious relapses and long postponement of health are often occasioned by the patient's lost confidence in himself. Cheering the invalid is a duty of great health value and brings its own reward.

Ain't It Sad! by Jack Lait

"MAYBE you think I'm cuckoo," said Carol Phrothingham to her buddy, Elaine Whiffington, in the chorus dressing room of the theatre where they were both hoofing and smirking in "Paprika of 1923," the viewiest review of the season, "but I'm goin' out in the tall grass t'morrow a'ft. Instead o' punishin' the hay all day, or window-wishin' or tippin' over embalmin' fluid cocktails with some John or Jane, I'm gonna lift my fair physique off the luxurious nearly-linen before noon, meet a certain party at the depot, hop a s'burban rattler, an' go forth to communicate with nature."

"You better see a billiard-ball expert an' have your noodle overhauled," suggested Elaine. "What's the weird idee—an' who's the certain party—an' whaddeye mean communicate with nature? You don't communicate on a s'burban rattler — you commute."

"Ah — you only THINK I've gone loco in the cocoa; but when I jerry you WHO I'm goin' WITH, you'll KNOW it. . . . 'Member that queer-lookin' bird we met at the stewjio stew party las' night—that poet guy?"

"Oh, no! Are you takin' him out to have him show you nature, or are you takin' him out to show nature him?"

"Well, you 'member when he worked me over on that Moorish divan in the corner, an' gassed me for twenty minnits? He sighed an' he raved an' he pulled a lot o' dialogue that you don't hear in them lyrics we bang acrost in a show. Lemme tell you, that baby spills conversation. Every petal of every flower is got some meanin' to him, an' every breeze that blows packs a message from afar. I've heard drunks ramble on an' dames in love spout, but this canary had a yodle all his own."

"Apple-sauce. That poetry bunk is all democratic with me. How'd he horn in on the party in the firs' place?"

"Oh, only becus he owned the joint, that's all. I thought, him bein' the host an' puttin' up all that sympathetic gin, I oughta inhale an earful of his tale o' woe. An' before I knew it, he had me hooked. On the level—he had me dizzy—an' I didn' guzzle much o' the hootch, neither. He says to me did I ever stop to contemplate the magnificent dimensions o' the vast infinite. I says I never went to collidge. He says you can't learn that stuff—it's born in you, an' he thought I had it, but it hadn' never been tortured outta me. If he could only get me out in the clean, pure air, where wild things grew, where uncontaminated birds chirped—jus' then he asks me what's my name, an' I say Carol, an' he all but kisses me . . . Carol! An' him jus' maudlinin' about the lay o' the lark—why, it was an inspiration. Now I MUST go with him in the clean, pure air, where wild things grew—"

"Say, if there's any out there any wilder than you are, they're wastin' their time where the larks lay. An' you fell for that drivel?"

"Uhu. He had me hypped or somethin'. Anyway, I made a date for to-morrow noon, to meet him an' go bird-inspectin', an' learn the magnificent dimensions o' the vast infinite—that is, if we can catch one. I know I'm beany, but somehow the crazy chump fascinates me. An' you can cable the Emp'ror o' Czecho-Bohunkia I'm goin'."

"All right, go—you lark-chasin', infinite-huntin' chump. You'll come back with chilblains on your knuckles, stickers all over your socks, a cold in the head an' a numb conversation hangover. An' you'll be in luck if you don't walk back—I know somethin' about them poetry-spoutin' dreamers; I'd feel as safe with a young gorilla or an old board o' trade man."

"Well, I'm goin'."

"Go ahead. Go on. But don't crawl back to me an' say I didn't tip you like a pal to watch your step. The country ain't no hangout for a tenement-born an' dressin'-room-raised hothouse weed like you; an' poets ain' no healthy comp'ny for a respectable bricklayer's daughter accustomed to the protectin' society o' rounders an' midnight mashers. Go if you must—youth must have its kick an' the modern flapper is a hound for new sensations. Go. But remember I wised you an' I warned you."

"Thanks. I'll give you the lowdown to-morrow night—if I live through it."

* * *

Carol stepped off the train at Hicks Crossing with William Jennings Bryan Botts, versifier, romanticist, botanist, naturalist, lover of bird and bee. Botts, who was known to his intimates as "Jennie," (contraction of the Jennings in his name, no doubt) was an ethereal, sad-looking youth who groaned that he was happy—very happy. His digestion for vegetables was nothing to send collect night-letters about, but his appetite for fauna and flora was ravenous. His mother, widow of a prosperous jobber in washing machines (that's nothing; Shakespeare's father was a sheep butcher), sent him money and encouraged his poetry. She was almost alone in both pastimes.

W. Jennie B. Botts' father had died cherishing an unrequited wish that his only son might live to put a washing machine in every American basement. But his mother could conceive of nothing gaudier and grander than having a poet in the family. It was a novelty among the Bottses.

Jennie became a figure in the synthetic bohemia of the Big Burg whither he had drifted, and threatened to remain one as long as he could come across to the landlord for his roomy studio and the bootlegger for his bottled dynamite. Worthier artists with less dough and less worthy skates with no reason at all to cross the golden line into the charmed circles except that they craved models and chorus girls and high jinks and free booze, patted and petted Jennie and let him read them unconscious with his sonnets when they were already halfway out with his liquor.

Jennie loved women. He loved them with that far-off yearn that was more itch than urge. To him women were sacred. He apostrophized them. Being a nature worshipper, he glorified daughters of men as nature's most inspired work.

No cave-man was Jennie. Sometimes he envied the rough workers he observed about him, who so often conquered the fragile, beautiful creatures whom he fed meat and drink and whom he wistfully saw fluttering off with coarse brutes who never could understand. Then, in the solitude of his own hurt reflections, he chided himself for being so carnal, so human. What though these vulgar louts did have physical possession of those exquisite beings? Could they feel what he, with his poet's soul-contacts, felt? No. He pitied them. These daubers and pot-boilers and cloak-and-suit intruders might kiss their wet lips; but he, the true artist, need have no fleshly touch. He could meet their spirits with his spirit, off, on high, where he could carry his inamoratas and their bovine earthly lovers could not follow.

Still, an occasional hand-holding bee was not repellant. That the fems never warmed to him he easily understood—they could not rise to his level. Only when he whisked their souls to his, without even their knowledge, was his poetic bliss of sour grapes fermented into sparkling vintage.

He had taken an unusual crush on little Carol, who had the winsome features of a Cupid and the fleecy figure of a nymph, as so frequently turns out in the lowborn youngsters of the rabble. She would have bet him nine dollars she had no soul, except that soul she prayed for every night before she closed her pert peepers. But Jennie knew better. Where there were those eyes, that hair, those lips, that neck, those—well, all that went to make up Carol—there must be a soul. Jennie found it on the spot. He also wanted to look through the blue windows of said soul some more, and he made his play in the only manner he knew how—his specialty.

His suggestion for a trip to the country had been turned down so often that he almost lacked the courage to put it up to Carol, a headstrong little pony. To his inexpressible delight, she consented.

And here they were, at Hicks Crossing, where he could sing to her in the language that he alone could understand; where he had the inside track on all the raucous and irreverent commoners who could glibly gab of show-stuff and sports and scandal and market quotations and inside politics and the latest murder. Here was a master hand to paint on virgin canvas, for he knew that Carol couldn't tell a mocking-bird from a herring and couldn't differentiate between iambic hexameter and invertebrate paleontology.

He led her down the road, into the open country. It was a crisp, lovely day in the heart of autumn.

"Carol, dearest," piped Jennie, "there is always to me something unutterably pathetic about October—the fluttering leaves falling from the moaning trees, the vigorous verdant green turning to the yellowing brown of death, the jocund birds winging their flight like happy little peasants driven from their homes by an invading scourge."

"Yeh," confessed Carol, "Ain't it sad?"

"See," said Jennie, "See what I have picked up. A nut!"

"I could shoot a nifty crack about that," said Carol.

"A nut! Provident nature has dropped it there that some faithful mother squirrel might garner it for her yet unborn young. So does all nature synchronize. The bird saves the tree from the worm; the tree gives the moss that the bird may build its home in its embracing branches; the wind carries the pollen that plants the flower; the bee sips from that flower and makes honey—"

"An' the grizzly bear comes along an' eats the honey. I know nature, too."

"You know nature? You are nature. A wild, free young creature—"

"Say—who's been spillin' you the dirt about me? Was it that Elaine dame? I'll bounce a jar o' cold cream off her dome, the double-crossin' snitcher."

"No, no. I mean that you are so young, so beautiful. Surely nature, which makes all beautiful things and all things beautiful, created you to synchronize with its scheme in an ecstatic moment. Carol, you are very, very lovely."

"Guess Elaine was right—looks like I walk back. Only I got railroad fare an' taxi chicken-feed."

"Ah—chicken feed. We will come upon that very soon. Around the next bend in the road is a farm, and on that farm I have often stood enraptured watching the mother hens and their broods of chicks, feeding them, teaching them, guarding them. And it makes me think that I, too, am a mother hen, and you my baby chick, whom I am—"

"Whoa! Don't start cluckin' at me. You can change your monicker from Jennie to Hennie, but whenever anything with trousers on starts pullin' that pullet racket on me, it's little Carol's cue for exit. I'm no chicken—I'm a hard-boiled egg for that line o' chatter."

"I don't understand," protested Jennie.

"You prob'ly never will. Mother hens may be great for pickin' up corn, but they ain't gen'rally credited with assists on fast conversational grounders. What I'm tryin' to convey to you, in the sweet langwidge of these United States, is that I'm gettin' fed up on this rural life—an' when does the next choo-choo whistle to'rds God's Country, where there's sofas to sit down on an' a party can call a cab?"

"You—you are tired of the country—already?"

"No. How could you get any such quaint idee? I'm jus' beginnin' to lose my head over it."

"Good. The next train leaves in about five minutes. But I was certain you had no desire to take it."

"Nothin' like that, Jennie—nothin' anywhere near like that. But, I tell you what. I'll sit down here, an' you go on ahead an' get me a drink o' water—out of a well or somethin', or even a mail-order pump. These shoes I got on ain't just the right packs for cross-country rough hikin'. You run on ahead like a cute li'l poet, will you, Jen?"

"Why, certainly. With the utmost pleasure. Water—clear, crystal, limpid, health-giving water, fresh from the skies above, unspoiled by the noxious smoke and foul gases and corroded commercial pipes of the city with its artificialities; nature's sweet, pure water instead of the poison whiskey and the deadly wines of that false atmosphere in which we live. Water! I will bring it to you in a gourd—if I can find one; or in a tin cup. I fly. Wait."

He flew. She waited. She waited until he had turned the nearest bend, and then Carol picked up her narrow little skirts and scooted for the Hicks Crossing depot as hard as her well-trained young legs could carry her. She saw the city-bound train approaching. She raced for it and made it by a whisper. When she caught her breath, seated in the welcome plush bench of a coach, and saw the receding telegraph poles flit by her window, she heaved a deep breath of infinite relief, threw her eyes on high as though telling it to the unlistening heavens, settled her little feet under her, and woke up in the big, clattering terminal—in town, home.

"That bimbo was just nine degrees nuttier than even I dreamed he could turn out to be," she admitted that night to Elaine.

"Sure. What'd I tell you? Them oil-cans ain't for me an' you—they're for them models. When a frail can take off all her clothes an' stand around that way for two bucks an hour an' say us chorines is a flock o' brazen babes, that calls for a truckload of imagination; an' that's what it takes, or some slanty sense o' humor, to put up with them painters an' poets an' novel-mechanics. For you an' me, girlie, jus' plain roughnecks for boy friends an' jus' rough business men for gen'lemen friends. Am I right?"

"You whistled a lungful, kid," responded Carol, as she reached for the eyebrow stick.

* * *

Jennie came running back a few minutes after the train had pulled out, with a benign smile and a tin cup slopping nature's unadulterated water at every step. He couldn't find Carol. He yoo-hooed. Ah—the mischievous little darling was playing hide-and-seek. He called. He waited. It took an hour to convince him that he had been jilted, had been sent to the mare's nest while the little charmer had scurried for the train and given him all that delicious bucolic ozone.

Slowly, sorrowfully, Jennie wended his way to the station. Desolate he returned to town and to his studio.

That night he locked himself in and sat alone—sat and sat. He realized that he was in love. The little hussy who had so baffled his super-sensitive consciousness had left a bruise on his susceptible spirit.

He had hoped to find her soul. But she, instead, had found his heart. He loved her so hard, it hurt. It hurt so hard, he loved it.

No, he would never go to her, write to her, send to her. If this were to be his cross, he would bear it like a poet—like a Jennie. The he-mother-chick had been deserted by the bad little broiler; he would stay in and brood. (No pun especially intended at the end of the line, but it fits.)

Day after day now—night after night now—Jennie sat it out. No more giddy parties, no more sighing for hands to hold; only for her hands. Now he could be as sad and soppy as he had ever hoped to be. Now he could write odes to grief and ballads of vain regret. He could, and he did.

A year went by. Oh, what a year!

He sat, deep in his tragic reveries, thinking of her.

The telephone bell rang. It startled him from his gray dreams. Listlessly he picked up the receiver, mechanically he said hello.

That voice!

"Oh, hello, Jennie—that you, kid?"

It was—she!

He tried to answer, but his voice started husky, then wheezed off to nothing.

"This is me—Carol. Remember?"

Did he remember? Had he for one waking second or one dreaming moment ever forgotten?

And she was calling—calling him—after a year. How often had he hoped, feared this moment; for he had never given up hope entirely; it was the living hope that made his dead faith so poignant, so deliciously sad.

"So," he whispered, "you've called—at last."

"Yeh. Say, Jennie—you're a poet, ain't you?"

A poet? That's what he wasn't nothing else but. The question needed no answer. She would go on. She would say it now—that she had met men, all sorts of men, but the memory of the one poet had lived, had survived, had at last overwhelmed her, as he had known it would, as he—

"Well, if you're a poet, Jennie, tell me: who wrote 'The Shootin' of Dan McGrew—Kipling or Irving Berlin? Elaine an' me got a bet on."

"Wh-why—Service."

"Service? What kind o' service you mean? I said, who wrote 'The Shootin' of Dan McGrew'? Elaine an' me are on a party, an' one o' the guys is cockeyed an' tryin' to recite, an' he says it's by Damon Runyan. I say it's by Kipling, an' Elaine says Berlin knocked it out. Now, who did? It's worth a pair o' silk stockin's to me if I'm right."

"Is that—THAT—what you called me for?"

"Sure. Sorry to bother you, but stockin's comes high these days."

"V-very w-w-well. It was written by Kipling. I was there when he wrote it."

"Attaboy. Thanks. G'night."

"She couldn't even bet about one of MY poems," sobbed Jennie.

"I could shoot a nifty crack about that," Said Carol.

DISPOSAL OF HAREM OF DETHRONED CALIPH PROBLEM FOR ANGORA

Six Palaces and Hundreds of Concubines on Hands of the Government — Suppression of Religious Training in Turkey Indicates Mosques Will Become Dead Property.

RADICAL CHANGES.

LONDON, March 4.—The sponsoring by the Turkish Government of the bills calling for the abolition of the Caliphate and the suppression of religious instruction in Turkey has been the cause of much speculation on the part of British officials regarding what will be the effect of these drastic measures in India and other Mohammedan countries.

The British have been unalterably opposed to doing away with the Caliphate, because the spiritual jursdiction of the Caliph extended, nominally at least, over Great Britain's seventy million Moslem subjects in India. With a view to maintaining quietude among this vast multitude, the British Government, it became known Monday, will let Turkey severely alone during the radical transition which that country is experiencing.

Judging from the past, however, observers here expressed the belief yesterday that it would be too much to expect that Great Britain will escape severe criticism for whatever happens to Allah's earthly representative.

The Indian agitators, among whom the Moslems, under the leadership of the Ali brothers, are most aggressively radical, will, it is thought by the observers, seize upon every developments in Turkey as an additional grievance against British rule in India.

New Religious Head

With former Sultan Mohammed VI. in exile, and Abdul Medjid Effendi, the Caliph, deposed, a new religious head for the Moslem world will, it is thought be sought ultimately outside Turkey. The British Government is said to be aware of a desire on the part of King Hussein of the Hedjaz, who controls the sacred city of Mecca, to set himself up as Calip of all the Mussolmans; but in competent quarters it was said Monday that it is unlikely for political and other reasons, that Hussein will be selected.

Some persons favor the reinstatement of former Sultan Mohammed in power; but it is said to be generally felt that his age and his feeble physical condition disqualifies him. Mohammed now is living in retirement in Switzerland with a young son and a small remnant of his old harem. The Ameer of Afghanistan also offered himself as a candidate for Caliph, but, like Hussein, he is held, for political reasons, to be ineligible. Every Moslem country feels it has a claim to the Ottoman throne, established more than six hundred years ago by the House of Osman. But until something approaching unanimity can be obtained from the various Mohammedan countries on the question, it is believed to be likely that the British Government will take no steps toward advising the nomination of a successor to the deposed Caliph.

Thousands of Mosques.

In the meantime, some concern is being manifested in authoritative quarters here regarding the outcome of the aboliton of the Caliphate and of religious instruction in general on the peasants of Turkey, in whose lives religion always has played a very large part. Another interesting question concerns the ultimate disposition of the thousands of Mosques scattered throughout Turkey. It is presumed some of them at least will be converted into schools, but since the Angora Government has not nearly the sufficient number of teachers to equip them, it is thought likely that most of the mosques, like the churches in Russia, will become so much dead property.

A further problem for the Angora Government is what to do with the Caliph's six huge palaces, his large private property holdings, his 800 concubines, and his multiple wives. It is believed the women members of the harem, like those attached to the household of the old sultan, will be induced to return to Anatolia, marry farmers and become useful productive factors in the country.

Foreign Colleges.

In United States circles here there is much conjecture as to what effect the interduction by Mustapha Kemel Pasha, president of Turkey, on religious teaching, will have on the two United States colleges and the scores of smaller foreign educational institutions in Turkey many of which are religious in character. Many of the students attending the American Girlls' College in Constantinople are Turkish women and it is feared by some of the observers that the Angora Government may attempt to have religion abolished from the curriculum even of the foreign educational institutions.

Some United States citizens familiar with the situation, however, believe the colleges are too valuable a source of revenue to the Turkish exchequer to warrant the Angora Government forbidding them to teach rqeligion. Another factor in favour of the two colleges is their widespread influence in promoting Turkish education and progress in general. The American Girls' College has been a potent influence in the emancipation of Turkish women, many of them, including Mrs. Halide Hanoum, who is now Minister of Education, Mustapaha Kemel Pasha's wife and a large number of other influential Turkish women being graduates of the institution.

FUTURE FOR TAXI COMPANIES GREAT.

They Will Reduce Their Fares and Increase Their Rolling Stock.

By ISRAEL KLEIN.

When the taxicab companies realize the wonderful opportunity before them, they will reduce their fares at least one-half, increase their "rolling stock" at least two-fold and relieve one of the most serious traffic situations this country is facing today.

This is one of the main arguments presented by traffic experts of the larger cities for hastening of downtown traffic. It goes along with a relief measure advocated by many of these authorities.

That measure concerns the elimination of parking in the business districts.

If such an ordinance weer adopted in the larger cities, many who now drive their cars downtown, only to leave them in the streets all day, would either leave them home or store them in garages or parking places near their offices.

But parking places being extremely limited, and garages entailing a regular daily expenditure, low taxicab fares might relieve the situation considerably. Low fares, more taxis and regular routes from the residence districts to the centre of town might draw many automobile owners to the use of this means of transportation downtown, in place of using their own machines.

According to Roger Babson, famous economist, there is a daily loss of 30 cents in depreciation of the cheapest car in use. Add at least this depreciation to the cost of garage or parking space, and it would be more worth while to take a taxi.

If the taxi owners got wise and lowered their rates!

* * *

In Paris and other European cities, taxi fares are low enough to make this form of transportation popular. Yet new one-man cabs have appeared in Paris as serious competitors even of these cheaper taxis. A person can take one of these one-man taxis at a cost of 8 cents a mile.

* * *

Motor buses are proving a help in relieving the traffic tangle in large cities. They may be expected to increase considerably, if ever a law is passed keeping auto owners from parking their cars along busy streets.

* * *

According to a census of 1,000 motorists taken recently by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, 52 per cent. of those questioned answered they drove their cars regularly to work. Part of these, of course, have to use their cars during the day in the course of their business. But a large part merely drive downtown and park their cars either along the sidewalk or in garages or parking places.

What a grand opportunity for taxis and buses, if parking were prohibited!

Cocoanut Oil Fine For Washing Hair

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Do not use prepared shampoos or anything else that contains too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can not possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy, wavy, and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and a few ounces will last everyone in the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified. Beware of imitations. Look for the name Watkins on the package.

BURNS INVOLVED IN OIL SCANDAL

Detective Must Appear Before Investigating Committee to Explain Telegram He Dictated to McLean.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—(Canadian Press).—Official translations of the code messages found in the McLean telegrams were presented to the Senate Oil Committee to-day by W. F. Friedman, cipher expert of the Army Signal Corps.

Mr. Friedman, who assisted in the decoding of a number of enemy messages during the war, has been at work on the telegrams for several days. Since he began his study Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana, dominant figure in the pressing of the oil inquiry, has obtained and turned over to him an old code of the Department of Justice which was used in at least some of the messages.

The committee will call Mrs. Mary Duckstein, an operative of the Justice Department, for questioning concerning the cipher message she sent to her husband, W. O. Duckstein, one of McLean's confidential agents at Palm Beach.

This message, said William J. Burns, Chief of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice, had sent for Mrs. Duckstein and told her to say the McLean investigation was under way by agents of the Bureau and that he regarded the information as important.

Burns will be placed on the stand after the questioning of Mrs. Duckstein is concluded. He will be asked not only about the "Mary" message, but also as to reports that the publisher of the Washington Post is on the roll of special agents of his Bureau at a salary of $1 a month, and how employees of McLean came into possession of a copy of a code once used by the Bureau of Investigation.

It was learned Monday that in the batch of telegrams furnished to the committee last Saturday by the Western Union Telegraph Company is one sent to E. L. Doheny at Washington from Los Angeles. This message is in code, and was received here on January 30 last, the day the California oil magnate returned to Washington to deliver to the committee a mutilated copy of the note which he claimed was evidence of his unpaid loan of $100,000 to Albert B. Fall.

While the oil committee was laying its plans to resume public hearings to-day, President Coolidge selected Samuel Knight, of San Francisco, as special counsel to represent the Government in the court actions to be brought in an effort to recover to the Government Sections 16 and 36 in the Elk Hills Naval Reserve in California now operated by the Standard Oil Company of California.

BIG CHEMICAL COMPANY FAILS

Post-War Business Depression Seriously Affected the Virginia - Carolina Co. — In the Receiver's Hands.

NEW YORK, March 4. — The Virginia-Carolina Chemical Company, one of the largest manufacturers of fertilizers in the country, yesterday went into the hands of receivers, after failing in last minute attempts to obtain credit for the seasons operations.

Receivership for the company, which suffered severe losses in the post-war depression affecting the industry, was foreshadowed by the sharp break in its stock and bond prices last week.

Capitalized with $30,000,000 preferred stock and one million shares of no par value common stock, the Virginia-California Company carried a funded debt of $37,375,000 in high interest bearing bond issues. Despite the lack of banking credit and the obvious impossibility of issuing new securities, according to officials of the company, it went into receivership with a ratio of current assets to current liabilities of more than three to one.

Last Tributes to Veteran Who Lived Long in Cobourg.

COBOURG, March 3. — Coming with her father, the late Alexander Ferguson, and his family to Cobourg about 78 years ago from Edinburgh, Scotland, Mrs. Catherine McCullough, widow of John McCullough, lived to see many changes in the Northumberland County, which when she came here, included the settled parts of Peterborough county also.

She was six years old at the time and her mother died at sea on the voyage over.

On Wednesday afternoon friends gathered for her funeral, which took place from the residence of her son, Mr. Robrt McCullough, Hamilton Township, to Plainville Presbyterian Cemetery, another son Hugh and two daughters reside in the Canadiar West, and Mrs. Walter Shewin at Orono.

The late Alexander Ferguson of Cobourg and Toronto was a brother.

Had a Weak Heart Was Very Nervous For Three Years

Miss Jessie Peterson, Zealandia, Sask., writes: "I wish to let you know how much good Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have done for me.

"For nearly three years I was very badly run down, had a weak heart, and was so nervous that sometimes I would almost faint away.

"I heard of many people who had recommended your Heart and Nerve Pills, so I decided to give them a trial. After I had used two boxes I found they had done me good, and after having taken five boxes I was completely relieved.

"I cannot recommend your Pills enough, and I would advise anyone having a weak heart or troubled with nervousness to use them."

Milburn's H. & N. Pills are 50c a box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

TURKS ABOLISH THE CALIPHATE

National Assembly at Angora Passed a Bill Deposing Caliph Abdul Medjid, Who Was Elected in November, 1922.

CONSTANTINOPLE, March 4.—The National Assembly at Angora yesterday passed the bill calling for the deposition of the Caliph and the abolition of the Caliphate.

Crown Prince Abdul Medjid Effendi, cousin of Sultan Mohammed VI. was elected Caliph in November, 1922, by the Grand National Assembly of Angora. Prince Selim Effendi, son of former Sultan Abdul Hamid, was an unsuccessful candidate. The deposed Caliph is 52 years old.

Abdul Medjid was in direct line of succession to the Sultanate Had Mohammed VI. died, instead of taking flight from Constantinople on board a British warship, Abdul Medjid would have automatically succeeded to the throne.

The abolition of the Caliphat by Turkey is expected to have profound repercussion in India and elsewhere in the Moslem world. The deposed Sultan is spiritual head of 250,000,000 believers.

The British points out that Mustapha Kemel's action in forcing passage of a bill abolishing the caliphat has killed the pan Islamic movement France, it is believed, will welcome Turkey's withdrawal from Islam, which should remove a subversive factor from French North Africa. France may now endeavour to extend the rather remote Caliphat claims of Morrocans to the remainder of the Moslem world, and thereby anticipate a new Arab, Egyptian or Afghan Caliphat.

A MAN ARRESTED IN MURDER CASES

Ukranian Picked Up by the Toronto Police--New Turn to Case.

TORONTO, March 4.—(Canadian Press.) — Wanted since Christmas eve last on a charge of murder at Winnipeg, Steve Dutczysym, a Ukranian, aged 27 years, was arrested here yesterday by officers of the Ontario Provincial Police. Some time ago a circular was received from Chief Constable Newton of Winnipeg, offering a reward of $250 for information leading to the arrest of the man.

The prisoner is said to have admitted that he was the man wanted, adding that the killing was the result of an altercation over a "crap" game on the day before Christmas, 1923.

* * * *

WINNIPEG, March 4.— Joseph Zlotinicki, a Bohemian, aged 34, was found dead on Selkirk avenue on Christmas eve, -923. An autopsy showed poison in the stomach, and the police suspected foul play. Two men were placed on trial for the murder, Nick Gregorhuk and Fred J. Halushka. These were acquitted of murder by a jury at Winnipeg yesterday, the Crown being unable to prove its case. The case has been known locally as the "poison beer case."

Winnipeg police were of the opinion that one of the ring leaders in the case has not been captured and the arrest of Steve Dutczysms at Toronto is believed to give a new turn to the case.

UNDERTAKERS WANT TO DOLL UP HEARSE

Make It Look Like an Ordinary Limousine.

NEW YORK, March 4 (Canadian Press). — Enough gloom prevails in the world without sombre hearses passing through the streets to remind people of deaths, in the opinion of the Associated Undertaker of New York, who yesterday voted to disguise their hearses as ordinary limousines.

It is the purpose of the Association to surround death with reverence and beauty and try try not to remind the world of what it seeks to forget, Frank D. Campbell, president, stated

Tells Just Why She Is So Thankful

Ontario Lady Found Relief in Dodd's Kidney Pills.

She has suffered with bladder trouble for years, but Dodd's Kidney Pills quickly relieved her.

Bright, Ont., March 3.—(Special). —"I have received your Dodd's Almanac and have been going to write to you ever since. I am the mother of four children and have had very bad bladder trouble. I took different medicines and all the time it kept getting worse. At last my mother told me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. I got two boxes and they have completely relieved me. I have never been so thankful for anything in my life, as I was for those pills." This statement is made by Mrs. Henry D. Christensen, well known resident of this place.

Women's troubles, or nearly all of them, come from sick kidneys. Dodd's Kidney Pills will relieve kidney trouble no matter where or in what form it is.

Sound kidneys mean pure blood. Pure blood means good health.

CANADIANS DEPART BY THE BACK DOOR

MONTREAL, March 4 (Canadian Press). — Canada's population problem resolves itself into a race between the Canadian cradle and the colonist car, and the latter appears to be winning.

There is left the uncomfortable feeling that while immigrants are rushing at the front door, native-born Canadians are hastily leaving at the back door.

This was the conclusion arrived at by G E. Jackson, Associate Professor of Economics at the Toronto University, and chairman of the Employment Service Council of Ontario, when he addressed the Montreal Women's Club here yesterday. He urged that the best means of getting satisfactory immigrants in Canada was by having satisfied settlers write home and tell their friends to try their fortune here, too.

"GRAND OLD MAN OF CANADIAN ART"

T. MOWER MARTIN, R. C. A., R.C.M., O.S.A.

(Copyright by Canadian Press)

Born Oct. 5, 1838, T. Mower Martin, of Toronto, has been long regarded as the "Grand Old Man of Canadian Art." And rightly so, for with energies unimpaired and enthusiasm undimmed though well into the eighties, he can look back upon a fine record of artistic achievement, not least of which was the founding of the Ontario Society of Artists in 1872, while in 1880 he took a leading part in the founding of the Royal Canadian Academy of Arts.

"The best artists of today are using the same methods as Rambrandt and Van Dyke did, and that is, to put your colors out on your palette and then paint what you see."

So said Mr. T. Mower Martin, not long ago to a visitor, as the two were looking at a couple of copies of the old masters, an old woman's head by Rembrandt and a lady of the Court by Van Dyke, copies which Mr. Martin had made from the originals while on one of his visits to London, in an endeavor to capture the artists' secret.

His conclusion was the remark quoted above, which might be taken perhaps as the secret of his own achievements in art—study closely what is before you; paint carefully.

Mr. Martin was born Oct. 5, 1838, in the Inner Temple, London, England, son of Edward Horatio Martin, who was then acting treasurer at the Inner Temple, and Susan Abernethy, his wife. The cloisters of the historic building were his play-ground and the monuments of the old crusaders were objects of interest to the grown boy. Opposite were the Temple Gardens on the Thames. It was a familiar sight to see Dickens pass on his way to the Temple and people, prominent or unimportant, would point him out with "There's Boz."

Those were the days when the Pickwick Papers, and later other tales, were issued weekly in serial form and eagerly welcomed.

Young Martin was intended for the East Indian service and in preparation was sent to the military college at Enfield. But the lad's tastes lay in another direction, so he later entered a contractor's office where drawing was part of his work. Also, as his employer was in charge of the picture hanging for the Royal Academy, he was brought in touch with the best art of the day, attending all the Academy exhibitions. Turner's pictures were then the event of the year. Under these circumstances it was only natural that the young man, already expert with brush and pencil, should elect to make painting his life work and began work in earnest.

Early in the sixties, looking to the New World as affording better chances for a young man, he brought his bride to Canada and settled in Muskoka. But the land proved a disappointment so Mr. and Mrs. Martin moved to Toronto and there ever since made their home, no matter how far afield his sketching trips took him, nor how long they lasted.

Those were not easy days for the artist and patrons were few, but Mr. Martin was indefatigable. A trip across the continent was not easy going before the days of the railway but the difficulties did not deter this artist. Later the Canadian Pacific Railway was generous to all the artists in giving transportation and in the early days dropping them off and picking them up again to suit their convenience.

Ten summers Mr. Martin spent travelling to and fro in the Rockies, painting scenery or game, mountain or coast. Then there were frequent trips to the larger cities across the line where it was no easy matter at first for an unknown Canadian to place his work.

A most unexpected but welcome commission came to the artist through a painting of a dog carrying a bird, which he had persuaded a picture dealer in New York to place in his window. The commission was for six paintings of game and was from no less a person than Charles Leland, who wanted them to hang in the dining room of his new house.

In 1872 the artists of Ontario formed themselves into the Ontario Society of Artists, which in 1877 was incorporated, Mr. Martin being one of the chief organizers, since he was one of the few members with no business connections, depending entirely on his brush and pencil for support.

Later in 1878, when the Princess Louise and Marquis of Lorne were representing Royalty in Ottawa, a movement was started by the Princess herself something of an artist, to form a society modelled after the Royal Academy at London with the result that the Royal Academy of Arts was founded in 1880. Of this Mr. Martin was a charter member and was consulted by the Princess on several knotty points in organization.

The work by which Mr. Martin will be most widely known is "Canada," a handsome volume brought out by Adam and Charles Black, London, England, in 1905, for which the artist painted 75 views of the most beautiful spots in the Dominion. His clear and can[illegible]l transcripts of nature lend them[illegible]s particularly well to reproductio[illegible]l proved most satisfactory. The [illegible]er press was written by the C[illegible]ian poet and writer, William Wi[illegible] Campbell.

This work was [illegible]well received that two years later, [illegible]ring a lengthy stay in England, Mr. Martin painted a number of views of Kew Gardens to accompany the descriptions by A. R. Hope Moncrieff, which was published that year.

Mr. Martin is still a tireless worker at his art. There is always a little painting kit tucked away in his pocket, an invention of his own, so that when anything catches his fancy, brush or pencil make a swift record. A close student of nature, a lover of animals, wild ar tame, an ardent gardener and yet with all his practicality, something of a mystic, this six-footer with his long stride joys in the life of the open. Roughing it in the mountains is to him no hardship.

Mr. Martin's pictures are to be found in the National Gallery at Ottawa, in many private collections in the States and Canada, in those of the Marquis of Lansdowne and Duke of Argyle and at Windsor Castle. Five of his nine children, all born in Canada, survive.

A RICH SOUTHERN OIL MAGNATE STARTED OUT TO BE MOVIE ANGEL

Rich Mr. Smith and His Dearest Madlaine Now Engaged in Litigation—High Cost of Experience

Mr. Herbert Lyon Smith, of Charleston, West Virginia, is a man of mature years, wide business experience, and he has made millions in coal and oil. But business is a dull grind and, as Mr. Smith's millions piled up and he felt that he had leisure on his hands, he often wished he had gone into some business with a little more snap eccitement and romance.

As Mr. Smith sat in the darkened movie theatres and saw the beautiful actresses flitting about on the screen, and as he read of the wonderful life among the studios in Hollywood, it seemed to him that it would be just perfectly lovely to be a movie magnate.

And one day as Mr. Smith, millionaire coal and oil king, picked up one of the fascinating motion picture magazines his eye fell on a photograph of Madlaine Traverse, the popular young movie actress. She wore a tantalizing yard or two of silk and in her hands she clasped a plaster Cupid at which she gazed fondly.

Now, what a wonderful thing it would be, mused Mr. Smith, to be a movie promoter and have such a charming vision of feminine loveliness as his own star in a little company, that he owned all himself. Well why not?

It was true that he was rather elderly, but he never felt younger or more enthusiastic than when he gazed at that picture and pondered the possibilities that the young woman presented. Opportunity seemed to be knocking at his door, and as a successful business man, Mr. Smith remembered that Opportunity seldom knocks a second time. Without a second thought he put on his hat and coat and took the first train to New York, where Miss Traverse was playing in vaudeville.

Mr. Smith managed to obtain an introduction through Miss Traverse's agent, and he was delighted to find that his prospective star exceeded his liveliest anticipations. He had a long talk with the young lady in her dressing room while his mind's eye conjured up the picture she would make on the screen. But he avoided mentioning the subject then. He wanted to brush up on managing movies first so that he would be able to discuss his ambition in a manner that would impress the young actress and give her confidence in his plans.

Mr. Smith did some reading, and in a few weeks felt that he was qualified to direct with the best of them. He then opened negotiations with Miss Traverse, who was not engaged at the time. He wrote her that he was quite fed up with the coal and oil business and was ready to embark in the movies, if Miss Traverse was willing to trust her ambitions and her career to him.

He asked her to dinner and Miss Traverse appeared at the restaurant on tip-toe with anticipation. She had always imagined that she would be a famous movie star if she were only given the opportunity and rich Mr. Smith looked like the opportunity of a lifetime. She was wondering how much salary she ought to ask. About $1,000 a week seemed fair.

So a nice little dinner was arranged—business and dinner are a happy combination, as a rule.

But when the generous Santa Claus tucked his napkin in his collar and mentioned blithely that he intended to name the company "The Madlaine Traverse Pictures Corporation" and that he was willing to pay her $3,500 a week, with an additional $1,000 a week thrown in for her personal expenses, Miss Traverse experienced the thrill that comes only once in a lifetime.

"Three thousand five hundred dollars a week! And I'm to have another $1,000 a week for a maid and expenses! Oh, you're a perfect dear!" she exclaimed in an ecstasy of joy as she saw the dream of her life's ambition fulfilled at last.

But the proposition was so delightful that as soon as she was alone she began to doubt if it could really be true. Was it all a dream? And it was only after she had made inquiries and discovered that her elderly friend was really and truly a millionaire and meant business that she realized the extent of her good luck. Why, $3,500 a week and that extra $1,000 for a maid, etc., was lots more than Mae Marsh or Lila Lee or Viola Dana or Hope Hampton were getting, and they had been in the movies from the beginning. Oh, what a perfect dear Mr. Smith was.

And Mr. Smith seemed just as happy as Miss Traverse. The new business relationship that he had entered into enabled him to see a great deal more of his prospective star than ever, and he made use of all of his opportunities. He took her to dinner constantly and experienced all of the thrills that he had dreamed of while he was an ordinary, dull, money-getting coal baron. There were automobile rides as well, and many little parties at which the rich director introduces Miss Traverse to his family and friends.

But while this relationship was as delightful as Mr. Smith had anticipated, Miss Traverse began to have her doubts. She wanted to concentrate on the business phases of the situation, while Mr. Smith seemed to broaden his sentimental interests at the expense of the negotiations already begun. He wrote her long letters in which he referred to his star as his "little humming bird" and begged her to "laugh, scream, play tag and have one bully time," but not to bother her head so much about the business end of their plans.

Many promises accompanied these frequent letters, but somehow Mr. Smith never got around to signing her contract. Her elderly boss always signed his letters "with love," and Miss Traverse didn't mind this—but she wished he'd get along toward starting a picture for her. Actresses are accustomed to having men fall in love with them, and they do not hurt their admirers' feelings unless it is absolutely necessary. But Miss Traverse wished she had a good, signed and sealed contract instead of so many nice letters and promises.

Presently it began to appear that her benefactor and boss intended to make the great American public finance his little relationship with Miss Traverse. It seemed that some of the shrewd business sense that had stood him in such good stead while he was in the coal business began to dominate his venture in the movies.

He conceived the idea that if he could get up a lot of circulars telling how expert a director he was and how fascinating Miss Traverse could be the people who buy the movies when they are made would fall all over themselves in an effort to get his prospective pictures. In that way he would rake in a lot of money before a foot of film was exposed, and his entertainment of Miss Traverse would cost him nothing.

But the movie distributors are a pretty hard boiled bunch, and all of Mr. Smith's circulars and glowing accounts of Miss Traverse and himself left them as cold as an Eskimo's dinner. They replied that if Mr. Smith would show them a few pictures, all made and ready for release, they might buy them if they were any good. But Mr. Smith was not discouraged. He wrote more letters to his "little humming bird" and made more promises across the dinner table.

Almost two years went by before Mr. Smith's "little humming bird" decided to do a little humming that would remind her promise-making friend of the sweet music of a rather exasperated wasp. He had written her a long and circumstantial account of his final plans for the production and release of her pictures and ended it with a merry "Tra-la. With love," which seemed such a flippant finish to his long train of promises that she met him for dinner that night with a little less of the charming manner that had aroused and held his elderly interest.

"My butterfly! My beautiful leading la'y!" exclaimed Mr. Smith, as he rose to assist her with her wraps.

"Just a minute," replied Miss Traverse in a new and altered strange tone of voice. "If I'm your leading lady, where is all the money that is due me on that contract you made with me two years ago?"

Mr. Smith started in on his usual explanations, but the actress cut him short.

"I could have been working all this time," she declared in a voice trembling with indignation.

"Besides what you owe me, I've lost what I might have earned in vaudeville. Now I want my money, and I want it quick!"

"Why, we haven't even started to work yet," objected Mr. Smith. "Your salary won't commence until we start making the picture."

"Guess again, Grandpa," replied Miss Traverse. "My salary began when you made that contract, and you now owe me——"

She made a rapid calculation on the back of the menu and added, cheerfully:

"Just a little more than two hundred and twenty-two thousand dollars!"

As she pronounced these words, the smile faded from the features of the amiable Mr. Smith and he looked twice to see if it were really his little humming bird who was speaking.

"Why, that's almost a quarter of a million dollars," he gasped. "I won't pay it."

"Oh, won't you!" exclaimed Miss Traverse. "We'll see about that. You are going to find out that you can't play fast and loose with a poor, defenseless little actress!"

She marched out of the restaurant and went straight to the offices of Lawyer Isador Gainsburg, who is exceptionally learned in the matter of contracts and business agreements. When he heard the whole moving story of how Miss Traverse had been strung along by her elderly angel, he filed suit immediately asking $3,500 for every week that had elapsed since that merry little dinner at which Mr. Smith had first made his proposition. That extra $1,000 a week for a maid and expenses, well, they'd let that go.

When the case came up in court, the other day, Lawyer Gainsburg put Mr. Smith on the witness stand and went right to the bottom of the entire transaction for the benefit of the jury. A few of Mr. Smith's questions and answers are interesting:

Question (by Lawyer Gainsburg)—Now, Mr. Smith, let me first dispose of this situation: You introduced Miss Traverse to your mother and to your cousin. There wasn't anything in her conduct or in your relationship with Miss Traverse that would make you or her ashamed to meet your mother or cousin was there?

Answer (by Mr. Smith)—No, sir.

Q.—She was to be your star, wasn't she? You talked pictures to her morning, noon and night, didn't you?

A.—I couldn't get away from it.

Q.—Why, was there anybody holding you to her apron?

A.—No, sir.

Q.—Now, you made a verbal agreement with Miss Traverse. Do you know what I mean by a verbal agreement?

A.—Yes, I have that much intelligence, but there was never anything in writing.

Q.—You know, do you not, as a business man, that if you make an agreement to hire an employe for a certain time and make it by word of mouth that it is just as binding as though it were in writing?

A.—No, I didn't know that.

And that was Mr. Smith's chief defense—that, since there had been no writing, there had been no contract. But after the jury had heard all about the valuable ring Mr. Smith had given to his little humming bird, and the limousine he had loaned her, and when they had listened for sev ral days to all the promises he had made, they decided that a few of them should be kept. So they awarded pretty Miss Traverse judgment of $72,489, with interest that brought Mr. Smith's bill up to $85,473, one of the largest amounts ever rendered in similar cases.

There are no more nice little dinners with the charming movie star, and Madlaine does not now ride around in rich Mr. Smith's limousine.

Mr. Smith has gone back to his coal mines and oil wells and he has learned quite a lot. Nobody knows but Mr. Smith just what it has cost him in the last two years to live in the happy dream world of a prospective movie producer.

VATICAN ANSWER TO LUDENDORFF

Controvert German War Lord's Criticism By Similar Accusations By Other Side in War.

ROME, March 4. — (Canadian Press).—Certain declarations made by General Ludendorff at Munich regarding the Vatican have brought forth comments by the Osservatore Romano and the Corriere D'Italia. The two papers agree that the Vatican had the same accusations leveled against it during the war by the Entente, and assert that this is sufficient to prove that the Holy See was completely impartial.

The Osservatore Romano, the Vatican organ, says:

"Ludendorff asserted that the efforts of the Vatican during the war were all in favor of the Entente. How we should like to have him read what was said and published in Italia at that time. It is enough to say that to controvert Ludendorff we have numerous criticisms which represent an entirely opposite viewpoint."

A CONFERENCE LIKELY FOLLOW

Probable Outcome of Premier's Letter to Poincare.

(By Charles MacCann, United Press Staff Correspondent).

LONDON, March 4. — Declarations of Premier MacDonald in the House of Commons have made it apparent that the idea of an ultimate disarmament conference was an important factor in his letter to Premier Poincare of France.

In a speech yesterday MacDonald stated that the Labour Government intended to pursue policies which he hoped would lead to the mental limitation of armaments, both in aerial and land forces.

The Premier declared that the present moment was not suitable for an independent step in this direction on the part of Britain, due to the fact that the League of Nations was at present considering the whole question, but said his Government was interestingly watching all developments.

"These things are not done by throwing schemes at the heads of other Government, but by careful preparation, making possible such proposals," the premier declared in commenting on disarmament plans.

Observers here consider that MacDonald's letter to Premier Poincare was part of his scheme of preparation, both for a general settlement of European debts and reparations and for a later disarmament conference.

I is believed that agreement on the part of the experts committee, followed by a debts and reparations agreement is certain to lead to an aerial and disarmament conference in which the United States might play a leading part as it did in the Washington Naval Conference.

The exchange of letters between the Premiers has already served its purpose in engendering a friendly atmosphere preparatory to the experts report. The belief is expressed by authoritative persons that Premier Poincare's statements that France will only evacuate the Rhur when she is paid need not be taken literally it is said that the French Premier has already intimated tha he is willing o agree to an invisible occupation.

Its also hinted that at the expected reparations conference, someone will propose that the French evacuate Rhur in exchange for a pact by England, Belgium and Italy, guaranteeing France against German aggression and supplanting the abortive Anglo-American pact.

It is anticipated that France would then demand the widening of the fifty kilometer neutral zone provided in the Versailles treaty. England, it is said, is willing to agree to this, as is Germany.

On the question of debts, it is believed that once the reparations question is solved France and other European debtors of United States which have not funded their debts would approach the United States together on the debt question.

CHARGES DISCRIMINATION AGAINST AUTO DEALERS

Demands Refund of the Luxury Tax Advanced on Unsold Cars.

"Alone Bear Burden."

TORONTO, March 4.—A strongly worded demand for the refund of luxury taxes on unsold cars advanced to the federal government when the tax was in force was contained in an address by J. R. Dixon member of the advisory committee of the Retail Merchants Association at the annual meeting of the section held here.

The revenue derived from luxury taxes from May 1, 1918, until December 18th, 1920, inclusive, were apportioned as follows, he explained out of a total of $38,696,934.28.

On automobiles..... $17,655,493.17
On pianos and all musical instruments $1,766,649.91
On jewellery $1,689,365.57
On all other merchandise combined..... ..... 17,585,465.63
Grand total.... $38.696,934.282

'I't will, therefore, be seen," said Mr. Dixon, "that antomobiles produced approximately 45 per cent of the total revenue derived—or in other words, exceeded all other merchandise combined, exclusive of pianos, musical instruments and jewelry by $70,027,.64."

The automobile dealers in Canada, who acted as honorary tax collectors of the Dominion Government, represent only one-fifth of one per cent. of the total taxpayers of Canada, and they were compelled to advance their own money to the Government in payment of those luxury taxes on an average of, at least, for months before they could pass the tax on to the ultimate consumer. Dealers had to pay carrying charges alone, $411,961.50.

Says Dealers Not Protected.

"When the luxury tax was first imposed May 1st, 1918, and again, when reimposed May 24th, 1922, it was made retroactive on automobiles on each occasion and dealers were forced to pay the tax on all cars they previously had in stock or in transit thereby depriving them from receiving any benefit from the enhanced value of their stocks on hand. It was naturally assumed that in the disposition of the tax the government would be equally careful to protect the dealers against loss. This was not done and the dealers were further discriminated against when the luxury taxes were repealed.

"All other lines of merchants were refunded in full for luxury tax stamps they had on hand to the extent of $669,426.97. The said stamps were intended by the government to perform, and were performing precisely the same duty as the cold cash advanced by the automobile dealers for the same duty and purpose.

"Automobile manufacturers operating retail branches throughout Canada, with which the dealers had to compete and which up to the repeal of the tax on December 18th, 1920, the Dominion Government had interpreted to be in precisely the same category as the dealers, were immediately given a refund by the government of the luxury taxes they had paid in advance on all the cars they had on hand unsold in those retail branches, to the extent of $171,650.35. At the same time the government declined to reimburse the dealers for the luxury taxes they had paid in advance on cars on hand and unsold at that date, on the ground that taxes once collected could not be refunded.

"The grand total refunded by the Dominion Government was therefore $341,077.32.

"The circumstances under which these refunds were made are identical and on all fours with the automobile dealers, but the automobile dealers were deliberately discriminated against and forced to suffer a loss of at least $1,250,000 which they had advanced to the Dominion government as a trust fund, as it were, until they could recover it from the ultimate consumer or purchaser, on whose behalf it was originally paid by the dealers, and received by the government. This money was paid in advance by the dealers in implicit confidence and in doing so they felt the same sense of security as though it had been deposited in the Post Office Savings Department and they were entitled to the same protecion.

"This money was paid by the automobile dealers to the government for a tax which was to be passed on to the consumer, and was plainly ear-marked for that specific purpose, and then after the receipt of the same by the government, the government took action through order-in-council making it both impossible and illegal to pass it on.

"The non-refunding of this money clearly constitutes unjustifiable discrimination, resulting in the financial ruin of hundreds of dealers throughout Canada, which brought about unemployment—the very thing the government claimed that they were seeking to avoid by the removal or repeal of the luxury tax—and causing serious financial embarrassment and financial losses for nearly all of those who did survive through being deprived of large sums of working cash capital.

"If all other taxpayers in Canada had been compelled to contribute in the same proportion to the Dominion treasury as the automobile dealers were compelled to contribute through the repeal of the luxury tax by order-in-council on December 18, 1920, it would have produced approximately $7,276,500,000.00, or three and a quarter times our national debt, which means the automobile dealers have paid, on an average 325 per cent of their share of the national debt at one stroke, in cash—an impossible burden—unparalleled in British history. Or, put it in another way, the wrongful retention by the government of this money belonging to the automobile dealers, has reduced the balance of the Canadian taxpayers' just share of the national debt by from 35 to 50 cents, at most, for every $4,000.00 of their assessment valuation or financial worth.

"All right thinking Canadian citizens who have had the opportunity of reviewing the facts of this case insist upon this serious wrong being righted, and this money being returned to the dealers, to whom it rightfully belongs, as a matter of PLAIN NATIONAL HONOR AND BRITISH FAIR PLAY."

Alderman McIntyre Loses His Chair in A New Council Rule

Alderman M. McIntyre, who retired from the chairmanship of the Fire, Water and Light committee in the re-shuffling of appointments in January and was given the leadership of the Unemployment Relief and Fuel committee had his chair swept from under him last night.

A by-law to regulate the proceedings of the City Council named the standing committees, but omitted the Unemployment Relief and Fuel committee.

This was an emergency committee and it was considered by the committee appointed to revise the rules of order that it is no longer necessary.

It is thought Alderman McIntyre will retain his title for this year.

Use to Walk The Floor

Dreco works quick change in Mrs. McCormack's condition. Gains six pounds in weight and feels better and stronger in every way.

"For several days I suffered from stomach trouble," says Mrs Robert McCormack of 289 George street, Peterborough, Ont. "My food soured and formed gas that made me miserable and I would get severe spells of heartburn. So acute was my suffering that I never wanted to look at food.

"My nerves were on edge and I would lie awake for hours after going to bed and often had to walk the floor to get relief. I was completely run down and was losing weight fast in spite of all the medicines I tried.

"Dreco, however, has certainly done wonders for me. I can eat anything now without a bit of suffering. I sleep like a child and feel stronger in every way, having gained six pounds in weight, while my old time energy is rapidly returning."

There is no medicine like a good night's sleep. Dreco assures sound sleep every night by correcting digestive disorders and cleansing the blood stream of impurities. It is a splendid tonic and safeguard against colds and other winter ailments. Dreco is purely herbal and contains no mercury, potash or habit-forming drugs.

Dreco is being specially introduced in Peterobrough by Bond's Drug Store. It is also sold as follows:

Lakefield—E. H. Northey.
Campbellford—J. E. Birks.
And by a good druggist everywhere.

CITY COUNCIL HAD BIG BILL

Alderman Crowe said the present cost of a license $5 is ridiculously low and the city should make some money out of them.

Re-Open Question

Alderman Maher gave notice of a motion to be introduced by him at the next meeting of Council that the Council that the application for the license for Hum Brothers eating house be re-opened. His reason was that two members of Council were absent last night.

Ask For Bridge.

A petition was received from ratepayers and owners of property on Caddy and Centre Streets, asking accommodation for vehicular traffic over the creek at the north end of Centre Street. It was referred to the Board of Works.

The monthly report of the fire department was received from Chief George Gimblett, showing 48 alarms during the month of February with a total loss of $14.140.39. This is made up of $1,892.11 on buildings and $12,248.28 on contents.

Lakefield village band asked permission of the City Council to borrow instruments from the Peterboro Rangers Band to assist in forming a band in Lakefield.

Peterboro Rangers Band congratulated Mayor J. J. Turner and the City Council on the proposed silent zone around the park during band concerts, and suggested the suppression of rowdyism in the neighborhood of the band stand.

Street Signs.

F. C. Riddell, of 512 Sherbrooke Street, offered street signs such as he supplied to Brownton recently. He reported 550 of these necessary on the west side of the river and 82 on the east side, adding that he does not make a business of this work, but only a hobby.

His offer was referred to the Board of Works.

Provincial Highways

A communication from Galt Council covered a petition to be forwarded to the Government of Ontario, requesting relief from any payment toward the cost of Provincial highways.

The resolution recites how the cities are now assessing the costs of their streets on the basis of 100 per cent. against the property owners, and a great many of these owners do not own automobiles or otherwise use the Provincial highways. It would appear, therefore, the resolution continues, manifestly unfair that they should pay for the Provincial highways in addition to paying for their own streets.

Salaries Fixed.

A by-law to fix the salaries of Arthur Ringer, George Grange and His Honor Judge Huycke passed its three readings, introduced by Alderman Phelan. The first two date from the first of March and the last from the first of the year.

Alderman McIntyre moved that the dates be fixed for the first of the year for all three. On a vote the yeas and nays tied.

Alderman Maher, cautioned by Alderman Crowe that the City Council is out to save money, said he did not favor discrimination.

A second vote again showed a tie, and Alderman Crowe, chairman of the Committee of the Whole for the second reading, voted for the dating of the increases from March 1 and of the decrease from January 1.

Riverside Park.

The Peterboro Baseball Association offered $1,000 for the lease of Riverside Park for 1924, and the offer was accepted.

The Peterboro Amateur Athletic Association reported it impossible for the Association to make a definite offer for the grounds, and continued that the park could be used for the benefit of sport generally in the city, and that any financial gain over and above the upkeep of the park should be used for the purpose of encouraging and fostering sport and recreation.

"It appears to the Association," the communication continues, "that the park should be opened by the city."

The P.A.A.A., representing organized sport in the city, would be glad to assist or advise the Council in order that the benefits may be obtained.

On the reading of the by-law Alderman McIntyre mentioned the request of the G.W.V.A. to use the park on May 24.

Alderman Phelan said if the park is leased from May 1 the city has nothing to do with it, and May 24 is one of the Baseball Association's big days.

He intimated that an arrangement is proposed whereby the G.W.V.A. will benefit by a special game later in the season.

Lot Closed to Traffic.

John Green asked redress from the City Council for the closing of a lot west of George street and formerly fronting on Wolff street. The lot was closed by the building of C.P.R. sidings and rendered useless, he claimed.

Mayor Turner promised to have a committee investigate the question, which Mr. Green said had been under discussion for forty years.

To Clean Market Square.

The Property committee was authorized to advertise for and let the market tolls, on a motion introduced by Alderman McIntyre.

Alderman Stocker said provision should be made for cleaning up the market square before 2 o'clock every Saturday and a motion by him to that effect was carried.

Amusement Taxes.

Alderman Phelan reported on a convention to which he was a representative from Peterborough discussing the return of a proportion of amusement taxes to the cities where they are collected.

A report will be drafted by a committee and submitted to the municipalities for consideration.

W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P., who was present, advocated deferring the question until fall, and Alderman Phelan agreed with the plan.

Endorse St. Lawrence Plan.

The action of the delegation to the Hon., the Prime Minister, in requesting furtherance of the plans for developing the St. Lawrence power projects was endorsed on motion of Alderman Meyers.

Alderman Phelan proposed that $17,000 for February and $17,000 for March be paid to the Board of Education on account of their requisitions pending the passing of appropriations. The surplus of $15,000 from last year has been used.

A by-law to regulate the proceedings of the City Council passed its three reading.

A report of the assignment on February 7 of Ernest Hensley was referred to the Finance committee.

George S. Carter applied through Alderman Morrison for ashes and this request, with one from A. Carpenter, 572 Rogers street, was granted.

Legal Committee Report.

The Legal Committee reported as follows:

That Mr. W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P. be requested to oppose a bill to be introduced into the Legislature to amend the Assessment Act so as to increase the exemption on income, especially in view of the Premier's statement that there will be a general investigation of the Assessment Act.

That a letter from W. D. N. Munro saying that he will hold the city responsible for damage to his property by the extension of a Canadian National Railways siding on Bethune St, and a letter from J. F. Strickland on behalf of H. A. Morrow, caying that Mr. Morrow's property on Sherbrooke street had been damaged by the lowering of the grade of the road by the Suburban Road Commission, be received.

There were present, Mayor J. J. Turner, Aldermen N. Phelan, R. N. Jones, J. W. Meyers, W. Stocker, M. McIntyre, J. Crowe, R. Morrison and M. J. Maher.

THIRD EXPEDITION TO MOUNT EVEREST

Pictures of the Second Attempt to Climb Mountain Will be Shown Here.

Major Yeats-Brown, D.F.C., a guest at the Empress Hotel this week, making arrangements for the picture, "Climbing Mount Everest," which will be shown at the Capitol Theatre next week, has an interesting record of Empire service behind him. Although still apparently a young man, he has passed nineteen years in the service of the Indian army, of which he is an officer in the 17th Bengal Lancers. During the Great War, he joined the flying corps and in 1915 won the Distinguished Flying Cross for a daring raid on the Turkish Telegraph lines near Baghdad. Taken prisoner by the Turks, he escaped later by the help of a Russian army officer, to be again taken prisoner, and placed in solitary confinement in Constantinople. On his second escape, he disguised himself as a German governess, and hid in the city, doing much intelligence work for the Allies in his female disguise.

Although Major Brown was not one of the members of the expedition which in 1921 and in 1922 essayed the climbing of the great Himalayan peak of Mount Everest, which is 1000 feet higher than any other mountain in the world, he was actively interested in it, through a close friendship with the commander of the first expedition —Colonel Howard-Bury. He has done considerable mountain climbing himself, having gone up to a height of 16,000 feet on several occasions.

The conquest of Mount Everest was almost attained in 1922 by the Second Expedition, which broke all-high-climbing records, but the summit of the great Indian mountain still remains unscaled, and a Third Expedition is planned to make the attempt once more.

Almost insurmountable difficulties in the way of opposition from the authorities of Nepal and Thibet, on whose borders the mountain rests, were met with. The state of Nepal still remains closed to foreigners, but the government of India succeeded in obtaining permission from the Dalai Lama of Thibet some years ago to allow the party to try the ascent. The Chief Lama of the Rongbuk Monastery, who is especially sacred because it is believed that he is the incarnation of a god, was particularly sympathetic, and listened gravely to the explanation that it was the solemn duty of the Royal Geographical Society to visit all places in the world, and of the Alpine Club to climb as near as they could to heaven. His countenance and blessing encouraged the porter corps to their wonderful feats of endurance on the glacier and the mountain, and he comforted the survivors of the accident by his undertakig to perform the proper services for those who were lost.

Never before had foreigners penetrated int othe sacred land of Thibet except under careful disguise, and the travellers saw many wonderful things, which are preserved for the outer world by means of the kinematograph camera an large telephoto lens, which went with the party to a height of 23,000 feet on their climb of Mount Everest. The strange monastic life of Thibet is reproduced also, with solemn devil dances in the ritual of the monks, and with these is music which aims to reproduce the actual sounds of the music of a Tibetan band, with instruments resembling as nearly as possible the original Tibetan pieces.

HERE'S WHAT PEOPLE SAY ABOUT TANLAC

If it had not been for Tanlac I would still be a sick, discouraged woman, for nothing else seemed to do me any good, says Mrs. Edward Gibbs.

All the advertising in the world and all the sales efforts combined could not have made the great success for TANLAC that has been attained, unless this reconstructive tonic possessed merit of the greatest degree. Over 40 Million Bottles of Tanlac have been sold and the demand today is greater than ever before.

That TANLAC possesses merit and has brought relief to hundreds of thousands of persons is attested by the great number of testimonials that have been received by the company from people in every state of the Union and every province of Canada. There are over 100,000 such statements on file with the company, all ringing with sincere praise for TANLAC and what it has accomplished.

Here are excerpts from a few of the 100,000 statements on file:

Mrs. Edward Gibbs, Lancaster, Pa.—"For 2 years indigestion deprived me of nearly all the pleasure of living. If it had not been for TANLAC I would still be a sick and discouraged woman, for nothing else seemed to do me any good."

Mrs. Mary A. Benson, Seattle, Wash.: "Following an operation my stomach and nerves seemed to give way and I became almost helpless. As a last resort I tried TANLAC. I began to improve from the very first, gained 29 lbs., and today am feeling fine."

O. E. Moore, Kansas City, Mo.: "My stomach seemed to pain me constantly, food seemed to do me no good, I would bloat up with gas, lost my strength and could not sleep or rest. I was on the downgrade all the time. Tanlac corrected my troubles and put me in excellent shape."

Thomas Lucas, Peterboro, Ontario: "Well, sir, buying TANLAC was the best investment I ever made, for it built up my health and strength to where I haven't a complaint in the world."

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Kaake, Detroit, Mich.: "For more than a year our three children, age 2, 4 and 6, had been so peaked and lifeless that were we worried about them. Their stomachs were upset, appetites poor, the color had left their cheeks, their nights were restless and during the day they would just mope around, taking no interest in play or anything else. They began to improve with the first dose of TANLAC, and today there are no more healthy children in Detroit."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Over 40 million bottles sold. Accept no substitute.

MANY HERE SLOWLY POISONED WHEN FILTER GETS OUT OF FIX

Begins With Symptoms Such as Headaches, Sour Stomach, Sharp Pains and Nervous, Upset Condition.

Every drop of water used here passes through a filter where poisonous waste matter is eliminated and the water is made pure. People would soon protest if City Officials allowed this filter to get clogged up so that it could no longer purify water which flows into your home. Yet, people never stop to think that there is a filter in the body that is just as important to you as the one that purifies the city water supply.

Why You Feel Badly.

This filter is your liver. When working as Nature intended it purifies your blood, every drop of which filters through your liver every 15 minutes. It also supplies the secretions that are essential to digestion and nourishment and prevents constipation. But, when this filter becomes clogged up with poisonous waste, it cannot do these three things. Consequently you often wake up feeling dull, nervous and tired. You system is slowly poisoned and you suffer from such symptoms as sour stomach, belching of gas, improper movement of the bowels, sick headaches and a nervous, upset condition. You catch cold easily and your system is too rundown to throw off these troubles. You continue to feel badly until you filter has been properly cleansed and toned.

Dr. Thacher Offers Relief!

Science can now help you feel your best again! Dr. Thacher has perfected a purely vegetable syrup (known as Dr. Thacher's Liver & Blood Syrup) which has brought quick relief in numerous cases like those described above. It contains only ingredients known to Physicians for their corrective and healthbuilding properties. It helps Nature to cleanse and tone your liver properly and build up your system.

Try a spoonful after the next few meals. Notice the quick difference in the way you look, eat, sleep and feel. Dr. Thacher's Liver & Blood Syrup is sold by J. P. Bond, McDermid & Jury and The Warne Drug Company, Ltd., in Peterboro; The Tanner Drug Company in Lakefield with the complete understanding that you will be completely satisfied; otherwise your money will be returned—and you are the judge.

GOVERNMENT TO PUT WOOD TO EXECUTIVE

MOSCOW, aMrch 4. United Press. —Nation-wide interest was aroused to-day by the trial of the Banker Krasnoschokov, former president of the Far Eastern Republic who is now charged with the misuse of funds.

Krasnoschokov became a director of the industrial bank after giving up his executive position, and the government has announced its intention to make an example of him.

FIGHT STARTED OVER SMALL AMOUNT OF MONEY

SUDBURY, March 4.—(Canadian Press)—William Trotsky, a Russian, is in a serious condition in the hospital here, and William Scott is held on remand, following a fight outside a local hotel, when Trotsky refused to lend his assailant 50 cents, it is claimed. Scott, who is a Gaspe Scotchman, speaking only French, says that Trotsky made insulting remarks about the Scotch race.

CHURCHILL TO STAND.

LONDON, March 4.—(Canadian Press.)—Winston Spencer Churchill, formerly First Lord of the Admiralty, has definitely decided to stand as an independent candidate for parliament for Abbey Division of Westminster.

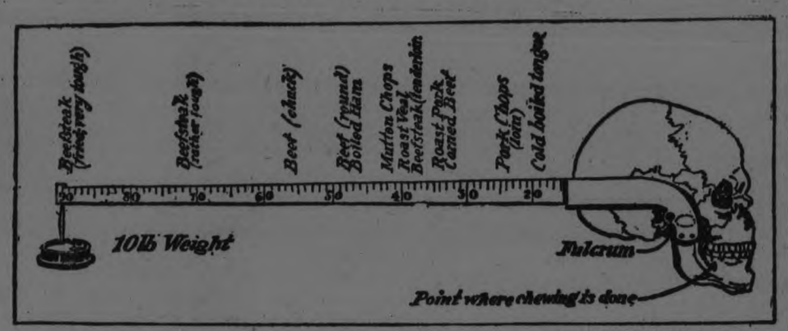
How Your Jaw Power Is Measured



Courtesy of the Scientific American.

The Marvelous Mechanism of the Human Jaw, Showing the Great Leverage Used in Chewing Food. A Person of Normal Strength and Sound Teeth Can Produce More Power with His Jaws Than with Any Other Part of His Body.

WHAT is your jaw power? Everyone who has seen circus performers swinging from trapezes or raising enormous weights by the grip of the teeth is aware that the human jaw is capable of exerting great power. But do you know that the muscles of your own jaw, developed merely by the necessary work you perform in chewing your food, possess power enough to lift from the ground a man as large as Jack Dempsey?

That tests of jaw power offer some surprising facts regarding the strength which the human jaw is capable of developing is shown in the feat of Sailor Jim White, of the Philadelphia, the strong man of Uncle Sam's Navy, who recently pulled with his teeth a fire truck weighing 17,150 pounds and its full crew of ten men.

"A person of normal strength and with useful teeth," says Dr. Arthur D. Black, dean of Northwestern University Dental School, in a contribution to Popular Science Monthly, "can exert more pressure between his back teeth than he can produce by any other part of his body. The bite of the jaw is stronger than the grasp of the hand, the pressure of one hand against the other, or the grip of the knees. It is greater than the weight of the whole body of any but exceptionally heavy persons.

"The average jaws possess a biting power of 171 pounds, the jaw strength of thousands of persons examined varying between 25 pounds and 260 pounds. The figure of 260 pounds does not, however, necessarily represent the maximum power of the jaw.

"The instrument by which the power of the human jaw is measured, called the gnathodynamometer, is constructed to register no higher than that figure. Doubtless many persons can bite as much as 300 pounds.

"Just how great a force 260 pounds is can be realized when I say that it is equivalent to the greatest weight the average man can lift from the floor with one hand, using his back, legs and every other muscle to aid him.

"The strength of the bite as registered on a recording instrument depends not so much upon the muscular power of the person being tested as upon the condition of his teeth. This condition depends in turn upon the habitual use of the teeth. Wrong advice that most of us receive early in life is responsible for the fact that we shrink from attacking with our teeth hard substances that would yield to them readily.

"A normally healthy child will attempt to chew almost anything that appears to be edible. It will crack nuts and gnaw on hard candy and its teeth will suffer no harm. On the contrary, the tissues supporting the teeth will be strengthened and hardened as those of an animal are hardened from chewing on bones and other hard substances. Misinformed elders, however, will warn the child against this instinctive use of the teeth for the purposes for which they were designed. The result is that the child acquires fear of biting on hard objects, and its teeth, lacking the exercise they need, do not receive the thorough scrubbing which results from vigorous mastication.

"I have seen many persons who, accustomed to chewing only on soft foods, have registered a bite of only 80 pounds under test. A change of diet, which included a fair proportion of hard foods, worked wonders with these persons. Within a month their teeth were capable of exerting a pressure of 100 pounds, and three or four months of the treatment raised the strength of their bite to 150 pounds.

"Years ago in the West, hazel nuts with tough shells, requiring between 150 and 200 pounds pressure, grew wild, and people cracked them with their teeth. Those same nuts are cultivated and soft-shelled now, requiring only half as much jaw force. Yet to-day few people would dare attack with their teeth.

"All of us should use our teeth freely on hard foods. It is a commonly expressed fallacy that teeth which have been filled are to be spared in chewing. This is not true. If the dental work has been done properly, the filling will be more than equal to withstand a pressure of from 125 to 150 pounds. This is the greatest force the jaws ordinarily will be called upon to exert.

"The toughest beef will yield to a grinding force by the teeth of from 70 to 90 pounds. Better cuts of beef may require as little as 45 pounds pressure from the jaws. Mutton may be chewed with a force of between 30 and 45 pounds. Roast veal requires from 35 to 45 pounds, pork from 30 to 35 pounds, corned beef from 30 to 35 pounds and broiled ham from 40 to 60 pounds. Among meats, cold boiled tongue can be chewed with the least expenditure of jaw energy, between three and five pounds sufficing.

"To those who may fear to break their teeth by biting on hard substances, let me say that, provided their teeth are in good condition, they will not be harmed by small bones or stones, birdshot or similar materials that accidentally may get into the food. Tests conducted on a specially constructed dynamometer show the teeth to be much stronger than any of these materials.

"Freshly extracted teeth placed in this machine resisted much stronger pressure than stones, metals and other substances which the average man would regard as being considerably harder than his teeth."

Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever Transmitted by Wood Ticks

THE submarine emerges from the water, attacks and disappears; in the same way spotted fever attacks from its base in the Rocky Mountains. It will no doubt appear as usual with the warm days of Spring, attack man until the hot days of July, and then withdraw for a season, according to a writer in the Journal of the American Medical Association. Such has been its history for many years. Mountain Indians attributed the danger of trips to certain valleys to evil spirits, and early settlers associated the disease with the melting snows.

Spotted fever probably existed in the Bitter Root Valley at least seventy-five years ago. While information concerning two cases in 1873 is probably authentic, the first written account of the disease appeared in 1896. In 1902 G. T. McCullough published the first account of the deadly type, citing ninety-two cases with a mortality of 75 per cent. In the same year, the Montana State Board of Health engaged Wilson and Chowning to conduct an investigation. In 1903, the Federal Government began an almost continuous series of investigations, extending to the present.

"Until the brilliant work of Ricketts, Rocky Mountain spotted fever remained a mystery," says this authority. "Its origin was obscure. It was usually fatal in certain comparatively small areas, seldom fatal in others, and completely absent in closely adjacent regions. H. T. Ricketts went to Montana in April, 1906, and promptly demonstrated that a wood tick transmits the disease. He also proved that infective ticks exist in nature, and that the virus is transmitted by heredity to succeeding generations of ticks.

"The tick concerned in the natural transmission of spotted fever exists in parts of Washington, Oregon, California, Idaho, Nevada, Montana, Wyoming, Colorado and New Mexico, in which States, except New Mexico, cases of spotted fever have undoubtedly originated. Its distribution is therefore that of its carrier. It is not possible to determine with available records whether or not the disease is spreading over larger areas in these States. However, it appeared in 1915 in Eastern Montana, where the disease certainly would have been recognized had it existed prior to that time.

"The total number of cases that occur annually cannot be accurately stated. Bishopp regarded 700 as a comparative estimate. The mortality rate varies greatly. In the Bitter Root Valley, it is probably greater than 70 per cent; outside the Bitter Root Valley, it varies from 7.15 to 13 per cent.

"The possibility of a widespread extension of the disease, or of a large epidemic, is remote, although several species of ticks, some of which occur over large areas in the eastern and southern portions of the United States, are capable of transmitting the disease. A hopeful feature is that only one species of tick in the Bitter Root Valley attacks man, and its attachment for hours is necessary to infect. Ricketts, in one instance, secured infection in one and three-fourths hours, but from ten to twenty hours' feeding was usually required.

"Most ticks that attach themselves to human beings are doubtless removed before infection occurs. R. R. Spencer and R. R. Parker recently collected from the vegetation near Hamilton, Mont., more than 100 lots of ticks, many of which were taken from areas known to be infected, and inoculated the contents of from fifteen to twenty-five ticks from each lot into guinea pigs, without spotted fever resulting once. When similar experiments were performed with ticks collected from a mountain goat the disease was transmitted. These experiments have been repeated many times, indicating that before unfed infected ticks, that have hibernated, become infective, the virus must be reactivated by fresh mammalian blood. It is not known what change in the virus occurs as a result of the ingestion of blood, but its apparent necessity explains in part the comparatively small number of human cases of spotted fever."

The VALUE of FATS in the DIET

BEFORE 1914, Americans presumably used more fats than the people of any other country. Whereas the American usually used 3¼ ounces of fat per day, the Englishman consumed 3¼ ounces, the German 2⅕ ounces, and the Frenchman 1½ ounces.

Following the war, the foreign consumption of fats decreased still more, primarily because the animal fats (butter and lard, for example) were available only in small amounts, since there was no food for the stock from which these fats were obtained. Furthermore, the vegetable fats and oils, such as olive, cotton-seed and peanut oils, could not be imported on account of lack of ships. The result of this shortage, as a writer in Hygeia points out, has been a gradual substitution of animal fats by vegetable substitutes made from the oils mentioned and by mixtures of such oils with harder animal fats, and oils made solid by passing hydrogen through them.

Experts in human nutrition have now begun to inquire whether it is satisfactory from the standpoint of human diet to use these substitutes. The fact is that their use involves the consideration, not only of the amount of energy they may produce and their use of digestion, but also their relative cost, palatability and whether or not they can meet the traditional preferences or tastes of various peoples. Furthermore, fats vary in the amount of vitamin substances—vitamin A—which are necessary to life and growth. Green vegetables also contain this vitamin, so that the diet is not dependent altogether on the animal fats for it. All of these factors must be taken into consideration.

The kind of fats which different nations have eaten has depended chiefly on climatic and economic conditions. Olive and cocoanut oils are used in tropical and semitropical countries, lard and butter in meat producing countries. Sicilian peasants enjoy olive oil with their bread, but most Americans prefer butter.

The Journal of the American Medical Association agrees with the conclusions issued by the United States Food Administration during the war:

Except for the vitamin present, there is no difference in the food value of different kinds of fat. All yield equal amounts of energy, and are digested with virtually the same ease and completeness. Scorched fats, such as are found in foods that have been fried at too high a temperature, sometimes prove troublesome and have given fried foods the reputation of being indigestible; but this is probably due to the poor cooking rather than to the fat itself.

Although fats do not usually cause any digestive disturbances, they do remain in the stomach longer than the other nutrients, and this seems to have a most interesting effect on the sensation of hunger. That sensation begins to be felt after the stomach has been empty for a time. If there is little or no fat in the meal, the sensation begins more quickly, and this probably explains why a diet poor in fat seems so unsatisfying and why one rich in fat seems "hearty."

Fat in the diet has a marked "psychologic" value. Food without fat is likely to be without flavor and monotonous. If a food is distinctly unpleasant and different from that to which a person is accustomed, actual recent investigations indicate that the margin between the amount and kinds of fat we may desire and that which we actually need is wide beyond expectation.

Why Churches Have Bells

THE association of bells with religion goes back to the remotest ages, for they are found in the history of the ancient Jews, of the Greeks and Romans, and of the Egyptians and Assyrians, while they have also a prominent part to-day in most of the creeds of the East.

In the Christian faith the first record of bells being used is found when persecutions ceased and services began to be held openly.

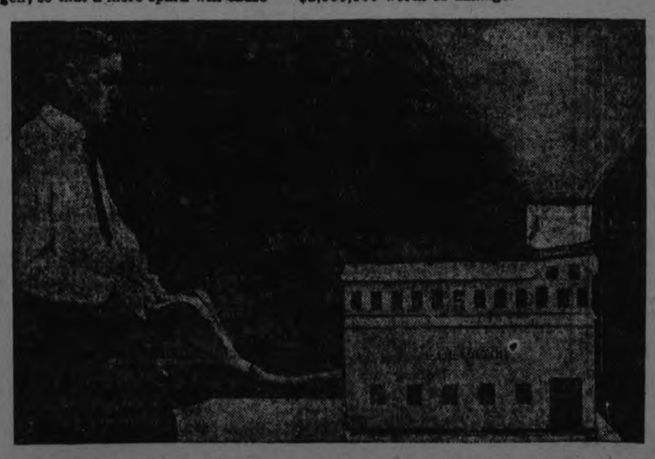
In ages when clocks and watches were unknown, church bells served a very real purpose in calling congregations not necessarily to church, but to prayer. In those times almost every hour had its appointed prayers, in which the people were expected to join, even though busy at the time at their ordinary work, exactly as even to-day in some countries laborers will pause for a moment to say the "Angelus." In short, religion played its part, not only in the service, but in every hour, and their passage in a watchless age was marked by the church bell.

To-day every one knows the time, and the church bell is only more or less a survival, though in some localities its use before morning and evening service is still enjoined, as a warning to the congregation.

How DUST Becomes EXPLOSIVE

THE home kitchen is supposed to be a very safe place. Wheat flour is one of the most harmless of substances. But suppose that Biddy, the cook, were to close the kitchen windows and throw handfuls of flour about until the air of the room was full of it. If thereupon she were to strike a match the house would be blown to pieces.

When a cloud of flour is afloat in the air, in a confined space, every particle of it is in contact with oxygen; so that a mere spark will cause it to burn with instantaneous rapidity. Thereby a great quantity of gas is suddenly generated, and the force of its expansion in a closed place produces an explosion.



A Miniature Grain Elevator, Inside of Which, for Experimental Purposes, a Lighted Candle Is Placed. When a Small Quantity of Grain Dust Is Blown Into It with a Bellows an Explosion Promptly Follows.

Every now and then a flour mill is blown up in this way. Not very long ago a wheat elevator on the Great Lakes—a magnificent fireproof structure of concrete that cost $3,000,000—was reduced to ruins by an explosion of grain dust, probably ignited by a spark from machinery.

Any combustible substance, in the form of dust, is a dangerous explosive under like circumstances. An accident of the kind that cost half a dozen lives destroyed a candy factory in Boston where powdered sugar, used in the manufacture of marshmallows, was the cause of the tragic mishap.

To illustrate the idea, the Department of Agriculture has built a minature grain elevator, inside of which, for experimental purposes, a lighted candle is placed. When a small quantity of grain dust is blown into it with a bellows an explosion promptly follows.

From what was said above it will be seen that the family bowl of powdered sugar contains a powerful explosive. Ordinary starch, in the form of a powder, is equally dangerous. Not long ago an explosion of dust in one of our biggest starch factories killed forty-three persons and did $2,000,000 worth of damage.

During the last few years there have been disastrous dust explosions in sugar mills, spice mills, cork factories and drug works. Cinnamon is a first-class explosive under suitable conditions. Among other such happenings were explosions of fish meal, of corn meal, of aluminum dust and hard rubber dust.

Not until a comparatively short time ago did it come to be known that many of the worst disasters in coal mines are caused by explosions of coal dust.

Government investigators suggest that mills and factories, in which combustible dust of any kind is liable to accumulate, should be mere skeletons of steel, with thin walls that would easily be blown outward by pressure of expanding gas inside. If the walls offered little resistance the effect of an explosion would be minimized.

Can Water Intoxicate?

THE water-intake of normal man is controlled by the sensations of thirst and of satiety, and the latter, though coming less noticeably into consciousness than the former, appears to protect against too great an intake, as does the former against depletion. In addition to these psychic mechanisms of protection there are at least two others which prevent dangerous excess. The excretory power of the normal kidney has a relatively enormous range. A further protective influence in man is exerted by the stomach, which holds up any great excess of ingested water and, by causing vomiting, prevents further intake.

A contributor to London Lancet described the results of administering water in excessive amounts through stomach-tubes to dogs, cats, and rabbits. In all these animals the symptoms produced were very striking. Retching and vomiting were followed by violent convulsions, similar to those produced by strychnine poisoning. These convulsions tended to recur at intervals of a few minutes, the animals in the interval being in a state of asthenia often bordering on coma. Death in coma, or during a convulsion, frequently occurred, but if recovery took place the animal was usually normal in a few hours after the cessation of water administration.

In rabbits and guinea-pigs little actual vomiting occurred and the onset of convulsions was more rapid than in dogs, in whom there was frequent vomiting and sometimes diarrhoea. In rabbits it was possible to produce a condition of subacute intoxication by administering water in amounts equal to one-fourth of the body-weight daily over a long period.

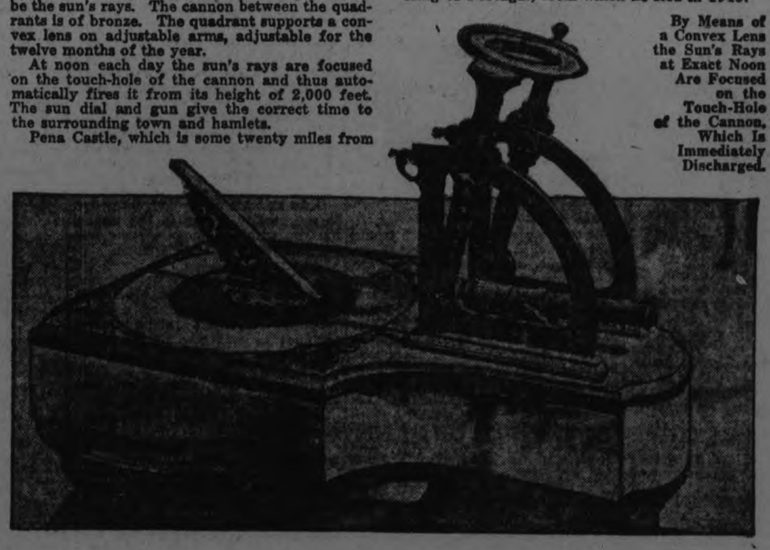
Correct TIME from a CANNON

THE automatic sun gun at Pena Castle, at Cintra, Portugal, invented by a Portuguese, affords considerable encouragement to the many scientists who are working on the theory that the ultimate source of all power will be the sun's rays. The cannon between the quadrants is of bronze. The quadrant supports a convex lens on adjustable arms, adjustable for the twelve months of the year.

At noon each day the sun's rays are focused on the touch-hole of the cannon and thus automatically fires it from its height of 2,000 feet. The sun dial and gun give the correct time to the surrounding town and hamlets.

Pena Castle, which is some twenty miles from Lisbon, is one of the finest monuments of its kind in the world. It was once a stronghold of the Moors; in fact, the last that the Moors held in Portugal.

Pena Castle was the Summer palace of the late King of Portugal, from which he fled in 1919.



By Means of a Convex Lens the Sun's Rays at Exact Noon Are Focused on the Touch-Hole of the Cannon, Which Is Immediately Discharged.

KINGSTON KIDS GRAB GOAL LEAD IN FIRST

Turned Out a Strong, Fast Team and Found the Breaks to Their Advantage — Petes Hampered By Soft Ice — Combination Attempts Ineffective

Kingston's "Circle Six" juniors nosed out a victory over the young Petes by the score of 5-4 at Brock Street Rink last night. The ice was soft and rough, disrupting team play and slowing up the game. The players showed signs of weariness before the first intermission, the fast opening pace taking a lot of steam out of them.

The Petes played clean hockey throughout while the Kingston aggregation got off lucky with the penalties they received as they were inclined to mix it frequently and the steady tripping of Kirby, the white headed centre man, did not help his team any, as he served three penalties and deserved several others. He was the bad man of the Kingston team and was closely watched by the Peterboro forwards who checked him off his feet.

In the first period the Circle Six boys had the best of the game and when it ended they had 2 goals to the Petes 0. The Petes battled hard in the second period and for the latter five minutes they had everything their own way and kept the puck in the visitors end of the rink but they could not push it passed Grey in the nets. Both teams registered once in this period, while the Petes deserved many more.

Fast In Third.

The third period was the fastest of the three with both teams doing a lot of gunning. Two minutes after the go-in the Petes scored on a scrimmage in front of the net but the Goal Referee failed to raise his hand and was removed at the request of the Peterboro team. Three minutes later Hartley drove a fast one past LeBarr, making the score 4 to 1. The Petes came back and registered three times in succession, thereby tying up the score but a few minutes before the final bell Hartley scored on a pass from a face off near the net, making the score 5 to 4 where it remained.

In Trenton Wednesday

On Wednesday the Petes will meet these boys once more for the championship of Eastern Ontario. Although the Petes are down one goal they expect to come through with a victory over the Circle Six boys. Both teams will be playing before a strange crowd. On a fast sheet of ice the Petes will likely bring home the bacon but if the ice is heavy as it was last night they will have to work like fiends as the Kingston team are a much heavier gang.

The stars for Kingston were Kirby, the little centre man, Lawless who plays defence and Patterson the fast right wing man who flings a wicked shot. Grey in goal played a good game but his failure to clear quickly caused him many exciting moments, when the Petes' forwards raced in on him to get the rebound. Meltz the husky lad who teamed up with Lawless was always effective and his rushes were always dangerous while Hartley the left wing man was always effective and his checking was good. Lamber and Laflamme the two subs turned in a good game but were not as effective as the regulars.

Locals Played Well.

For Peterboro H. McDougal was the outstanding player. He was always with the puck and he plays his position well. Although the heavy ice played havoc with him he managed to last it out. Lebarr in goal played a very good game and several of the goals scored against him were of the fluky nature. Both Holland and Thornton on the defence were good and their rushes were always ended with Grey making a clever save. Cheu's backchecking was an outstanding feature of the game, and his gameness carried him a long way, while Neal Collins on the other wing turned in one of his best games this season. He lost several good chances to score by working in close and when he had chance to get his shot from outside. Both subs were equally as good as the rest and were always giving all they had.

Although Referee Jacobi was razzed a great deal by the fans, he did well, and managed to catch the greater part of the rough stuff and the offsides.

First Period.

The first period started at a fast pace, but both teams soon slackened up a little, until they got their second wind, when they cut loose again and showed signs of combination which was spoiled by the sticky ice. The Petes forced the play for a few minutes but the tide changed and for the rest of the period the visitors had the best of the play.

Both teams battled for fourteen minutes without a score, then Patterson for the visitors who had given Lebarr several hard shots to handle slipped one passed him on a corner shot. Lawless carried the puck the length of the ice and scored a fluky one from a corner shot that bounced over Lebarr's stick and into the corner of the net. With four minutes left the Petes forced the play but their efforts were fruitless as the Meltz-Lawless defence in front of Grey proved too strong for them to get through.

Second Period.

The second period got away to a good start when N. Collins carried the puck fom centre ice and slipped a hot one past Grey for their first counter.

Three minutes after the start Holland dropped the puck in front of the net and Patterson batted it passed Lebarr, giving him little chance to save. The Petes lined up in twos and threes and tore down the ice in great style but Grey in goal was too good for them. They played faultless hockey for the rest of this period but did not succeed in scoring although several times they had nothing to do but beat the goaler and once the open which Holland missed when he fell as he went to shoot, the puck rolling around the corner of the post. Lebarr was tested several times but he also was an obstacle in the Kingstoner's path and when the period ended the Circle Six boys had 3 to the Petes 1.

Goal Not Counted.

The homesters had not yet given up hope and in the last frame they showed a brand of hockey that was superior to the visitors, and which should have copped them at least a two goal lead. The Petes scored from a scrimmage in front of the net but the goal referee did not see it and did not raise his hand. The goal was not counted and the Kingston lad behind the net was chased and a new man took his place. For the first five minutes it looked as if the score was going to stay the same but Hartley did the trick when he shot a fast one from outside the defence past Lebarr, making the score 4 to 1. Holland scored and a few minutes later Cheu put one past Grey, making the score 4 to 3. The Petes were not satisfied to be one goal down and fifteen sconds later Collins registered tying up the score. Collins was penalized for tripping and while has was off Hartley beat Lebarr from outside the dea face off near the net. This made fence, when he received a pass from the score 5 goals to 4 and it remained that way for the rest of the game.

GROVE BLANKED HUSTLERS' TEAM

Casement Cup Game 6-0 For Lakefield Students—Examiner Team Defeated By Village O.H.A. Intermediates.

LAKEFIELD, March. — In a Casement Hockey Cup game last night Grove School defeated the Hustlers by 6-0 in a rather tame contest.

The teams were:

Grove — Goal, Griffiths; defence, Massie and Christmas; centre, Rainnie; right wing, James; left wing, Fawcett; subs., Barnard and Little.

Hustlers — Goal, Graham; defence, Hull and G. Northey; centre, Wannamaker; right wing, F. Hill; left wing, Sherin; subs., P. Hill and Lake.

Referee, B. Blewett.

Massie scored four goals, three in the first period, and Little and Rainie got one each.

"Examiner" Lost.

A team representing The Peterborough Examiner was downed by Lakefield Intermediates by the score of 5-1 in a fast and snappy game.

The line-ups follow:

Lakefield — Goal, Webster; defence, J. Sabatino and W. Webster; centre, J. Ridpath; right wing, Blewett; left wing, C. Ridpath; subs., E. Northey and J. Hull.

Examiner — Goal, Long; defence, Lipsett and McClarty; centre, G. Williams; right wing, M. Williams; left wing, Fred Graham; subs., Grey and Frick

Referee — A. Graham.

Lakefield's scorers were Webster, J. Ridpath, Northey, Sabatino, and Blewett.

M. Williams saved the visitors from the Kalsomine.

A picked team from the Grove Seconds and Thirds defeated T.C.S. Seconds by 3-2 in Port Hope yesterday.

LAKEFIELD, March 4.—Friday night in the Lakefield Arena a fair crowd of spectators saw a fast game of hockey played between Kennedy's Colts and Trudes' Tractors, the former winning by the scored one, making the score 2 to overtime periods were played.

In the first period the both teams scored one, in the second the Colts score done, making the score 2 to 1 in favor of the Colts. The third period was fast throughout and when the period had finished the Tractors had run in two to the Colts one, thereby tying up the game. In the first overtime period there was no score, but in the last five minutes Hamblin scored the winning goal for the Colts. The win for tonight makes the Colts the winners of the first half for the Lakefield Distirct Hockey Cup. The Grove and the Hustlers will clash this week the winners to meet the Colts and the winners of this game will meet Warsaw for the championship.

The teams lined up as follows:

Colts—Goal, F. Hill; right defence, Northey; left defence, W. Payne; centre, M. Wannamaker; right wing, D. Hill; left wing, M. Dever; subs. Hamblin and F. Payne.

Tractors—Goal, E. Blewett; right defence, S. Trude; centre, D. Darling; right wing, A. Montgomery; left wing, S. Wood; subs, R. Graham and J. Northey.

Referee—R. Murduff.

EARLY BIRDS

Noted Stars Assemble at Hot Springs, Ark., For First Workouts of Year.

STEVE O'NEILL IN ACTION; BABE RUTH IN CIRCLE AND GEORGE UHLE.

One touch of training makes the whole baseball world kin. Already the athletes are beginning to assemble in the spring camps for unlimbering exercises preparatory to the opening of the 1924 campaign.

At present Hot Springs, Ark., is a hot-bed of baseball activity with such stars as Babe Ruth of the Yankees, Steve O'Neill of the Red Sox and George Uhle of the Indians on the ground, not to mention a score of others.

In another week or so all the major league players, and a number of the minors, too, will begin to mobilize at various southern camps. It is estimated that more 800 professional ball players will take the Dixie jaunt this year.

BOWLING

BELL TELEPHONE LEAGUE.

Saturday night in the Bell Telephone Intershop League the Hot Shots won two out of three from the Radios.

Some nice score were rolled, particularly that of Dave White who rolled 623 for three games. Dick Lush was next with 612. Lush had the high single of 289.

Following are the scores:

DEMPSEY BETTER QUITS HOSPITAL

Wishes to Go Home to Salt Lake City But Manager Plans Theatrical Engagement.

NEW YORK, March 3. — Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, was so far recovered today from the effects of an operation for hemorrhoids and an abscess that he left the hospital for a few hours in company with his manager, Jack Kearns. The champion, however, returned to the hospital tonight for final observation, but expects to be discharged to-morrow.

Keans said plans for the future were indefinite. Dempsey has expressed a desire to take a trip to the Pacific Coast and visit his parents at Salt Lake City, but Manager Kearns is contemplating a theatrical engagement that will keep Dempsey busy until time to begin training for pending ring engagements.

OLYMPICS TO PLAY TESTIMONIAL GAME

Will Compose All Star Team With Varsity Against Soo Seniors in Testimonial to Brackborough.

TORONTO, March 4.—(Canadian Press). — Owing to the fact that they broke training after the final game against the United States team at Chamonix, the Canadian Olympic players will not appear together as a team again this season. They were requested to take part in a Brackenborough testimonial game but declined to play as a team. The players, however, offered to participate in any game for this worthy purpose. Sault Ste. Marie Seniors will be invited to play against an all-star team here next Saturday night, and will likely accept as the northerners will welcome any opportunity to get accustomed to the artificial ice, in preparation for the Allen Cup contests. In addition, the Soo players are anxious to assist Brackenborough in every way possible. He was once their opponent in N.O.H.A. games.

It is proposed to select a team from the Olympic and University of Toronto teams for the game against the N.O.H.A. title holders. This tilt would pack the arena to the rafters, as every time the Greyhounds start there is plenty of excitement, and the fans would get a glimpse of the players who won the world's championship for Canada.

A temporary committee has been formed here and will meet again today to discuss the details. Dr. Smirle Lawson and "Conny" Smythe, University of Toronto coach, are two of the officials in charge. Dr. Lawson predicts that Toronto will raise more money for Brackenborough than Hamilton will.

Brackenborough is looking at the cheerful side of the affair, if there can be a cheerful side. He says that he has no intention of retiring from hockey, and points to other players who went along under similar handicaps.

PITCHERS MAY GOLF.

DETROIT, March 3.— Ty Cobb has relented on his recent edict against golf, according to reports from the Tiger training camp at Augusta, Ga. Cobb's new order permits pitchers to play the Scotch game, but keeps the bars up to other members of the squad.

Cobb's opposition to golf is that in his opinion, it adversely affects the "batting eye." Inasmuch as pitchers, as a rule, cannot hit anyway, Cobb sees no reason to keep them off the links.

McINNIS JOINS BRAVES.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., March 3. —"Stuffy" McInnis first baseman of the Boston Braves, left to-day to join his team mates at St. Petersburg, Fla. Before leaving for the South McInnis denied reports that he was a holdout, and declared that he signed a 1924 contract some time ago.

HOCKEY SEASON NEARS THE END

Toronto Favors Owen Sound Juniors-Sudden Death Game in Toronto to Decide.

TORONTO, March 4.—(Canadian Press).—O. H. A. junior final gamse will be played on Monday and Wednesday of next week. Owen Sound, Kitchener, Hamilton, Peterborough and Kingston remain in the running, and Owen Sound is favoured to win the championship. Owen Sound will play the winner of the Kingston-Peterborough round at the Toronto Arena in a sudden death game next Friday night .Kitchener and Hamilton will play home and home games, first in Hamilton on Wednesday and second in Kitchener on Friday. North Bay juniors will play against the O.H.A. champions on the night of March 14 in a Memorial Cup game.

Intermediate teams are also nearing the end of the road. It is expected that the champions will be ready to play against the Sault Ste. Marie team here on March 12th. Survivors of this game will play against the O.H.A. senior title holders, Hamilton or Stratford, on March 15th and 18th.

President Sexsmith of the Canadian Hockey Association is contemplating awarding the Allan Cup semi-finals to Ottawa and the finals to Toronto. It had been decided that the finals be played in Ottawa, but the semi-finals with the Eastern representatives opposing O.H.A.-N. O.H.A. would be a better attraction in Ottawa. Then, too, it is thought that the Stanley Cup games will be played in the capital, even if Montreal Canadiens win the N. H. L. title.

NIAGARA FALLS TOOK THE LEAD

Shut Out New Hamburg by Two Points--First Defeat of Season for Visitors.

NIAGARA FALLS, March 4. Canadian Press. — The local intermedil ates secured a two goal lead against the New Hamburgs here last night, the visitors being shut out in the first game of the O.H.A. semi-finals. Five thousand fans witnessed the struggle, a record for the new arena. The game was closely contested throughout, although with the exception of the second period, when the youthful New Hamburgers ran wild at times, the Falls had an advantage.

The visitors who met their first defeat of the season are a snappy team. Roth at centre ice is their greatest star, while Hamel and Heimbecker were not far behind. Trushinski and Lederman on the defense are a good pair.

A collection was taken up for Johnnie Brackenborough fund, which netted some $500.

SOO GREYHOUNDS 3; AURA LEE 3.

LONDON, March 4. Canadian Press. — A large crowd of hockey fans witnessed a fairly fast exhibition hockey game at the Arena last night between the Canadian Soo Greyhounds, champions of Northern Ontario, and a mixture of Aura Lee seniors and juniors, which ended in a three-all tie in ten minutes overtime.

The Greyhounds were outlucked in the third period after trailing on the goal margin, as they seemed to be actually trying their utmost to register a victory.

Aura Lee had the most shots on the net during the over-time period, and even with Dinsmore off the Soo failed to develop any punch in the last five minutes.

TIGER JUNIORS WON.

HAMILTON, March 4.— (Canadian Press.)—Tiger Juniors defeated Parry Sound last night by 8 to 1 in a return game here and won the round by ten to six, qualifying for semi-finals for O.H.A. honors, with Kitchener. The locals got their first tally in the opening frame, but in the second and third ran wild, and only wonderful goalkeeping by Lyscombe held them to eight counters.

There was plenty of heavy bodychecking by the Hamilton squad in the opening period and it took a lot of fight out of the visitors. Went- will make his senior debut with Tigers against Stratford tonight, turned in a fine game, while Harley, Farrell and Litzen ran him a close race for honors. Stewart was the only member of Parry Sound team to show to an advantage, but was forced to retire early in the third period after receiving a heavy body check.

INDIGESTION GAS ON STOMACH PAINS AFTER MEALS

Choose Your 'Semi-trimmed' NOW!

WHAT "SEMI-TRIMMED" MEANS

The Staunton "semi-trimmed" feature ranks as one of the greatest innovations in the history of wallpaper manufacture. Instead of tedious, inaccurate trimming with straight-edge, scissors or knife, the selvage is knocked off by rapping the end of the roll on table or floor. This saves time, trouble, and muss, and ensures a neater, cleaner job.

IS there any room in your home—or maybe it's the hall—that is dull and uninteresting—in other words that needs a change and that you would like to have repapered.

Perhaps for less than you imagine you can effect a complete change and introduce into it a new note of cheer, harmony and restfulness, and you can do this best of all with Staunton Semi-trimmed Wallpaper. For this kind of Wallpaper speeds up the work of hanging, saves time and money, and does away with most of the muss and delay usually associated with paperhanging.

"Semi-trimmed," too, provides an abundant choice of new patterns and colorings, so that for every requirement can be found just the paper that will appeal to your individual taste.

But be sure you ask your Dealer to show you Staunton Semi-trimmed Wallpaper.

NO MIDLAND SOCCER LEAGUE

Executive of P. and D.F.A. Did Not Consider It Advisable—Soccer Notes.

At a special meeting of the P. and D. F. A., last evening, the following letter requesting a general meeting to re-organize Midland League from W. G. Nicholls, speaks for itself and caused some caustic comment from the members present but the executive decided to notify him "that in the opinion of the Executive that it was not considered advisable from a financiail point of view."

P. and D. Football Association:

Gentlemen,

A meeting was held on Saturday last, for the purpose of a re-organization of the old Midland Football League, and I have been instructed by that meeting to write your association asking for a special general meeting to be called immediately so that the views of all footballers in the City and District might be obtained with a view to solving the best possible way to make football the best ever in our city.

Awaiting an early reply in this matter. I remain, gentlement,

Yours very truly,
W. G. Nicholls.

Another member, drawing a letter from his pocket wanted to know "why was there such action taken before they had held this meeting and read the following communication:

Sir:

We are endeavouring to re-organize the old Midland Football League which no doubt you will remember of, and as such gave much recreation to a great many men in all the surrounding districts. There are two or three clubs in the City, which are willing to enter a team and I am sending a copy of this letter to Lakehurst, Warsaw, Bethany, Lindsay, Campbellford, Warkworth Selwyn and Chemong with a view to finding out their feeling in the matter, and also to advise that a meeting will be held in he G. W. V. A. Hall, Murray street, city, March 1st, (Saturday), at 2.30 p. m. for discussion of same, and at this meeting we wish to have some person to represent your locality. Will you please give this matter your consideration and if you are not interested in it yourself will you please pass this letter on to some one whom you believe would be interested in the matter?

We would be pleased to hear from you as to the steps you are likely to take, so that we can govern ourselves accordingly.

Yours respectfully,
W. G. Nicholls.

SOCCER NOTES.

The Thistle, Quakers, Canadian Woolens have paid their initial fees as teams participating in organized soccer. There was no official notification received from the G. W. V. A. but down the C. G. E. way they anticipate having a strong team.

Two members have to be added to the Executive Board to fill the positions vacated by W. G. Nicholls and Sid Whatley but was left over to the next meeting.

The official "signing on" papers are now in order and some of the clubs are busy making their rounds amongst prospective players.

Nothing has been done relative to the Junior affilation with the Senior body but Mr. Willis, President of J. F. A. will call a meeting ot an early date so as to put business in order.

THE YOUNG PETES HAVE GOOD CHANCE

No Reason Why They Can't Win Round With Fair Share of the Breaks.

There is no reason why the Peterborough juniors should be counted out of the race because they were unlucky enough to be beaten by a solitary goal last night. Unlucky is the only word, for the Petes didn't get anything like their share of the breaks and on the play should have had a good sized lead. They were robbed of one goal in the last period by the Kingston goal umpire, when Gray threw the rubber out after it had fallen an inch or two behind the line, and on top of that most of the Kingston counters were of the soft variety, two on long shots and another when a pass out from the corner was deflected into the net. They outplayed Kingston throughout the first period and yet were down two goals, and after an even break in the second they came on in the last twenty minutes and had the visitors on the run despite the fact that Circle Six scored the first goal of the period from well out, making it 4 to 1. The Petes rallied then, scored a neat goal, and when Kingston lost two men in penalties ran in a couple more in quick style, sewing up the game .Then the Kingston luck saved the visitors for an easy shot at long range drifted between the posts and gave the visitors the lead, 5 to 4.

The Petes have every bit as good a chance on Trenton ice as the Easterners, and if they go into the battle with a fighting spirit they should bring home the bacon. The youngsters have been playing their best hockey away from home this season, not to be wondered at in view of the section of the home fans who seem to take a delight in riding their own players and the referee. Some of the Petes received an uncalled for "bawling out" from these loud-mouthed individuals last night, while Referee Jacobi received his share as well. Jacobi's work was good, as it always is, and the birds who showered vocal bouquets at him should try keeping their eyes open and their mouth shut the next game they attend.

BELLEVILLE LIKES PETE'S CHANCES

Are Worthy Entrants and Look Like the Winners Says Ontario.

The Belleville Ontario says: The intermediates get away in the semi-finals to-night when New Hamburg and Niagara Falls hook up down at big Splashville. The Hamburgers dropped from the heavens into the hockey firmament and are liable to cause the Hydro boys some worries before they dispose of them. The old veterans down by the big waters should come through, but they will need more than a one goal lead to win. Peterborough must have tied the rabbit's foot on all the players this fall because they played three easy rounds and jumped right in the finals. It is a long time, 1906 to be exact, since Peterborough has been represented in the fianls and they are worthy entrants at that. They should be in the best possible condition and ready to go the route, and they look like the winners. They have a sweet front line with a nice defence and a real goal tender. They will make either Niagara Falls or New Hamburg step to town to beat them.

HOCKEY CHAMPIONS REMAIN AMATEURS

Announcement Made Last Night at Feed in Montreal.

MONTREAL, March 4.—(Canadian Press). — That the Granite Hockey Club players of Toronto, winners of the Olympic hockey championship, will remain amateurs was the announcement made at a banquet tendered the team here last night by the Trustees of the Allen Cup. It was made by Duncan Munro, captain of the team, who added that the Granites would be glad to play a game here next season if it could be arranged. The announcement sets at rest all rumors as to the Olympic champions turning professional as a team. W. A. Hewitt, manager of the team, said that while the surroundings at Chamonix were the most beautiful imaginable, there were hardships such as the sun in the players' eyes, since the play was all in the open air. It was specially hard on the goalkeeper.

Captain Munro stated that, although the reports of the game against the United States players had told of a great deal of rough play, there was not so much as would be imagined. He also spoke of the team's temptations to break training, and gave great credit to Manager Hewitt and Coach Frank Rankin for the way they had maintained harmony and discipline. Due to that, he thought, victory was more easily scored.

"Vicks Is Best For Croup"

So Declares Mother of Twin Babies.

Mrs. Frank Cox, R. R. No. 2, Mountain Grove, Ontario, says: "My twin babies aged twenty-one months were seized with convulsions and croup. They were so choked up that I did not know what to do. Finally I rubbed their chests and throats with Vicks VapoRub and applied hot flannels. This immediately relieved the spasms. I also had the babies inhale the vapors from a tin cup and they grew quiet and slept. Vicks is the best croup remedy ever in this house."

If the child seems croupy, apply Vicks over throat and chest at bedtime. It usually averts a night attack. In severe cases heat a tin cup, drop in a teaspoonful of Vicks and as it melts hold the cup so vapors can be inhaled.

Vicks is a salve that acts like a plaster and a vapor lamp at the same time. It is absorbed and inhaled. This makes Vicks the ideal treatment for children's cold trouble s; it avoids so much internal dosing. Just as good, too, for grown-ups' colds and for cuts, burns, bruises, sores, stings and skin itchings.

At all drug stores, 50c a jar. For free test size package write Vick Chemical Co., 344 St. Paul St., W., Montreal, P.Q.

Though Vicks is new in Canada it has a remarkable sale in the States. Over 17 million jars used yearly.

COBOURG LADIES' FIRST LOSS.

COBOURG, Ont., March 4.— In an exhibition game played here last evening ,the Warkworth ladies' hockey team defeated the Cobourg ladies' hockey team by a score of 3 to 1. The game was slow, owing to the condition of the ice, as it was very heavy, and the Cobourg girls could not use their combination, as usual. This is Cobourg's first defeat of the season, having won from Port Hope and Bowmanville, and next year should enter a team in the L.O.H.A. The line-up:

Cobourg — Goal, Kirkland; defence, Johnson and Cunningham; centre, Fox; Cooper, right wing; Squires, left wing; Andrews and Jenkins, subs; Campbell, sub. goaler.

Referee—Dr. Kennedy, Cobourg.

AT THE CAPITOL

"SCARAMOUCHE."

The large crowd of Capitol patrons who filled the house last night for the first evening performance of "Scaramouche" registered nothing but enthusiasm for the magnificent eleven-reel picture that unrolled itself before them. "Scaramouche" is eminently satisfactory. None of its advance notices have said too much about the beauty and artistic magnitude of Rex Ingram's screen dramatization of Rafael Sabatini's wonderful story of the French Revolution. In every detail, it is perfection. Superlatives are necessary to adequately describe the epochal tale, with a wonderful romance of those bloody days woven through the fabric that proceeds with a smooth pace that never seems to lag or grow tired. An element in the big picture is the atmosphere of reality. The loves and fears and triumphs of a time removed by nearly a century and a half from our own workaday world seem to live and glow again in the silent mimicry of the voiceless screen.

The outstanding figure is the young hero. To Ramon Novarro belong the honors of the piece. His is a characterization that appeals to the heart and the mind alike. Young, handsome, stern, he is the implacable youth whose birth rests under a cloud, whose mind is turned in early life to hatred of the nobility, the ruling class in France in the reign of the vacillating sixteenth Louis. Here is no lack-luster hero. When he discovers that his lady love is dallying with the thought of becoming the bride of a rich and powerful noble, he tears her souvenir, a lace handkerchief, to shreds, and departs fiercely to continue his mission for the down-trodden serfs of the France of that day. He grieves later in a duel with his enemy because his opponent's sword fails him, and he is obliged to refrain from killing the disarmed swordsman. To a woman who has been his friend, he exhibits the same implacable sternness, on account of her noble birth, at the time when the Commune has risen to its height and the people sweep through the streets of Paris, triumphant and blood-thirsty.

Alice Terry, beautiful, appealing, makes a wonderful foil for the dark strength of Novarro, playing the role of a deputy of the people, Andre-Louis Moreau. As the blonde Aline de Kercadiou she has a more attractive entirely different part to that in "The Four Horsemen."

Through the mazes of the tale move many characters: the Marquis de la Tour d'Azyr, a haughty and cruel-minded aristocrat, played by Lewis Stone in splendid fashion; Quintin de Kercadiou, the Grand Seigneur of Gavrillac, in the Provinces, and godfather of Andre; Phillippe de Vilmorin, the young divinity student whose death in a heartless duel at the hand of the Marquis crystallizes Andre's hatred of the nobility and starts a feud to the death between himself and the Marquis; the Countess Therese de Plougastel, one of the principal characters; Chaillefeu Binet, with whose company of strolling players Andre, in a moment of flight from the vengeful troopers of the Marquis, identifies himself and in whose play of "Figaro Scaramouche" he appears on the Parisian boards; and the varying leaders of the Revolution; the mock-marked Danton, Marat, Capellier, Roberspierre himself.

The Assembly is shown, that theatre of warring passions where the turbulent forces of the rising Revolution seethe and advance and retreat. Here are the aristocrats and their wives, powdered, perfumed, in silks and laces, with elegant snuff boxes and ringed fingers, advancing to record the death by the sword of leaders of the revolting party. And here are their opponents, the half-clad wretches of the Commune, facing them, cheering Andre, the expert swordsman, as he also tells of the permanent retirement of members of the nobility, prey to his facile sword behind the Cathedral close. Here is the "sea green Incorruptible" addressing the audience in precise sentences, and here is the ferocious Danton, swaying them with his eloquence. Inset also is the terrorful scenes where the mad pack swarms the Tuileries is the calm face and figure of the young and unknown officer, Napoleon Bonaparte.

On the boards of the Parisian stage pranks and capers the mountebank, the jester "Scaramouche," as the crowded and luxurious house applauds his quips and jests. For Climene Binet, daughter of his employer, he forgets the lady who, as he thinks, has turned from him to the noble Marquis, but Climene proves herself unworthy, and Aline refuses to marry the Marquis. The picture has a happy and unexpected ending, with the secret of Andre's birth solved at last.

The scenes that portray the madness of the mob, roused to vengeance by long oppression and cruelty, are magnificent. In a blood-red glare of flaring torches, they advance through the narrow streets while the music of the Marseillaise sounds through the house. With grindstone and axe and pikes holding the heads of aristocrats, they storm the Palace and guard the gates of Paris. The contrast between the shrinking, powdered grand dames, with their enormous, involved headdresses of mounting curls and voluminous, rich draperies, and these ragged creatures is brought out in striking style. The element of realistic setting is enhanced by the attention to detail manifested in the surroundings. In the stage-coaches, the crooked streets, the dress and manners and customs of those days, reproduced to the last item, are mirrored the pages of history, open at the account of one of the most colorful and dramatic episodes in the story of the world's progress; the tale of the French Revolution, and the causes that led up to it.

A Snub Pollard one-reel comedy, "It's a Gift," shows the eccentric comedian in a laughable series of queer inventive dilemmas.

The Capitol orchestra renders in excellent style the descriptive special music that accompanies the big feature.

AT THE GRAND

'RICHARD THE LION-HEARTED'

When Douglas Fairbanks' picture, "Robin Hood," was seen here some time ago, discriminating picture fans declared that the best acting in the production was not that of the featured star, but rather the work of Wallace Beery, in the role of King Richard. That verdict will be confirmed by the acting of Mr. Beery as King Richard in "Richard the Lion-Hearted," the feature picture which opened a three-day run at the Grand last night. This picture allows Mr. Beery to continue his role of Richard for, based on Sir Walter Scott's stirring novel, "The Talisman," it deals with the period when the Lion-Hearted left England on the Third Crusade, and pictures his adventures in Palestine with wonderful realism.

No expense has apparently been spared. The action calls for massive sets, while the outlay in costumes and weapons must have been enormous. Hundreds of people have been used in some of the scenes, the efforts being truly spectacular. The fight between the Crusaders and the Saracen hordes is a masterpiece of film execution, and altogether the picture is astounding in its magnitude and effect.

There is everything that makes a big picture—a gripping love story, plenty of action, fine photography, finished acting, realistic costumes and settings, all combine to make "Richard the Lion-Hearted" one of the big screen hits of the year. Wallace Beery does great work as hight have been expected, after his showing in "Robin Hood," while Marguerite La Motte and John Bowers have important roles, in which they appear to the greatest advantage, and the other parts have been filled with rare discrimination by the producers.

"Richard the Lion-Hearted" will be seen at the Grand again to-night and to-morrow.

IF RHEUMATIC EAT NO SWEETS

Says Glass of Salts Helps to Overcome Rheumatism Acid

Rheumatism is easier to avoid than to cure, states a well-known authority We are advised to dress warmly, keep the feet dry, avoid exposure, and above all, drink plenty of good water and avoid eating sweets of all kinds.

Rheumatism is caused by body waste and acids resulting from food fermentation. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this poison from the blood and cast it out in the urine; the pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly cold weather the skin pores are closed, thus forcing the kidneys to do double work; they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this waste and acids, which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles, causing stiffness, soreness and pain, called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is helpful to neutralize acidity, remove waste matter, also to stimulate the kidneys, thus often ridding the blood of rheumatic poison.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism.

AT THE ROYAL

DOUBLE FEATURE PROGRAM WITH EXCELLENT VAUDEVILLE, PROVES SUCCESS AT ROYAL.

Motion picture patrons who have enjoyed Gladys Walton in her many 'flapper' roles will like her in a "surprise" character, in her latest Universal starring vehicle, "The Untamable," which opened last night at the Royal Theatre.

It is a part calling for a wider range of dramatic action than any picture in which she has previously appeared, and in it she displays an ability that stamps her as a dramatic artist.

Her part is the chief role in the screen version of Gelett Burges' famous novel, "The White Cat," which has occasioned much comment in the fiction field.

It is that of a girl with a dual personality, amounting through the hypnotic influence of an unscrupulous doctor, to a dual identity.

Joy Fielding is the character name of the girl and is explained as a sweet and lovable girl, very wealthy and very generous. But the girl has an unfortunate temper, which occasionally gets the better of her kindly nature and she flies into a vicious rage.

The doctor is the administrator of her estate and has designs on the property. By means of a strong, hypnotic influence he is able to accentuate the vicious side of the girl's nature. When she is under his mental influence, the doctor calls her Edna, virtually creating for her another identity. As Edna she has a freakish disposition, showing her inner conflict of good and bad working forces. She alternately makes love to the doctor and throws chairs and flower vases at him.

In the intervening time between visits from the doctor, Joy meets and falls in love with a young architect, Chester Castle. He returns her love although he is at a loss to understand her dual nature, or the reason for it, until the jealousy of the doctor forces a showdown and he learns of his secret power over the girl.

EXCELLENT VAUDEVILLE AT ROYAL.

There is only one word we can think of and that word is "great," in describing the work of the athletic marvels, Terrell and Kemp, now playing at the Royal. They were advertised as America's youngest equilibriasts, and although they may be young as years go they have experience and class seldom seen in this kind of act. You will have to see them to appreciate the fact that the Royal is getting some real acts for their ever increasing patronage. The other act, Glick and Bright, offer a singing, dancing novelty with some really clever and witty chatter. It has class written all over it. The lady member wears some stunning gowns. Both acts received an enthusiastic reception last night.

AMATEUR NIGHT THURSDAY AT ROYAL.

In addition to Douglas McLean's newest comedy, "A Man of Action," and two new vaudeville acts, the Royal management is also arranging for some good local talent on Thursday night. All applications should be left at box office or 'phone 1253. Every assistance will be given local talent by orchestra and management. This will be the first of a series of novelty nights at the Royal.

FAMOUS LAWYER WITH COLOR FILMS.

William Travers Jerome, Former District Attorney, Helped Finance Process.

William Travers Jerome, formerly the energetic district attorney of New York City during the period of some of its stormiest tria's, has become an important figure in the development of the screen. One of the most colorful of public personalities a decade ago, Mr. Jerome is still colorful—though not in the same sense of course,as Technicolor, the marvelous widely acclaimed process for photographing in natural colors, in which Mr. Jerome is interested.

This photoplay is shown at the Regent Theatre.

For three years Mr. Jerome has headed a syndicate which was devoted to making this process, originated by Professors Daniel C. Comstock and Herbert T. Kalmus, commercially feasible.

"The Toll of the Sea," distributed by Metro, is a Technicolor production, written by Frances Marion directed by Chester M. Franklin, photographed by J. A. Ball. In the cast of this Oriental legend of the sea are Anna May Wong, Kenneth Harlan, Beatrice Bentley, Baby Marian, Etta Charles A. Bradford lost his wife,

WOMEN TEACHERS' GUILD.

The Women Teachers' Guild held their regular February meeting recently in the King Edward school, which was prettily decorated for the occasion.

After the supper, which was served in the Kindergarten, the business was promptly disposed of, and the programme began with a vocal solo by Miss E. Eagleson.

The study of Ibsen's play, "A oDll's House," was then concluded by the Queen Mary staff, who through reading, very vividly portrayed the characters of the final act.

The reading course will be further continued at the monthly meetings, the March programme being in the hands of the Collegiate Women teachers.

SPECIAL SERVICES.

To commemorate the beginning of Lent in Ash Wednesday, special morning prayers and Communion service will be held at St. George's Anglican Church tomorrow morning, at eleven o'clock.

A BASKET SOCIAL.

Under the auspices of the A.Y.P. A., a well attended basket social was held in the basement of St. George's Anglican church last evening. Baskets were contributed by ladies of the church, and the evening was enjoyably spent in playing games and partaking of the contents of the baskets, supplemented by hot coffee. The baskets were auctioned off by the People's Warden, Mr. R. W. Butler. Community singing enlivened the proceedings, with accompaniment by Miss Victoria Allen at hte piano, and Mr. Robert Allen on the saxaphone.

Y.W.C.A. SEWING.

Great progress was made yesterday on the many costumes needed for the coming Y.W.C.A. Gymnasium Exhibition. Soft white Easter Bunny costumes were created very quickly and also many white Dutch caps. In all over 300 fantastic costumes are needed. Board and committee members, mothers of the children and friends of the association are asked to come in and enjoy an afternoon of sewing. Mondays, Wednesdays and Thursdays from 2 to 5 p.m. are the afternoons reserved for making the costumes. Mrs. D .F. Drummond and Mrs. F. L. Robertson will be in charge tomorrow.

"FISH AND GAME."

The A. Y. P. A. of All Saints' Church held a good meeting on Monday night, when the feature of the evening was a talk by Mr. F. L. Roy on "Fish and Game." Mr. Roy, who proved an entertaining and instructive speaker, giving his talk an attractive touch by the inclusion of numerous personal touches, illustrated his address copiously with lantern slides, depicting the scenic splendors and the wild life of the Kawartha Lakes district, as shot with camera and gun. Pictures were also shown and explained that were taken forty years ago in the same district by the late R. M. Roy. The speaker's interesting lecture was much appreciated by his audience.

A musical programme included a violin solo by Mr. Joseph Adams, a dance by little Miss Thompson and a vocal selection by Mr. W. Thompson; also an instrumental number by Miss Ena Young. Accompaniments for the evening were provided by Miss Mamie Benor.

WEDDING BELLS

HOPWOOD—BYERS.

A quiet wedding was solemnized on Saturday, Feb. 26th, by the Rev. W. A. MacTaggart, of St. Claire Presbyterian church, Toronto, when Lillian M. second daughter of Mr. and the late Mrs. Robt. Byers, of Peterborough, became the wife of Mr. Robert L. Hopwood, son of Mrs. Ellen Hopwood, of Fowler's Corners. Mr. and Mrs. Hopwood will reside at 397 Glenholme avenue, Toronto.

LITTLE—COOK.

A very quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized by the Rev. Bamforth, of the Mark Street Methodist Church, on Saturday, when Lily, youngest daughter of the late Charles Cook and Mrs. Charles Cook, of the city, became the bride of Percy V. Little, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Little, also of this city. The bride wore a gown of peach satin trimmed with silver lace, and carried a bunch of carnations. The bride was attended by Miss Withers and Mr. Herbert Withers was best man. The young couple will reside in the city.

Canadian Stock Exchange And Mines | New York Stock Exchange and Curb Pri

Today's Quotations and Opinion and Reviews of the Markets.

NEW YORK, March 4 (United Press). — Treasury Department estimates that the Taxa Bill as passed by the House would leave a deficit of 116,000,000, caused further confusion in the speculative mind and the irregularity continued in the general list at the start of the trading in the stock market to-day.

American Woollen was strong, spot spurting 3 points to 77 on the expectation of an exceptionally favourable showing in the 1923 report.

On the other hand, Studebaker, Baldwin, and other industrial leaders were still sluggish, giving the market as a whole a heavy appearance.

Trading was relatively quiet in the first hour, and price movements were without significance. Wall Street appeared to be waiting for fresh developments in Washington, and even familiar spurts in special issues lacked their customary vigour.

The coppers were the best acting group, reflecting the growing uneasiness on the part of the shorts. Mack Trucks declared the regular quarterly dividends of $1.50 on the common and $1.75 on the first and second preferred.

It was stated at the office of the Southern Railway to-day that so far as is known, there is absolutely no difference of opinion among the members of the board concerning the dividend policy.

GAVE BANQUET LAST EVENING

The Affair Was Voted the Biggest Night Ever Put On in the Rooms.

One of the biggest and jolliest affairs ever given in St. Alphonsus Lyceum was the banquet last evening in the Assembly Hall of the Lyceum, held under the auspices of the Catholic men of the city. "The biggest night ever put on in the Rooms, was the verdict of the gathering at the conclusion, after eleven o'clock, of a banquet and programme which went through in the most successful manner. Nearly 250 men of the city were present.

Arrangements were planned and carried through in the most efficient style, with a result extremely gratifying. The committee in charge was composed of Rev. J. Collins, Messrs. J. Trombley, A. Doris, J. Hanrahan, A. Doherty, Wm. Bennett, Ray Bennett, N. Tobin, G. Tedford, and J. Boland, and to their untiring efforts is due the credit for a function successful in every particular.

The banquet itself was supervised by the capable management of Messrs. J. Trombley and A. Doris, with four assistants, and was served by pupils of St Peter's High School. A great contribution to the success of the evening was the bountiful nature of the viands provided in a five-course meal, which commenced with fruit sherbet, and progressed to soup, chicken, roast meat, creamed potatoes, vegetables, salads, jellies, pies, cake and ice-cream to tea, coffee, assorted fruits, candy and nuts.

The cheerful big hall with its bright overhead lighting and decorations of pendant coloured streamers and red bunting, made a fine setting for the white covered tables, six narrow, long specimens flanked by the head table on the raised platform at the rear. The tables were arranged in very attractive fashion, in a "tempting-looking' style, as a 'small junior expressed it, eyeing the big glass bowls of fruits and jellies with a longing eye. Criss-cross bars of red and green and blue crepe paper brightened the white expanse of the tables, which had pots of pale primulas and green ferns, interspersed with cream candles in glass holders, at intervals. The head table was especially attractive, with a design in mauve and blue and red paper, two big rose-pink azalea plants and a couple of brilliantly-shaded electric lamps giving it an added touch of colour. On the stage arranged with tall piano lamps, the orchestra of High School boys played excellently.

A toast list was run off, under the direction of the toastmaster, Mr V. J. McElderry, who filled the position to perfection. The tribute to the Pope and the King was observed in silence. The toast to "Our Country," proposed by Mr. J. J. Duffus, was responded to by Mr. J. R. Corkery, to "Our Catholic Social Organisations," by Rev. P. Costello, and responded to by the following: For the "Old T.A.S. Society," by Mr. Joseph Begley, for "The Holy Name Society" by Mr. A. Doherty, for the "Knights of Columbus" by Mr. Jas. O'Brien, for the "St. Vincent de Paul Society" by Mr. M. H. Quinlan. The toast to "The Ideal Catholic Layman" was proposed by Mr. Fred Overend, and responded to by Mr. George Ball, and "To the Ladies" was voiced by Mr. F. R. J. MacPherson.

A brief address by His Lordship Right Rev. M. J. O'Brien, D.D., Bishop of Peterborough, followed. The Bishop expressed his pleasure at being present under such auspicious circumstances and remarked that since the formation of three separate Catholic parishes in the city, this was the first time that the members had met together in such a gathering. A banquet of this nature was a frequent occurrence in the days of the old T.A.S. Society, when there was only one parish in the city. His Lordship voiced the hope that the men of Peterborough would strive to be exemplary citizens in every way, to boost the city, province, and country which gave them birth, and to do everything for the success of Canada He impressed on his hearers also the necessity for being faithful and God-fearing Catholics as well as good citizens.

Community singing was a feature of the musical programme, also songs by John Roach, Jr., and a touch of real, old-time jollity was given by the step-dancing of Mr. Vincent Crowley.

Clergy present last evening were His Lordship Bishop O'Brien, Rev. P. Costello, Rev. J. Finn, Rev. P. Butler, Rev. C. Carroll. Owing to illness, Rev. Father Collins was unable to be present.

IN MEMORIAM.

MONTGOMERY. — In loving memory of our darling niece, Vera Montgomery, 11 years, of Hastings, who died February 11, 1923.

There was an angel band in heaven,
That was not quite complete,
So God called our darling, Vera,
To fill the vacant seat.

Fold her in thine arms, O Lord,
And ever let her be,
A messenger of love between
Our aching hearts and Thee.
—Inserted by her Aunt Phoebe and Uncle Will.

IN MEMORIAM.

BUGG. — In ever loving memory of our dear Edna, who passed away two years ago, 4th March, 1922.

This day brings back to memory
Of a loved one gone to rest,
And those who think of her to-day
Are those who loved her best.
Just when her hope seemed brightest,
Just when her life seemed best,
God called her from among us
To that home of eternal rest.
No one knows how much we miss her,
No one knows the bitter pain
We have suffered since we lost her;
Life has never seemed the same.
In our hearts her memory lingers,
Sweetly, tender, fond and true;
There is not a day, dear Edna,
That we do not think of you.
—Inserted by her Father, Mother, Brothers and Sister.

WESTERN GROUP DECLARE TERMS TO GOVERNMENT

Robert Forke, Progressive Leader, Promises Support To Progressive Measures In Parliament and Mentions Tariff, Tax on Implements and Building of Hudson Bay Company.

WARNING TO KING.

OTTAWA, March 5.—(Canadian Press.)—"Progressives are ready to support progressive measures whenever such measures come before the House. If the Government are prepared to present these measures for our consideration, they know that they will get our support. If they do not, then they will have to take the consequences."

Thus, Robert Forke, Progressive leader, stated to the House yesterday the attitude of the Progressives towards the Government. He thought high protection, if persisted in, would spell ruin to the country; and, in illustration of the farmer's difficulties said that in 1912 ten fleeces from sheep would buy a suit of clothes. Now, thirty-one fleeces were needed to buy the same suit.

Mr. Forke declared the country demanded economy, yet pressed for the right kind of economy. Construction of the Hudson Bay Railway could not be "downed." The west was determined to have the Hudson Bay Railway built and Mr. Forke believed it would be built in the not far distant future. Mr. Forke suggested that the sales tax be removed from farm implements, adding that it would not be a bad move to take it off "all along the line." He thought also it might be well to have a Parliamentary committee, representative of all parties, to take matters affecting the Canadian National Railways under its peculiar care.

Voice of Labor.

Following Mr. Forke, there was an orientation. J. S. Woodsworth, leader of the Labor "group" of two, had some sharp comments to make in connection with the Cape Breton strike. He took up the trial of J. B. McLachlan, Labor leader, sentenced to two years for seditious libel and charged that McLachlan had been taken to Halifax to face judges who "up to the time of their connection with the Bench had been closely connected with the coal companies."

Hon. Charles Marcil (Liberal, Bonaventure) argued that a certain amount of unemployment has existed in Canada for many years due to seasonable occupation. No government could be flayed for that condition or for the exodus of people to the United Sttaes. This migration to the south had always existed but had been accentuated during the past few years due to the prosperity of the United States.

Tariff Proposals.

Mr. Marcil expressed his confidence that if the announcement in the Speech from the Throne regarding the tariff were carried out, as he believed it would be, the Government would have an overwhelming majority in the House and in the country. The Government had the advatnage of having among its members men who were familiar with conditions in all industries and therefore he was confident no changes would be made which would endanger any industry. If the tariff proposals were brought down in the interests of the whole country as they should be, he believed they would be accepted as such.

The member for Bonaventure then went on to urge the need of more railway facilities in the Gaspe Peninsula.

Improved railway facilities were a matter of life and death to some of the people of Gaspe, he said. Sir Henry Thornton, who visited the Peninsula had expressed the opinion that the railway service was inadequate and should be improved. Mr. Marcil suggested that the Government make an arrangement to lease the road at present in operation and run it as a branch of the Canadian National Railways. As a last resort the road might be taken over. The company operating it was not fulfilling its contract and during the winter months trains were very irregular.

19, Kills Two

Three alleged blackmailers demanded Onofrio Positano's money or his life Twice he laughed at them. Again they returned to his Cleveland home—this time to "get" him. But his daughter, Mrs. Nettie Annelli, aged 19, killed two of them. Police consider it a case of justifiable homicide.

CONFESSION OF BOMBING CRIME

Prisoner in England Implicates Self and Group In Wall Street Explosion of September, 1920, In Which Thirty Were Killed.

NEW YORK, March 5.—Proceedings for the extradition of Ralph Thurber, a prisoner in Pentonville Prison, London, England, who has implicated himself and a number of other persons in the Wall street explosion of September 16, 1920, which resulted in the death of 30 persons and injuries to scores of others, will be begun only after a thorough investigation of his alleged confession.

Officials of the District Attorney's Office, in announcing this last night, pointed out that many persons under arrest in various parts of the world had asserted they had important roles in the explosion case.

Thurber's confession was made public on Tuesday by District Attorney Banton. It had previously been forwarded from the American Consul-General in London through Secretary of State Hughes and Governor Smith

Implicates Group.

The American official in London suggested immediate institution of steps to extradite Thurber, alias Louis A. Repell, alias George Darg, alias Walter Sharr, who it was stated, had in an affida it dater March 1, implicated himself and others in the case.

"All details of the plot and the names of conspirators," Secretary Hughes' telegram to the Governor said, "are known to Rev. Herbert Wilson, of San Diego and Los Angeles, Calif., and the following were participants in the affair:

"Miss Girlie O'Day, 156 Clendale Boulevard, Los, Angeles; Big Jeff Balron, alias Big Jeff Thompson, 98 Mulberry street, New York street; Slone Cleveland, alias The Kid,Cleveland, Ohio, now confined in the Atlanta Penitentiary; Michael Oranoff, Apartado 55, Calle de Pizzardo. of Mexico City: Swede Stefasson, Seamen's Institute, New York iCty; Lesser Robesky, alias The Prowler, East 23rd Street, near Tapeson, Brooklyn, also known in Rochester, N.Y."

Thought Innocent.

Wilson, mentioned in the cablegram, was arrested about a year ago in Los Angeles, and there questioned by William J. Burns of the United States Secret Service Department, who later declared he was convinced Wilson had nothing to do with the plot.

Captain Carey and Lieut. Gegy of the Police Bomb Squad, who have followed many false trails in the case already have begun an inquiry of the new clue. They will make a report which will be conveyed to Secretary Hughes.

The explosion, one of the greatest disasters and complete mysteries in the history of New York, occurred at noon when thousands of workers were pouring out of offices for their lunch hour. A sheet of flame shot up from Wall and Broad streets where a moment before a horse and wagon had been standing, in front of the Sub-Treasury and opposite the office of J. P. Morgan & Company.

LONDON, March 5.—(Canadian Press).—Ralph Thurber, prisoner in the Pentonville jail, who has confessed to implication in the Wall street explosion of September, 1920, in which thirty persons lost their lives, formerly served in the Canadian army, according to the Daily Sketch. Thurber recently came to England in defiance of a deportation order sending him to the United States to recover a debt of ten pounds. He is said to have travelled by way of Paris and Antwerp. He is said to have joined the Canadian army when sixteen years of age and to have got into trouble under circumstances causing suspicion that he was acting as a spy, resulting in deportation

AIR PROGRAM OF FRENCH ALARMS BRITISH LORDS

Home Defence of Britain Must Offset Strongest Air Force Within Flight Distance — Government Maintains Baldwin Policy —French Bogey Raised By Opposition.

ARMAMENTS RACE.

LONDON, March 5.—The House of Lords yesterday registered its disapproval of the pacific utterance of William Leach, under-Secretary for Air, in the House of Commons. The Lords adopted without division a motion presented by the Marquis of Londonderry.

"That the House, while earnestly desiring further limitation of armaments sofar as consistent with the safety and integrity of the Empire, affirms the principle laid down by the late Government ann accepted by the Imperiail Conference that Great Britain must maintain a home defence air force of sufficient strength to give adequate protection against air attacks by the strongest air force within striking distance of her shores."

Under-Secretary Leach, in his remarks in the House of Commons, announced that the Government had decided to maintain the late government's policy, and not increase the air force for the present. He added that the Government would not be deterred from taking advantage of any movement in the direction of dis armament and would welcome a new Washington conference.

Raise French Bogey.

Londonderry, who was formerly Air Secretary, said that his motion did not mean an attack on the Government but Mr. Leach's speech had raised such misgivings concerning the country's safety that categorical assurances wer, imperative regarding the continuity of the country's air defences, in view of France's overwhelming superiority in the air.

The Air Minister, Lord Thompson, retorted that Londonderry's motion implied a demand for one-power standard which would inevitably lead to a race in armaments. He twitted the Opposition with raising the French bogey, whille at the same time professing undying affection for France.

The Labour Government, said the Minister, was fully aware of the dangers in the European situation, and until general disarmament was possible it would not fail to take adequate precautions The late Government's home defence scheme would be continued unabridged.

Breed Dispair.

In view of the Air Minister, Lord Londonderry's motion announced to the world a mood of hopeless, helpless, resignation; it would breed dan gerous despair among millions, and if carried to its logical conclusion would driv, every nation into bankruptcy.

Viscount Haldane, Lord Chancellor declared that the Government objected to the motion not in substance but in form, now that efforts were under way to promote friendly relations with France.

Marquis Curzon, the former Foreign Secretary, interposed that there was not the slightest idea of hostility toward France.

There were several crys of "No!" when Lord Haldane put the motion but it was declared carried.

PLUMBING INSPECTION

The following is the report from A. G .Metheral, City Plumbing Inspector for the month of February 1924:

5 old premises had sanitary conveniences installed making a total of 13 so far this year.

15 permits were issued for the installation of the following fixtures: 7 water closets, 2 baths, 6 basins, 6 sinks, 1 laundry tray and 1 floor drain.

Inspections made during the month were as follows:

10 water tests, 10 smoke tests, 6 layouts, 18 miscellaneous inspections.

15 certificates of completion were issued during the month.

A Gas Supply For Less Than 60 Days

LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 5 (Canadian Press). — There is less than sixty days' supply of gasoline on hand in the United States yesterday, according to the statement of Paul Shoup, vice-president of the Southern Pacific Railway, and president of the Pacific and Assocated Oil Companies, at the Los Angeles Advertising Club luncheon.

Three great oil fields in California—Santa Fe Springs, Huntington Beach, and Long Beach—have not returned the money invested in them, although it is estimated they have produced $250,000,000 to date, Mr. Shoup asserted.

Three Challenges Flung at German

BERLIN, March 5 (Canadian Press). — A record in challenges to duels was set here yesterday with the announcement that Dr. Carl Craemer, representative of the German People's Party in the Reichstag, had been called to account by three other members of the Chamber and challenged to fight them to a finish with pistols.

The challenges were issued because in debate Dr. Craemer referred to Albrecht von Graefe as a "high traitor," owing to his alleged connection with the Hitler-Ludendorff "putsch" in Bavaria last year. ....

Von Graefe himself was the chief challenger. He was backed up by Major Henning and Reinhold Wulle, members of the Anti-Semite and Pan-German Parties.

The challenge courteously offered Craemer the privilege of fighting the three men simultaneously, or one at a time. He is given his choice in the matter.

The place for the duel, or duels, has not yet been decided upon.

BRITAIN WILL LAY CARIBBEAN CABLES

Safeguard in Event of Sale of French Cables to the United States Interests—Wireless Stations Too.

LONDON, March 5.—Great Britain is going to build wireless stations and lay down cable lines in the near future in its possessions fringing the Caribbean Sea, in order to link them together and with the Mother Country, and prevent the imperial communicatiuons from falling into the hands of foreigners in case the private United States' negotiations for purchasing the present French cables in the West Indies are consummated.

Contracts have been granted the Radio Communication Company of Great Britain for erecting and equipping a chain of seven high-powered wireless stations on the islands of St. Kitts, Antigua, Dominica, St. Lucia, St. Vincent, Grenada and Barbados, forming a crescent-shaped archipelago in the eastern Caribbean. The stations will be operated by the Pacific Cables Board under the joint control of the Imperial Government and the governments of Canada, Australia and New Zealand.

New cables will be laid from Grand Turk Island to Greneda, with spurs to Trinidad and British Guiana.

SOCIALISTS OF BELGIUM CLAIM CABINET POWER

Caused Defeat of Theuris Ministry and Assert That They Should Be Invited to Form Cabinet Following Parliamentary Tradition.

CRITICISE KING.

BRUSSELS, March 5.—The first general council of the Socialist Party convened in extraordinary session on Tuesday, agreed unanimously that parliamentary tradition demands that the Socialist Party, whose unanimous vote provoked the fall of the Theunis Cabinet, be invited to form a ministry.

An order of the day endorsing immediate dissolution of Parliament and general elections also was voted, but a way was left open for collaboration by the Socialist party in a government which would attend to immediate settlement of the reparations problem and take measures necessary to lower the cost of living and cause the franc to rise on the exchange market.

In general, the Socialists were outspoken in their criticism of the king's attitude in not calling upon the Socialists to form a cabinet, as is the custom when a party overthrows the government.

"The rules of fair play demand that the Socialists be called to power," one of the most influential members of party declared at the close of the council session. "By ignoring Parliamentary tradition the king made a mistake; he has been badly advised. The Socialists have a right to hold it against him."

This Socialist declared that the party would inaugurate a vigorous campaign for dissolution of Parliament throughout the country.

THOUSANDS OF HOMES FOUND HAPPINESS IN ONTARIO PROHIBITION

Liberal Member Admits Imperfections of O.T.A., But Says Its Opponents Present Only One Side of the Picture of Its Results — MacBride Attacks the U.F.O. and Raney.

U.F.O. Not Recognized.

TORONTO, March 5.—Answering Hon. Manning Doherty who asked if there was any reply to the U. F. O. members' demand to be recognized as the official opposition in the Legislature Mr. Speaker Thompson yesterday afternoon said that he recognized them as an opposition group but could not see anything to be gained by changing the seating arrangement to put them in the seats of the chief opposition. He pointed out that his power was limited only to the recognition of a member as leader of an opposition group of 15 members or over. The Speaker denied that the Premier at any time attempted to instruct him in the matter.

Hon. Manning Doherty, thanking the Speaker for his decision, regretted that it did not recognize them as the official opposition and said the point would be raised at the start of the next session.

A. P. McWhinney (Liberal West Bruce, continuing the budget debate said that after the U. F. O coming into power on declaration of greater economy and failing to accomplish economy they had got what they deserved at the hands of the electors. He was disappointed that the budget was not clearer, and in the shape it was presented was a real Chinese puzzle to the people and even to financers.

He was sorry there was such a great deficit.

"So are we," interjected Mr. Doherty.

"I'm glad you are for, you are responsible for most of it" shouted back Mr. McWhinney.

Criticizes Government

In the establishment of a northern secretaryship Mr. McWhinney could see no desire for economy by the present government. "We have two ministers well qualified to look after affairs of the north without a secretary drawing cabinet salary and a department that is bound to be costly. If these two ministers want advice, the best they can get is from the members. That is what members are for and it s their duty to do their best for the Province."

Neither could Mr McWhinney see any economy in establishing an advisory committee for the Minister of Highways. The best advice the Minister can get is from his engineers and county councils. Mr. McWhinney advocated a tax on gasoline and a greater tax on trucks and autos that used the roads so much more than ordinary motors. He also thought the government should take 100 per cent of the cost of provincial highways. He was glad to see that a committee on Agriculture was to be formed. He appealed for development of Hydro adding that his section of the country could be well supplied by a development on the Saugeen river. He was against so many investigating commissions.

Commends Raney.

Mr. McWhinney said he believed Hon. W. E. Raney had honestly tried to enforce the O. T. A. "In telling us that the Province was losing millions in revenue because of the O. T. A. the member for South East Toronto (Mr. Currie) did not give us the other side if the picture. He did not tell us of the comfort and happiness brought to thousands of homes because of it. Although the people in Bruce are not wholly satisfied with the present act they believe that it is the best temperance legislation we have had up to the present and are not anxious to have a referendum on the question at the present time. The Government should be sure public opinion wants the vote before they give it." Mr. McWhinney attacked Mr. Currie for his attack on the press declaring that as a rule the press was doing justice to the people.

McBride's Attack.

M. M. McBride (Con. Brantford) said that the four years of farmer government had been a disgraceful betrayal of the people of Ontario. The people had utterly repudiated the party now asking for official recognition in the Legislature. He declared that they represented no body of opinion of any kind. Mr. MacBride made a vigorous attack on Hon. W. E. Raney for his articles in a Toronto weekly paper. He accused Mr. Raney before election time of sending out a telegram asking the clergymen to vote U. F. O. Mr. Raney promptly denied the statement declaring that there was no semblance of truth in it. Mr. MacBride withdrew and substituted the statement that it was sent out by the U. F. O. organization.

Mr. MacBride said the articles in the paper written by Mr. Raney were debauching the manhood and womanhood of the Province. If there was a title he would bestow on Mr. Raney it was "the champion muckraker of Canada." When Mr. Raney started to rise to a point of privilege Mr. Speaker asked Mr. MacBride to be a little more moderate.

Mr. MacBride said he would withdraw "muckraker.. and say that the articles by Mr. Raney were "utterly disgraceful." He contended that the present farmer group in the House did not represent the farmers of Ontario. On the O. T. A. Mr. MacBride said there should be an immediate referendum. He also wanted investigation in accidents in industrial plaints stating that there were too many accidents in factories.

2000 Vaccinated In Perth Epidemic

PERTH, Ont., March 5 (Canadian Press). — The outbreak of smallpox reported from here last week seems to be pretty well under control, very few new cases being reported since the first of the month.

It is estimated that over 2,000 people have been vaccinated here since the first case of smallpox was reported.

RESOLUTIONS OF METHODISTS HERE

Opposed to Proposal to Submit a Referendum at the Present Time.

The following resolutions were passed at a meeting of the Peterboro District, Bay of Quinte Conference, of the Methodist Church, at a meeting held in the George Street Church

This meeting urgently requests that the Dominon Government take steps to amend its Customs and Transportation regulations so that such regulations may not be used by either manufacturers or bootleggers to facilitate shipment of prohibited liquor into Province of our Dominion that are under whole or partila prohibition.

We also agree that the farcical and disgraceful shipments of liquor to Cuba, Mexico, etc, be stopped. In the name of British respect for law we ask that International morals berespected and that in this matter our attitude as a mation toward our neighbours be placed above reproach.

Second Resolution

We the mebers, ministerial and lay, of the Peterboro District of the Methodist Church assembled in the George Street Church, Peterboro, hereby declare ourselves:

(1) That we represent 5000 members of the Methodist Church besides hundreds of adherents who are equally loyal to the principles of our Church.

(2) That we express our appreciation of the manner in which the Ontario Temperance Act is being enforced, especially the ffforts of the present Attorney General, Hon. W. F. Nickle, who by his impartiality and fairness is contributing much to the success of the Act.

(3) That we deprecate the desire on the part of certain individuals to put the Province to the necessary expense of another referendum so son after the decisive votes of recent years.

(4) That we respectfully ureg, that no vote be taken at the present time, but that the present act be given ample opportunity to further demonstrate its growing efficiency in the curtailing and controling of the liquor traffic. We believe that the law, which is "Government Control," to be far superior to any form of "Government Sale," and trust that it may continue to have the active support of your Government.

THE WEATHER.

The warm rain of last night has had the effect of settling the snow to some extent, and reminding us that spring is coming. While crows have been around for some time, I have not seen or heard a robin as yet. To-morrow will be a gauge day for the next three months. The kind of weather that prevails to-morrow will be the kind that will predominate during the next three months—that is, if you are a believer in the truth of the saying. I have watched this 'gauge day' theory for several years, and while it may be only a coincidence it seems to have an uncanny faculty of foretelling the coming weather conditions, sometimes, however, much more accurately than others.—W. P.

RATIFY FRENCH TREATY.

PARIS, March 4.—Premier Poincare and the Czecho-Slovak Minister, M. Orusky, to-day exchanged ratifications of the Franco-Czech Treaty signed in Paris January 25. The document, although termed a "treaty of alliance and friendship," is said by spokesmen for the governments to impose no military obligations, providing only for "understandings between the general staffs of the two nations."

CITY COUNCIL CANNOT HOPE FOR HELP FROM EDUCATION BOARD

Radio Bride

The minister had just arrived and the bride's father tuned in on the wedding march a Cleveland broadcasting station was sending out. Then the nuptial knot was tied for Warren L. Ensign and wife. But when the bride was about to say she would obey, the static overwhelmed her reply. So maybe she'll be boss of the Ensign household after all.

Request to Assist in Keeping Tax Rate Down Was Discussed in Committee--Resolution Expressed Regrets.

ROUTINE BUSINESS

On the reading last night of a communication from the city council pointing out the difficulty met in keeping the tax rate down to last year's figure and requesting the Board of Education if possible to reduce its estimates, the members of the Board expressed sympathy with the aims of the council, but regretted their inability to assist.

The chairman said he was informed by the Mayor that every item had been carefully scrutinized and the city appropriations were still $10,040 more than last year's figures.

E. B. Fowler said the board appreciated the efforts of the city council, but he could not see offhand where the Board of Education estimates could be cut. He moved, seconded by Mr. McKone, that the matter be discussed in committee.

Mrs. Morris inquired if anything would be gained by reducing the estimates by less than $10,000.

Roland Denne remarked on the apparent impossibility of reducing the estimates, despite his agreement with the spirit shown by the City Council.

"We can reconsider our estimates," he said, "and do the best we can, perhaps reaching half of it."

Dr. F. C. Neal said: "We went over the estimates carefully and I don't think it a good policy to save one dollar this year when we will have to spend two dollars next year."

Mrs. Morris: "If we can save $10,000 now we were not as careful as we might have been in drawing our estimates."

The Board of Education went into committee of the whole to discuss the feasibility of reducing the estimates and gave the question consideration behind closed doors.

On resolving again into board, the chairman of the committee, Roland Denne, was asked by Chairman J. M. Greene to report.

Withdrew the Report.

When the report had been given, A. A. Fowler objected to its publication. "It is not right to give the representatives of the press the details given by Mr. Denne," he said. "We are an elective body and our word should go."

Mrs. Morris: "Would it be in order to give the press only the resolution we are now discussing?"

This was a resolution to publish only the regrets of the Board in its inability to meet the wishes of the City Council and a notification of a meeting to thoroughly discuss the situation.

"That is the whole object in asking the press to leave the room," she continued. "I think our decision is sufficient."

Mr. Denne: "The public is entitled to get it all."

Mr. A. A. Fowler: "I think the press should eliminate the amounts."

Mr. Fowler moved to instruct the press to suppress the details given by Mr. Denne in the report he had made on request of the chairman. Seconded by Mrs. Morris, the resolution passed with only Mr. Denne voting contrary.

Monthly Reports.

Dr. A. W. McPherson reported that testing and inoculation had been carried on in the campaign against diphtheria and would be completed this week.

Of the 558 pupils subjected to the Schick test 408 showed positive reactions and these had been treated with the three innoculations. No se-

CHURCH UNION IS DISCUSSED

Speaker Says Presbyterian Church Will Not Lose Its Identity.

"The Presbyterian Church in Canada will not lose its identity if the proposed Union Bill goes through. We will have an equal place in the Church of our fathers and an equal place with the ecumenical Methodists and the Congregationalists of the world, according to a decision of the Pan-Presbyterian Council, the executive council of the Presbyterian Church of the World, which declares that the basis of this proposed Union satisfies the conditions of membership in the Presbyterian Alliance of the World, and that the United Church, as proposed in Canada, will not work to the detriment in any way, of membership of the Presbyterians in Canada in the great World Alliance of their church," declared Dr. Pidgeon, making public a recent decision of the Presbyterian World Alliance.

Speaking to an audience of nearly two hundred people, gathered last evening in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, Rev. Dr. Geo. Pidgeon, of Toronto, convenor of the Union Committee of the Presbyterian General Assembly, outlined the general principles of the proposed union in Canada of the Methodist, Presbyterian and Congregational denominations. Dr. A. Moir acted as chairman.

In his opening remarks, Dr. Pidgeon declared that the first Union of contradictory factions in the Presbyterian Church took place in Canada in the year 1817, and that further unions in the same denomination within later years numbered nine, bringing into line 15 different sections. "The present Methodist Church in Canada," he said, "was brought about by seven different unions, at least, and the present Congregational Church is the result of two unions, bringing in three separate Congregationalist bodies. So that these three churches are the product of at least 20 different unions, bringing together over 40 religious denominations organized separately on Canadian soil, and those unions have been prophetic of a union larger still."

Speaking of the action of the non-unionists in seeking to overturn the decision of the courts of the church and bring on a referendum, Dr. Pidgeon said this action was not Presbyterian, and those who advocated it were striking at the very roots of the system of the great Presbyterian Church, which asserted that the sessions, the presbyteries, the synods and the General Assembly finally, constituted the government of the church.

He harked back to an ancient decree of the church in Scotland, in 1641, when the same issue was before the Scottish church, and the Assembly declared that "before this decree finds final execution, it is expedient that the tacit consent of the people be had," and asserted that this ancient decree had been followed out in the action of the Assembly in 1915, when a general vote on the question was taken. Fifty-two per cent. of the membership of the church voted at that time, "and people who say that was not a representative vote forget how hard it is to get people at any time to vote on any question in numbers." Of the members who voted, a little over 60 per cent. were in favor of Union, and a fraction under 40 per cent. against it. Of the elders, 96 per cent. voted, and over

CHICAGO LAWYER TRIED BY SOVIET

Rolled Up Profits For the State As Banker But Is Charged With Mis-using Funds.

MOSCOW, March 5.—(Canadian Press).—Alexander Krasnotchekoff, the former Chicago lawyer, known in that city as Alexander Tobelson, who was a friend of Lenine and once President of the Far Eastern Republic, was brought to trial in the Supreme Court here on Tuesday, charged with the misuse of the funds of the Commercial and Industrial Bank and of conduct unbecoming a Communist.

A great crowd awaited the opening of the trial, which has aroused more interest than perhaps any procedure since the introduction of the new econmic policy.

The Government is seeking to demonstrate through this trial the dangers to the public morals which must be guarded against in the new economic policy, while the attorneys for the defence declared they would prove that Krasnotchekoff pursued a socialistic banking policy, rolling up huge profits for the State, and that whatever minor diversions the defendant might have indulged in they were unimportant personal idiosnycracies.

The dental officer reported 131 fillings done during the month and 75 temporary extractions with 14 permanent.

J. Abraham, school attendance officer, reported 51 absentees because of colds and 3 cases of chickenpox.

There were three removals from the city balanced by three arrivals.

For School Exhibits.

Mr. Denne pointed out the necessity of a building in which to exhibit the manual training and art work of the scholars during the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, and passed on the board a suggestion from Mr. Mowat that the boys erect the building. The Exhibition Board, he said, will supply the materials and Messrs. Hagerman and Hope, instructors, would supervise the work.

Mr. Denne pointed out that the Exhibition Board had not charged the Board of Education for the space occupied in previous years.

His suggestion was received with hearty approval and will be put into effect.

There were present: Chairman J. M. Greene, Dr. F. C. Neal, Edward B. Fowler Dr. John J. Craig, A. A. Fowler, Roland Denne, J. A. McKone, Mrs. W. R. Morris and Dr. H. M. Yelland.

GRAIN ELEVATOR WAS BURNED AT HASTINGS

Early Morning Fire Wipes Out An Old Landmark and Results in Heavy Property Loss.

HASTINGS, March 5. — Early this morning fire was discovered in the grain elevator of H. M. Fowlds and Sons by Stanley Edwards, who was on his way to work at 5.30 a.m. The fire engine was summoned and did good work, but was unable to save the building. The elevator, which was stocked with grain, flour and feed, also the adjoining coal sheds, were completely destroyed. Spontaneous combustion is believed to have been the cause. The elevator was one of the oldest buildings in the village and about the last portion to disappear in the flames was the sign of H. M. Fowlds and Sons over the entrance. The volunteer firemen had three streams of water playing on the fire and surrounding buildings and were able to keep the fire from spreading to the Royal hotel and other nearby buildings. The morning train from the east was held up for a short time as the burning building was so close to the track. The extent of the loss could not be determined this morning, but it will be heavy. It was partly covered by insurance.

SIGNS OF SPRING ARE IN EVIDENCE

Rain, Wind, Grass, Crows, Butterflies' Swans, Bees and Ewes All Tell the Story of Winter's End.

TORONTO, March 5.—(Canadian Press.)—Spring is coming, chattered the rain as it pattered on the roofs of Toronto homes yesterday and made little rivers through the remaining heaps of dingy ice and snow that still fill the gutters of the city streets. Spring is coming sang the wind as it blew, mild and gentle from the east. Spring is here declared the grass of city lawns, where the snow had melted and showed green paths. Crows winging their way over the city outskirts from the swamps where they have been spending the winter also tell the message spring is coming.

Port Arthur.

J. Nelson, Elizabeth street, reports a live butterfly in his flower porch yesterday morning.

Niagara Falls.

The first swans have arrived, which old timers claim indicates an early spring. A large flock flying low was noticed by numerous residents in the city last night.

St. Catharines.

Bee keepers here report remarkable activity among the bees during the past few days of mild weather. They say the bees are leaving their hives and buzzing about in quite summer-like fashion which leads the bee keepers to think the bees do not anticipate any more very severe weather.

Fort William.

D. J. Piper, pioneer farmer of Slate River, thinks the winter is about over, as the ewes are lambing every day now on his farm. The young flock is in every instance in fine shape. Conditions here point to an early opening of navigation.

LACK OF CARE CAUSED DEATH

BRIGHTON, March 5.—The coroner's jury empanelled by Dr. F. M. Dure, coroner, to enquire into the death of the infant son of Mary O'Brien, the child that died soon after its birth in a shack at Orland. After hearing the evidence at the inquest last night, returned a verdict to the effect that death was due to cold and the lack of proper care.

The Crown was represented at the hearing by Crown Attorney W. F. Kerr of Cobourg while Thomas F. Hall of the same town, solicitotr for Edward Ash and Florence O'Brien, whose acquittal on a charge of bigamy he secured at that time on Monday, watched the case on behalf of his clients. Nearly all the witnesses examined claimed exemption from prosecution for any admission they might make on the stand.

The sordid details of the story were unfolded by witness after witness. The paternity of the dead child was not established, the young man whom the girl named, proving an alibi. Crown Attorney Kerr is his address to the jury, said that according to the girl's own sworn statement the accused could not possibly be responsible for her trouble. Dominick Capio, an Italian who lived at Hart's Corner near Trenton and who is employed as a section hand, admitted on the stand that he had the girl at his house during the month of January, 1923. She was 16 at the time, less than half his age.

George Gifford who is serving time and Edward or "Mike" Ash who will be tried Thursday on a charge of chicken stealing and Florence O'Brien, the mother were all called as witnesses. They swore that the girl had concaled her true condition and that but for this some preparation would have been made to take care of her during her illness and that the mother would not have left her to visit friends in Corbeyville.

Other witnesses were Dr. Rundle of Brighton, Dr. Anderson of Wooler, Mrs. T. Gilbride and Mrs. W. J. Lobiner, who took care of the sick girl, Provincial Officer Consans, E. Killen, grave-digger, Korey Farrow, who buried the child and Reeve McColl of Brighton township who gave orders for the care of the sick girl.

WARKWORTH BOND SALE DISCUSSED

Eleven Thousand Dollar Issue May Be Offered to Local Capitalists.

WARKWORTH, March 5.—When the village voted to introduce a new lighting plant and a branch of the Hydro system was built to this place from Bradley's Corners, the ratepayers assumed a liability of $11,000, the cost of the improvement. Debentures for this amount were issued and soon found a purchaser in the Bird, Harris Co., of Toronto. Now a move has been started which practically amounts to attempt to have the sale set aside to give local capital a chance to invest, and for other reasons.

Sixteen residents of the village united in a petition which was presented the other day to the Percy Township Council asking that Reeve McCubbin refrain from signing the debentures until the figures have been passed upon by auditors. The council complied and the two municipal auditors, now at work upon the township's accounts were instructed to continue their labors until the debenture issue had been looked into. Reeve McCubbin will not attach his signature until he is satisfied that the sale was legal and the same course will be taken by Treasurer Boyce of the village.

Peculiar Situation.

The situation is a peculiar one. The township is required to guarantee the bonds of Warkworth, which has the status of a police village, but aside from this the electric lighting problem is entirely a local affair, the township having no voice in the outlay, and beyond the guarantee, no responsibility for the debt.

The sale of the debentures was made, not by the village lighting commission, as some people seem to think it should have been, but by last year's township council. It appears that Chairman Kelly of the lighting commission turned the matter over to the council. The debentures were not advertised but from the time the issue was decided upon a representative of the Toronto firm was after them. The issue bore interest at the rate of 5½ per cent. The agent's first offer was 103, but the council was the proper party to 105, and the deal was closed. It is now claimed that before making the sale that the council, not one member of which is left, secured from Township Solicitor I. A. Humphries, of Campbellford, the assurance that the council aws the proper party to make the sale, and that the transaction was regular in every way.

It was expected apparently by the majority of the residents of the village that the bonds would be advertised so that local capital would have a chance to invest, and that every cent would be taken up in this way. Bonds to the amount of $60,000 issued to pay for the Percy Township municipal telephone company were disposed of to local people so that no trouble was anticifated in disposing in the same way of an issue for less than one-fifth of that amount.

That is Warkworth's big problem to-day. Reeve McCubbin is a man of characterstic Scottish caution, and before he affixes his signature to any document, official or otherwise, will satisfy himself that everything is regular. He has been authorised by his colleagues in the Council to secure legal advice before he takes definite action.

It will surprise no one if the entire issue is upset and that the bonds will be placed on the market again and subscribed for locally.

No one is censured for the complication that has arisen, nor is the good faith of any one called in question. The situation was a novel one, and the Council of last year had official legal sanction for the step which they took.

In the meantime, Warkworth flourishes nightly in a flood of Hydro electric light, and is satisfied with the investment

Ice Circus on Friday.

Another of the novel entertainments for which Warkworth is noted, will be held on Friday night—an ice circus in the skating rink.

There will be an ark with Noah and all the animals, ladies' fancy drills, ten clowns, and three comedy performances, wheelbarrow, balloon, horse, and animal races.

Prizes will be awarded for the best costumes. Music will be furnished by the Alderville Brass Band, the members appearing in native Indian costume.

HASTINGS MAN APPEALS CASE

J. M. Masterson Not Satisfied With Decision in Cheque Case.

WARKWORTH, March 5. — Township Clerk Ewing, who is also Clerk of the Division Court for this district, has been served with notice that J. M. Masterson, of Hastings, has appealed the case which was recently decided against him by Judge Huycke in a Division Court case in that village.

Mr. Masterson sued President Hess and Secretary W. H. Chapman, of the Hastings Athletic Association, for $100.00, the amount of a cheque which he claimed was issued to defray the cost of taking the Junior lacrosse team to Toronto, but which the defendant alleges was simply given as a guarantee that the team would appear for the game.

Judge Huycke decided in favour of the defendants, both parties to pay their own costs.

SENATORS TAKE UP DEBATE ON THRONE SPEECH

Lougheed Says Government Made No Effort to Reduce Expenditure or Taxation — Dandurand Cites Thirty Million Reduction In First Year.

Emigration Problem.

OTTAWA, March 5. — (Canadian Press).—The debate on the address opened in the Senate yesterday and will be continued to-day—Ash Wednesday—a day over which the Lower House has decided to adjourn. Senator Pardee and Senator Cote, mover and seconder of the address, had congratulations for the Government. The Speech from the Throne, said Senator Pardee, reflected much optimism. Relief from excessive taxation was necessary to the prosperity of the country, especially in view of reduced taxation in the United States. He hoped the Senate would take a "broader view" of the Canadian National Branch Lines Bill, which was again to be submitted.

Senator Cote urged the importance of a revision of the tax scale in order to remove certain inequalities.

Sir James Lougheed, Conservative leader, could not endorse Senator Pardee's approval of the Branch Lines Bill.

He proceeded that the Government appeared to be ignorant of the condition in the country and had made no effort during the past two years to reduce either expenditure or taxation. The late Government had started Civil Service reform in the printing bureau, Customs Department and Post Office. The present Government had not continued this work and had been forced into what they were now doing by public opinion. The Government had pyramided both taxation and expenditure.

Retarding Progress.

Sir James instanced what had been done in other countries in regard to debt reduction and the curtailing of expenditure. In Canada taxation was retarding progress, strangling industry and destroying trade, and all was the result of the Government's extravagance.

The worst feature of the Dominion Government was that it was setting the pace in extravagance for the provinces and municipalities. If this was not stopped, it would result in national disaster.

Sir James claimed that the Government machinery was antiquated and was unable to deal with the problems which confronted the country. The West was seething with discontent. The Government should do as was done in the United States and Great Britain and call in prominent and experienced men to assist in remodelling the machinery of government. It could not be done from within as the members were amenable to demands for patronage, and deputy Ministers appeared hopeless to accomplish the work. The new audit board would be equally hopeless. He suggested that the Government borrow experts from the railways and financial institutions to assist them.

Would Balance Budget.

Senator Dandurand, Government leader, replied that the Government had reduced expenditure thirty million dollars in the first fiscal year they were in office. They had been left with an uncontrollable expenditure of $308,000,000 and yet had reduced the controllable expenditure to less than pre-war days, and after two years would have a balanced budget. With a balanced budget the Government would reduce taxation. Already the Government had reduced the Civil Service by 3,999, and he believed more reductions would be made.

In compiling the estimates for the year every consideration had been given. Great reductions had been made and there would be no unnecessary expenditure. While there was some uneasiness throughout the land, the general conditions in production were good, in transportation improved, unemployment lessened, public finance bettered, national income increased, and national expenditure decreased.

U. S. Attractions.

In dealing with the emigration from Canada to the United States, Senator Dandurand said salaries had been largely increased in that country and were a great temptation to our people. The immigration laws in the United States also made a shortage of labor in that country. The dissatisfaction in rural Canada was due to low prices for products, and high prices for what they had to buy. Artisan wages in cities and towns had also had a disturbing effect on rural life. Even with this, Canada was in a better condition than any other country in the world.

Senator Dandurand stated that the farmers were crying for a new tariff, believing it raised prices, and manufacturers were clamoring for still more protection. There were many conflicting interests even among the manufacturers. It was no easy matter to frame a tariff. The special interests of the East had defeated reciprocity and created a third party in the West.

Senator Dandurand adjourned the debate.

INFLUENZA EPIDEMIC SWEEPS OLD COUNTRY

Doctors Overwhelmed By Number of Patients — Business and Government Office Staffs Hit—King George Himself Down With It.

London, March 5. Canadian Press Cable.—The acuteness of the present epidemic of influenza in this country is attributed largely to the severe and highly variable weather conditions, including rain and snow and Arctic winds. The epidemic has reached a stage where it is overwhelming the doctors in attendance on the patients. One prominent medical man says that he is being "run off his legs" in trying to keep up with the demand for his services; and another says that he has to start visiting his patients at 5 o'clock in the morning in order to make all his calls.

Although the present influenza outbreak is of a comparatively mild character and not at all comparable to the deadly influenza epidemic experienced here a few years ago, one doctor says number of persons affected is rapidly approaching the figures of the 1918 influenza scourge so far as his own general practice is concerned.

Staffs Depleted.

A number of city firms are being deprived of large numbers of their staffs by reason of the influenza, in some cases as many as 30 per cent. of the staffs being away. Out of 32 employees working in one particular room no fewer than 28 are down with the disease.

The government offices are not in any way free from influenza, notwithstanding that the rooms are being sprayed regularly with powerful antiseptics. It was stated at the ministry of pensions to-day that there were hundreds of employees absent owing to the epidemic.

An east end doctor states that 16 out of 18 persons living in one house are down with the influenza.

The epidemic has caused a suspension of many dinner parties, dances and other social functions for there is scarcely a town or country house without its victims.

King is a Victim.

The King and Queen have cancelled engagements because they both are suffering from influenza, but the King was a good deal better yesterday and was able to receive visitors at Buckingham Palace. He was out in the palace garden this morning taking a walk in the sunshine.

It is stated that if ordinary care is taken by an influenza patient the disease soon yields to a new form of treatment now in use here, a combination of drugs that acts as antitoxin.

Unfortunately the influenza is not the only malady that is prevalent just now. Sleeping sickness is on the increase, so much so that it is causing anxiety in medical circles. Last week there were 61 cases of sleeping sickness compared with 33 the previous week.

Manchester appears to be suffering most from sleeping sickness although isolated cases have been diagnosed in many of the London suburbs. The origin of the disease is obscure but it is evident that the germ does deadly work when the patient's vitality is reduced, as is often the case after influenza.

TODAY IN OTTAWA

OTTAWA, March 5.—(Canadian Press.)—There will be no sitting of the House of Commons to-day. In the Senate the debate will be continued on the address.

YESTERDAY IN PARLIAMENT.

In both Houses there was a debate on the address. In the Commons, Robert Forke, Progressive leader, opposed high tariffs. Progressive measures, he said, would receive Progressive support. He advocated construction of Hulson Bay Railway.

J. S. Woodsworth, leader of the Labor group, asked for Parliamentary committee to investigate British Empire Steel Corporation and sharply commented on the proceedings against J. B. McLachlan, Labor leader ,sentenced to two years for seditious libel.

NIGHT DEBATE IN THE HOUSE

Riot of U. F. O. Expenditure Figured in Speeches.

TORONTO, March 5.—(Canadian Press).—An acknowledgment of an $11,000,000 error in the "riot of expenditure," which he had attributed to the present Conservative Government, was made last evening in the Legislature by Hon. Manning Doherty, U.F.O. leader. The admission came when, after wandering all afternoon and late into the evening over miscellaneous issues, the Chamber's budget debate was recalled by Hon. Charles McCrea, Minister of Mines, to the theme which is its justification. The state of public finances before being thus recalled the debate had assumed varied forms.

Hon. Mr. McCrea, however, resurrected the budget itself from its obscurity and squarely met Hon. Mr. Doherty's charge of a "riot of expenditure" by the Government of which he was a member. Using figures from which Hon. Mr. Doherty had himself quoted, he asked the U.F.O. leader if he had not included in the capital expenditure credited to the U.F.O. Government interest charges which should have been charged instead to ordinary expenditures. Hon. Mr. Doherty conceded, however, that he had made such a mistake.

"My point has never been controverted, that the Conservative Government, in its ordinary expenditues during three and one-half months of office, spent $3,000,000 more than the late Government spent during its whole eight months of office," he said.

To this point Hon. Mr. McCrea's reply was that the Ferguson Government had simply been meeting obligations incurrred by the old Government and settling accounts left outstanding by it.

The Mining Minister said the Provincial Treasurer had not known just where matters were at when he had brought down his budget for this year.

The debate yesterday supplied members with their first real task of night life in the Chamber. It was ten o'clock when Hon. Mr. McCrea took the floor. He continued until midnight, when Mr. James McCausland (Conservative, South-West Toronto) succeeded him. Mr. McCausland spoke with characteristice vigor upon the issues more local to Toronto, touched upon Northern Ontario and the O.T.A. issues, and defended the country's banking system, concluding the early hours of this morning.

MARMORA NEWS

MARMORA, March 5.—Marmora and Deloro folk celebrated the extra day of 1924 in a fitting manner. The young men of Marmora Township put on a very successful dance in the Town Hall. Square and round dances made the evening an enjoyable one for all.

At Deloro the young men of the staff were the hosts at one of the best dances that Marmora or Deloro has ever witnessed. Nothing was spared to make the evening a success, and the young men of Deloro staff are to be congratulated for the way they decorated the hall. Marmora people say that the hall was decorated as was never seen before in this district. Tissue paper streamers were formed into the pattern of a huge spiderweb, which completely covered the ceiling. Alternating streamers were black and white, and from the middle of the web hung a spider, also of huge dimensions. The orchestra was behind a lattice work enclosure, over which were artificial flowers which appeared very natural. Ferns and palms added to the pleasing effect. About one hundred and fifty members of the staff and guests were in attendance, a great number from Marmora adding to the total. Among those from Marmora were: Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Pearce, Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Pearce, Mr. and Mrs. Fred. Wells, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Johnston, Mr. Harry Dunlay, Mrs. Elizabeth Deacon, Dr. Lloyd Curtiss, Miss Marion Shannon, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Shannon, Mr. Ralph Neal, Miss Edna Neal, Mr. Gordon McWilliams, Dr. and Mrs. Crawford.

Narrow Escape.

A narrow escape from a serious accident happened Friday night when Marmora folk were returning from the danc eat Deloro. Mr. Wm. Sanderson, with his touring car, was just coming over the brow of the hill at Mr. Edward O'Connor's when he met a runaway horse. Luckily he was driving on the side of the road, and the cutter merely hit the side of the touring car. The horse then became detached from the dance at Deloro. Mr. Sanderson could proceed he had to lift the cutter out of the way.

Telephone Cable.

A gang of Bell Telephone men have just completed the installation of two thousand feet of cable to replace the numerous wires on Forsythe street. They also state that eight new telephones were installed in the village.

Sale of Cooking.

On Saturday, March 1, the ladies of St. Paul's Anglican Church held a sale of home-made cooking in the Town Hall. The display of all kinds of cooking was really tempting, and the buyers soon emptied the table.

The girls of the church also sold home-made candy for which there seemed a great demand, for early in the afternoon it was all sold.

The sale was a real success as everything brought by the ladies was sold.

Death of Mr. Aunger.

The death of Mr. Aunger of Blairton, father of Mr. Geo Aunger of Marmora, took place on Friday afternoon.

Two New French Liners For Service to New York.

PARIS, March 5.—A bill authorizing the French Line to issue additional shares amounting to from four to twelve million francs to cover construction of two new liners for the Havre-New York service, was approved by the Finance committee of the Chamber of Deputies Tuesday. The ships are to replace the La Savoie and La Lorraine, which, according to the report of Deputy Valude, in behalf of the Merchant Marine Commission, must give way to faster boats in order to compete with foreign lines for French passenger traffic and mail service.

IN MEMORIAM.

MONTGOMERY—In loving memory of our dear little Vera, who departed to live with the angels, March 4th, 1923:

We loved her, yes, we loved her,
But Jesus loved her more,
And He has sweetly called her,
To yonder shining shore.

The golden gates were opened,
A gentle voice said, Come,
And with farewell unspoken,
She gladly entered home.

PRESENTED PLAY AT BAILIEBORO

Members of Anglican Guild Packed Hall With "Lodgers Taken In" — Cast Performed Well.

BAILIEBORO, March 5.— On Friday evening the members of the guild of the Anglican church gave an entertainment in the basement of the church, the chief feature of the programme was a play entitled, "Lodgers Taken In."

The seating capacity was completely taken up, and quite a number had to stand at the back of the basement throughout the entire programme.

Rev. Canon Allen presided as chairman, and gave a splendid address. The following then took part in the programme, between the acts.

Piano duet by Mrs. Allen and Margaret Greer; solos by Mrs. Wm. Lunny; readings by Miss Pearl Lamb; solos by Miss Daisy Murray; piano duet by Misses Bernice and Florence Barnard.

The play was given in three big acts, and the characters of the play did themselves great credit by the efficient way in which they took their parts. The cast was:

Gerald Majilton, a jealous millionaire husband, Mr. Fred Wood.

Felix Hopper, Mr Majilton's nephew, and a M.S, Gerald Armstrong.

Benjamin Badpay, Mr. Majilton's valet, John Clarke.

Professor Cornelius Crusty, an irritable old man, Alfred Jackson.

Tom Trumpet (alias Frederic Vanderpool), Mr. Normal William, who is in love with Mr. Majilton's daughter but is a lodger in disguise.

Timothy Thimrig, a retired gentleman who has brought his family to New York to enjoy life in New York, John William.

Mrs Gertie Majilton, a fascinating wife thirty-five years her husband's junior, Mrs. Reg. Armstrong.

Madge Beuclaire, an actress, Miss L Jackson.

Mrs. Angelina Thimrig who is very suspicious of her husband, and who has every reason to be, Mrs. D. Fisher.

Alice Thimrig, a beautiful girl lodger, Miss Edna Johnston.

The story of the play was as follows:

A wealthy old millionaire residing in New York has a very attractive wife many years his junior. Consequently, for no real reason he becomes jealous and imagines his wife to be in love with another man. He at once places his only daughter in a boarding school, and starts with his wife on a tour abroad. At least these are his intentions when he leaves home. But before he leaves home he sends for his nephew whom he intends marrying his daughter to, and gets him to take possession of his mansion in New York during his absence. He only, however, allows him ten dollars a month spending money. After he has gone away the young man finds ten dollars a month only keeps him in cigars, so he has to find some way to secure more money. However, he and Mr Majilton's valet decide to take in lodgers in the fine big house and charge a large rent. Just as they have all of the rooms taken, and are having a splendid time, the owner telegraphs that they missed the steamer, and only went to Florida, and that they are coming home at once. Of course there is a great confusion trying to get rid of all the lodgers, but the play ends up splendidly and makes much laughter, as it is really amusing all the way through.

Two sleigh loads of the members of the A.Y.P.A. of the Anglican church Millbrook were present.

Russia and Sweden Concluding Treaty.

STOCKHOLM, March 5.—(Canadian Press).—A commercial treaty between Sweden and Russia will be concluded within the next four days, according to a report from well-informed quarters. It is stated also as not unlikely that the Soviet Government will be recognized as de jure by Sweden.

The question of this treaty has been one of the main issues before the last two sessions of the Swedish Riksdag, and negotiations have been under way for a long time.

REDUCING PRODUCTION COSTS.

Every manufacturer in the country is faced constantly by the problem of reducing his production costs.

If he can save a dollar it is just as good as the dollar he may earn.

Accidents have laid a heavy hand on industry in Ontario when we realize that compensation for accidents in industry in this Province is costing six million dollars each year.

The manufacturer must calculate on this cost with his other problems of manufacture and a reduction in these losses means just that much saved to the country.

Accidents reported to the Workmen's Compensation Board have averaged over five thousand each month for the last several months. This means roughly two hundred accidents every working day and does not benefit either the industry or the workers, but is rather, a heavy loss to both employer and employee.

An extension of the safety idea seems a logical and legitimate means of cutting production costs in this country.

EXHIBITION DATES.

It is to be hoped that the Lindsay and Peterborough Exhibition Boards can come to an amicable arrangement by which a clash in dates can be avoided.

To attempt to hold the two Fairs on the same days would be suicidal for both, as it has been customary for many of the same exhibitors to visit the two Fairs, while the special attractions and race horses also are seen both in Peterborough and Lindsay.

A direct clash between the two organizations would leave each of them short of many of their usual features.

At the same time the proposal that the Exhibition here cut to three days in order that Lindsay and Peterborough might divide the week between them, cannot very well be entertained.

The overhead of the Peterborough Industrial has increased so greatly in recent years that the directors cannot afford to gamble upon the revenue of a couple of days, taking the chance that if one day happens to be wet there is no way of avoiding a deficit.

A four-day Exhibition, which really means three revenue-producing days, has come to be a necessity here, and it does not seem possible to consider shortening time.

The matter should be cleared up as soon as possible.

The situation as it exists at present is not satisfactory to either Exhibition Board.

ALBERTA COAL.

The Province-wide effort being made in Ontario to secure from the Federal Government the appointment of an independent commission to consider the whole question of the transportation of Alberta coal in the hope of hitting upon a plan that would enable Ontario to secure an adequate supply of fuel from the West is gaining momentum and petitions in every centre are being rapidly signed.

It is expected that the number of signatures will be impressive enough to show the Government that the people of Ontario are deeply interested in this fuel problem and are anxious that something should be done to render this Province independent of the United States mines.

Not only is there the very evident danger of constant strikes in the coal fields, jeopardizing the anthracite supply, but there is always the possibility of an embargo on the exportation of coal from the United States, an action that would leave Ontario in a most awkward position.

If the transportation problem can be overcome there is no reason why Ontario should worry about anthracite.

There are vast supplies of fine coal in Alberta fuel, pronounced by many of those who have used it as superior in quality to the American article.

The problem is to lay it down in Ontario cheap enough to make the fuelling of the province from Alberta coal mines independent of the United States. Greater difficulties than this were overcome during the war years; surely this peace-time obstacle can be overcome if it is tackled with similar determination.

UNNECESSARY HORNS.

The new Highway Traffic Act of Ontario suggests a way in which the city could collect a considerable portion of the money spent on providing music in the parks during the summer, judging by the usual experience on band concert nights.

Subsection 2 of Section 1 of the Act says: "A person having the control or charge of a motor vehicle shall not sound any bell, horn or other signalling device so as to make an unreasonable noise, and an operator or chauffeur of any motor vehicle shall not permit any unreasonable amount of smoke to escape from the said motor vehicle, nor shall any such operator or chauffeur at any time by cutting out the muffler or otherwise cause such motor vehicle to make any unnecessary noise."

For offences against this subsection there is a fine of not more than $5 for the first offence, of not less than $5 or more than $10 for the second and not less than $10 or more than $25 for any subsequent offence.

At every band concert last summer every portion of this regulation against unnecessary noises was broken by scores of motorists and, by some of them a dozen times.

At $5 per offence, with higher fines for old offenders, it would not take long to collect the amount of the annual grant—or to stop the noise.

In either event the general public would benefit greatly.

Seriously, however, there is too much unnecessary noise in the operation of motor vehicles, not only on band concert nights, but generally. The regulation against unnecessarily cutting out the muffler is more or less of a dead letter, and there are too many artists who like to play soloes on motor horns at unseemly hours.

A reminder or two taking the form of a Police Court summons would have a very potent effect in calling attention to the regulations against unnecessary noises.

BURNLEY SPEAKS.

Arthur Henderson, Home Secretary in the MacDonald Cabinet, who was defeated at East Newcastle during the last general election, has been returned as member for Burnley in the first bye-election which has been fought since the Labor Government assumed office, says the Montreal Star.

It is always hazardous to draw conclusions and to base comparisons on polling figures. While the majority of persons normally avow the steadfastness of their convictions and ridicule the thought that they would change their political coats, yet, in the mass, electors all over the world are strangely fickle and inconstant. Yet in so far as Burnley, a Lancashire manufacturing city, may be regarded as reflecting the barometer of public opinion of the Manchester School, the bye-election has a special interest.

Ever since former Premier Asquith announced his policy of permitting Labor to make a serious attempt to carry on the functions of government by throwing the weight of Liberal support—without which Labor could not continue for a single day—into the Labor scale the political observers have disputed as to the wisdom of such a policy in its effects upon the future of the party in Britain. At Burnley the Liberals' rank and file have had the first opportunity of endorsing the policy of their leader and they have not done so with any enthusiasm or unanimity.

Pursuant to the Asquithian policy, the Liberals decided not to put a third candidate in the field, realizing that as Dan Irving, the late member, had only secured a majority of 2,700 in a total poll of over 44,000, Arthur Henderson, who was practically unknown save by repute in the constituency, and who was, moreover, a man of little popularity even in his own party, might suffer defeat in a three-cornered contest. The figures of the polling show that the Liberals have not generally approved their leader's policy. Of the 13,500 who voted Liberal at the last election about 2,500 abstained from voting and of the others about an equal number voted Liberal and Conservative. The result will be more encouraging to Mr. Baldwin than to Mr. Asquith.

Arthur Henderson was one of the three Labor men who joined the Coalition Government in 1915 and he gave loyal service when he represented Labor in the War Cabinet. He began life as an apprentice iron moulder, but his native talent lifted him into public life at an early age. Mr. Henderson has few arts and graces and therein perhaps lies much of his power, but he has a tenacity of purpose and he speaks with a bluntness that irritates his adversaries and rasps his friends. Mr. Henderson has the courage of his convictions. He is a strict Wesleyan, a local preacher and a staunch teetotaler. His defeat would have robbed the House of Commons, and especially the Labor Government, of an outstanding man.

THE COAL OIL CAN AND THE STOVE.

Why people persist in courting death, injury or loss of their homes by insensate use of the petrol can in lighting stoves is difficult to comprehend, says the Ottawa Journal. The number of tragedies traceable to this cause within recent months constitutes a ghastly record. Almost every week, the press despatches carry reports of one or more fatal accidents where coal oil or gasoline has been the death-dealing agency. In some cases, the grown-up offender, man or woman, alone pays the penalty of his rash act with his life. In others, innocent bystanders, oftentimes little children, are enveloped in the tragedy.

Using coal oil to start a fire may not be a common practice, but it is sufficiently widespread to take a fairly heavy toll in human lives every year in Canada. The practice is hoary with age. It dates almost from the time oil lamps replaced candle light in the home. Coal oil, it was noted, produced a ready flame. With the reckless, the unthinking or the ignorant, the use of the inflammable liquid as a substitute for paper and kindling wood in starting a fire, was but a step.

Petrol tragedies have been sufficiently numerous in Canada in the last forty years or so, to serve as a deterrent; yet, the foolish, dangerous practice goes on. Lives are snuffed out instantly or the "human torches" may die after long, agonizing suffering. The victims may escape with their lives, only to see their home representing perhaps the labor and economy of a lifetime wiped out in the twinkling of an eye.

The increase in the number of fatal petrol fires in the last couple of years may be accounted for by the introduction of a new and more disastrous element—gasoline. Where "gas" has been used to start a fire in the belief that it was as harmless (?) as coal oil, the consequences have been even more sinister. Still another source of grave danger is the practice of heating oil, varnish ,tar, or other combustible matter on a stove.

To those who still resort to the practice of using petrol for starting or reviving a fire the advice is obvious: Stop it before it is too late. Having done it once, is already too often. Profit by the unfortunate experience of others. Starting a fire with coal oil is a fool practice akin to pointing a loaded gun or trusting to the speed of an automobile to beat an oncoming train to the level crossing.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The Ontaro Temperance Act continues to supply the chief topic for debate in the Legislature, crowding the Budget figures off the stage.

The debate on the address in reply from the Speech to the Throne in the Federal House will lose all its appeal now that the big guns have fired their ammunition the first day.

The vote of the O.T.A. will be a plebiscite and not a referendum, according to Premier Ferguson. That will throw the responsibility of putting into effect a policy based on the result of the vote upon the shoulders of the Government. The next point is when will the question go to the people.

The theory that a restaurant in the business section is detrimental to business is a new one that does not seem to have occurred to civic authorities in larger centres than Peterborough.

Hockey excitement in Niagara Falls is so intense that Monday night's meeting of the City Council had to be postponed. King Hockey is evidently greater than retrenchment or tax reduction.

NINE HUNDRED MINERS ADMIT THEY ARE WRONG

Will Pay One Thousand Pounds Damages and Go Back to Work.

GATESHEAD, England, March 4 (United Press). — Nine hundred miners who recently struck for four days, admit that they were wrong, and agree to pay one thousand pounds damages if the summonses against them are withdrawn.

The men believed the master shifter was wrong in his measurements, whereby they were paid and they struck without attempting arbitration.

The company The company secured summonses against the strikers, and the workers besides paying up, agreed not to repeat the offence.

SIGNS OF SPRING IN THE DISTRICT

Robins Make Their Appearance—Dog Captures a Groundhog—Omemee News.

OMEMEE, March 4.—Signs of spring have already appeared in this vicinity and more are being added to the list every day. One robin made its appearance in South Emily last Thursday and crows have been seen by several residents and still one better, Mr. Norman Fee's dog captured a grounhog from out of the snow banks and brought it to the house.

The smaller boys have commenced playing marbles on the sunny side of the street, where the pavement is clear, but so far no skipping ropes have been produced.

Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of the subscribers and ratepayers of the Omemee Telephone Company was held in the U.F.O. Hall on Saturday afternoon. A very satisfactory report was given by the treasurer, Mr. William Robinson, showing a balance in the treasury of over $300.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President—Samuel Connell.
Vice-President—John Barman.
Secretary—William Robinson.
Directors—Robert Johnston, J. Thorne, Arthur Pogue, Chas. Rutherford,
Auditors—Cecil Corneil. W. Veals.

A Farewell Party.

The A.Y.P.A. of Christ Church, Omemee, held a farewell party on Friday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Ford, at the home of Miss Irene Clemett. Mr. and Mrs. Ford have been valued members of the society for a number of years and before severing their connection with their fellow-workers a pleasant evening was spent together during which time Mrs. Ford was made the recipient of a beautifully bound prayer book and hymnal.

Mr. and Mrs. Ford and son Master Wilson left on Tuesday for Saskatchewan accompanied by the best wishes of a host of friends.

A Hockey Match.

The Orange Line Tigers and the Omemee Beavers came together on the local rin kon Saturday afternoon and a fast game of hockey was witnessed. The score was 3-3.

A Golden Wedding.

Congratulations are forthcoming to Mr .and Mrs. Henry Nugent who on Thursday, March 6th, will celebrate their golden wedding, the fiftieth anniversay of their wedding day.

Mr. Ralph James has purchased Mr. Thomas Hendersons' bungalow on King street west.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Moncrief have leased Mr. Albert Fords' house in the eastern section of the village, formerly owned and occupied by Mr. George Wilson.

You Can Eat Anything You Like And Not Have HEARTBURN

In all cases of heartburn there is a gnawing and burning pain in the stomach attended by a disturbed appetite, as when too much food is taken into the stomach it is liable to ferment and become extremely sour, vomiting occurs, and what is thrown up is generally sour and bitter. When you are in this condition you will find that Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills will give you relief right away.

Mr. Joseph H. MacDonald, Christmas Island, N.S., writes:—"Two years ago I suffered all the time from heartburn. I took one vial of Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills and have never been troubled since.

It is very nice to be able to eat anything you like and not have heart burn any more."

Milburn's Laxa-Liver Pills are 25c. a vial at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

CAMPBELLFORD AND DISTRICT

Interesting Play Given Under Auspices of the Anglican Church.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 4.—The play "Facing the Music" or "The Smith Mix-Up" given on Monday night under the auspices of the Anglican Church was a great success. The Regent theatre was filled to the doors and the audience was very appreciative.

Those who took part in the play were: Rev. John Smith, the curate of St. Andrews, taken by A. J. Jenkins.

John Smith, the other Mr. Smith, I .A. Humphries.

Dick Desmond, the other Mr. Smith's guest, Dr. O. C. Watson.

Colonel Duncan Smith, the other Mr. Smith's uncle, Mr. Gledhill.

Sergeant Duffell, attached to Vine St. Police Station, Mr. S. Neale.

Mabel, the curate's wife, Miss G. Maynard.

Nora, the other Mr. Smith's wife, Miss L. Smith.

Mrs. Pointing, the other Mr. Smith's housekeeper, Mrs. I. A Humphries.

Miss Fotheringay of the Bijou theatre, Mrs. C. Booker.

The Smith mix-up is a mirth provoking drama, introducing many complications. There are two Mr. Smith's, one a curate, the other much concerned financially in horse-racing, living in the same apartment building. It so happens that both their wives are away. The curate's wife arrives at her new home the evening before and enters the wrong apartment. Se waits anxiously for her "Johnnie" who of course does not appear. Mrs. Ponting the new housekeeper trying to excuse the other Mr. Smith, says he has gone to the country on business. In the meantime he has been getting into difficulties while assisting an actress, lost in the fog, he becomes the victim of a robbery and finds himself minus his pocket book, which contained two hundred pounds. More complications follow with the usual happy ending.

Personal Mention.

Mrs. Walter Henson gave a euchre party for several of her friends on Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Williams and Mrs. Mitchell were the winners of the prizes. A dainty lunch was served by the hostess.

Miss Sara Woten and Mr H. Woten of Montreal are visiting their sister, Mrs. Bedford, up the River Road. Mrs. Bedford is very ill.

Judge Huycke of Peterboro was in town on Monday attending court. He was the guest of his sister, Mrs. C. W. Turner, Queen street.

Births.

WHITE— To Mr. and Mrs. W. E. White, of Campbellford, March 4th, a son.

LOST—In Cambellford, on Sebastapool street on Saturday night, March 1st, a bracelet set with sapphires and brilliants. Finder please return to the Herald Office. Reward. 3d-58.

DOHENY OFFERS WALSH INTEREST IN OIL LEASES

Montana Senator Was Approached By Oil Magnate After Teapot Dome Investigation Had Been Opened—Palmer Named As Fall's Counsel.

MORE REVELATIONS.

WASHINGTON, March 5. — Three more intersting contributions were added to the records of the Oil committee Tuesday while special government counsel were completing plans for action within the next few hours for the annulment of the Sinclair and Doheny leases .

Senator Walsh of Montana, Chief Prosecutor in the oil scandal, disclosed that in the midst of the inquiry, E. L. Doheny had suggested that he might care to associate himself with the Doheny interests in a proposal to develop oil lands.

The second disclosure was produced by William J. Burns, Director of the Bureau of Investigation in the Department of Justice. He testified that in order to save possible embarrassment to Attorney-General Daugherty he had hinted to Edward B McLean, publisher of the Washington Post, that he resign his commission as a $1 a year secret agent of the Bureau, a position he said McLean had held since 1921.

Francis H. McAdoo, of New York, son of Wm G. McAdoo, furnished the third sensation of the two-hour committee session He declared McLean, for whom he is counsel, had telegraphed him that A. Mitchell Palmer, a former Democratic Attorney-General, was counsel for Albert B. Fall, and Harry F. Sinclair. Palmer denied before the committee last week that there was any such relationship.

The evidence regarding Doheny's overtures to Senator Walsh was in an exchange of letters and telegrams put into the record by the Senator himself, he said he submitted them because word of the correspondence had been "whispered about" in an effort to discredit him and the oil committee.

Doheny's suggestion that the Senator or his brother "take interest" in the Montana project, was made before he revealed that he had loaned $100,000 to A. B. Fall, but long after the Senate inquiry into the Doheny and Sinclair contracts had begun.

Daugherty Charge.

Charges of failure to enforce the anti-trust laws in connection with cases transmitted by the Federal Trade Commission probably will be the first produced against Attorney General Daugherty in the investigation ordered by the Senate.

WOMAN WANDERS AWAY CLAD IN NIGHT CLOTHES

Great Anxiety Felt Regarding Mrs. John Wigglesworth of Belleville.

BELLEVILLE, March 5.—Mrs John Wigglesworth, aged 38 years, disappeared from her home during the night in her night clothes and light overcoat and slippers and has not been found yet.

She had been in a highly nervous state and had become excited over the sale of some of the furniture of the family as they were breaking up house so that she might go to England for a six months' rest with her mother in Yorkshire. Today the Public Works Department searched the river, which was open at Upper Bridge, and cut channels in the raceway leading to a flour mill, but no trace of the woman could be found. She had no relatives here to whom she would be likely to go.

She has two sons, aged ten and eleven, and her husband. She has been a suffered from rheumatism for seven years past.

BRIBES ACCEPTED BY CONGRESSMAN

President Coolidge Orders Immediate Investigation —Money For Paroles and Pardons—The Charge.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—(Canadian Press).—President Coolidge last night ordered an immediate Grand Jury investigation of charges that two members of Congress had accepted bribes to obtain paroles and pardons for persons convicted of crime.

Instructions have been given Acting Attorney-General Seymour, it was announced at the White House, to "proceed with every diligence in the prosecution of the cases."

A Grand Jury is expected to be convened here shortly to go into the charges. Their identity has not been made known, even to congressional leaders, although it has been established that they are members of the House.

It also was disclosed yesterday that while in Chicago last week, Attorney-General Daugherty appeared before the Grand Jury investigating the Veterans' Bureau affairs to submit evidence regarding the activities of the two Congress members.

Stubborn Coughs

Stop Quick With Home Made Cough Mixture

Not until you make your own cough mixture—a half pint of it for a small sum—will you know how easy it is to stop any bad persistent cough as if by magic.

It's pleasant-tasting, but that don't stop it from knocking out a cough quicker than anything else in the world. Children love it.

Get from any druggist one ounce of Parmint (double strength)—to this add a litle granulated sugar and enough water to make one half pint—that's all there is to it.

This loosens the phlegm, stops the irritation, allays the inflammation, cleans out clogged nostrils, and causes sore throat and hoarseness to disappear.

With speed almost beyond belief this home made cough mixture stops the toughest hang-on cough, and all because in it there is a substance (too costly for ordinary cough syrups) that immediately covers the membrane like a soothing healing poultice and blessed relief comes at once.

And it is always worth while to bear in mind that any remedy that overcomes catarrh, partially or wholly, is bound to be of benefit to those who are troubled with head noises and catarrhal deafness.

Get Parmint and get better.

NEWS TRENT RIVER AND THE DISTRICT.

TRENT RIVER, March 5.—The death took place Saturday of Russel Roy Tyler in his 29th year, in Smith township. The remains were brought to the home of his mother, Mrs. Stanley Carnrite, where the funeral was held Monday afternoon at 1.30 o'clock, interment at Centre church cemetery.

WORLD'S WOOL SUPPLY LESS

WASHINGTON, March 4.— The world production of wool in 1923 was estimated to-day by the United States' Department of Commerce at 2,604,911,000 pounds, a reduction of about 66,000,000 pounds from the 1922 figures.

The decrease was largely attributed by an apparent reduction of 130,000,000 pounds in the Australian clip as compared with 1922.

SENTENCED FOUR BANDITS TO DIE

New York Gangsters to Pay Penalty in April For Brutal Slaying of Two Bank Messengers.

NEW YORK, March 4.—Morris Diamond, his brother oJe Diamond, John Farina and Anthony Pantano, convicted of murder, were yesterday condemned by Judge Cropsey to die during the week of April 7. The four men were found guilty of slaying two bank messengers on November 14 last.

Motions for new trials, based on many grounds, were made. Justice Cropsey's actions during the trial of the men were specifically attacked. But the judge sat staring ahead without any emotion whatsoever. When the lawyers had finished he quickly spoke:

"Motions denied."

His voice sounded like the crack of a whip in that silent room. Then, in that same metallic voice of his:

"Have you men anything to say before imposition of sentence?"

None had. Cropsey, his eyes still flashing, said to each in turn:

"The sentence of the court is that you be put to death in the place and manner prescribed by law during the week beginning April 7."

Cropsey had performed a duty that seldom fails to a jurist—that of sentencing to death at one time four fellow-beings. The last time that was done in New York State was when the Rosenthal slayers met Justice in sable garments.

On the way to the prison vans one man spoke. That was Joe Diamond,

"Well, that's that."

Police beat back the curious who tried to stampede into the courtyard.

"There they go — going to the chair —they're going to be killed—Cropsey gave it to them in the neck"—

Morbid Mob Shouts.

Wild, hysterical speeches like that were shouted at the men by morbid spectators who had let their emotions run wild. As the men were being placed in vans — the Diamonds in one, and the other two in a separate vehicle—Pantano, with a show of bravado ,shouted to them:

"Good-bye, people, and good luck to all you fortunate ones."

A grin spread over his weak face.

MOORS ATTACK SPANISH FORCE

Fresh Outbreak By Rebels Reported—Battalion of Troops Embarked For Morocco—Situation Not Serious.

GIBRALTAR, March 5.—Reports are current in Spain of trouble in the Melilla area, where it is understood a fresh Moorish attack is in progress. A setamer running from Algeciran to Ceuta has been commandeered by the Spanish authorities, and this fact, together with a sharp fall in Spanish exchange here during the last two days, is taken to confirm the reports.

(Madrid despatches have announced new rebel attacks on advanced Spanish positions in Morocco, but an official statement minimized the seriousness of the situation.)

A battalion of troops was called up at three o'clock this morning from the neighboring Spanish town of Linea and embarked for Morocco.

Another rumor afloat is that the Moors have attacked at El Araish on the Atlantic coast of Morocco.

SITUATION NOT SERIOUS.

MADRID, March 5.—A note was issued by the military directorate Tuesday saying that news from Morocco during the night and yesterday morning shows that the situation there to be not as serious as indictaed by earlier advices. It adds that the directorate will keep the public informed of the encounters which take place between the Moorish rebels and the Spanish forces, realizing the importance of preventing exaggerated private reports to be circulated.

OMEMEE PERSONALS

OMEMEE, March 5.—Miss Ethel Deyell of Peterboro spent the week-end with her brother, Mr. Dave Deyell.

Rev. Calvert Carew of Fenelon Falls, was a visitor in town on Monday.

Mr. Wilbert Clemett arrived home last week from the Nicholls Hospital, Peterboro, where a painful operation was performed on his eye. His many friends hope that his sight will be much improved.

Miss Wright, teacher at Lang's School, spent the week-end at her home at Woodville.

Mr. and Mrs G. Raines and children of Peterboro visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Tweedy over Sunday.

west.

Mr. and Mrs. B Courtney and daughters left on Monday for their new home in Lindsay. Mr. Courtney has accepted a position in the Ford garage and their departure is regretted by a host of friends in Omemee.

THE PIONEER IN CANADA

Thirty-two years ago the now famous "SALADA" Tea was placed on the market in metal packages. "SALADA" was the pioneer package tea in Canada. Immediately its superior flavour and purity won for it a great popularity that has been growing ever since. It is still a little different and a little better than ordinary tea.

FIFTEEN CARS EGGS WEEKLY

Chicago Importation To Run Down Price of Canadian Product.

TORONTO, March 4. — Local merchants are looking for a great drop in the price of eggs within the next few days. The quotations yesterday at Chicago were 22 1-2 cents per dozen in large lots. The shipments into Toronto now average fifteen carloads a week.

The importation of eggs is large on account of the small available supply in Ontario. Buyers express the opinion that when the snow has melted from the country roads, there will be an accumulation of eggs to be put on the market, which will the heavy imports ,will reduce the price to the consumer greatly.

The Crow of Croup A Warning To All Mothers

Croup starts with a dry cough and rattling in the throat; after which the croup crow gives warning of the diseases. The child, after tossing restlessly about, will start up with a flushed face, protuding eyeballs, and a distressing look of terror and anxiety. There is a struggle for breath, and the expectoration of the mucous matter is so difficult to get rid of that the effort appears to threaten strangulation.

On the first sign of the "croupy crow" mothers should administer Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and thus give the child prompt and permament relief, and perhaps the life saved by taking this precaution.

Mrs. H. A. Langhorn, Hamilton, Ont., writes:—"My little boy was very bad with the croup and I could not get anything to relieve him until I tried Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. I cannot praise it too highly for the relief it gave him."

BRITISH GOVERNMENT REJECTS BETTING TAX

LONDON, March 4.—The Government has turned down the idea of obtaining revenue through a tax on betting, Philip Snowden, Chancellor of the Exchequer, told the House of Commons to-day. He said that the government had considered the report of a select committee on betting taxes and had come to the conclusion that it would be against the public interest to make the change in the law that would be involved.

KILLED BY AVALANCHE.

BERNE, Switzerland, March 5.—Nine Swiss tourists on a ski-ing tour in the Glarie Mountains, in the Canton of Grisons, have been overwhelmed by an avalanche. One of them was killed.

DRAMATIC END OF CALIPHATE

Abdul Medjid Summoned to Throne During Night—Turk Assembly's Decree Deposing Him Formally Read — Special Train to Switzerland.

CONSTANTINOPLE, March 5. —The Caliphate in Turkey was officially abolished Tuesday and the Calip, Abdul Medjid Effendi, left Constantinople for Switzerland.

The Vali of Constantinople, Director General of Public Security, accompanied by police, at two o'clock yesterday, proceeded to the Dolmabaghche Palace. They ordered the Caliph to take his seat upon his throne and when he had done so the decree of the Grand National Assembly at Angora ordering his deposition was read.

The Calip was immediately ordered to descend from the throne and make his arrangements to depart at once from Constantinople. An hour later, accompanied by two of his wives and his son, the Caliph was conveyed by motor car to Chatalja, on the frontier, where a special train was in readiness to convey him west ward.

Ismet Pasha, the Foreign Minister, during Monday's discussion of the abolition of the Caliphate and the deposition of the Caliph made the following statement before the Grand National Assembly in Angora:

"Our religion will suffer no change, even if the Caliphate is abolished. Our ideals are based on such exalted principles that we never hesitate openly to tell the people and officers and soldiers the aims we are pursuing.

"We intend to maintain to the bitter end our determination to supp press the Caliphate.

"We have taken all the necessary precautions. Constantinople will never leave our hands if we continue to show the same energy If other Moslems have shown us friendship, it was not because the Caliph was with us, but because of our strength."

DELI, March 5.—(United Press). —A world-wide conference of leaders of Mohammedan thought will be called soon, to meet in Egypt, restore the caliphate abolished by the Turkish Government, and elect a new Califpha, according to Moslem authorities here.

ON THE WAY.

GREVA MACEDONIA, March 5.—(United Press).—The deposed Caliph of Turkey, accompanied by two wives and two Eunuchs, passed through here today aboard the Orient Express bound for Lousanne, where it is reported, he will reside. Future disposition of the remainder of the Harem at Constantinople has not been determined.

IMPORTANT RESULTS.

PARIS, March 5.—(British United Press).—The abolition of the Caliphate is regarded by the French press as likely to have important results with regard to the future policies of the Turks in connection with the Mohammedan world.

"If Turkey abandons the Pan-Islamic Weapon," says Pertinax, "she will become violently national and brutally imperialistic. This will affect international relations. Turkey is no longer able to move the Islamic world of India and Algeria."

ARMS SUPPLIED TO LUDENDORFF

Secret Session of Treason Trial to Hear How Rifles and Machine Guns Belonging to the Government Were Secured.

MUNICH, March 5. — Secret plots concerning arms and ammunition, originally state property which reached the hands of the followers of General Ludendorff and Adolph Hitler, just prior to the recent revolt, were heard on Tuesday afternoon by the court before which Ludendorff and Hitler are on trial for high treason. The session was a secret one, as the prosecutor desired to develop a certain line of testimony, which he thought should be kept from the public for a time at least.

Many rifles and machine guns which formerly belonged to the Reichswehr, are understood to have come into the possession of Hitler, and to have been distributed freely to his men for use, if needed, on a march upon Berlin. The prosecutor planned to make it clear to the court just how the negotiations for the transfer of these arms were carried out, how they reached those implicated in the revolt, and who were responsible.

Even the two generals representing the Berlin War Ministry, who have followed the trial thus far as observers, were excluded from the sitting. Dr. von Kahr, the former Bavarian dictator, will probably not be called as a witness before Friday.

FRENCH FRANC'S DROP.

NEW YORK, aMrch 4.—A sharp break in French francs to 4.02 1-2 cents, a new low record for all time, featured to-day's trading in the local foreign exchange market. French bonds also were depressed slightly but improved later as the franc rallied to around 4.10 1-2 cents, or approximately yesterday's final price.

To-day's break in French bills was again attributed by local international bankers to speculative selling in European capitals.

Cobourg and District

COBOURG, March 5.—At St. Peter's church Sunday evening the rector, Rev. Canon F. J. Sawers, who by the way is a former Peterboro rector, continued his course of sermons on the great hymns of the church, and was listened to with much pleasure and profit.

Rev. H. B Kenny Here.

The congregation of the Cobourg Methodist church, of which Rev. R. F. Stillman, formerly of Omemee, is pastor, had a former pastor, Rev. H. B. Kenny of the Tabernacle, Belleville, and a former Campbellford pastor, with them on Sunday. Mr. Kenny preached at both serivces, delivering virile, interesting and compelling discourses. Mr. Kenny is a strong preacher.

Other Church Services.

At St. Andrew's church on Sunday morning Rev. W. A. Bremner took as his theme, the words of the well-known evangelistic hymn, "Just as I am without one plea," and preached with fervor and earnestness. In the evening his theme was on brotherliness, "A house by the road and a friend to men." After the evening serivce at St. Andrew's, Rev. W. Duncan, organist, gave a much enjoyed organ recital.

At the Baptist church, Rev. J. N. Norton preached with earnestness from the words, "It was for you", in the morning, and in the evening gave a characteristic discourse on "The Acid Test of Desire." Rev. James W. Pedley, Toronto, was the preacher in the Cobourg Congregational church and at Coldsprings, Dr. Pedley enthuses and benefits large congregations each Sunday.

Mission Meetings in Brighton

A commendable spirit of unity seems to prevade the Brighton churches, Anglicans, Baptists, Methodists and Presbyterians are meeting for union evangelistic services each Wednesday evening until April 7, when these will be followed by two weeks special services.

Mr. W. Moore Had Leg Broken

While helping a friend, Mr. W. Moore, Trenton, met with an accident whereby he suffered a broken leg. Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson had driven from Glen Miller to Trenton, and Mr. Miller happening along as Mr. Ferguson was about taking a battery into the garage, offered to hold the horse. The animal was restless and reared. In endeavoring to avoid its hoofs as it came down, Mr. Miller stepped to one side and fell fracturing his ankle.

Want St. Lawrence Power.

Darlington township council on Saturday passed a resolution endorsing the action of the delegation who recently waited upon the Prime Minister of Canada requesting that his Government use every effort to enable the Hydro Electric Power Commission to develop electric energy on the St. Lawrence River, on behalf of the municipalities of Ontario. The clerk was instructed to forward a copy to the Prime Minister at Ottawa.

New Enclosed Shed.

It is expected that as soon as weather permits, the Methodist congregation at Frankford will have a fine new enclosed shed upon their church property. A canvass which is being made for funds is meeting with good success.

Death of Mrs. Rawson.

The funeral took place on Thursday in Brighton township of Mrs. Rawson, wife of Mr. Charles Rawson and before her marriage, Martha Langdon. Mrs. Rawson was in her 79th year.

Smithfield U.F.O. Smoker.

The smoker held recently by Smithfield U.F.O. club proved to be an enjoyable event. Mr. Frank Bellgon presided. Mr. Dave McDonald spoke in favor of organization for the farmers. Coun. Bridal referred to the heavy tax expenditure that had become a burden to the farmer; and referred to the necessity for reduction. Road construction has added much to the burden. Farmers were present from Brighton.

Death of Well-Known Farmer

Mr. Wm. T. Rowland, a prominent farmer who resided at Oraca, died at his home in Hope township and his funeral took place last Thursday afternoon and was very largely attended. Rev. W. A. Bunt, Canton, conducted the services. He had been a resident of the district since 1843.

Mr. Frank Hill Injured.

Mr. Frank Hill had an unfortunate fall from a scaffold at the Douglas Packing Company plant here and sustained injuries to his back and to his side. An X-ray examination did not reveal any broken bones, and he is progressing nicely towards recovery.

Death of Robert Chatten

Mr. Robert Chatten passed away a few days ago at the home of his son, Mr. Sheldon Chatten, Brighton. He was an old and esteemed resident of Edville and well-known in East Northumberland.

Death of Mrs. B. Allen.

Mrs. Allen, widow of the late Benjamin Allen and before her marriage, Miss Bessie Day, passed away at Castleton, Cramake township during the week in her 84th year. She had been in poor health for quite a long time. She leaves a son, Mr. Lyle Allen.

COUNCIL REFUSE TO BUILD WATERWORKS

Mayor of Forest Resigns in Protest Against Order of Provincial Board of Health.

FOREST, Ont., March 5.—(Canadian Press).—As a protest against the Provincial Board of Health order for the construction of a waterworks system for this town, under penalty of a fine of $100 a day for every day of delay after to-day, Mayor William Scott yesterday handed his resignation to the Town Clerk. Five of the eight members of Council, including the Mayor, have consistently opposed the building of a waterworks system at the present time, and it is said that several members of the Council are contemplating resigning from office. The Provincial Board of Health ordered the construction of a waterworks plant when it was found that tests of water taken from wells in the town showed that the water was far from pure.

Means Writing with Fingers Relaxed and Mind Free to Think

Point Guaranteed for 25 Years' Wear

BECAUSE of its Over-size Barrel and classic symmetry, you need but hold this big handsome barrel with fingers ever so gently extended, while the Duofold's super-smooth point skims over the paper, writing as if by its own balanced weight!

To produce this effect—this writing urge—requires us to pay $2340 a pound for Iridium, when we could buy ordinary pen tips for a third. And to sell this pen at $7 instead of $10, requires enormous production and almost uncanny efficiency. For example, we save factory sweepings and even wash employes' clothes to reclaim gold dust. One rubbish heap yielded $2500 in gold.

Duofold's Chinese lacquer-red color, with smart black tips, and a rich ★Gold Girdle, make it a hard pen to mislay.

THE CANADIAN CLUB MEETING

Dr. Bruce Taylor Was the Speaker For the Occasion --Informal Talk on Books

An attendance of about one hundred and fifty men and women marked the lecture give in the Public Library hall ast evening, at an open meeting of the Women's Canadian Club, by R. Bruce Taylor, D.D., L.L.D., Principal of Queen's University, Kingston, who switched his announced address on "The Odd Hour" to an informal talk on books, instructing his hearers in brilliant, witty fashion, a Scotch burr to his fluent English, on what to read and how to read. The President of the club, Miss A. Lancaster, in the chair, introduced the distinguished speaker to his audience.

Prefacing his address with the remark that he was profoundly sceptical of much of the education of the present time, with its harping on the pseudo-psychology of the child, the speaker asserted that he did not consider the primary idea of education as being one of enabling the pupil to make a living. "It is hard nowadays to get a man who possesses both technical knowledge and a real common-sense education. And the two things—education and making money, do not run always in parallel lines either. I have seen millionaires who were not always well educated, and I have come in contact with quite a few millionaires, as it is part of my job to fry and skin them for Queen's. Is success dependent upon position? I think it may be in a way. I think the Indian Civil Service gathered into it the biggest brains in Britain, because it gave the men it employed a certain position. There is also satisfaction obtained from service. I do not mean the service of the kind talked about by the Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs, which generally means just salesmanship, but the kind of social service that you find in Toronto, for instance, where in some sections there are brainy, fine women finding happiness in social service work. I do think that we are never going to find happiness in our work until it has that relation to something outside of us that will never bring us any material reward. For we are all idealists at heart. Carlyle has said: 'Man's unhappiness comes through his greatness.' Much of the element of dissatisfaction in our lives comes from that element of greatness in us. We were made for climbing the heights and we submit to the valleys. The prime purpose of education, as I see it, is one's own happiness. It has been said that 'education is that which is left when you have forgotten all that you have Reverting to his subject, the speaker asserted that the great need in Canadian life is adequate resting places. Canadian women had set up for themselves standards of life that made them tremendously busy. The work which was done in other lands by paid servants was of necessity done by the women of the house here and made great demands on the time and strength of Canadian femininity. For the man who had his pile, too, there were no leisure places such as enjoyed in the Old Country. To both then, reading gave a retreat of quiteness and peace and a fellowship with the great minds of the ages.

"However, if you read only much in magazines, I can liken you to the terrier nosing about the hedge all day and going home finally, tired out. Fortunate was the man with an intellectual hobby, declared Dr. Taylor, who could find in such a retreat a solace against the demands and worries of daily life.

On the shelves of his bookcase, a man would find tolerance and sympathy among the most opposite types. The works of William Law, an Aryan in belief, of St. Augustine and Cardinal Newman, of Bunyan and of the old Presbyterian, Thomas Boston, whose "Memoirs" the speaker commended in strong words of appreciation, all consorted in the friendliest of fashion on his bookcase. The school-teachers, also, engaged in a profession regarded as extremely arduous by teh orator, instead of giving so much time to the 'building up of a paragraph,' a present custom which the speaker disclaimed all knowledge of, he recommended the study for memorization by their pupils of excerpts from the noble works of Milton and Burke and from the Bible.

In his admonition of how to read, Dr. Taylor recommended regularity and system, not a haphazard choice of any book on the shelf, but a studied method of procedure and approach.

"I think we suffer from the magazines in vogue today. I do not mean in the way that the good people of the W.C.T.U. would say we suffer. There have always been foul things in literature, right back to the times of the Greek and Latin classics, and doubtless there always will be, but I think that children are somewhat like puppies, and that it doesn't do a bit of good to forbid them reading such and such a book. I have never forbidden my children to read anything in my library, but I am bound to say I have lost a book."

Speaking of his own tastes, Dr. Taylor said that he had a fondness for Hazlett's Essays and for Freud's History of England, which he liked just as much as Miss Strickland's Lives of the Queen's of England, both biased in different fashions, and both all the more interesting, he declared, for the bias which clothed the bare, dull facts of history with the religious leanings of the writers. Big books in biographies were the favorite of the speaker; the immortal Johnson and Lockhart's life of Scott. But half a volume instead of the four volumes devoted to the subject, would have been enough for the Life of Dr. Pusey, he declared.

"Buy your own books as you go on. The public library is a good thing, but you should buy your books, whenever possible." An amusing section of the address was devoted to bedside reading, for the light sleeper who required a book to lull him to sleep again, not too interesting and not short. "It must be the sort of book that wanders along like so many sermons that you hear, without any point whatever." The speaker likes for this purpose Gibbon, and Pepy's Diary, written by a man "without morals, but with lots of fun," and Casanova's Memoirs and the works of Montaigne.

From books, one may acquire a well-trained and a well-informed mind, tolerant and humorous. "The pilgrimage of life which we would like to be one of joy and success has often its stony and sorrowful places, and for them, we welcome the book that can give us a refuge and sense of relief."

A vote of hearty appreciation of the address was voiced by Mr. A. Mowat and seconded by Miss Edith Murphy. Mr. Mowat referred jocularly to the assertion by the speaker that he never worried about money matters, which, taken in conjunction with his Scotch birth, was out of the ordinary, and recorded his enjoyment of various phases of the address, particularly to the admonition to read aloud as much as possible, and the speaker's definition of style as being centred primarily in the character of the man who wrote.

Miss Lancaster, presenting the vote of thanks to the speaker, informed him of her relationship to that Thomas Boston whose work he eulogized so much, her grandmother having been a relative of the author and a Miss Boston before her marriage.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By Clive Lecheristerton

AT TEE KING'S PALACE

There stood a fat old bald-headed giant.

When the seven league boots walked into the Market Town in Beanstalk Land, with nobody to be seen inside them, there was such a rushing and scrambling as never had happened before.

Fruit sellers, peddlers, butchers, and green grocers took one look and fled, upsetting stalls and knocking over stands and yelling at each other as though they had lost their senses.

And indeed they had, nearly, for not one of them knew that the Twins were inside of the boots. They thought the boots were bewitched.

Nancy stuck her head out of the crack in her boot. "Nick!" she called. "We've got the whole place to ourselves. Market Town's empty. All the giants have gone and shut themselves up in their houses. What had we better do now?"

"Keep on going," advised Nick. "We'll go to the King's Palace up on the hill."

"But he is a cranky, mean old king!" said Nancy. "And so is the queen. They are the only giants in Beanstalk Land who aren't kind and jolly. I'm sorry we scared all the market people so."

"I have an idea!" cried Nick suddenly. "Let's go and make the king and queen behave themselves."

"All right," nodded Nancy merrily. "Come along! That's a very good idea."

So away went the Twins again, boots and all, right through the Market Town and past the mill (as big as four churches and three courthouses put together) and over a bridge (as big as a rainbow) and through a valley and past a forest, where even the bears and deer fled as the queer boots approached with nobody to be seen inside.

By and by they came to the hill where the palace was.

And they climbed it and came to a gate.

"Now what?" called Nancy to Nick. 'Shall we just wish ourselves over, boots and all?"

"No! Jump as hard as you can and make your old boot kick the gate. I'll jump, too! If we kick loud enough somebody will come and open it," said wise Nick.

So they kicked. Bang, bang, bang, bengity bang! went the seven league boots.

"Hold on there! No so fast," came an enormous voice on the other side of the gate. "Who are you that you dare to kick on the gate of His Grand Majesty the King of Beanstalk Land."

At that a big key was turned and the gate swung open.

There stood a fat, old, bald-headed giant in knee breeches and a velvet coat, with a bunch of keys in his hand.

But all he saw was a pair of big boots standing there alone, which proceeded to walk past him without so much as by-your-leave, right into the court-yard of the palace and up the palace steps.

The big fat gatekeeper giant did what everybody else had done. He gave one yell and ran, as fast as his fat legs would carry him, down the road and away to dear knows where.

"Hee, hee, hee!" giggled the Twins. "A brave gatekeeper the king has!"

C.N. RAILWAY TO DO READJUSTING

The Purchasing Department Will Not Be Moved to Toronto From Montreal.

MONTREAL, March 5 (Canadian Press). — In connection with the rumours that the Purchasing Department of the Canadian National Railways is to be moved from Montreal to Toronto, the following official statement was issued last night by Mr. D. E. Galloway, assistant to the president, in conjunction with Mr. R. C. Vaughan, vice-president in charge of purchases.

"There is no foundation for the rumour that the Purchasing Department of the C. N. R. is to be moved from Montreal to Toronto. Certain readjustments are being made to effect economy in the administration of the department, and these readjustments call for the locating of a purchasing agent for the entire central region in Toronto, instead of having the central region divided, and in charge of two purchasing agents as formerly.

"Montreal will not lose one dollar by the transfer. The headquarters of the Purchasing Department will continue to be located in Montreal and the main purchases made from the main offices as heretofore.

"Certain reductions in the staff are inevitable, but these will be carried out in as equitable a manner as possible."

RELATED WORK AMONG INDIANS

LAKEFIELD, March 5.—The Lord Bishop of Keewatin addressed a meeting of women in St. John's Church on the work among the Indians in his missionary diocese in Northern Ontario.

After a brief service conducted by the rector of the church, Rev. Walter Cox, the Bishop addressed the ladies.

This is the last meeting which the Bishop will address in the diocese of Toronto, and he explained that the reason of his trip to Southern Ontario was to tell of the Christian missionary work among the Indians and Eskimos. He payed a tribute to the Women's Auxiliary, that magnificent organization in the Church of England who have made possible the honor and privilege of starting the work among the Indians and Eskimos.

In the Northland this work is practically confined to the Church of England and Roman Catholics, the work among the Eskimo being entirely so. So far the W. A. have not taken up the work among the Eskimo carried on by the M.S.C.C., but they have done a greatly appreciated work for the Indian missions in aiding and encouraging the missionaries. The Indian work is roughly divided into educational and missionary work, but these two branches are really not separated but have always gone hand in hand. The Government treaties with the Indians provides for educational facilities which can best be obtained by co-operation with evangelism. In nearly all cases schools are carried on by the church and at least partially supported by the Government. The principal of the school not only teaches, but holds services for the Indians. In some cases the school is separate from the mission.

There are two classes of Indian schools, residential and day chools. The former are for the Indian children whose parents live a nomadic existence which prevents their being able to profit by the day schools. These are built and partially furnished and supported by the Government, the church providing the remainder of their support. There are 17 of these under the direction of the church and the assistance of the W.A. is invaluable in carrying on this branch of the church's work.

In the residential schools, which are situated in the reserves, the W. A. bales are thankfully received, as in the North the thermometer falls very low at times and warm clothing is sorely needed. Woollen mitts, stockings, toques, scarfs, etc., are always needed. In the residential schools the Government pays a per capita sum for each child of $140 per head, but this is not sufficient for everything, so the W.A. provides the bedding and clothing for all the girls from 6 to 18 and the boys up to 12 years, and also the salaries of the women workers. They also help the mission churches, providing furnishings, communion services and linen, baptismal fonts and many other needs. When the Bishop tours his diocese the comforts provided by the W.A. makes his journey easier, for in the Far North the journey has to be made in strenuous fashion, often walking miles through the muskeg or in paddling down rivers, running rapids, etc. The ordinary missionary faces many hardships which do not fall to the lot of the Bishop. Bishop Dewderry modestly forebore to mention that he had served his apprenticeship and borne the hardships of the missionary before he was elected to his presence position. He spoke of the missionary who was journeying between Nelson and York Factory, a distance of 12 miles as the crow flies, but by water 25 miles. During the partially frozen condition of the river he was compelled to make the journey on foot by a roundabout route, a distance of 35 miles.

The Bishop dispelled the idea that the Indians do not help themselves in their churches, relating several incidents telling of the earnest zeal of the Indians and the work of the Indian women organized for W. A. work. They have provided many things for their churches and have contributed towards the church's missions to others less fortunate than themselves.

He also told several incidents showing the sincerity and Christian devotion of the Indians toward the church which compensates the missionary for the hard work and the hardships endured.

After the meeting the ladies were invited to be guests of the W.A. at the rectory, where afternoon tea was served.

In the evening the Bishop gave an illustrated address to a large mixed audience which was much appreciated, showing a map making his recent tour of his diocese and following with pictures taken from snapshots. They were intensely interesting and were enlightening as to the work done in this great Northland of ours. It is many years since one of our missionary bishops visited the parish, and it was not only a great treat, but also a privilege to have the opportunity of hearing such an address. Aside from the missionary standpoint, one learns a great deal about the resources and development of our great country.

The Bishop was the guest of Rev. and Mrs. Cox while in the village.

SCHOOL ASSOCIATION ANNUAL MEETING.

Officers Elected For the Year—Secretary's Report.

The annual meeting of the Queen Alexandra Home and School Association was held on Monday evening, the president, Mrs. S. F. Touchburn, in the chair. There was a splendid attendance and great interest was shown in the election of officers, with the following result:

Hon. president, Mrs. A. Mowat.
President, Mrs. H. G. Walker.
1st vice-president, Mrs. Richard Parnall.
2nd vice-president, Mrs. Armstrong.
Secretary, Mrs. Karl Simpson.
Treasurer, Mrs H. Tremain.
Convenors of Committees: Refreshments, Mrs. Geo. Lee; Entertainment, Mrs. C. H. Cheverill; Visiting, Mrs. S. Kingdon.

Secretary's Report.

Mrs. Simpson, secretary, presented the report for the year just finished. Many new members were added to the roll. The association have had a busy year. By their efforts a new piano and window blinds were put in the Kindergarten by the Board of Education. The Book of Knowledge was presented to the school. Mrs. S. T. Medd read an able report on the annual meeting of the Ontario Federation of Home and School Associations in Toronto. Talks have been given by Dr. Holloway, Mr. F. H. Dobbin, Dr. McNair, Dr. McPherson, Mr. M. H. Park, Miss C. Davidson, and Miss V. Watt. The school picnic was again a wonderful success. Relief work has been ably carried on by Mrs. Stanley Kingdon, aided by members of the association. Several entertainments have brought the parents more in touch with the association, and have been much enjoyed by all. The Red Cross classes in home nursing under the association auspices, are proving both popular and profitable. The Association has had an active, enjoyable, and a profitable year unler the able leadership of the president, Mrs S. F. M. Touchburn.

Sundry Reports.

The treasurer, Mrs. Karl Simpson, presented the report, showing a balance on hand of $41.88. Mrs. S. Kingdon, convenor of relief work, presented a splendid report of help given, clothing, food, and visiting. Mrs. F. Holmes reported for the Refreshment Committee.

The president, Mrs. S. F. M. Touchburn thanked all for their hearty co-operation and support, and urged even greater activities for the coming year by advancing child welfare, uniforming the Cadets, supporting the home nursing classes, giving prizes for proficiency, encouraging art and public speaking, and making the annual picnic even a greater success.

The meeting voted that a donation of $10.00 be made to the Well Babies' Clinic. The banner was won by Junior IV., Mr. Dearborn's room.

At th cose of the meeting refreshments were served by the retiring executive

IRISH FREE STATE SUBJECT OF SPEECH

Constitution Compared With That of Canada.

TORONTO, March 5.— (Canadian Press.)—Irish Free State, with special reference to its constitution as compared with that of Canada, was the subject of a lecture delivered by Prof. W. P. M. Kennedy last evening in Convocation Hall.

The fact that the Irish Free State was given power to draft its own constitution, stated Prof. Kennedy, was really recognized of Sovereignty. "The Free State has received the status of Canada. Does Canada receive the status of Free State?" he asked.

British Commonwealth, declared the speaker, was final witness to the fact that all life was inter-dependent, and to be members of that Commonwealth was far better than to be a petty, independent republic.

Proportional representation of basis of single transferable vote was used in election of House of Deputies of Lower Chamber. President and his colleagues were elected by direct vote of the deputies, and had not power to dissolve the Chamber, when they ceased to enjoy its confidence.

It may be that the Free State is to rescue Cabinet government from unfavorable criticism to which it has been subjected in late years," he said.

THE CHEERFUL WORKERS HAD A SOCIAL EVENING

The home of Mr. and Mrs. George Wagar, King George street, was the scene recently of a social evening held under the auspices of the Cheerful Workers' Bible Class of St. James' Methodist Sunday school. There were a goodly number present, and the following musical programme was rendered: Pianoforte duet by the Misses Greta Welbourne and Amy Fairbrother; instrumental solo, by Miss Dorothy Swanger; readings by Mrs. T. Byers, Mrs. Geo. Rowe, Mrs. Welbourne and Miss Vera Davis; vocal solos by Mrs. W. MacLaren, and the Misses McGovern and Johnston. Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the programme. It is the intention to continue these social evenings on the last Tuesday of each month.

HEALTH FOR WORKING WOMEN

Let Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Help You to Become Well.

Thousands of girls have to work in homes, offices, stores, mills or factories who are physically unfit for work, with often an aged or invalid father or mother dependent upon them for support. Standing all day week in and week out, or sitting in cramped positions a girl often contracts some deranged condition of her organic system which calls a halt to her progress and demands restoration to health before she can be of use to herself or any one else.

For these distressing weaknesses and derangements these girls have found health to do their work in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Toronto, Ont.—"My work is to run a power-machine which is very heavy, and I had a pain in my left side and a weakness caused by getting my feet wet. It was only a few days later when I saw your advertisement in the paper and began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and used the Sanative Wash. The pain left my side and the weakness disappeared after I took the first bottle of Vegetable Compound, but I took five in all and used two of the Wash. I didn't have a physician and I didn't take any other medicine. If this letter will help you you may use it."—Mrs. KATY KELLY, 21 Sullivan St., Toronto, Ont. G

Nova Scotia Woman Helped

Scotsburn, N. S.—"I have been bothered for over three years with a weak side caused by female illness. At times it has bothered me so that my side ached so I could feel it way to my toes. I took two bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and found it helped me considerably, and I intend taking more as I know the results will be good. I saw the medicine advertised in the newspapers, and before I had finished the first bottle of it, noticed a difference in my health. I hope every woman who has female troubles will try it."—Mrs. JOHN R. MCLEOD, R.R.1, Scotsburn, N. S.

Pains In Side

Portreeve, Sask.—"My sides would get so sore and pain so that I would be unable to move around. I felt just as if there was a weight bearing the abdomen down. I learned about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound from a neighbor who took it, and that soreness has left me. I live on a farm and have housework to do. If this letter will help any woman who suffers from female troubles you can use it. I know of no better medicine than the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. W. C. MATTICE, Portreeve, Sask.

SACRED HEART SCHOOL CHILDREN HAD CONCERT

The basement of the Sacred Heart church was crowded to capacity last evening for a concert given by the children of the Sacred Heart school. The young performers gave an enjoyable programme of solos, duets, choruses, drills and recitations in a manner reflecting great credit on themselves and on the painstaking tuition of their teachers, who trained them for the occasion. The boys' orchestra of the school, led by Harold Armstrong, also gave several well-played selections, and the juniors were assisted by two youths from St. Peter's parish, J. Roach and E. Hickey, who gave vocal solos, and by the Misses Minnie Allen, Geraldine Weatherhead and E. Bartley, all of whom gave much-appreciated songs. Miss Madeline Curtin, a pupil of the school, gave a pretty dance. A special feature was the playlet entitled "The Expected Visitor," in which the following girls took part: Helen Donoghue, Ethel Armstrong, Louise Letellier, Eva Letellier and Josephine O'Keefe. Rev. P. Butler acted as chairman for the concert, which was given in aid of St. Anthony's Sewing Circle.

MALE VOICE CHOIR.

The regular weekly rehearsal was held last evening in J. M. Greene's music studio, with a splendid attendance, March 28th being the date fixed for the annual concert. The members are in earnest to make it a glorious success, so far as their efforts are concerned. It was unanimously decided to put in two practices a week now, and the public can rest assured the event will far surpass anything this organization has staged in previous years. An excellent and varied programme has been selected by the capable musical committee under the direction of Mr. W. H. Moore.

During the brief intermission last night a report was taken on tickets sold and the results were beyond all expectations. Subscribers' lists are in the hands of all members, and the public will be well advised to procure their tickets as early as possible and avoid disappointment, such as prevailed at previous concerts.

Three outstanding artists have been engaged for this year's concert, which will be held in the Grand Opera House, on Friday, March 28th.

For further particulars and announcements watch the Examiner columns.

A EUCHRE PARTY.

The Church Women's Association of St. John's Church held a military euchre party in the Parish Hall last evening, with a very good attendance. Thirty-eight tables were filled for euchre, and several tables of bridge were played also. The table securing the largest number of flags had for players Mr. and Mrs. Stanley McCabe and Mr. and Mrs. H. Spargo. The bridge prize was won by Mr. Roy Thompson, the consolation award going to Miss M. Corrin. The hall was decorated with pennants and the color scheme of the tables was in red and white. Mrs. A. W. Turner was convenor of general arrangements. Mrs. A. E. Couthard is president of the C.W.A.

INCITED BOY TO STEAL AND HE TOOK THE GOODS

A local man was this morning sentenced to not less than six months, and not more than two years imprisonment on a charge of receiving stolen goods, knowing them to be stolen.

This man, who is alleged to be an old offender, is alleged to have incited a young boy to steal the goods and hand them to him. The boy had been employed at this for several months, and on appearing in Juvenile court he was released on suspended sentence.

POLICE INVESTIGATING.

NEW YORK, March 5 (Canadian Press). — The confession of Ralph Thurber, implicating himself and others in the Wall Street explosion of September, 1920, to-day was the object of an intensive inquiry by the police and the District Attorney's Office, which pointed out, however, that a number of similar inquiries in the past had been fruitless.

A message from London yesterday making a public confession quoted Thurber as having said all, the details of the plot and the names of the conspirators were known to the Rev. Herbert Wilson, formerly of London, Ont., now serving a life sentence in San Quentin Prison for murder.

KINGSTON, March 5—Conditions at the Military College are 'rotten,' says Major Arnold. He gives MacDonnell until Saturday to probe the charges and threatens publicity.

Mrs. Gertrude White

IF YOU ARE NOT WELL HERE IS YOUR KEY TO HEALTH!

Hattonford, Alta. — "Being run-down after the 'flu' I was in a weakened condition, had dizzy spells and shortness of breath, followed by faintness. The middle age period made things seem as though I'd never feel well again, but I was determined not to give up. Hearing of Dr. Pierce's famous Golden Medical Discovery I sent for a bottle, followed the directions, and soon felt less tired and faint, and finally I got back to my normal state. I have thanked God many times for the restoration of my health so I could remain with my family, and I gladly recommend this Discovery of Dr. Pierce's for it is so pure, and worth a trial to any one who is run-down."—Mrs. Gertrude White, Crystal Springs Farm.

Golden Medical Discovery is put up in Dr. Pierce's Labratory in Bridgeburg, Ont., and sold by all druggists in both tablets and liquid. Send Dr. Pierce 10c for trial package of tablets.

CHURCH UNION

64 per cent. of them were in favor. Of the presbyteries, 3 were ties, 13 against Union, and 52 in favor of it.

Dr. Pidgeon said that in Canada at the present time were 1,245 churches chartered and united, and with denominational rivalry eliminated. As the average of preaching points in a charge was usually taken at about two and one-half to three, this meant that approximately 3,100 preaching stations in Canada were united and the old rivalry eliminated. These were all united on the polity of the basis of union, "save only that for the present and until the consummation of the larger union, this congregation shall be in full connectional relationship with the Presbyterian (or Methodist, as the case might be) Church in Canada." It was along these lines that these 1,245 churches were chartered in union. In Saskatchewan, for instance, there were 447 Presbyterian and Methodist Churches. Of this number, 41 were straight denominational; 21 undiluted Presbyterians and 20 undiluted Methodists, and the remaining 406 were union. "You can't have that co-operation which everyone recommends so highly without union."

In the British House of Commons, said Dr. Pidgeon, any motion can be discussed indefinitely until action is taken, but after action has been taken there can be no reconsideration. Looking at the question of union in this light, it would be mockery to re-open the question, when the case of these 1,245 united churches was considered, chartered and established and awaiting the final consummation of the union they expected.

"It is possible to overthrow the present leadership of the Presbyterian Church, but if this is done, those leaders go down standing for the good faith of the church they represent."

"There is no rising tide against Union to-day" declared Dr. Pidgeon, quoting figures to show that opposition was not increasing, as had been stated. In the missionary fields also, out of a total of 335 missionaries, less than 5 per cent. were against Union. The only dissenting vote was from South China, where five women and one man voted against three men who were in favor of it."

Taking up different assertions made by anti-Unionists, Dr. Pidgeon branded as untrue various arguments advanced by them.

"It is not true that the United Church of Canada will be a creedless church," he said, pointing out the twenty articles of the new union, which, he said, contained the great centralized evangelical truths. "So many of the churches of to-day are organized around secondary issues, like the self-government doctrine, which has nothing to do with primary truth and the great principles enunciated in the vicarious life and death of Jesus Christ." When, in 1909, the Pdesbyterian and Methodist Churches decided to co-operate on the mission field, on the frontier, it was then definitely conceded by the former church that the latter was preaching an adequate doctrine, and if such a union was satisfactory on the frontier, why was it not satisfactory in a larger sphere?

"It is not true that our ministers will be unpledged to the doctrines of the church. What about this pledging business in our church to-day? Do you think it is satisfactory? You ordain ministers and elders. You stand them up in the church and ask them questions, and how do you know that these answers are not made with mental reservations? The greatest believer in the Presbyterian faith as Jonathan Edwards maintained it and the student of modern criticism can interpret these questions each in his own way."

Regarding the charge that ordained eldership would be dropped, this was also declared untrue. the speaker referring to the words used in the new articles saying that a body of men should be specially chosen and "set apart" to oversee the spiritual interests of the charge and constitute a session as being the identical words used in the articles of the church in 1641, when the words "set apart" were the outstanding words in the old church liturgy for the same purpose.

"It is not true that the right to call will be taken away," said Dr. Pidgeon, saying that the congregation would still retain the right to call their pastor, but in event of the calling system failing to function satisfactorily, the Settlement Committee would have power to choose and appoint a pastor. "Those who talk about the glories of our calling system should know that in actual fact it has proved a wretched and inhuman failure," declared the speaker, instancing the case of a brilliant minister unable to procure a charge for over three years.

"It is not true that mission funds have been used to further the cause of Union," he asserted, saying that the Church Union Committee for some years was a recognized committee of the Assembly, and as such, had a certain appropriation set apart for it in the estimates of each year's expenditures. "I don't understand why men and women should deliberately circulate a lie like that."

"It is not true that that bill is unjust." Full and fair recognition of the rights of dissenting minorities had been provided for in the provision for the establishment of a committee composed of nine members, three in favor of Union, three non-Unionists and thre others, non-partisan, to be chosen by the first six. The financial rights of the minority would be decided by this committee."

"We are not meeting the needs of the church to-day. There are districts, hundreds of miles in extent, all over Canada, where there are no Protestant ministers to the needs of the people. There are 5,000 miles of the Peace River District where we have no representative, and throughout much of the West the conditions are the same. And yet 70 points in Canada we are maintaining costly churches in hurtful rivalry with other denominations. Little disputes blind the vision. How can these wretched divisions among us work out the will of God, who wishes that the world shall be converted, and know that He sent His Divine Son to help in its salvation?"

Council Blames Board Education

BROCKVILLE, March 5.—A tax rate of 37 mills has been adopted by the Town Council. In fixing the rate the Council placed the responsibility for the increase upon the shoulders of the Board of Education, whose appropriation this year means an increase of one mill, a total increase of 102½ per cent. for educational purposes in ten years.

Town Solicitor Hutcheson was instructed to look into the statutes regarding school affairs, as the Council contemplates memorializing the Legislature to bring a change as regards the controlling of school expenditure.

EASTERN STAR DANCE

Notwithstanding the downpour of rain and the slippery streets, Eastern Star L.O.B.A. No. 525 held a very successful dance in Victoria hall last night, with Follis' Five-Piece Orchestra in attendance. Supper was served at eleven thirty after which a Lucky Spot waltz was given, all the dancers gliding to the strains of a melodious Twilight Waltz. The prize, a box of chocolates, was given to Mrs. E. Staples, she being the one nearest the lucky spot on the floor. Another special feature of the evening was a ribbon dance, which was a very pretty sight, with ribbons of all colors of the rainbow wound in and out amongst the different couples.

The hostesses were Mrs. Sexsmitr, Mrs. Guthrie, Mrs. Staples, Miss R. Sexsmith and Miss W. Andrews with Mrs. Mrs. . Bertrand and Mr. Harold Freeman as chairmen of committees.

ROTARY "LADIES' NIGHT"

Thanks to the original ideas of Chairman, Rotarian Fred C. Hungerford and his Special Committee, the Rotarian "Ladies' Night" function at the Peterboro Club last evening was one of the most enjoyable and novel social events of the season.

The fun started early, for as each guest arrived he or she was commanded to don a masquerade, a long sheet and a straw hat, and in a few minutes the assemblage took on the appearance of a gathering of the Ku Klux Klan. It was impossible to guess the identity of a large proportion of the guests, and as the unmasking did not take place until after dinner, the atmosphere of mystery that surrounded the affair added greatly to the effect.

The dinner which opened the programme was a delightfully informal affair, and the merry laughter that resounded from the daintily decorated tables was eloquent testimony to the general enjoyment.

Community singing was a featur of this portion of the programme, and special events were burlesqued. Presentations to Rotarians G. A. Gillespie and W. R. Morris occasioned considerable merriment.

During the serving of the dainty repast Taylor's orchestra rendered an enjoyable programme of popular music.

The post-prandial programme, with President V. J. McElderry as chairman, was a melange of musical numbers and laughter provoking 'stunts,' in which nearly everybody was called upon to take a part. A quartette composed of Rotarians John Crane, Doug. Carlisle, D. A. Browne and Mr Maurice Park, sang several numbers in most enjoyable style. Rotarian Carlisle and Mr. Park contributed a duet that was much appreciated. Rotarian Jack Primeau gave a comic recitation that made a hit, and Mr. W. L. Carter, of Nashua, N.H., told several New England stories in inimitable style. The Peterboro "Simfunny" Orchestra was a feature, and the Pavlowe "Ballet,' a sensation. Rotarian Chris. Graham electrified the gathering with his revolver shooting exhibition—every shot being on the target or off.

The comedy contests that were interspersed between the musical numbers, included a balloon race, a contest with toy automobiles, a donkey tail competition, and finally a novel aeroplane event. There were no dull moments in this snappy programme, and there was no doubt of its success.

The final event of the night was a most enjoyable dance, for which Taylor's orchestra furnished splendid music.

The whole affair was a most complete success and will be marked down as one of the red letter events in the local history of Rotary.

The attendance was large, over one hundred guests taking part in the festivities.

The committee in charge deserve general commendation for the smooth working out of their plans.

THEY WON'T SEE YOU STUCK FOR A FINE IN LABRADOR

Even Dr. Grenfell Suggests Paddy Murphy's Line of Defense When Prohibition Was Introduced CONTRAST is nature's one great law; all the others are but part and parcel of it.

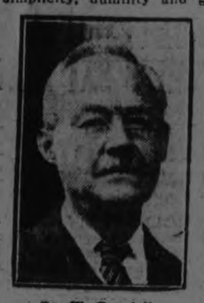
Possibly the thought may have occurred to Dr. W. T. Grenfell when he was writing "Northern Neighbors," for it is a series of studies of warm hearts in a chilly place. The priceless possession of the isolated fishermen and trappers of Labrador, he truly tells us, is simplicity, humility and gentleness.



Dr. W. Grenfell

"The great, grey rocky tableland of the interior of Labrador has been seen by very few white men, and as one looks at it from an elevation it is certainly terror rather than any other emotion which strikes a southerner's heart. It looks appallingly forbidding. Such trees and vegetation as there are are hidden away under the shelter of mountain sides."

Justice is delightfully elementary. When prohibition was introduced, a policeman arrived in the district; presumably one had not been required before. He got to work, and applied to Dr. Grenfell for a warrant against one Paddy Murphy for moonshining. The minimum penalty for the offense was a hundred dollars fine or three months' imprisonment. Paddy had not so much as a hundred cents. His worldly goods consisted of a tiny shack, a wife, and eight children.

Dr. Grenfell, who was the presiding magistrate, had a great regard for Paddy, and before the trial began suggested to the prisoner his best line of defense.

Unfortunately, Paddy proved too talkative and was duly sentenced. He was given a day or two in which to find the money, and returned with forty-nine dollars, fifty-three cents, and odd coins of ancient vintages, "all the neighbors had." The magistrate told the culprit that he wanted as much more in half an hour, and somehow or other the maker of a "drop o' the creature" brought it.

"A day or two later the mystery of the treasure was unearthed. A young married fisherman, an unimpeachable prohibitionist, and a prominent leader of the church, with the tender sympathy of the people 'who go down to the sea in ships,' having just the necessary balance stowed away in a stocking, had been unable to endure the idea of hungry and cold children. So he had literally emptied the stocking into the red handkerchief."

CONTRADICTED QUEEN

THAT veteran journalist and prince of raconteurs, Sir Henry Lucy, delights in telling the story of a certain old admiral who had an extraordinary habit of contradicting anyone with whom he conversed. In fact, he once flatly contradicted the Queen.

He attended a royal reception and was presented to Her Majesty, who had heard something of his propensity.

"I hear, admiral, you contradict everyone who speaks to you," said the Queen.

"Your Majesty is misinformed," replied the admiral gruffly. "I do nothing of the sort."

MACKINTOSH BOOKS FOR THIS POET'S BATH

"DID you know that d'Annunzio, the Italian poet, has books printed on mackintosh for his bath? I saw it in the Courier, the other day, at the club. He reads the Little Flowers of St. Francis by preference in his bath. And he has a fountain pen with waterproof ink in the soap-dish, so that he can add a few stanzas of his own whenever he feels like it."—Aldous Huxley, in Antic Hay.

Emotional Actress Lost When She Became Author

Witness Early Episode in Life of L. M. Montgomery

WHEN L. M. Montgomery, author of "Anne of Green Gables," lived as a child at Prince Albert, Saskatchewan, she had not then decided whether to be a great writer or a great actress. The actress career had a little the best of it owing to the copy of a thrilling melodrama having fallen into her hands.

One day a citizen heard the most blood curdling screams coming from little Miss Montgomery's father's woodshed. Now the Canadian woodshed had long enjoyed a prominent place in the correction of children's misdemeanors, so that such sounds from such a place were not unusual. But so awful were the shrieks of terror the man was sure no childish crime required such punishment. Hurrying, bent on interfering, you can imagine his surprise at seeing a little girl of twelve alone in the shed.

L. M. Montgomery

The villain had dragged the ragged heroine to the precipice and was about to cast her over so that he could inherit the Montmorenci millions. So intent and wrapped up in the part was the maiden that she never noticed the intruder. He retired, amused instead of horrified, but ever since has felt that even if literature gained a successful author, the stage lost a wonderful emotional actress.

INSURED AGAINST MARRIAGE

MOST things connected with Pola Negri are out of the ordinary, and her insurance policy is no exception to this rule. Famed as a beauty, a temperamental actress and a vamp of the first order, this lovely star is insured against the tiniest facial blemish that would prevent her from appearing before the camera.

Originally her insurance was taken out in Germany for one million marks, but as the value of this policy at the present rate of exchange is nil, her beauty is now adequately protected by an American insurance company.

When "The Negri" first reached America it was stated that her management took out a policy against her marriage, arguing that it would spoil her value as a vamp-star. Pola said this was not the case, but insurance men showed considerable alarm over her romantic engagement to Charles Chaplin, now, apparently, at an end.

THOUGHT HE WAS MAD

ALTHOUGH he plays tennis and golf, Mr. Baldwin's favorite recreation is walking.

A short while before he became premier he was indulging in this form of exercise when he was met on the road by a laborer.

"Where be ye goin' in such a hurry?" asked the laborer.

"To Malvern and back," replied Baldwin.

"Oh! Doin' it for a wager, I suppose!" said the laborer.

"No! For pleasure!"

For a few seconds the man gazed in blank amazement at the future premier. Then, suddenly, his face was lit up by an understanding—and pitying—smile.

"Dotty!" he exclaimed in a sort of stage whisper. "Clean dotty!" And he passed on his way.

Father and Mother of the British House of Commons

LADY ASTOR and the veteran journalist, T. P. O'Connor, share the honors between them. The former American was the first of the eight women members, and Mr. O'Connor has been in the House of Commons longer than any other M.P., and has, perhaps, wider knowledge of party history than any other living man.

Mussolini Gets Even With Mother-in-Law

Revokes a Privilege Which Permitted Mothers of Senators to Travel Free on Italian Railways

THE Italian dictator who has done so much to restore law and discipline in his country, altered a law the other day, which hitherto permitted the parents of senators to travel free on the Italian state railways.

Mussolini

Until now senators, their family and the parents on both sides were allowed this advantage, but from now on the ladies will be an exception.

It is whispered that the cause of the change may be attributed to Mussolini's old hatred of his mother-in-law. When as a young man he was engaged to his present wife he had to put up with much resistance on the part of his mother-in-law, who at last chased him out of the house and forbade him to have anything to do with her daughter. She did not consider Mussolini good enough to be her son-in-law. But one day the young people who loved each other disappeared from home and got married. Mussolini cannot forget his mother-in-law's behavior, and because of it all Italian mothers-in-law have now to pay their railway tickets. At least so the story goes!

DISCRETION MIDDLE NAME OF F. BILLINGS KELLOGG

But Fervid Eloquence Once Lost New United States Ambassador to England a Divorce Case

THERE is a new United States ambassador in London—Frank Billings Kellogg. But he has a middle name.

This is the explanation by the London Times Washington correspondent of the middle name:

"Mr. Coolidge turned to the west, and selected Mr. Kellogg as best among those men available for the post. He has wealth, he has wide social experience, he is versed in affairs, and—last, but not least—he has the priceless gift of silence. It has been half-humorously said that the secretary of state, Mr. Hughes, 'never woke in the morning without a shrinking fear that George Harvey had made a speech'; but nothing like this (whether true or untrue) will ever be said about the new ambassador. 'Discretion,' as the American phrase has it, 'is his middle name.'"

The new ambassador to the court of St. James' was chosen, it is said, because President Coolidge desired to recognize the west.

Mr. Kellogg was born in Potsdam, New York state. He is 67 years old, and sixty of these years have been spent in the state of Minnesota. First it was Olmstead county, and later it was Rochester, a town made famous by the Mayo brothers, the great surgeons.

At Rochester the young Kellogg won recognition in politics and at the Bar. There he formed a partnership with a Democrat, Mr. Burt W. Eaton, and it is related of the partners that they used to hold the office of county attorney alternately, running amicably but ruthlessly against each other. There he met and married Miss Clara Cook, the daughter of a pioneer, whose relatives were scattered on farms for many miles around. And from Rochester he eventually moved to St. Paul, where he laid the solid foundations of the comfortable fortune and the legal reputation he now enjoys.

He became a law partner of the famous Cushman K. Davis, once governor of Minnesota and later United States senator. Davis was a great orator in a generation which bent the knee to the orator. The young Kellogg sat at the feet of this master, and if he cannot match him in oratory, he is at least as keen and persuasive a lawyer, about which a certain story comes from London.

Mr. Kellogg once lost a case, it seems, as the result of his own too fervid eloquence. That was before he got his middle name.

His client was being sued for divorce by her husband, and he was trying to get her as much alimony as possible.

Right in the middle of a flow of eloquence, he was interrupted by the husband, who said to the court:

"Your honor, I have suddenly decided to withdraw my suit, and, if my wife is willing, I would like to have her come back to me."

Pressed for an explanation, he said:

"Mr. Kellogg has presented her in such an attractive light that I've fallen in love with her all over again."

The firm was called Davis, Kellogg and Severance, and it rapidly developed a large and lucrative corporation practice. Mr. Kellogg was retained by the United States Steel Corporation—it is this which the "Progressives" cannot forgive him—when Roosevelt began that period of "trust-busting" which made his administration famous, and he sent for the St. Paul lawyer.

Acceptance of the post of special counsel of the government meant the loss of $100,000 a year, but Kellogg made the sacrifice, and it is, perhaps, as Roosevelt's official "trust-buster" that he is best known. He was alert, he was untiring, and he was eminently able. He conducted the prosecution of the Standard Oil Company, which resulted in the dissolution of that vast corporation, and, in the eyes of his fellow-lawyers, he acquired enduring merit. His practice outgrew the community in which he lived, and there began those innumerable trips to Washington which were to make him familiar with the capital before he went to live there as senator.

His six years in the Senate did not make him a national figure—he has not the flamboyant qualities which are necessary if a man is to move upon a stage as wide as the country—but they won him many friends, they widened his experience, and they left him entirely unspoiled. He was defeated in the election of 1922, largely because the American people were voting against, rather than for, something in that time of indecision and unrest. Then came the appointment to London.

Mr. Kellogg is a man of middle height, white-haired, spare and alert, with a sort of nervous alertness. He has lost the sight of one eye, but it does not interfere with his golf, and in Washington (often with his friend, the late President Harding, as a partner) he was a frequenter of the links. He likes riding, and he carries his belief that there can be no healthy mind without a healthy body far enough to use a skipping-rope, and to be able modestly and truthfully to state that he can place hands and feet on the floor and raise and lower his body 100 times in succession. He has traveled more than most. The continent has seen him five times, and he has crossed the Atlantic 19 times. He is familiar with London, Paris and Berlin.

Altogether, he will make an ambassador in whom his own countrymen will have entire confidence and in whom the people of Great Britain will recognize a friend. There is no more staunch American, yet equally there is no man more warmly sympathetic with the ideals and aspirations of the British nation, or more profoundly convinced of the weight and importance of the responsibility which rests upon both branches of the English-speaking people.

Disinherits Grown-Up Children Marries Old Woman to Get Heiress

Anatole France, Master of the Unexpected—Has Statue of Female Figure by Rodin Mounted on Revolving Pedestal—"Is Woman Not Continually Turning?" Asks Anatole

ANATOLE FRANCE is reported to be seriously ill. He is nearly eighty years of age and is at the end of his mortality, but, perhaps, just at the beginning of his literary immortality. In spite of all his rich experience of life, there is one experience he has missed, or, rather, has refused to submit to.

He has never been in a motor car.

His prose reads like that. There is never a jolt in it. It has the charm of a leisurely saunter on springy old turf in an old-world garden.

He has stamped, or, rather, delicately dusted his genius like fertilizing pollen on the modern world, but he likes old things, old manuscripts, old paths, old clothes and old cabs.

This writer, who is the very antithesis of a hack writer, to motor cars prefers "fiacres" or hacks. But he does not write in them, though he rides in them.

Anatole France

He has many eccentricities, beside an aversion to the productions of Henry Ford. He is accustomed to wear a huge black cloak like a Spanish conspirator. He has disinherited his grown-up children, whom he has not spoken to for years. That is why he married again a while ago, after long widowerhood. It was not to get a nurse but to get an heiress. He married not a young girl but an old woman he scarcely knew. She is to receive his property, which is considerable, for his literary income is over half a million yearly. But his children will receive his royalties.

Not long ago he met a young lady in a bookshop. He said to her: "Why do you read those wretched modern books?" The book in her hand was France's masterpiece, "The Red Lily." She held it up and replied indignantly: "This is not a wretched modern book. It is a modern classic. Have you ever read it?"

"No," said the author, without revealing his identity. But he spoke the truth. Once his books are written he never looks at them.

There is another interesting story about "The Red Lily." In 1905 Anatole France was at a literary dinner in Berlin in honor of Gerhard Hauptmann, the author of the "Sunken Bell." France congratulated him. Hauptmann replied: "It is not I who should have received the prize, but the author of 'The Red Lily.'"

France's novels are a great literature of antiquarianism. When fortune came to him he began to spend it on antiques: One of his later treasures was a female figure by Rodin. It was placed on a revolving pedestal. A visitor once expressed surprise at this novelty.

"It is natural that it should be so," observed Anatole. "She is a woman, and woman is continually turning."

His philosophy is a philosophy of change. He once said "The wisdom of all human affairs is in the nursery rhyme, 'The little dolls go round and round and round and round.'"

Perhaps that was why he walked in the May Day procession in Paris in 1919, as a declaration of belief in Russia. He may have felt that it was communism's turn on the world's merry-go-round. It was from a belief not in equality but in fraternity, for he has said "Never tell me that revolution is going to bring equality. Men will never be equal. The only thing certain is that men will always love women."

He might have added "good wine and good books." His own books are like beautiful shrines to that trinity of cults. He may be on his death-bed, but he should last as long as French literature lasts. From his first to his latest line his style has been perfection.

Wilde thought it too perfect. He had a theory, which he did not live up to, that an author should change his style and personality with each new book. After he read his second novel, he flung it away with a yawn, saying: "This is utterly unutterably perfect and boring. It is too like Anatole France."

Lots o' Languages

MRS. Newly Rich was showing off her son, home on sick leave from a public school, to a bosom friend.

"Alfie's learning lots o' languages," she said. "Latin and Greek and French and Algebra and what-not!

TIME PRINCESS PATS LOST THEIR GROUND

Pretty Wit of Lady Patricia Ramsay Tells of the Only Occasion in Regiment's History

THE thrilling tale of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry in the war, which one of its officers, Ralph Hodder Williams, formerly in the history department at Toronto University, has written in two volumes, is an epic of heroes. It fully deserves the honor of the preface, which Princess Patricia, or Lady Patricia Ramsay, as one must now call her, has written for it.

"Princess Pat"

The story of the fearful fight in Sanctuary Wood in the first days of June, 1916, is extraordinarily moving, and though the regiment was only raised for the war, it has now an abiding life in the Canadian militia force, and the color which came safely through so many actions is guarded there.

Incidentally Princess Pat shows herself possessed of a pretty wit. A few days after the wedding, for which the regiment, and of which the Princess was Colonel-in-Chief, naturally furnished the guard of honor, she wrote to Colonel Hamilton Gault a letter, saying: "My only regret is that the crowd pushed themselves in front after the ceremony and so prevented the King from inspecting them, as he had intended doing. It is, indeed, the only occasion in its history on which the regiment lost its ground." That is a proud boast to be able to make after four years of war with the kaiser.

ZANGWILL FIXES BORES

MR. ISRAEL ZANGWILL, the famous author, succeeded well in dealing with a bore on his trip to the United States. This is how he did it.

First he disclaimed all knowledge of the horse Zev, so the bore asked him if he thought President Coolidge was right on the drink question.

"Coolidge? Who's Coolidge?" asked Mr. Zangwill. "What! You'll be saying next you've never heard of Adam!" howled the bore. "Adam?" murmured Mr. Zangwill, sweetly. "Adam who?" That finished the bore!

King of Stogy Smokers is Dr. Lamb Wins Foggy Fight in Tenth Round

Little Man Who Guides McGill Athletics and Coaches Olympic Team Ready to Defend His Title Against All Comers—One Cigar for Every Hole in a Golf Game—and Makes Eighteen

DR. ARTHUR S. LAMB, director of the department of physical education of McGill University, Montreal, and himself an athlete of note in other days, who is acting as one of the coaches of the Canadian Olympic team, had the unusual experience of going through college as both undergraduate and instructor. When he was not attending a lecture or a clinic, he was either acting as an instructor in the department which he now administers or presiding at a meeting connected with the numerous student undertakings in which he took the leading part at the university. Such was, however, his capacity, that, notwithstanding this triple responsibility and the additional burden of being the head of a family, he completed a course in medicine of singular merit, and now ranks among the foremost physical educationists of the dominion.

But it was because of his partiality for that form of cigar known as the "stogy" that Dr. Lamb as a student earned his chief claim to fame. On the campus "Dad" Lamb and his stogy were as familiar as Principal Peterson and his justly-celebrated dog, and his consumption of the elongated, ill-flavored "weed" reached astounding proportions. Not a meeting might be held at which he presided without the appearance inevitably of a handful of stogies, to the alarm of those possessing super-sensitive nostrils and the disgust of others who prided themselves upon their standing as cigar connoisseurs. No matter how protracted the session might be, it ended with the chairman puffing his last stogy as contentedly as had been the case with the first one of the evening.

Since graduation and his appointment to the faculty, Dr. Lamb has remained steadfast in his allegiance to the stogy, to him as satisfying and as fragrant as the purest Havana. Just as he was formerly a champion swimmer and a champion basketball player, so is he now the uncrowned king of Montreal stogydom. The University Club marvels at his hardihood and the powers of his endurance; his tobacconist at his taste.

Not long since he became acquainted with a man who had the temerity to question the doctor's pre-eminence in the gentle art of stogy-smoking. Both were ardent golfers as well, and Dr. Lamb forthwith challenged his new-found friend to a game of golf with an incidental further test of their relative prowess as stogy-smokers. For each hole that was to be played, one stogy was to be smoked thoroughly by both contestants.

With a confidence born of long experience, the other immediately accepted the challenge, and the details of the unique contest were arranged. The two appeared at the links armed not only with the impedimenta of golf but with their pockets as well bulging with the instruments of stogy warfare. Eighteen holes were played. As many were the stogies mastered by Dr. Lamb.

Acknowledging the superiority of his adversary, his companion was forced to abandon the unequal fight at the tenth hole.

And so the little man who guides McGill athletics continues to reign supreme among the Senneville stogy-smokers.

Sermons Like Rabbits

THE new vicar of a country parish had just preached his first sermon. As he made his way to the vicarage an old farmer stopped him.

"That be a foine sermon yop've just give us, passon," he said. "I hope they'll all be as good. But there, sermons are like rabbits. When ye goes to buy 'em, ye might get a thick 'un and a thin 'un, or ye might get two thin 'uns. But ye never get two thick 'uns together!"

USHERS SENT TO ENQUIRE WHY MASTER DID NOT PLAY

Whole Audience Sat Tense, Waiting to Hear De Pachmann's Chords

VLADIMIR DE PACHMANN, the eccentric old master pianist, about whom more amusing stories are told than about any other musical artist, at the age of 75, is coming back for still another tour of Canadian cities in April.

De Pachmann

The inimitable De Pachmann was booked recently for a concert in one of the large halls. The house was crowded with an enthusiastic audience which waited impatiently for the great artist's appearance.

Presently he came, bowing his way to the piano in the intervals of one of his reminiscent, comical orations which shook the house. Then the applause subsided, and every one waited expectantly for the opening bars which, for some strange reason, did not come.

After an unreasonable pause an usher was sent to ask why the old master did not play. "I cannot play," said De Pachmann. "Why not?" he was asked. "The keys are dirty," he replied, seemingly paralyzed.

THE DUETTISTS

THE famous pianist, Ignace Paderewski, recently told a story reminiscent of the days when he was prime minister of Poland.

At that time there was much poverty in the land, and many people were driven to beg their bread from door to door.

Two of these unfortunates met at a wayside tavern at the end of a long and unsuccessful day's begging. Both were tired and hungry; both gazed with longing eyes at their empty plates and unfilled glasses.

"Didn't you have any luck?" inquired one. "What about the house I saw you looking at—the big one with the open window?"

"Didn't trouble to ask," was the reply. "I looked in the window and saw two girls playing on one piano, so I guessed that the people living there were too poor to be able to afford to help me."

PATRICK CAMPBELLISMS

MRS. PATRICK CAMPBELL compares a fine, heated discussion with a game of tennis. She also declares: "A child speaks the truth from want of guile. Men and women speak it in despair."

And here are two more extracts:

"I insist that I have found the manners of American men more kindly; of Frenchmen more courteous; of Englishmen more sincere; and of Irishmen—God defend us!"

"I once asked a kind veterinary surgeon why dogs were so much nicer than people. His answer was: 'Nearly all bad dogs are drowned; all mad dogs are shot.

Casey on Way to Boston Glad It Isn't Montreal

SARASOTA, Fla., March 5. — George Kelly has just grabbed a letter from Casey Stengel. Casey shovelled the winter away in Kansas City, and is getting all set to play the Braves outfield this summer. He writes:

Dear George,—Well, old Casey is on his way to Boston, but I'm glad I didn't get sold to a town where they still ride bicycles. Guess that is the needles for you, ain't it? I knock off two home runs in the series and get pushed up to Boston, I guess if it had been three home runs, I would be in Montreal.

"It looks as if Casey will be plenty tired in the evenings after playing that Boston outfield, because the old boy is slowing up and it won't be many seasons before old Casey will be playing centrefield in a bowling alley and relaying those big gutta-percha grapefruit.

"It ain't right to build an outfield that big, because three men have to cover more front than the A.E.F. did on the Marne. That outfield was built when property was cheap and the other two infielders will be so far away from me that I will think I am playing on a team of Singer's midgets.

"Well, I am glad that I still own that string of Stengel taxicabs in Kansas City, because when you have taxicabs working for you that's when you don't have the Indians trapping wolves right in your vestibule. I will be training with the Braves down in St. Petersburg, which is only thirty miles from Sarasota, so I will jog over and see you every day, because thirty miles is only a spring to a guy who has to play the Boston outfield.

"I still have a lot of perfect baseball in me, and plenty of pepper. And old Casey would bat five hundred, if it wasn't for all those diving and leaping outfielders featuring themselves on old Casey's line drives. There is one thing I can do, and that is to put the lumber on that leather.

"Yes, sir, George, when old Casey is packed up and gone they will look up his record and find that he was a big lumber and leather merchant from Kansas City. They may pick the feathers off the old eagle, but they can't rob him of his eye.

"If I ever get close enough to the other Boston outfielders I will tell them you were asking about them. But it looks like old Casey will be playing right hermit in Brakes Park all season far from human faces and voices. Well, anybody who played in Brooklyn as long as I have is glad to miss the voices. And as for the faces, well, I have played Brooklyn, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, New York, and Boston. I have never played on the Cards, Cubs, and Reds, but I will probably make those teams if my fountain pen holds out.

"Well, good-bye, George, I am sorry and glad to leave the Giants. I sure hope Shinners gets better and has a good year. I'm sorry to leave the Giants because we got along fine But I am glad because we won two world series and got watches, rings, bofs, necktie pins, and the only thing left to give us if we won again was ear-rings. And Casey would look fine walking around with ear-rings bobbing out of those big sails of his.

"Hope your uncle and family are well and happy. By the way, I bought some great neckties in South Bend.

"Your,

"C. D. Stengel."

Barnyard Golfers All Excited Over the National Championships Due in Florida

LEFT TO RIGHT: UPPER, MRS. JOHN FRANCISCO, WOMAN CHAMPION, GEORGE MAY, WORLD CHAMPION; FRANK SPENCER. LOWER, HAROLD FALOR, "BOY WONDER"; C. C. DAVIS.

BY BILLY EVANS

Every sport has its classic, the big thrill of the season.

In baseball, it's the world's series staged each year between the pennant winners of the American and National League.

The golfing punch is crowded into the national open and amateur championships. The game's greatest players take part.

Football usually has more than one classic, since it is impossible by schedule to determine the gridiron championship of the colleges.

In tennis, the annual battle for the Davis Cup and the premier honor which goes with the winning is the high spot in that strenuous sport.

The Kentucky Derby is the last word in the turf world. The winning of that event is the cherished ambition of every breeder of thoroughbreds.

Now for Horseshoes.

Vieing for a place in these sport classics is the good old game of horseshoes, sometimes referred to as barnyard golf.

While sport statisticians are unable to give any accurate dope, a conservative estimate on the part of the "figger-hounds" is that at least one million people are interested in the art of tossing the horseshoes.

Great excitement now prevails among players and devotees of barnyard golf, for next week the national championship is to be staged at Lake Worth, Fla.

During the week of ——— 18-23, the leading horseshoe pitchers of the country will clash at Lake Worth, one of the beauty spots on the east coast. There the contestants will bask in the sunshine of the great climate Florida boasts. For the spectator will be the shade of the sheltering palm, as the song writers put it.

Classy Entry List.

The committee in charge is the authority for the statement that the entry list is the classiest of any national horseshoe event ever staged. The national champion, George May of Akron, O., nearly all the ex-national champions, as well as a majority of the state title holders are entered. The prize list is a most attractive.

Recently it has been customary to stage the national championship twice during the year. In February some southern city, usually in Florida, has staged the event, while a northern city puts it over during the summer. Cleveland was the host last summer.

George May, resent holder of the title, will defend his honors. May is one of the best horseshoe pitchers in the country, rarely finishing outside the money.

Perhaps the most interesting figure in the barnyard golf sport is Harold Falor, sixteen-year-old boy wonder. He broke into the limelight when he captured the world title, now held by May, at the winter meet staged in St. Petersburg, Fla., last February.

Among the women enthusiasts, Mrs. John Francisco is to horseshoes what Glenna Collett or Alexa Sitrling is to the feminine golfers.

It sure will be a big week in Florida for the horseshoe tossers.

IN MILLBROOK AND DISTRICT

Funeral of Noble Stewart Was Largely Attended—Personals.

MILLBROOK, March 4.—The late Mr. Noble Stewart, whose funeral took place from the family residence, King street, on Thursday, February 27th, was born in Hope township eightythree years ago. His parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Richard Stewart, came to this country from Ireland, and were among the pioneer settlers in Hope. Deceased was the second eldest in a family of seven children, five sons and two daughters. Two boys, John, of Minto, Man., and James, of Monaghan, predeceased their brother and the surviving members are Mrs. Joseph Little, Mr. William Stewart, of Minto, Man., and Mr. Edward Stewart, of Millbrook.

The late Mr. Stewart resided on a farm in Otonabee, not far from Hale's Bridge, for thiry-four years and then moved with his family to Millbrook where he has lived for the past fourteen years. On the 30th of June, 1873, he was united in marriage to Eliza Ann Evans, eldest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Evans who at that time were living in Cavan township, the Rev. Calvin Shaw performing the ceremony. To this union a family of ten children were born, two of whom died in infancy. Two sons made the supreme sacrifice in the late war, Hiram, who went overseas with the 3rd Battalion of the Queen's Own Rifles, of Toronto, and Sylvanus ("Vannie") of Louisville, Kentucky, who trained at Camp Green, going to France with the American army where he laid down his life on the field of honor.

During his residence in Otonabee, deceased who was a lifelong member of the Methodist church, was one of the faithful supporters of the Bethel charge, and after his removal to Millbrook as long as health permitted was regularly in his place at public worship. Closely allied with the Orange Order, the late Mr. Stewart was one of the most loyal members of L.O.L. No. 79, and also of the Royal Black Preceptory, No. 945, both organizations being well represented at his funeral. In politics he gave allegiance to the Conservative party.

The late Mrs. Stewart predeceased her husband about three years ago, and besides the sisters and brothers already mentioned the immediate surviving relatives are, two sons, William Henry of Louisville, Kentucky, James of North Monaghan and also four daughters, Mrs. W. H. Skuce, of Redlands, Cal., Mrs. G. Hubbard, of Wichita, Kansas, Mrs. George Lacheur, of Peterboro, and Mrs. Irwin Hatherly, of Millbrook. There are fourteen grandchildren.

Deceased had suffered for months with a form of heart trouble which gradually grew more acute and finally resulted in his death. The funeral serivces were conducted by Rev. J. Wilks, in the absence of his pastor, Rev. S. T. Tucker, Rev R. M Paterson leading in prayer. Rev Mr. Wilks spoke from the text, "God calls us," his message being most impressive and helpful. Brothers J. H. Paul, M. Todd and Rev. R. M. Paterson had charge of the Orange ritual at the house and graveside, and the pall-bearers, Messrs. J. L. Byam, W. Gray, E. McCorry, I. M. Nattrass, A. Lunn, and T. H. Aiken, were all members of the local lodge.

Some beautiful floral tributes were placed upon the casket, and interment took place in the family burial plot at Gardiner's cemetery.

Social Event.

A very pleasant social event took place at the home of Mr. Wilbert Walsh, Fallis Line, on Friday, February 28th, when a number of friends gathered in honor of the birthday of his aunt, Mrs. Mary Hurd. The occasion was an entire surprise for the guest of honor, and the time passed rapidly in agreeable social intercourse. Mrs. Hurd, who is enjoying excellent health, proving herself the life of the party and recalling many interesting reminiscences of former days.

The guests, who look forward to this annual event, were delightfully entertained with a dainty, but substantial, "bithday tea" certain baskets, coincident with their arrival, having been mysteriously smuggled through the side door. Miss Lulu Hurd was most thoughtful in seeing that the wants of the guests were supplied. Warm congratulations, and sincere wishes for "many happy returns of the day," were expressed before the happy evening was brought to a close.

Those present included: Mrs. Arthur Fallis and Eric, Mrs. Harry Ball and Ruth, Mrs. J. H. George, Mrs. Herb. Ball and Mary, Mrs. Colonel Sutton, of Cobourg, Mrs. Austin Sutton, and Mrs. W. Fred Fallis.

Personal Mention.

Born—In Dr. H. A. Turner's private hospital, Millbrook, on Thursday, February 27th, to Mr. and Mrs. Wilfrid Elson, a son, George Cameron.

Mr. William Mullen has been seriously ill for the past week, but is convalescing slowly. He was able to be up the latter part of the week.

Mr. W. S. Pickup, of Weyburn, Sask., a former Millbrook citizen, suffered a paralytic stroke last January, but word has been received by Mr. J. A. Vance that considerable improvement in his condition has recently taken place. Mr. Pickup still retains his membership in the I.O.O.F. No. 308 Millbrook.

Mr. Abe Widdess, west of the village, suffered a stroke on Saturday morning, the right side being affected. Mr. Widdess is about seventy-five years of age and one year ago last June he and his wife celebrated the fiftieth anniversay of their wedding day. There is a slight improvement in his condition on Sunday. Dr. H. A. Turner is in attendance.

119 COMPETED IN SWEDEN'S SKI RUN

Covered Course of Sixty Miles in Event Commemorating Episode of Four Centuries Ago.

STOCKHOLM, March 5.—Sweden's most spectacular sporting event of the winter, the historic Vasa Ski Run, has just been held with 119 competitors and 80,000 spectators. The course is sixtty miles long, through difficult terrain, but the winner, J. Lindgren, of Umeaa, covered the entir, distance in less than thirteen hours. This annual event commemorates the dramatic episode of th, ski run made over the same course, from the heart of Dalecurlia to the Norwegion frontier, more than four hundred years ago, by Gustavus Vasa, founder of modern Sweden, and her greatest monarch.

WILD WELCOME TO WORLD CHAMPIONS

Toronto Streets Thronged and Public Welcome in City Hall to Olympic Team.

TORONTO, March 5—(Canadian Press).—No victorious home coming team was ever accorded a more heartfelt welcome than were the members of the Canadian Olympic Hockey team upon their return to Toronto last night, after having won world honour for Canada in the tourname at Chamonix, France. The elements did not co-operate in the welcome but a drizzling rain failed to prevent large crowds from lining the streets along which the parade travelled from Union Station to the City Hall where they were officially welcomed by Province and Municipal representatives.

Civic officials and Ontario Hockey Association officials were on the station platform when the train arrived. After passing through a cheering mass of people the players were hustled into a decorated sight seeing car and preceded by a lengthy parade to the City Hall.

Most picturesque was the vanguard of the vehicle containing the champions. Clearing the way was a squad of mounted policemen, followed next the gaily decked Pipe Band of the Toronto Police Athletic Association who immediatly preceeded the decorated automobiles.

As the parade passed the dense throngs lining the streets followed to the Ctiy Hall where short speeches were made.

In welcoming the Olympics, "in the name of the City Council, the citizens of Toronto, and members of the sporting world" Mayor Hiltz said he had watched with unusual interest the progress of the team in the Olympic tournament and while they had not been surprised ot the Canadian victories, they had been amazed at their decisiveness.

Wm. Hewitt replied on behalf of the players.

Hon Charles McCrea, spoke as representative of the Ontario Legislature and was also profuse in complimenting the players on their Olympic achievements. Fred Lyonde, on behalf of the sportsmen's patriotic association, presented the team with gold cuff buttons bearing the inscription, "Olympic Hockey Champions 1924."

CANADIAN SOO LEAD IN COSTLY VICTORY

Played Combination of Galt and Preston and Won 6 to 5 -- Stan Brown Injured.

GALT, Ont., March 5.—(Canadian Press.)—It was a costly exhibition game that the Canadian Soo won here last night in ten minutes' overtime, 6-5, the Allen Cup challengers losing the services of Stan Brown for at least a week as the result of an accidental injury received early in the second period. He was circling behind the nets when he ran into the boards and in falling cut an artery in his ankle inflicting a nasty gash which required three stitches to close. He will be unable to play in the first of the Allan Cup games scheduled for the 19th.

Coach George MacNamara reported on his arrival here that his other defence man, "Babe" Donnelly, was also a casualty having had the ligaments of his side torn in an exhibition game at London. He was not in uniform last night and will not be able to play this week, but it is expected he will be in the line-up against the O.H.A. intermediate champions next week.

The Soo were opposed here by a combination of Galt and Preston players, who gave the Northerners a real argument and made them extend themselves to win in overtime.

On the night's play Lessard and Brown were the best, although Phillips at times showed class.

STRATFORD IS OUT FOR CHAMPIONSHIP

Outskated and Outguessed the Hamilton Tigers to Win 2 to 1 — Kept the Fans Wild-Eyed.

LONDON, Ont., March 5 (Canadian Press). — Stratford's speedy hockey team flashed into the Canadian championship calcium glare here last night when they outskated and outguessed the Hamilton Tigers, and won by 2 to 1.

There was no fluke about the victory. The Classic City players had the advantage after the first ten minutes, and they showed powerful defensive strength in the last period, while Griffin was serving a ten-minute penalty for bumping Mitchell so hard that the Hamilton left wing was unable to continue.

The second game of the O.H.A. Senior finals will be played in Hamilton on Friday night, and the winners have a royal chance to retain or lengthen the lead.

Three thousand five hundred wild-eyed fans crowded their way into the local ice palace, and they kept up a terrific din when it was seen that the Tigers had nothing with which to surprise the red and white, and while those lucky enough to gain admittance were cheering themselves hoarse, 2,000 more stood outside in the rain vainly endeavouring to purchase tickets.

So great was the crush that no one was allowed to leave the arena during intermissions.

Stratford were favourites with the fans, and the victory is one of the most popular ones ever gained in Western Ontario.

The Classic City speed merchants, Kelterbourne, Berger, Ashley, and Carson were right in their glory.

They tried desperately to make fast get-aways in order to offset the Hamilton six-man defence, and in many cases they wriggled and squirmed their way right up to the front door of Charlie Stewart's net, and that same star, hero of many hard-fought games, saved the day for the Tigers.

He kicked and battled out most of the shots, and at other times dived headlong at incoming attackers.

During the first intermission a collection was taken up for John Brackenborough Fund, and $770.00 was realised.

The collectors carried blankets around the arena, and fans threw coins and bills into them. Quite a time was spent retrieving some of the money which was scattered over the ice.

"Goldie" Prodger, Hamilton professional player, and native of Forest Cty, helped to gather up the money.

A telegram from Sault Ste. Marie players, offering to take part in the Brackenborough game at Toronto, was read, and was greeted with applause by the fans, many of whom had soured on the Soo because of their poor showing against Aura Lee in an exhibition game here last night.

From Stratford and Hamilton came special trains carrying hundreds of fans, and all the surrounding cities and towns were well represented.

Hamilton, barring the first ten minutes, did not appear to be the invincible team which conquered the University of Toronto and easily captured the honours in Group 1.

They missed little Brackenborough and they admit it.

The demonstration that followed beggars description. Half of the spectators appeared bereft of their senses. Hats, coats, furs, and gloves were tossed into the air, and the cheering lasted almost two minutes.

Kelterbourne had made himself solid with Western Ontario fans.

It does sound a bit odd, thought, to accuse Uncle Andrew of wanting to let the rich ones off from a tax they haven't been paying.—Dallas News.

SOUTHWORTH LANDS BERTH

BILL SOUTHWORTH

The center field problem which has caused Manager McGraw of the New York Giants much worry for several years has finally been solved by the addition of Billy Southworth of the Boston Braves.

"Southworth will be the regular centerfielder of the Giants," says McGraw. "He has no opposition for the job and will not alternate with any other player simply because he is a left-handed batsman."

That seems to settle it. Last season Jimmy O'Connell, Casey Stengel and Bill Cunningham operated in center field for the Giants.

Southworth has a bad knee that may trouble him if put to too severe a test. Such a happening would cause McGraw to change his plans, but he is fairly well fortified.

BATTLE ENDED IN THIRD.

NEW YORK, March 4.—(Canadian Press.)—Paul Berlenbach, sensational knockout king, dropped Jimmy Darcy, of Portland, Oregon, in the third round of a 12-round battle last night and ran his string of knockouts to 23. It had been erroneously reported that he had 25 to his credit. After Darcy had been floored three times in the third round the referee stopped the bout.

COMEDY STOPS CONTEST

Umpires Are Immune to Rain, But Call Off Game When Player Dons Raincoat.

BY BILLY EVANS

To my way of thinking, the late Germany Schaefer created one of the funniest situations I have ever seen on the ball field. The humor centered around his personal appearance, rather than his play.

It was back in 1906, Detroit was playing in Cleveland. The date was July 3. There was a crowd of about 5000 in the stands. The weather was threatening, and not desiring to pick up any rain checks on the Fourth of July, the managers of the two clubs suggested that I make every effort to finish the game.

Larry Lajoie was managing Cleveland, while Bill Armour was in charge of Detroit. Both agreed they would make their players hustle in and out and would tolerate no delays.

Everything went fine for three and one-half innings. In the last of the fourth inning, the Cleveland club made five runs. That started trouble.

The Detroit club, four runs to the bad, with the promise of having rain end the game any minute, forgot all about their good resolutions to in no way delay the game.

Immediately every possible manner of stalling was indulged in. Nothing was overlooked. Jack Sheridan, who was umpiring the bases with me, peeved at the tactics of the Detroit club, suggested that I keep on playing regardless of how much rain fell.

The Cleveland club finally managed to retire the Tigers in the first of the fifth. That made it a ball game. It was raining hard. Both clubs were willing to quit and call it a day. However, Sheridan and I were soaking wet, also a bit sore, and we decided to keep on playing.

Three more innings were played in a downpour. When the Detroit club took the field for the last of the eighth, there was Schaefer at second, glove in hand, umbrella in another and wearing a rain-coat buttoned high around his throat, borrowed from a fan. I called the game.

The old-fashioned father who used to think lawn tennis was silly now has a son who is perfectly wonderful at roque.

Battling Siki was arrested in Key West for "acting strange" the other day .....Possibly he was sober.

Peter Armstrong.—the brilliant inventor, of whom Janet Mercer has spoken as a 'real gentleman'. He is clever, ambitious and reliable. Virginia Dale is deeply interested in Peter, whom she realizes will amount to something some day.

Virginia openly seeks Peter's admiration and ignores Prudence. Prudence realizes her mistake in thinking Armstrong an ordinary poacher but refuses to soften her hostility toward him. Traymore returns immaculately clad in a fresh outfit.

Traymore accepts an invitation to tea at Prudence's home and doesn't keep the engagement. Later standing in the shadow of the hedge Prudence hears her Prince Charming making love to Virginia Dale.

CHAPTER X

Pain and Disillusionment

"Girls like you will always be made love to Jinny!"

A pang of agony shot through the gentle heart of Prudence. Bertram . . . speak words such as that . . . and to another woman!

Worse than the phase itself had been the tone in which it had been uttered! Low and entrancing sweet with the strange beguilement that never once had failed to cast a spell upon herself the murmured cadence of his voice brought to torture to the little eavesdropper who loved him so!

Prudence rigid with misery crouched in the shadow of the hedge until the purring of the car died into silence and she was alone again with the night and the moon and the maddening fragrance of green growing things and flowers that seemed to mock her solitude and pain.

"Bert! Bert!" With a smothered sob she buried her face against the coolness of the grass as though on the breast of Mother Nature she would seek oblivion. "How . . . how could you Bert?"

She loved him so. And loving meant possession didn't it? Hadn't he often told her so? "You're mine aren't you Prudence darling?" he had whispered over and over again as though he simply had to own here. "There isn't anybody in all your world—but me?"

How generously she had reassured him How freely she had given of her love thinking—besotted little fool that she had been!—that love such as hers begot love in yet deeper measure and that the more devotion she heaped upon him the more he would return to her in treble measure.

Why he had told her so a thousand times!

She had believed him trusted him. How furious she had been at Janet Mercer's warning:

"Go easy Prudence child and don't believe your name!A man's passionis the most evanescent thing on earth. Let him but think he has you safe and sound and the glory of the chase is ended! Traymore of all men is the hunter type. If you would keep him—and heaven knows why you want to!—keep him guessing. Have reserves. Hold back a bit."

The country maid however was too far gone in love to heed the warning. What did Janet Mercer really know of 'la grande passion'? Hadn't Bertram pointed out that woman such as Janet—who wore plain and down-right and hard-working—never really stirred the hearts of men?

"She has no sex-attraction darling. She's a bit sour on men and who could blame her? Unloved women always get that way."

"But—she does know the world Bert dearest! She's clever—"

"Bunkum! Who wants a woman to be clever? Beauty and magnetism are the drawing cards. The Mercer woman has neither and she's sore that you're so pretty and attractive and that I'm wild about you and can't leave you alone—"—here the argument would end in kisses and Prudence would fly the flag of truth.

Now her friend's candid words came back to her with the piercing light of truth upon them.

"Your sentiments are very beautiful Prudence my child and—though I may appreciate them—mere man does not! Camouflage your feelings! Hide your heart! Love this Traymore all you want to if you must—but don't let him believe he's won your entire affection for such a knowledge will be absolutely fatal! You will only lose him dear."

Prudence had stared at her with indignant eyes.

"How can you say such awful things? Bert has assured me over and over that love begets love . . . and he says that what makes a man 'cool off' quicker than anything else is uncertainty! He's begged me to give him all my heart—and as for me I wouldn't cause him a single moment's pain or jealousy—no not for all the gold in Egypt!"

Janet had groaned in spirit. Too well she knew that the Bert Traymores of this world little appreciate such devotion.

"He's 'kidding' himself as well as you then" she had cried despairingly Call me a cynic call me a sour old maid but mark my words and profit by them while there's time. Man the Conqueror is a vastly different being from Man the Conquered! Hold back Prudence. Check that overflowing heart of yours—"

But Prudence had swept off like an outraged little goddess leaving Janet to her dismal meditations.

Now—too—late—the cold white rays of truth were turned on what she's said.

Bert Traymore cloyed with the sweetness of her love for him had turned for stimulation to the uncertain and coquettish 'Jinny' who 'played' men oh! so cleverly! He had turned from real love to the false from simple country beauty, unadorned and natural to Jinny's artificial charms and battery of practiced tricks. Dear heaven! it couldn't be . . .

Prudence's pain and disillusionment were far too great for tears. She loved him . . . loved this fickle fascinating man with every fibre of her being . . . and she couldn't shake the shackles off.

A vision of his face rose up before her debonair and handsome. A mocking light was in his eyes those eyes she loved . . eyes that could gleam in arrogance then melt in heavenly tenderness towards her.

This wretched evening had been nothing but a nightmare, at last she told herself Bert still loved her, he would come to her. Perhaps even now he had slipped away from the clutches of the vampire-woman, and was speeding towards the cottage?

Prudence rose from the grassy bank and commenced running down the road towards her home terrified to think her lover might be gone. . .

A light burned in the sitting-room. Hope rose in her bosom. Youth is optimistic and mercurial in its swift recovery from pain.

Doubtless Bert was there . . . with her parents . . . explaining why he'd been detained . . . and longing for a glimpse of her his sweetheart. Virginia Dale was nothing in his life. He'd often told her so. He had 'played up' to 'Jinny' to-night perhaps to placate her for his long neglect to 'put her off the scent' as once had hinted was essential.

But alas! Prudence's hopes were dashed. Her father and mother were alone and she slipped up to her own room and thence to bed to ease her aching heart in tears that came at last in fullest measure.

Nineteen may be optimistic—but it suffers so!

When You Catch Cold Rub on Musterole

Musterole is easy to apply and it gets in its good work right away. Often it prevents a cold from turning into "flu" or pneumonia. Just apply Musterole with the fingers. It does all the good work of grandmother's mustard plaster without the blister.

Musterole is a clean white ointment made of oil of mustard and other home simples. It is recommended by many doctors and nurses. Try Musterole for sore throat, cold on the chest, rheumatism, lumbago, pleurisy, stiff neck, bronchitis, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pains and aches of the back and joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet—colds of all sorts. Seldom fails to deliver results. 40c and 75c, at all druggists.

Four Goal Lead

SUDBURY, March 5. — The Wolves earned a four goal lead over Iroquois Falls here last night, winning the first of me and home games for the Intermediate championship, by a score of 7 to 3. Soft ice made team play almost impossible, and rough work cropped up towards the finish, Sudbury finishing the game with two men and the goal keeper on the ice against the visitors full team.

Iroquois Falls made their only stand in the second . riod when they outscored the home team by 2 to 0 After that they faded, the Wolves running in four counters in the first ten minutes of the final period.

Powers, visiting goalie, was struck in the eye in the final period, and forced to retire,while Dorschner, also of the visitors, was taken to the hospital following a collision with Bill Duncan.

The return game wil be played in Iroquois Falls on Friday night.

The hat was passed during the game and $135 raised for the Brackenborough fund.

UMPIRE LACKED CONTROL

COBALT, March 5. — Despite the fact that North Bay entered last night's N.O.H.A. Junior final with Cobalt, with an 18 goal lead, Cobalt stepped into the visitors in earnest, and put up a stiff hard checking battle and while the visitors won they took away only a 4-1 victory,

Cobalt evidently made a big mistake in the first game in not checking hard. Last night they profitted and the new champions got a rough ride, particularly in the final period, when a couple of scraps enlivened the proceedings. North Bay jumped into the lead in the first period by two to 1 and added two more in the second. The final period was scoreless but scrappy. Umpire Frood did not have good control.

WING PLAYER IMPROVING

LONDON, March 5. — Herbert Mitchell, the star left wing player of the Hambilton Tigers Senior O.H.A. team, who was brought to the Victoria Hospital last night in an unconscious condition following an accident in Stratford-Hamilton game here, was reported this morning by the hospital physicians to have spent a comfortable night.

His condition is thought to be satisfactory. The pysicians state that he is not suffering from concussion as was at first thought. He will be well enough to leave the hospital in a short time.

Famous Old Recipe for Cough Syrup

Easily and cheaply made at home, but it beats them all for quick results.

Thousands of housewives have found that they can save two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, by using this well-known old recipe for making cough syrup at home. It is simple and cheap but it has no equal for prompt results. It takes right hold of a cough and gives immediate relief, usually stopping an ordinary cough in 24 hours or less.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist, pour it into a 16-oz. bottle and add plain granulated sugar syrup to make 16 ounces. If you prefer, use clarified molasses, honey or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it tastes good, keeps perfectly, and lasts a family a long time.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it acts, penetrating through every air passage of the throat and lungs—loosens and raises the phlegm, soothes and heals the membranes, and gradually but surely the annoying throat tickle and dreaded cough disappear entirely. Nothing better for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, hoarseness or bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, known the world over for its healing effect on the membranes.

Avoid disappointment by asking your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

Billy Evans, Veteran Umpire, Is Retained.

CHICAGO, March 5.—President Johnson of the American League, last night announced the retention of the entire 1923 staff of umpires for the 1924 season.

The list is headed by the veteran Tony Nolan, starting his twenty-fifth year, and Billy Evans, who has served 18 years in the League.

Others on the staff are William Dinneen, George Hildebrand, Clarence Owens, R. F. Nallin, H. E. Holmes, E. T. Ormsby, George Moriarity and Clarence Rowland.

AT THE GRAND

"RICHARD THE LION-HEARTED."

Lovers of the novels of Sir Walter Scott will like the feature picture at the Grand Opera House, which has its last presentation this evening. "Richard the Lion-Hearted" is the screen version of the famous author's stirring tale, "The Talisman," and pictures the story of the adventures of Coeur de Lion in Palestine. Intermixed with the recital of the thrilling warfare between the valiant Crusaders and the pagan hordes of the Sultan Saladin is the romantic love story of Richard himself and his queen, played by Marguerite la Motte, and the tragic episodes which follow the queen's unfortunate jest with the handsome Sir Kenneth, the Scot whose part is played by John Bowers.

Disguised as a Nubian slave, Prince David of Scotland comes on the scene, and the Lady Edith Plantagenet, cousin of the king, is another of the actors in an absorbing drama staged against the desert near Jaffa, in the Holy Land. At En Gaddi, on the Dead Sea, is the Hermit, playing his part in the story of the lovers. A picture of fighting and loving, with gripping action in its martial episodes, set in the mystic and hallowed atmosphere of the Holy Land, with the Knights of the Grail battling against heathen invaders, it has a sympathetic appeal for any audience.

ROMANCE AND THRILLS MINGLE IN DRAMATIC PICTURE OF 'HELL'S HOLE'

Dynamic Charles Jones Stars in Story of Western Action And Love

The announcement from the Regent Theatre that the special (William Fox offering, "Hell's Hole, starring Charles Jones, will be played beginning Thursday for a three day run is of unusual interest.

"Hell's Hole" takes its name from the dynamic climax to which the story speeds, with Jones "stepping on the action," with characteristic daring and abandon. The big highlight preceding the climax is the onslaught of an avalanche, especially staged for this picture in the California hills. This avalanche, vigorous in its conception and thrilling in its execution, buries the cabin in which Charles Jones, as Tod Musgrave, holds his treacherous friend and the girl he loves captive.

The picture commences with one of those characteristic Jones exhibitions—a free-for-all fight, feverish, primitive.

Playing the feminine lead is Ruth Clifford. Maurice B. Flynn is a convincing heavy. Others in the cast include Kathleen Key, Hardy Kirkland and Eugene Pallette, who plays a Mexican pseudo-heavy to the real villain of Flynn.

Director Emmett. Flynn has handled the details of the story effectively. The story is an original from George Scarborough's pen, adapted by Bernard McConville.

AT THE CAPITOL

"SCARAMOUCHE"

A love for acting that would not be downed is the spur that brought to the screen Ramon Novarro, who plays the leading male role in Rex Ingram's special production for Metro, "Scaramouche", taken from the Rafael Sabatini novel of the days of the French Revolution, showing today and Thursday at the Capitol Theatre.

He was born of Spanish parents who had settled in Durango, Mexico. At an early age he gave evidence of unusual talent for matters artistic, and himself built a miniature theatre in which he produced plays with the enforced aid of his sisters.

He attended the Marist School in Durango, and then went to Mascarones College in Mexico City, where he specialized in the arts. Soon afterward he became known as a musician, but his scope of activity was not extensive enough to fit his ambition. He decided the United States was the place in which to win fame, and despite objections from his family, none of whom had ever before chosen the stage as a career, he traveled north.

His ability as a dancer then proved of worth for he was engaged for a country-wide tour with the Marion Morgan Dancers in an extravaganza, "Attila and the Huns."

Discovered by Ingram.

Coming back to Los Angeles, he appeared in a pantomine act at the Hollywood Theatre called "The Royal Fandango." It was the sort of a role that demanded portrayal by an actor of young and dashing mein, and Ramon fitted the part exactly. In the mind of a young man in the audience Novarro also suited another role which called for the same type of insouciance. The spectator was Rex Ingram, and he saw in Ramon the perfect actor for the part of Rupert of Hentzau in "The Prisoner of Zenda."

His success in that picture put him in the public eye, and his progress to the present time is well-known. He was cast for the leading male role in "Trifling Women", where he carried on the dashing type of acting that marked his initial appearance.

In "Where the Pavement Ends," Ingram's next picture for Metro, Novarro had an entirely different kind of hero to play. Here he was a romantic youth of the South Seas, a native chieftain who loved the beautiful daughter of the missionary.

Returns to Spirited Role.

Now in "Scaramouche" the actor who not long ago was a dreaming youth in Mexico returns to the suave, reckless kind of role as Andre Louis Moreau, the young noble who espoused the cause of the oppressed people in the day of King Louis the Sixteenth. All but one of his pictures have been under Ingram's direction.

Mr. Novarro has a wide variety of likes in his life. His hobbies run all the way from music to swimming. He takes to both singing and the piano in the former, his early training and appearance as a concert artist making such a hobby quite natural. But he is just as enthusiastic a sportsman as he is a musician. Fencing is his favorite game, although all outdoor sports win his support. He has had to do so much fencing in the pictures in which he has played, that he has become an expert, and declares it is all the fine things anyone ever said about it. The swimming is standard sport. Novarro is ready on slight notice, or no notice at all, to take a run down to the beach or jump in some Hollywood back yard swimming pool.

"Scaramouche" was adapted to the screen by Willis Goldbeck, while the photography was by John F. Seitz.

"MAN OF ACTION,"

A Fast Furious Comedy at the Royal on Thursday.

Twenty four hours can change the entire course of a life as is evidenced in "A Man of Action," Thomas H. Ince's new mystery comedy, which will be shown at the Royal Theatre on Thursday.

In twenty four hours a young millionaire:

Is mistaken for a master crook;

Is black-jacked into joining a gang of diamond robbers:

Finds himself locked up in his own home with these robbers;

Is "cut" by his financee, who fails to recognize him;

And proves that he is a man of action" and not a soft good-for-nothing silk stocking as he has been accused.

The astounding events which work such a transformation in a man's character and jolt him into valiant deeds form the basis for one of the most entertaining productions ever screened with a surprise ending that has a tremendous "kick."

Douglas MacLean has a made-to-order part in the role of Bruce MacAllister, the poor little rich boy to whom life has been "just one darn servant after another" until his financee taunts him into becoming "a man of action." An excursion into the underworld which he visits to see life "as is" results in amazing adventures. Before the story is ended he is no longer hampered by traditions of "baths at eighty" and "grapefruit on Wednesdays."

Marguerite de la Motte plays the role of the beautiful financee, whose disdain jolts the millionaire into life, while Raymond Hatton as "Hoppy," a harmless member of the crook gang is obsessed with the desire to invent a noiseless explosive has put over one of the funniest characterizations of his comedy career.

THE KODAK GIRL IN MOVIES.

Edith Johnson, who appears opposite William Duncan in the Universal chapter play, "The Steel Trail,"which is now playing at the Royal Theatre every Thursday, Friday and Saturday, was the first Eastman Kodak girl.

While attending school in Rochester, New York, Miss Johnston often posed for advertisements published by the Eastman Company, and became known as "The Eastman Kodak Girl."

Wooden Shoes

"THE peasants in America do not wear wooden shoes at all, even in the fields!" writes Abbe Pierre, of Gascony. "No, the peasants there wear shoes of leather, although I should think that sabots would be much more serviceable, not only on the roads, but plowing. . . . And wooden shoes are far less expensive. Ah, that America is an extravagant country!"

Advertisements haven't yet taken the heavy wooden shoes from Gascon feet—nor yet the heavy wooden shoes from Gascon minds. Gascony thinks in the past. America in the future.

Advertisements make the difference. They crisscross improvements in countless directions across the miles. They distribute Fords, furnaces and electric lights so widely that foreigners think you extravagant to enjoy them. They put you in touch with the latest conveniences. They help so many people enjoy those conveniences that their cost to you is small.

You read advertisements to link yourself with the best — to substitute speed for the shambling progress you otherwise would have to make in the lonely wooden shoes of isolation.

ALL SAINTS' ASH WEDNESDAY SERVICE.

There will be a special service tonight at All Saints' Church, to be held in the room under the chancel. This service will be conducted by the rector, Rev. Douglas Paterson, and will be followed by the adjourned vestry meeting. Full attendance requested.

HELD AND AT HOME.

The All Saints Athletic Association held their annual "At Home" on Shrove Tuesday, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hope, 525 Patterson street. The evening was spent in games, dancing and cards, and all present enjoyed themselves. The evening was brought to a close by a vote of thanks, and the singing of "For he's a Jolly Good Fellow," and the National Anthem.

A GREAT ACHIEVEMENT

The immense amount of physical work necessary to maintain and extend telephone service is only hinted at in the following quotation from the Annual Report of the Bell Telephone Company.

"During 1923 there were placed in new locations, by addition or transfer, 120,084 telephones, and there were removed by cancellation or transfer 68,066, resulting in a net growth of 52,018 telephones."

The rate of increase in the use of telephones shown by these figures is many times greater than the growth of population in Ontario and Quebec the territory served. 1d 56

Society

Dr. and Mrs. F. C. Neal have returned after a week spent in St. Louis and Chicago. While in St. Louis Dr. Neal received his degree as a Fellow of the American College of Physicians, and attended the annual meeting of that association.

Mr. J. M. Greene is on a business trip to Lindsay to-day.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred. Sharpe, of Toronto, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Sharpe, 693 George Street, over the week-end.

Miss Mabel Patterson, who is visiting her parents, will return to New York before the first of April, at which time she will take charge of the Medical Floor in St. Luke's Hospital.

Mr. Stanley Bishop, who has been spending some time at his home here, returns to Buffalo to-day.

Mrs. Storey of Hamilton is the guest of her father, Mr. R. Tivey.

Mrs. Maurice H. Park, assisted by her mother, Mrs. John Allan, of St. Catharines, held a reception yesterday afternoon in the Grill Room of the Empress Hotel, attended by over two hundred of her friends. Mrs. Park wore a handsome gown of soft black satin trimmed with grey fur and touches of Oriental embroidery. Her hat was a large black shape, with silver lace and grey plume. Mrs. Allan wore navy crepe and black hat. The tea tables were charmingly arranged with daffodils, mauve tulips and mauve freesias. The long table where Mrs. E. A. Brodigan and Mrs. W. Harold Young poured tea was centered with dainty large reed basket of the bright spring flowers, its handle tied with mauve tulle. At a smaller table, the ices were cut by Mrs. Rupert Gliddon and Mrs. R. A. Brown. Assistants were Mrs. J. F. Strickland, Mrs. Fred Hills, Mrs G. D. Carlisle, Miss Helen Howson, and Miss Mary Harstone. A very enjoyable programme of vocal music during the afternoon was given by Mrs. Gerald McClelland, Miss Ina Allen, and Miss Mabel Gardiner. Accompanists were Mrs. W. H. Young and Mrs. M. C. MacKinnon.

PRINCIPAL PROBLEM IS GERMAN FINANCE

Experts Are on the Last Lap of Their Work

PARIS, March 5. — (By Webb Miller, United Press).—The international experts inquiring into Germany's finances were in disagreement to-day on two of their principal problems, the last that remain to be ironed out before their report is submitted to the Reparations Commission.

A full meeting of the committee, headed by General Charles G. Dawes, which is investigating Germany's capacity to pay and ways and means to make her, was called to-day, and it was believed the difficulties can be speedily removed.

The thorny questions of control of Germany's budget and of the railroads of the Ruhr and Rhineland were the only outstanding difficulties. Despite many unofficial reports and rumors that the experts were through with their work, and that they were in agreement on all points, the United Press learned that they had these problems yet to settle among themselves before reporting to the Commission.

The experts yesterday reached a point in their deliberations where the remaining main questions were solved, and they could look ahead to the early fulfillment of their work. The difficult task of drafting their decisions comes next.

They completed their plan for the establishment of a bank to give Germany stable money.

A sub-committee, headed by Owen D. Young, and another headed by M. Stamp, worked this morning on reports to the full committee regarding the supervison of the budget and railways.

A plenary session at 3.45 p.m. was to receive the reports. In reparations circles, it is pointed out that the fact that the sub-committee is reported in disagreement does not mean much, probably nothing more than that the minority member, known to be a Frenchman, wants to be heard before the main committee to urge more drastic control.

WEDDING BELLS

BLONDIN—STAPLEY.

A very quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized on Saturday, March 1, by Rev. W. R. Courage, at St. George's Rectory, when Carrie, second eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred. Stapley, became the bride of Frederick Blondin, also of this city.

The bride wore a suit of navy tricotine, with grey hat, and also a sable choker, the gift of the groom, and carried a bouquet of roses and fern.

The young couple was attended by Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Harris, sister of the bride. They left on the 7.35 train for Toronto and points west. On their return they will reside in the city.

PANCAKE SOCIAL AT ST. LUKE'S CHURCH

The Women's Guild of St. Luke's Church, Mrs. George Curtis, president, were hotesses last evening at a well-attended Shrove Tuesday pancake social held in the Parish Hall of the Church. Rev. G. J. Bousfield occupied te chair for the musical programme, in charge of Mrs. R. H. Parsons, that followed the service of refreshments, in which pancakes occupied the place of honour. Vocal solos were given by Mrs. Storey of Hamilton, Mrs. George Perks, and Master Scott Medd. Miss Helen Ross gave a reading, and Master Harold Cranfield a chalk talk. Mr. W. C. Thompson, who acted as accompanist for the occasion, also gave a well-rendered instrumental selection.

A WINDOW CLEANER FELL FOUR STOREYS

ST. JOHN, N. B., March 5.—(Canadian Press.)—A slight scratch on his right ear and a tiny abrasion on his right cheek, were the only apparent injurious effects of Herbert Gilfoil's plunge from a four storey window to a pile of packing boxes on the ground below, yesterday afternoon. Gilfoil was cleaning windows, holding on to an old iron hinge, when he started on his downward journey, fifty feet below. When he felt himself sway out from the building he gave a twist, enough to carry him towards the packing boxes. He picked himself up, returned by elevator and resumed cleaning windows.

Today's Quotations and Opinion and Reviews of the Markets.

NEW YORK, March 5.—(Special).—Stocks opened quietly on the exchange to-day, with American Can and United States Steel heading a display of confidence in the industrial list based on the eighteen percent. decline in commercial failures in February which demonstrated that satisfactory business conditions existed in general trade.

Westinghouse electric continued heavy reflecting the expectation of some action regarding an additional stock offering at to-day's meeting of the directorate. Light volume characterized the first hours dealings and price changes confined to a narrow range. But it was evident from the absence of selling pressure that professionals were growing discouraged in their attempts to force further recessions. About the only activity noticeable was in issues where the over crowded sports were stepping on one and other tails, Pacific Oil was a case in point rebounding to 52 against Tuesdays low of 49 1-4 That an extensive bear account exists in the general list is becoming more and more apparent. Attempts to cover the active issues find very little stock for sale.

One house that has always been a large holder of steel common claims nearly every share held in it has been loaned out. The short interest in Can. Baldwin Studebaker and some of the other active issues is relatively large, in view of the fact that four of the larger "tipster" agencies and a number of big professionals have turned bearish over the last two weeks. The market has given very good account of itself, propaganda, from these bearish sources has been sent broadcast but the public does not seem to be in a selling mood. The floor of the stock exchange is bearish in balance..

The oil scandal has no doubt induced a lot of selling, but most of this selling has been for short account.

It would require but one or two favorable developments to bring about a vigorous rally.

IN MEMORIAM

MONTGOMERY—In loving memory of our darling niece, Vera Monigomery, 11 years of Hastings who died March 4, 1923.

There was an angel band in heaven,
That was not quite complete,
So God called our darling, Vera,
To fill the vacant seat.

Fold her in thine arms, O Lord,
And ever let her be,
A messenger of love between
Our aching hearts and Thee.

GOOD TIME NOW TO BURN HARDWOOD

Where You Get the Best Wood Value in City

Judging by the run we are having on our maple and beech hardwood, cut in stove lengths at nine and eleven dollars a cord and delivered from the yard, it will be as popular as the wood we sold from the cars at ten dollars a cord. We have arranged to sell from the yard at the above prices until we have some more cars in which will not be for several weeks. This wood has been in our Dublin street yard since last November and is easily the best wood value in the city. Order now as the supply is limited. Cheaper to burn good hardwood than coal. W. H. BRITISH HOUSE ADVANCED BILL TO HELP TRADE

Proposes to Pay Three-Quarters of Interest on Loans Made in Britain By the Dominions For Financing Public Utility Construction Work — Backbenchers Raised Objections.

LOAN FOR SUDAN.

LONDON, March 6. — Canadian Press. — By a vote of 297 to 43 the House of Commons last evening gave the second reading to the Trades Facilities Bill, which embodies the proposals announced at th Imperial conference regarding the paying of three-quarters of the interest on loans raised in this country by the Dominions and the Colonies to finance public utility undertakings, he maximum annual guarantee being £1,000,000 pounds and the period of payment five years.

The principal feature of the debate was the persistent opposition of backbench members of the government party, particularly the Clyde-side contingent who coupled this issue with their decided objection to the proposal to guarantee a further loan of £3,500,000 to the Sudan Plantations Syndicate for the purpose of encouraging cotton growing there. The labor members contended that the company made huge profits and that the guarantee was unnecessary.

Rev. Campbell Stephen (Labor, Camlachie, Glasgow), talked about the community being fleeced and exploited.

Provide Work at Home.

There was a sharp passage between William Lunn, secretary for Overseas Trade, who was in charge of the bill and Neill MacLean (Labor, Govan, Glasgow) who suggested that Mr. Lunn was repudiating doctrines that he formerly preached.

To this Mr. Lunn retorted that he would not yield place to MacLean or any other member of the Labor Party in his desire to attain what he had stood for all his life. His lifetime might be short and he wanted to take the opportunity of doing what he could to provide work for his own people, realizing that the other things were not as urgent as the need for work.

Mr. MacLean said that in that case it was evidently Mr. Lunns view that it would be a long time before they could get the other things he had stood for.

Lunn—"There is no need to insinuate."

MacLean—"I am not."

"Well don't!" replied Mr. Lunn, who on MacLean making a further remark added: "That is sufficient."

MacLean—"It may be sufficient for you but it is not for me for I am still optimistic enough to believe we wil get a great deal more than is suggested in this bill within our lifetime."

Exploiting Credit.

Continuing, Mr. MacLean said it was asking them to stretch their loyalty to the party too far ao invite them to vote 3,500,000 pounds "to this gang of Sudanese who have been exploiting the credit of this country for their own ends."

Mr. Lunn cited various facts with a view to refuting his critics' assertions in regard to the company. The revolting backbenchers finally challenged a division with the result in favor of the bill. It is understood that three members of the Cabinet abstained from voting.

Propose Naval Review.

Charles Ammon, Parliamentary secretary to the Admiralty, replying to a question, stated that the question of holding a naval review in July off Spithead, in connection with the Empire exhibition was being considered. Arrangements would be made if possible to bring some small ships up the Thames.

Singapore Question.

Charles Ammon, Parliamentary Secretary to the Admiralty, replying to a question, stated that no decision had yet been made with regard to the proposed naval base at Singapore but the matter would be considered soon by the government.

The questioner wanted to know if he repeated the query a week hence, would Secretary Ammon be in a position to make a definite reply.

A Labor member asked would Mr. Ammon bear in mind when the question of a naval base being established at Singapore was being considered by the government, that the Prime Minister himself had at one time described the project as "a wild and wanton escapade."

Lady Astor asked the Labor member to kindly bear in mind that the Prime Minister now has learned better. Loud laughter followed this sally.

Mr. Ammon did not reply to the Labor member's query.

Rebel Generals To Quit Mexico

MEXICO CITY, March 6.—(Canadian Press). — Generals Enrique Estrada and Manuel Diegez, of the revolutionary army, are willing to go into exile, according to Arnlo Gomez, Military Commandant of Mexico City, and have sent a special representative to President Obregon, asking facilities for leaving the country.

Commandan Gomez declares that Major Jose Amador has arrived in Mexico City as the representative of both rebel leaders and is having interviews with President Obregon, who is the only one who will decide the matter.

ASTOR VACATES COMMONS SEAT

Voted in Parliament Without Having Taken Oath—Forgot Rule Or Was Ignorant of It — Must Seek Re-election.

LONDON, March 6.—Major John Jacob Astor has vacated his seat in the House of Commons under circumstances almost unique in parliamentary history. One of the rules of Parliament is that a member is not allowed to vote before taking the oath. Major Astor was in Egypt when the new Parliament was elected and up to the present has had no opportunity to take the oath.

On making his first appearance in the House of Commons on Tuesday, Major Astor voted in a division, forgetting that he had not yet taken the oath ,or possibly, unaware of the rule there was against such voting. Under the rules he automatically vaactes his seat in the Lower House and must seek re-election. He probably will be returned unopposed.

The rule was established by the Parliamentary Oaths Act of 1866, which provides that any member who sits as a member or votes after the Speaker has been chosen, without having taken the oath is subject to a penalty of £300, and must vacate his seats. In case of neglect to take the oath through inadvertence an act of indemnity may be passed to relieve the offender of the consequence, but a new writ must issue immediately. This was moved to-day.

The incident was the chief topic in the lobbies last night, and there was much researching into the exact bearing of the old act on the case. The general impression was that no act of indemnity was needed.

FIGURES SHOW FARM DISTRESS

Value of United States Wheat Crop Last Year Fell Far Below the Government's Total For 1919—Decline Too From 1922.

WASHINGTON, March 6. — Crops, animals raised and live stock products of American farmers were valued at $12,204,000,000 last year, the Department of Agriculture announced yesterday in a preliminary estimate. This was $960,000,000 more than in 1922. The total includes $9,953,000,000 for crops, and $6,111,000,000 for animal products, less an allowance of $3,860,000,000, the estimated value of crops fed to live stock.

Swine Disease Found In Tilbury District.

CHATHAM, Ont., March 6.—(Canadian Press).—The lung worm, a disease which ravages hogs has been discovered by hog raisers in the district surrounding Tilbury, and many are experiencing considerable trouble, according to officials at the Department of Agriculture. There is no sure treatment for the disease, which, officials say, is highly infectious. Sanitation and segregation are the preventative methods urged.

FLYING BOAT'S TRIP.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, March 6 (Canadian Press). — The all-metal flying boat Morro Castle II., which left Keyport, New Jersey, on 16th January, for a test flight to San Juan, is nearing the end of its journey.

Last night, after flying against strong trade winds for nine hours from Baracao, Cuba, the new type boat was forced to land 40 miles from San Juan, but C. Y. Zimmerman, the pilot, expects to leave shortly for the destination. He reports that the boat has stood up well.

FERGUSON MAJORITY 47 ON LIBERAL AMENDMENT FOR BALANCED BUDGET

First Division of Legislature Involved Vote of Confidence in the Government, Said Premier—U. F. O. Members Lined Up With Liberals and the Conservative Group Stood Solidly Together.

DEBATE CONCLUDED.

TORONTO, March 6. — In the first division of this Legislature on government matters the Ferguson administration was yesterday sustained by a majority of 47. The vote, which was on the Liberal amendment to the motion to go into supply that the government so practice economy that it would balance its budget yearly was 70 to 23. The United Farmers voted solidly with the Liberals and there were no bolters from the Conservative side.

The budget debate was concluded by W. E. N. Sinclair, Liberal leader, and Hon. W. H. Price, Provincial Secretary, although Premier Ferguson said a few words just before the vote was taken. The Premier stated that no matter how "nice" the amendment looked a vote in its favour must be regarded as a vote of confidence in the government and if it carried the government would have no alternative but to resign.

Promised Economy.

Mr. Sinclair said he could not quarrel with the financial standing of the province as outlined in the budget address, but he criticised the government for not following up its loud declarations for economy with any specific suggestions for that purpose. Indications he said were that the government was going heavily into greater expenditure instead of reducing. Hon. Mr. Price following gave some particulars of where the government intended cutting expenditure and where they felt assured they were to get more revenue.

Mr. Sinclair said that this particular budget was a review by a new government of the work of an old government. He declared that the indictment against the old government had not been answered by the U.F.O. speakers, and it was not for the Liberals to defend the farmer administration. If there had been losses made on loans because of inefficiency or worse it was the duty of the present administration to find out the truth so that any suspicion which might have been engendered could be either confirmed or wiped out.

Paid Raney's Fees.

The Liberal leader opposed any bulking of public accounts. "Bulking the various items will simply give an opportunity to cover up petty expenditures, and it is petty expenditures that make great totals," he said.

Mr. Sinclair pointed to one small item whereby the previous Attorney General (Mr. Raney) had his law law society fees paid by the government.

Mr. Raney rising said this was a mistake. He had paid his own and there would be a refund of the fees paid for him by the government.

Mr. Sinclair also pointed to the item whereby Premier Drury had drawn his full $12,000 salary during the last year after having drawn only $9,000 for the other years.

Travelling Expenses.

Illustrating his point that the small expenditures should have greater care and supervision Mr. Sinclair took an item for $4,000 for street car fares for government employees. This meant that 215 trips were made per day by government employes for which the government paid. He thought also that travelling expenses for the cabinet ministers might well be reduced. Last year there had been $5,550 expenses for U.F.O. ministers and $3,000 for Conservative.

Office Building.

Mr. Sincalir said that by a capital expenditure for the erection of a new building for offices the government could save money because of the tremendous cost and lost efficiency of the present system of having the offices scattered all over the city. He said that although the government had made a general declaration for economy that the budget address had not announced a single specific instance in which it proposed to practice economy. On the contrary there were announcements of more and increased expenditure. The new secretary for the north, the advisory committee on roads and the iron bounties were simply cases where more expenditure was being legislated. "The government must cut and cut quickly or the deficit next year will be as great as this year. There is no change of heart indicated in the present government over the last despite their loud protestation. If there is no improvement a Liberal government is the only hope for the province."

Mr. Sinclair thought the province should take the total cost of the provincial highways to relieve the countries and townships of the tremendous burden of taxation they were carrying.

Prohibition Policy.

Stating the attitude of the Liberal party in the House on the liquor question and the proposed vote Mr. Sinclair said:

Coolidge Frees War Deserters

RUSSIANS KEPT RUMANIAN GOLD

Twenty Millions Transferred to Moscow During German Invasion Now Involved In Bessarabian Question.

BERLIN, March 6. — Canadian Press.—M. Krestinsky, the Russian Ambassador to Germany, is in Moscow receiving instructions about the conference between Rumania and Soviet Russia, which is to open in Vienna about March 10th. He will head the Russian delegation, with M. Levitsky, Soviet Minister to Bulgaria; M. Lorenz, Minister to Lithuania, and M. Serebrjakoff, the other memmbers.

Europe is watching the attempts to settle the Bessarabian question with great interest, as military action is feared if diplomacy fails, and a clash between Rumania and Soviet Russia along the Dniester River might involve Poland. There are some who believe that it might embroil all the Little Entente countries and lead to a general Balkan-Central European conflict.

DUNNING FEARS CHURCH SPLITS

Saskatchewan Premier Predicts Membership Transfers From Church to Another When Union Comes.

REGINA, March 6. — Wholesale transfers of membership from one church to another to save a particular building for Unionists and anti-Unionists, was forecast as a grave danger by Premier Dunning yesterday during another prolonged committee session on the Church Union Bill.

Not only did the Premier foresee a danger in the future but he declared he had knowledge that the movement had already begun on the part of the non-Unionists and believed that it would spread to the other sections. He made the assertion in apepaling to the opopsing factions to make an earnest effort to "get together to forestall future trouble and litigation by providing some advance assurance to minorities that they would be protected in the event of organic union being consumated.

Next Tuesday the Legislative Committee will again assemble to take up the last of the contentious clauses of the bill now in committee. In the interval, the opposing forces will hold a series of conferences to frame clauses to a certain extent outlined by the committee that will be as nearly as possible agreeable to both sides of the dispute.

Honduran Rebels Hold Atlantic Coast Ports.

SAN SALVADOR, March 6. —The Honduran rebels, according to reports received here, now control all the ports on the Atlantic coast of the Republic. The rebels are said to have repulsed an attack by government forces on Zambrano. The federal troops are reported to have suffered heavy casualties.

The governments of Salvador, Guatemala and Nicarauga are continuing their conversations with the purpose of taking concerted action for the re-establishment of peace in Honduras.

SOVIET GOVERNMENT WANTS CASH CREDITS

LONDON, March.5 — (United Press)—The Daily Express Mosocw correspondents, procured an interview with Soviet Minister Rakovsky in which they latter said that Russia hopes to send delegates to London next week to negotiate with the labor government. Russia, Rakovsky, said will seek 100,000,000 pounds sterling in goods and 50,000,000 pounds in cash credits.

TORONTO, March 5 (Special to The Examiner). — Representatives of Ontario labour in a deputation to Premier Ferguson, objected to the proposed amendment to the Workmen's Compensation Act

FRENCH APPEAL TO BAKERS TO PROTECT FRANCE

The Minister of Finance Emphasizes Need of Co-operation With Government For Stabilizing Currency—Should Suspend Operations For Foreign Account.

PATRIOTIC MOTIVE.

PARIS, March 6. — Minister of Finance De Lasteyrie, in his efforts to bring an end to speculation in exchange operation harmful to the franc, addressed a letter yesterday to the president of the Union Syndicale des Banquiers de Paris et de Province, asking their help. The letter, which at the requst of the Finance Minister is to be sent to the heads of all banks in France, reads:

"I have the honor to draw your attention once more to the serious inconvenience caused at the present time by banking operations carried on by foreigners, or for the account of foreigners. At a time when the government is making an effort by all means in its power to combat the effects of what, doubtless, is a temporary and unjustifiedly strained situation in foreign exchange, it is indispensable that the banks for their part should abstain from supplying their clients with means for intervening on the exchange market in any way prejudicial to the franc. I feel too sure of their patriotism not to be convinced that it will suffice to point out to them the inconvenience of certain practices to see those practices cease immediately.

"I beg you consequently to remind at once and in the firmest tones, all the members of the Union Syndicale des Banquiers that the Government considers that until further notice all operations calculated to furnish funds in francs to foreigners without adequate security, should be suspended, especially in the case of the following operations:

"First: Future dealings in francs for the account of foreigners outside of France; second, loans on stocks and other secugities to foreigners; third, guaranteeing future payment for goods bought by foreigners, or for their account."

STATE PROSECUTOR MAY QUIT LUDENDORFF CASE

MUNICH, March 6. — (United Press) —The trial of General Ludendorff, Adolf Hitler and eight others for treason was broken spectacularly to-day as the State Prosecutor declared he would no longer put up with attacks and insults such as those to which he had been subjected by Attorneys for the Defense.

It was finally agreed to continue the hearing tomorrow, although the prosecutor had at first declared he would not continue at all.

So many challenges to duels have been hurled at General Lossow, former head of the Bavarian army, as a result of his alleged treatment of General Ludendorff as told by witnesses that Lossow is unable to accept them all. The General was charged with having been in sympathy with beer cellar putsch that failed last November and with desertting the cause.

CROWS NEST AGREEMENT COMING IN FORCE SOON

OTTAWA, March 6.—(Canadian Press.) — The Crow's Nest Pass agreement, which when entered into in 1897 between the Dominion government and the Canadian Pacific Railway, provided for an average reduction of a little over 10 per cent on westbound movement of freight from Fort William, will come into full force again on July 7th next, it was learned last night on splendid authority. This decision of the Dominion government which will be announced soon in the House of Commons.

LIVE FROG CAPTURED AMONG SNOW AND ICE

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Mar. 6.—(Canadian Press.)— A live frog has been captured among the snow and ice on the shores of the St. Mary's rapids and the weather prophets are confident that spring is just one jump behind it. The captor of the frog said: "I caught this bird over at the rapids jumping at snow flakes as they were coming down. I guess he thought they were flies." The frog is about two inches long, of the green variety, and was quite aliev when captured.

DIGGING GRAVES IS A WOMAN'S NEW WORK

CAMDEN, N.J., March 6. United Press. — A woman has knocked down another masculine prerogative and qualified as a grave digger and a bell toller, but it was involuntary on her part. Mrs. Elsie M. Stotter, aged 28, of Hicklersville, N. J., testified in her divorce suit Wednesday against her husband, Waltr, who is the sexton of a country church near Lancaster, Pa., that he made her dig graves and ring the church bell, she charged.

Mrs. Stotter got the divorce.

Hastings Grain Elevator Will Be Rebuilt at Once

Three Firemen Suffered Minor Burns and Injuries Fighting Wednesday Morning's Fire — Cause Unknown to Warden Fowlds — Doubts Spontaneous Combustion Rumor.

HASTINGS, March 6.—The timbers of Fowlds' granary and warehouse were still glowing last night through the ashes of the high wooden building which was totally destroyed in the morning's fire. A coal pile of fifteen or twenty tons wasted its heat in the debris, and a mound of grain that had been smouldering all day broke into a blaze about eight o'clock again calling out the firemen who intended to remain on duty all night.

Mr. Walter Fowlds stated to the Examiner that the origin of the fire was entirely unknown, and although rumour ascribed the cause to spontaneous combustion he was inclined to doubt that opinion. Mr. Fowlds also denied that the warehouse was an old building. Part of it might be considered a landmark, but the grain elevator proper was one of the most modern of its class and size in the country.

Mr. Fowlds estimated the loss at approximately $40,000 which, it is understood, is fairly well covered by insurance. A car of corn and twentyfive bags of grass seed had been unloaded on Tuesday. Mr. Fowlds said that the warehouse and elevator would be rebuilt at once, and a special effort would be made to set up a chopping mill for the farmers as soon as possible.

Firemen Blistered

Three of the firemen suffered burns and minor injuries in fighting the flames, especially three of the Scriver men Lou, William and Solomon. Leather belts were burned off the equipment of most of the men by the heat, but the brigade had the satisfaction of confining the fire to the doomed building although nearby houses were seriously threatened, the roofs of several of them showing patches of flame at times. In the excitement of sounding a general alarm in the village, the fire bell on the bridge lost its knocker which fell into the canal, and the Methodist bell rope broke.

Mr. James Fowlds of Oshawa, business partner of Warden Fowlds, arrived here from Oshawa last night.

OMEMEE COUPLE REACH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Nugent Take Active Interest in Life--When Money Was Scarce.

OMEMEE, March 6. — To-day, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Nugent of Omemee are celebrating the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding, which took place in Picton, Ontario, on the 6th of March, 1874. At the home of their daughter, Mrs. L. A. Mahood, they are receiving friends and relatives in informal fashion this afternoon and evening. In the pretty dining-room of their daughter's home where the piece de resistnace is a wonderfully executed silver and white wedding cake, with a horseshoe in its centre, the yellow crepe paper festoons, the yellow-shaded lights and the yellow candles in brazen holders commemorate the golden wedding anniversary. Upstairs, laid carefully away, is the white wedding gown of the bride of half a century, with its tight basque and long sleevs. Exhibited proudly is the treasured marriage certificate of those days, a large square of parchment, elaborate engraved with a representation of a dignified bridal party, angels with harps holding scrolls from which emanate scriptural admonitions with regard to the wedded state, and inset in either corner a small faded portrait of the bride and bride-groom. The pledge of the contracting parties is reproduced in fine lettering at the bottom of the page, and in a small cenral portion is inscribed the information that on the 6th day of March, 1874, at the residence of the bride's father, Henry Nugent, of County Durham, Ontario, and Mary Jane Cork, of Prince Edward, Ontario, were married by William Ryan, Wesleyan Methodist minister. The witnesses, a sister of the bride, Elizabeth A. Cork, and the man whom she married later, Arthur Williamson, are still living, in Picton but were unable to attend to-days celebration.

Of a family of nine children, three of whom are dead, one, Mrs. Ira Rehill of Omemee, passing away about three years ago, four were present at the golden anniversary to-day; Mrs. L. A. Mahood of Omemee, with whom her parents make their home Miss Ida Nugent of Toronto, and Frederick and Percy Nugent of Lindsay. Two other sons are Rev. Dr. Walter Nugent of Portland, Oregon, and Milton Nugent, B. A., of North Dakota. Of the fifteen grand-children, seven were present; small Ethel Nugent, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Nugent of Lindsay, Harold and Lillian, children of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Nugent of Lindsay, Ross and Willard and Hugh Rehill of Omemee, and little Donald Mahood of Omemee. The other eight grandchildren are Margaret and Gordon, of Portland, Oregon, Burton, and Arthur, and Milton, Jr., of North Dakota, and three of Mr. Percy Nugent's children in Lindsay; Billy and Elizabeth and Jack, who unfortunately chose th present time to have scarlet fever. Other friends from a distance who attended the celebration were Mrs L. Gordan, Mrs. T. Wilkinson, Mrs. E. Mackey and little Jeannie Gordon, all of Lindsay.

To their parents, their family presented on this occasion a purse containing fifty dollars in gold, with an engraved gold-headed cane to their father and a gold ring, with square amethyst setting, to their mother. From the five children of Mr. and Mrs. Percey Nugent came a gold Eversharp pencil for their grandfather and an amethyst bar pin for their grand-mother.

This afternoon and evening, an informal reception to their friends and neighbours will be held by the bride and bride-groom of half a century back, and the occasion will be marked also by the christening of two of their small grand-children, little Ethel Wilkinson Nugent and Donald Nugent Mahood, the ceremony to be performed by an old friend, Rev. E. W. Rowland, pastor of the Omemee Methodist Church. Messages from

Theunis Forming Another Cabinet

BRUSSELS, March 6 (Canadian Press). — M. Theunis has undertaken the task of forming a new Cabinet, to replace the Ministry which resigned last week.

It is understood that Paul Hymans, former Foreign Minister, will take over the Department of Foreign Affairs.

Both the Flemish Right and Christian Democrats will be represented in the Cabinet, the former probably by M. Poullet, President of the Chamber of Deputies.

DELORME JURY GIVEN HOLIDAY

Attended Ash Wednesday Mass In Morning and Took Street Car Trip In Afternoon Around the Island.

MONTREAL, March 6.—Ash Wednesday Mass at Bonsecours Church yesterday morning, then deliberation in their room at the court house, and in the afternoon a trip over the island of Montreal in a special street car, occupied the Delorme murder trial jury Wednesday.

Experiments with revolvers produced at the Delorme trial of last June and examination of the bullets used by detectives in their original tests took place in the afternoon in the laboratory of Dr. Wilfrid Derome, Medico-Legal Expert attached to the Coroner's Court. Bullets fired from the pistol said to belong to Abbe Delorme were compared with bullets fired from a Bayard gun of the same series which was fired in court last June. Oscar Haynes, armorer, went over the bullets found in Raoul Delorme's body, and classified them, as well as bullets fired from other makes of revolvers. Close examination of all bullets was made by both counsel for the defence and for the prosecution.

BETTER RELATIONS WITH THE ENTENTE

Conference of Diplomats With Marshal Foch Sitting In.

(By Jorn De Gandt, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

PARIS, March 5. — Premier Ramsay MacDonald's efforts to renew the entente ith France, which nearly was ruptured during the last days of the Baldwin government's tenure of office, bore further fruit to-day.

The conference of ambassadors with Marshal Foch sitting in, agreed upon tre least of a note to Germany regarding military control of the Reich. The United Press was informed that the note was based on MacDonald's proposition, viz., substitution for the present inter-allied control commission of a small guarantees commission charged with surveillance This is to be done only after Germany has satisfied the allies regarding present defaults.

The agreement is acknowledged as another step in the Franco-British rapprochment.

It was ove this question of supervision of Germany's violation of restrictions placed upon her military development by the Versailles treaty that Baldwin and Poincare came to a parting of the ways.

WILL SUPPORT A LOCAL MOVE REVISE PLANS

St. Thomas Councillors Object to Wording of Peterboro Resolution--Comes Too Late.

THE DISCUSSION

ST. THOMAS, March 6.—Told by Ald. J. T. Webster, a member of the St. Thomas and Elgin Suburban Road Area Commission, that the resolution as it stood was full of inaccuracies and was a foolish thing to send to the heads of the Ontario Department of Highways, the members of the City Council, Tuesday evening, appointed a special committee consisting of Mayor Sloggett, City Solicitor Doherty and Ald. Webster, to deal with the matter of supporting the City Council of Peterboro in their action protesting the present road legislation as it applies to suburban area zones.

The resolution asked either that the present legislation setting apart suburban roads for construction and maintenance under the zone system be repealed, or that City Councils be given more control by an amendment to the Act, providing that no road be adopted as a suburban road until its adoption as such had been approved by the councils called upon to contribute toward the construction costs or maintenance, and also asking that any such amendment should provide that estimates for expenditures on such roads first be approved by City Councils before acted on. In its preamble, the resolution spoke of suburban roads commissions having arbitrary powers to commit councils to responsibilities and expenditures without the knowledge or censent of the elected representatives of people, and also stated that councils had practically no voice in the amount to be expended on suburban roads and had no jurisdiction as to what levy should be made on their constituents for that purpose.

Ten Years Too Late.

It was the preamble to which Ald. Webster took exception, declaring it to be full of inaccuracies. Also, he declared, the action of the Peterboro Council was about ten years too late. He favored the general purport of the resolution, but feared the person or persons who drew it up didn't know much about the Act when they said that suburban commissions could fix any amount that they liked. Suburban commissions were governed in their road designations by the population of a city and in their expenditures by the total assessment, he stated. The Act contained such restrictions. Nor could a commission order work on any road until it had been designated as a connecting link between a county system and a city by the Department. Cities had the power to place their own engineers or superintendents in charge of the work, and in a number of cases this was being done. In St. Thomas' case, however, Elgin's road superintendent was retained.

"If a resolution like that were to go before the Minister of Highways, he would call it all bunk," said Ald. Webster. "I am in favor of giving aid to the move, but I think we should go about it properly and not send a foolish resolution like that down there."

City Solicitor Doherty agreed that the Peterboro resolution was not entirely correct. He thought the chief fault with it was that it was couched in too general terms. He pointed out that the suburban road commissions are appointed by elected representatives of the people and were governed by law in their expenditures. Ald. Handford favored endorsing the resolution as it stood, as he felt that Peterboro should be encouraged in its initiative.

TWO MEN SURVIVED THIS!

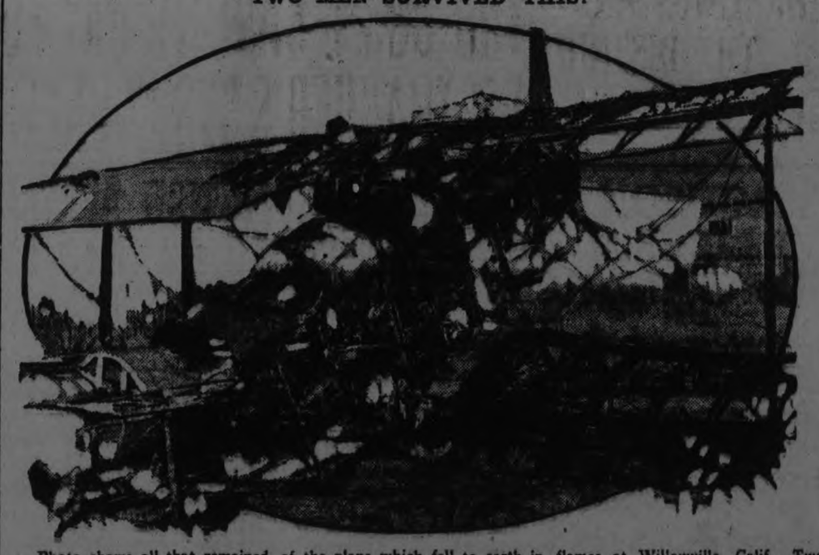

Photo shows all that remained of the plane which fell to earth in flames at Willowville, Calif. Two aviators who were piloting the ship escaped death when the hurtling wreckage struck a high tension wire in its descent. This broke force of the fall and saved the birdmen's lives.

VOICE OF PEOPLE

Editor of The Examiner:

If the city erects a combination school and the technical portion costs $250,000.00 for building and equipment the annual expense will be approximately:

Interest on Bonds at 5%....	$12,500.00
Sinking Fund, 30 yrs.	3,760.00
Obsolescence, 30 yrs.	8,333.00
	$25,593.00

N.B.—In thirty years the building will be out of date and a new one required.

The school tax for building and equipment, alone, will be increased $25,000.00 per year.

The argument is advanced that the province pays part of the cost, but as other cities put up similar schools and the province helps with money, obtained by taxation of the people, we shall bear the whole cost.

For this community, class should be provided for the following trades:

Carpenter,
Electrical,
Foundry,
Machinist,
Masonry,
Plumbing.

Classes for other trades may be found essential but these, at least, should be considered.

Instructors will be required for the various trades which will add to the annual tax.

Then, after we put up this school are we assured:

That the boy at the end of his course, will be a skilled artisan?

That, to help the family budget, he will not leave school before finishing the course?

That, if taught one of the building trades, he will be allowed to work at it?

If these objects cannot be obtained are we justified in putting up the building?

Suppose as an alternative, the Board of Education and the employers of the city, work out a plan to give part time to apprentices, the boys to attend school every Saturday morning from eight to twelve. They will have about one hundred and fifty hours, per year in mathematics, drawing, English, etc., bearing directly on their work, and will become more intelligent craftsmen and citizens.

By this plan the present buildings may be utilized.

They stand as splendid monuments to the people's belief in education but—they are used thirty hours only each week.

The advantages of the plan are:

Continuance of the boy's education.

Less necessity for taking boys from school, since they are helping out the family budget.

A higher grade of Canadian workmen.

Utilizing the present school equipment with minimum additional expense.

The present corps of instructors may be utilized at a fair remuneration.

Boys are learning, by doing.

Since methods of manufacturing are constantly improving, working apprentices come in contact with modern ideas and are taught the value of speed as well as accuracy. In a technical school this cannot be done. The tools and methods are as a rule primitive and principles only can be taught the boy.

A boy who tires of school and insists on going to work will yet receive instruction and may find in his occupation interests that will induce him to go further with his education.

After consideration of the two schemes will the expenditure of a quarter of a million dollars for a manual training school be a wise one?

As far as I can see, the answer is, "No."

W. Sangster.

Letters mailed in London will be delivered in Sydney, Australia, a week later when the new British "All Red" route of fast airplanes gets into good working order.

COBOURG GAVE WHITE GLOVES TO THE JUDGE

Spring Assizes Lasted Exactly One Hour--One Case Tried and Two Settled Out of Court.

JURIES DISMISSED

(By a Staff Reporter.)

COBOURG, March 6. — The spring sitting of the Supreme Court of Ontario, held here yesterday, lasted exactly one hour. The session was announced to open on Tuesday, but Hon. Mr. Justice Logie, who presided, was not able to reach town until Wednesday. There were no criminal cases and both the grand and petit jury had been dispensed with. Of the four civil actions, only one was tried, two were settled out of court and the fourth was transferred to Toronto for hearing.

When Sheriff Nesbitt presented the Justice with a pair of white gloves the latter congratulated the town on the absence of crime and added that the people of the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham had always proved themselves law abiding citizens.

Canadian Woodmen vs. Murphy.

The only case was that of the Canadian Woodmen against Johnston Murphy of the township of Cavan, an action started to secure possession of a farm upon which the plaintiffs hold a mortgage that is past due. Last fall the farm and chattels were up for sale by the sheriff, but when the people gathered at Murphy's home the owner told them that the mortgage was a forgery and on account of his statement it was impossible to secure any bids and nothing was disposed of.

Murphy lives alone and is almost stone deaf, his hearing having been impaired in a railway wreck some years ago. He was in the employ of the C.P.R. for 23 years and when he retired he settled on a farm in Cavan left to him by his father. Later he purchased, at what he admits was a bargain, the adjoining farm from a cousin, Mrs. Reilly, who resided in Winnipeg. To pay for this he borrowed $1,000 from the Victoria Loan Company of Lindsay.

As Murphy could not hear the questions of counsel yesterday, except when they were spoken into an ear trumpet, he was given free scope yesterday when put on the stand, to state his case, which he did fluently and without being subjected to cross examination. He admits that his property is mortgaged for $1800 and declared his willingness to pay this, but he disputes the claim of the plaintiffs for $2,500 with accrued interest. He declares that he is the victim of a conspiracy to secure his property and that he has been blackmailed and persecuted. He retained several Peterborough lawyers at different times, dispensing with their services when they failed to take the action which he desired. His present solicitors are a legal firm in Toronto, who were represented at the hearing yesterday by Frank M. Fields, K.C., of Cobourg.

The plaintiffs case was presented by C. Jarvis of London, Ont., and the only witness besides Murphy to take the stand was P .C. Hooper, of London, Dominion secretary for the Canadian Woodmen .

Hon. Mr. Justice Logie awarded the plaintiffs judgment for possession as asked for, but Murphy was allowed 30 days in which to attempt to borrow money to discharge his indebtedness.

Wills Vs. Blanchard.

John Wills, a motor mechanic, while working in Cobourg last year, boarded with Mr. and Mrs. William Blanchard. When he left town to take a position in Walkerville, he failed to settle for his board and the Blanchards had him arrested and brought back to oCburg to answer to a charge of fraud. Magistrate Floyd dismissed the case and Wills started an action against the Blanchards claiming $3,000 damages for malicious arrest and false imprisonment.

A. R. Willmot of Cobourg, who appeared for the defendants, secured a settlement out of court. The Blanchards are to pay Wills $200, the parties to the suit to pay their own costs.

Cobourg vs. Doody.

The town of Cobourg started a suit for $5,000 against the Imperial Guarantee and Accident Insurance Company of Canada, the firm who were on the bonds of Edward Doody when the latter was treasurer of the municipality. It is claimed that the defendant was behind in his accounts to the amount of $3,430.01, and his bondsmen were asked to make good the shortage.

The defendants admit that they went on the bonds of the ex-treasurer, but claim exemption from liability because the alleged shortage was not reported to them within 12 months of its discovery.

This case has been transferred to Toronto for hearing. F. M. Fields, K.C., appears for the town of Cobourg, and Johnston, Grant, Dods and Grant, of Toronto, for the defendants.

Clogg vs. Brown.

J. R. Clogg & Company, of Montreal, sued Edwin Brown, of Port Hope, for $1,616 claiming that apples purchased from the defendant and paid for were not up to the standard order.

This case, too, was settled out of Court, the defendant agreeing to pay $800.00, the parties to the suit to settle their own costs.

W. A. F Campbell, of Port Hope, appeared for the plaintiffs, and D. H. Chisholm, K.C., of the same town, for the defendant.

THINK PRISONER MISSING MAJOR

Suddenly Attacked Passengers in Railway Coach —In Luxemburg Asylum —Wanted in London For Murder.

LONDON, March 6.—(Canadian Press).—The man held at Luxemburg, who is supposed to be Major Bailey, the fugitive wanted in England for the murder of his wife, was seized with a frenzy while travelling in a railway train and attacked fellow-passengers. The passengers managed to overcome and tie him, and he was handed over to the gendarmes, who transferred him to an asylum. Up to the present the man has said nothing about his past, but identification marks appear to establish his identity as the missing Major.

HASTINGS AND THE DISTRICT

Social Evening and Concert Held in the Parish Hall—Personal Mention

HASTINGS, March 4.—A social evening and concert was held in the Parish Hall of St. George's Anglican Church on Monday evening under the auspices of the A.Y.P.A. and the following features given.

The singing of The National Anthem opened the meeting and then a cornet solo was given by Mr. C. Blackburn accompanied by Mrs. Ed. Mouncey. Emma Hubbs gave a recitation. A piano duett was played by Misses Della Plant and Marion Martin. Mr. A. Mildenhall favoured the audience with an accordian solo, Mr. Billie Bird and Mr. Bruce Clapper gave Hawaiian guitar music and was heartily encored. Master Eldon Maidens gave a recitation, piano solo Miss M. Martin, Reading Mr. C. B. Plant, vocal solo, Mr. A. Mildenhall, cornet solo, Mr. C. Blackburn, recitation Vilda Mouncey.

During the evening lantern views were shown of different parts of the world.

The last number on the program was a nigger troupe and song. Refreshments were served by the A.Y.P.A., which brought the gathering to a close.

Funeral Tuesday

The funeral of Mrs. Ernest Fitzgerald was held from her parent's home Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Lamey on Gravel Road, Hastings, on Tuesday morning. Requiem Mass was held in the Church of Our Lady Mount Carmel at 10 o'clock.

The bearers were the deceased five brothers namely, James, Thomas, Joseph, Arthur, Benjamin and her cousin Harry.

Deceased husband and one little girl besides her father and mother and brothers and sisters are left to mourn her loss.

After mass was held the remains were placed in the vault in the R.C. Cemetery.

Epworth League

The Epworth League the Methodist Church was held in the school room on Tuesday evening. The meeting opened with singing and the repeating of the Lord's Prayer in unison. The Scripture lesson was read by Emma Shapre and the Topic taken by Bryant Scriver Reading, Mae Hinton, solo Jessie Wilcox reading Mrs. R. Watson, violin solo, Mr. Shand, reading Mrs. Eva Ellis, solo Mrs. L. E. Kelley, instrumental duett, Misses Gladys Stevenson and Jessie Wilcox. The mizpah prayer closed the meeting.

Getting Too Fat? Try This---Reduce

People who don't grow too fat are the fortunate exception. But if you find the fat accumulating or already cumbersome, you will be wise to follow this suggestion, which is endorsed by thousands of people who know. Ask your druggist for Marmola Prescription Tablets, and follow directions. One dollar is the price the world over. Get them from your own druggist or send price direct to the Marmola Co., 4612 Woodward ave., Detroit, Mich. By doing this you will be safe from harmful drugs and be able to reduce steadily and easily, without starvation diet or tiresome exercises.

Protest Netting Fish In Thousand Islands.

BROCKVILLE, March 6. — The Township Council of Front of Leeds and Lansdowne has passed a resolution seeking to have the Ontario Department of Game and Fisheries take immediate action regarding petitions filed some time ago by the municipalities of Leeds and Lansdowne, E. Scott, Yonge and Elizabethtown, to have the Government abolish the granting of further licenses for netting in the Thousand Island region of the river St. Lawrence, between Kingston and Prescott, except for domestic purposes. It was pointed out in the resolution and petitions that the region specified is becoming rapidly depleted of fish.

YOU DON'T HAVE TO PAY FOR DR. THACHER'S SYRUP UNLESS YOU GET SATISFYING RELIEF !

Prescribed by Physicians For Colds, Sour Stomach, Bloating Gas, Sick-Headaches and Tired, Nervous, Run-Down Condition.

BUILD UP SYSTEM; GIVES QUICK RELIEF

"The majority of people who come into this store for medicines of various sorts are really suffering because of a sluggish liver," declared a leading druggist the other day. "What they really need is Dr. Thacher's Liver & Blood Syrup to cleanse and tone the liver and build up the system so that they feel their best again. It gives quick relief; this is why we can afford to sell it with the understanding that it will give complete satisfaction; otherwise the purchase price will be returned.

It is easy to tell when your liver is sluggish and clogged. Just ask yourself: Do you feel dull and tired so often? Do you wake up with a bad taste, coated tongue and offensive breath? Do you suffer from such symptoms as bad colds, sour stomach and gas, irregular movement of the bowels and that tired, nervous, upset and depressed feeling? If so, take just a spoonful of Dr. Thacher's Liver & Blood Syrup after the next few meals and notice the quick difference in the way you look, eat, sleep and feel.

Get a bottle of Dr Thacher's from J. P. Bond, McDermid & Jury and The Warne Drug Company, Ltd., in Peterborough; The Tanner Drug Company, in Lakefield. And unless you really appreciate what it has done for you come back and your money will be returned without a single question. This is how much confidence we have in this splendid corrective, health-building preparation.

GRAFTON AND CO. HEADS AND STAFF ONE BIG FAMILY

Success of Firm Due to Hearty Co-operation — Col. Grafton Emphasized This at Annual "At Home."

HAMILTON, March 5.—A community spirit is a good thing, but a family spirit is better, and it is to a family spirit that Grafton & Co. owes its great success and expansion. The outsider at the Grafton & Co. at-home at the Rose room, I.O.O.F. temple, last night could see this. Every member of the staff apparently feels he or she is a part of one great family, and each does his or her bit to make the family the greatest on earth. Lieut.-Col. J. J. Grafton is the much-honored, respected and beloved head of the house and his elder sons are Col. J. MacLennan, manager of the Hamilton store; T. W. Barry, W. A. Davidson, W. E. Conway, M. T. Sullivan, W. Coleman, W. Tighe, Ben Racey, George Hendry, J. R. Sutherland, Dale Cahill, H. L. Conway, Thomas Lunn, T. H. Kellar and J. F. Hickey. There are many more in the family of Grafton & Co., who are numbered among the brothers and sisters who have put their shoulders to the wheel and made the business a success, but these are named because of their long service, ranging from forty-five to twenty-five years.

Firm's Growth Pictured.

About two hundred of the employees, including managers and their wives from the branch offices were present. Receiving with Mrs. Grafton were Mrs. MacLennan, Mrs. W. A. Davidson, H. P. Wilson and Mrs. C. N. Hall. Col. J. A. MacLennan was chairman and a delightful program of music and lantern slides showing the growth of the Grafton business from its inception seventy-five years ago were shown. Not the least interesting photographs were those of J. B. and J. S. Grafton, the founders of the firm, and Archibald McTaggart, who for forty-four years helped with the pioneer work of making Grafton & Co. one of the greatest clothing concerns on the continent. The pictures were gathered by W. A. Davidson, and as they were thrown on the screen he explained their special interest. Among thos who contributed to the program were Fred Moffatt, Messrs. Chittenden, J. B. Pickering and C. N. Hall, all employees of the firm.

Col. Grafton's Thanks.

Lieut-Col. Grafton, in a happy address, expressed his pride in the firm and thanks to the employees for their co-operation in making it so successful. He noted that during the past year the Hamilton branch business had improved considerably over the year before—a thing he thought was particularly splendid in view of the apparent unhappy financial conditions generally existing. He expressed his regret at the absence of Stuart Grafton, who, on account of being gassed in Flanders, is now in the south for the winter. He named over, with pride and affection, the men who had made Grafton & Co. what it is, and mentioned that the Owen Sound branch was opened 35 years ago, the Peterboro 32 years ago, Hamilton 29 years, London 28, Brantford 25, and Woodstock 19. The Dundas clothing store separated from dry goods, which it had formerly included, seventeen years ago.

Lieut-Col. Grafton traced the growth of the Hamilton store from the time it was first opened by Mr. Barry, with a sixteen-foot frontage, on James street, until the present, when under the management of Col. MacLennan, it has forty-eight feet frontage and over eighty employees. He paid tribute to the men who had built up the Hamilton store and the other branches, and also thanked the Hamilton branch for inaugurating the affair of last night, which he hoped would be an annual get-together of the staffs of the Grafton factories and stores.

After the program dancing was enjoyed for an hour, when the party sat down to a charmingly-arranged and prepared banquet. The tables were prettily decorated with the Grafton colors and masses of bright yellow daffodils. A balloon dance was a happy feature of the evening. The prizes in this were won by Miss L. Curry, Mrs. T. W. Barry and Mrs. H. C. Clark.

NEW LAMP BURNS 94% AIR

Eeats Electric or Gas

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U.S. Government and 35 leading universities and found to be superior to 10 ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odour, smoke, or noise—no pumping up, is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94% air and 6% kerosene (coil oil).

The inventor, F. S. Johnson, 246 Craig Street W., Montreal, is offering to send a lamp on 10 days' FREE trial, or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him to-day for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $250 to $500 per month.

Force Under Arms In India Cut to 200,000.

DELHI, India, March 6. — Canadian Press Cable via Reuter's.) — Lord Rawlinson, commander in chief of the military forces in India, in a speech on the budget in the Legislative Assembly, said that 18,000 British and 20,000 Indian troops has been cut off the military strength.

The total strength of the combatant arms in India now was 200,000.

General Rawlinson declared that no further reduction was possible if due regard was to be had for the country's safety. He said he would never agree to any further reductions.

You'll Get Rid of Blackheads Sure

There is one simple, safe, and sure way that never fails to get rid of blackheads, that is to dissolve them. To do this, get two ounces of peroxines powder from any drug store—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub over the blackheads briskly—wash the parts and you will be surprised how the blackheads have disappeared. Big blackheads, little blackheads, no matter where they are, simply dissolve and disappear. Blackheads are a mixture of dirt and dust and secretions that form in the pores of the skin. The peroxine powder and the water dissolve the blackheads so they wash right out, leaving the pores free and clean and in their natural condition.

OBITUARY

DR. H. R. GARBUTT.

TORONTO, March 5.—Following a brief illness, the death of Herbert Reuben Garbutt, D.D.S., occurred at his late residence, 164 Keewatin Avenue, Toronto. The late Doctor Garbutt was born at Coboconk, Ontario, and received his early education at Madoc, following which he taught school for a short period. During the latter part of 1916, he enlisted at Belleville with the 235th Battalion and went overseas in 1917, at which time he was transferred to the Canadian Army Dental Corps. Early in 1918, he was directed to be returned to Canada to further his studies in dentistry and in this respect graduated from the Royal College of Dental Surgeons, Toronto, in the Spring of 1920, after which time the late Doctor Garbutt followed his profession in this city. He was married in March, 1923, to Miss Marion Jean Card, of Guelph, and besides his widow, he leaves his mother, Mrs. Adeline Garbutt, widow of the late Rev. Henry Garbutt, of Aurora, Ontario; one sister, Mrs. F. Turner, Peterboro, Ontario, and three brothers, Dr. C. P. C. Garbutt, of Toronto; Lorner, of Regina, Sask. and Howard, a student of the Royal College of Dental Surgeons. One brother, Earl, was killed overseas in 1917.

YOUR HEALTH

DR. CLIFFORD ROBINSON

SLEEPING FOR HEALTH.

Many minor cases of illness are clearly the result of lack of sleep. The doctor's bill may be materially reduced and your conservation of working power greatly enhanced by regular and sufficient sleep.

This means that if you neglect to sleep the proper number of hours, seven at least and nine as a maximum for adults, you are edging towards a breakdown. Sleep when you sleep so that when you wake up you will stay awake.

The health of children is determined by their sleep more markedly than by any other single factor. Often the excessive output of nervous energy by small children from 5 to 8 years of age, either in its dynamic or emotional form, is so weakening that only deep natural sleep will bring back to the tired body the normal mental and physical poise.

Children should get more sleep in winter than in summer. Parents should take careful note of these requirements and watch their children to see that the program is carried out to secure the most healthful results.

Babies can profitably use from 15 to 18 hours out of the 24. This sleeping period of babies gradually grows less until the third year. At this time about 12 hours should be the maximum.

At 6 years of age the child is usually left to his own normal instincts and uses about 10 hours.

Deep, profound, healthful sleep is best carried out in a darkened room. It has been proved by careful experiments that if a ray of light falls on the closed eyelids during sleep the respiration is at once perceptibly accelerated, without the awakening of the sleeper. With this increase in respiration, the heart begins to beat more rapidly, causing more blood to enter the cerebral regions and consequent restlessness and dreaming

A REMEDY FOR WAKEFULNESS AND "TICKLY" THROAT

Mrs. V. S. M. writes: "As a trained nurse I was always most interested in liquid foods and made a special study of them, but of all the things I have ever tried for wakefulness, coughing, hoarseness, etc. (the annoying little ailments of 'well' people), Grandmother's recipe is the best—shall I call it Bordens' First Aid?

"A tablesponful of cornstarch, a half cup of Eagle Brand Condensed Milk, and enough water to thin—do not have it very stiff—and cook until the raw taste is gone. Flavor with various things. Children will like peppermint. My husband likes lemon and the whipped white of egg on top and the yolk beaten in at the last minute.

"Serve it as hot as it can be taken, when you are trying to alleviate a tickly throat or conquer insomnia, or soothe a sore feeling in the chest. If you wish, you can use St. Charles Milk and sugar instead of the condensed. Either way it is very nourishing.

"I wish I had a dollar for every dose I have made. We should be owning a farm now instead of planning to homestead."

LINGERIE DRESS.

The lingerie dress for the coming season may be of any delicate shade as well as white, trimmed with hand-run tucks and fine thread laces.

Soaking takes the place of rubbing—

JUST by soaking the clothes in the suds of this new soap, dirt is gently loosened and dissolved.

Even the dirt that is ground in at neckbands and cuff-edges yields to a light rubbing with dry Rinso. Not a thread is weakened. The mild Rinso suds work thoroughly through and through the clothes without injury to a single fabric.

Rinso is made by the makers of Lux. For the family wash it is as wonderful as Lux is for fine things.

All grocers and department stores sell Rinso.

THURSDAY, MARCH 6, 1924.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH.

Mr. W. H. Bradburn's bill before the Legislature to amend the Public Health Act providing for members of municipal Boards of Health in cities and in towns of over 4,000 population to hold office for three years, was introduced at the request of local authorities.

It enacts that in such places the Board of Health shall consist of the Mayor, the Medical Officer of Health and three resident ratepayers, one of whom shall be appointed by the Council at its first meeting in each year for a term of three years, except that in the first year after the Act comes into force one member shall be appointed for one year, one for two years and one for three years.

The object of this change is, of course, to provide a continuity of policy in the Board of Health and to ensure in its membership an amount of experience and familiarity with the board's duties that is not always possible when the appointments are made yearly.

Under the system that has been in vogue a practically new board might be in office each year, and under the circumstances the members would necessarily have to spend a portion of their term in learning the ropes.

The change will doubtless be approved by the majority of municipalities as contributing to a permanent policy in the administration of local health affairs.

NO HELP HERE.

The reply of the Board of Education to the request of the City Council that the estimates for educational purposes be reduced by $10,000 was exactly as might have been anticipated.

Unless the members of the board had been extravagant and careless in the preparation of their original estimates they could not be reasonably called upon to lop $10,000 off the total.

It is possible, of course, that some reductions might have been made and items here and there eliminated, but the total of these reductions would not have been nearly large enough to have reached the mark desired by the Council.

And it would have been false economy in any case if the saving of a few dollars this year had necessitated a double expenditure next year.

Alarge amount of the expenditure of the Board of Education is fixed—and on the balance of the items among the appropriations little chance is offered for reducing the estimates which members of the board declare were carefully gone into and trimmed down as far as was considered consistent with the requirements.

Unless the city fathers can hit upon some new methods of retrenchment the citizens may as well reconcile themselves to the fact that the tax rate will be greater than last year.

MORE USE OF OUR SCHOOLS.

Mr. W. Sangster's letter in another column on the Technical School question is an interesting contribution to the discussion on the subject, particularly as his suggestion carries with it the idea of securing a greater return from the present school plant.

It has long been felt that the efforts of those responsible for the administration of educational affairs in Peterborough should devote some earnest attention to that phase of their duties.

Peterborough has some excellent schools, of which the citizens have every reason to be proud.

But they cost a lot of money, and there is always a doubt as to whether we are getting the full return from the investment.

"They stand," says the writer, speaking of the schools, "as splendid monuments to the people's belief in education—but they are used only thirty hours each week."

There's the rub.

The plant stands idle too long.

Mr. Sangster proposes that the school buildings be used on Saturday mornings for the benefit of apprentices in the employ of city firms and manufacturers.

His letter speaks for itself, and will doubtless be read with interest.

WHAT HE PROVED.

The minister who during a sermon in Toronto used a quantity of brandy in a demonstration intended to prove the ill-effect of alcohol upon the process of digestion, succeeded in proving something quite different, namely, how easy it is to become an offender under the Ontario Temperance Act.

He innocently overlooked the fact that by having liquor in a place not considered legal within the meaning of the Temperance Act he was committing a breach of one of the sections of that measure.

Technically, he was in a position of being liable to a fine.

There will be no prosecution, of course, because under the circumstances there would be no good object served by action against this well-intentioned minister.

At the same time, however, the incident demonstrates that certain sections of the Ontario Temperance Act are so worded that it is not a difficult matter for an individual to unwittingly break the law, and the penalties prescribed for such breaches are out of all proportions to the seriousness of the offence.

If more care had been taken in framing the measure to differentiate between the minor offender and the bootlegger and habitual violator of the law, it is safe to say that there would not be a great deal of agitation towards a referendum.

So many individuals have been heavily punished for almost trivial infractions that they and their friends have become embittered against the Act itself.

THE MAKING OF PAUPERS.

If a Government is once committed to methods unsound in principle, with a theoretically responsible but practically independent departmental bureau to administer under such principle, there is no limit to the follies it can commit, says Barron's. We can never be sufficiently warned by the worse than failure of the system of parochial and Government doles in Great Britain. It is thoroughly bad in principle and its working-out in practice is a sight for gods and men. Poplar is one of the poorest boroughs in London, but by no means the most indigent, and with no normal problem differing from that of half a dozen other boroughs. It has a board of socialist-communist guardians who pay, not in indoor or outdoor "relief" but in actual cash, more than self-respecting people are earning for an honest week's work. They have run the taxpayer, admittedly without legal power, into debt to the tune of $500,000. They are financially and even criminally liable and they have probably not that number of cents among them. The new Labor Minister of Health has already condoned this squandering and even extended further relief from Government funds.

Poplar has a population of 162,618 and 32,463 persons in receipt of poor law relief. In other words, one out of every five persons is a registered pauper. The adjoining and equally poor, borough of Stepney, with 249,738 inhabitants, has 17,798 persons in receipt of doles or one in fourteen of the population, which is bad enough. Other comparisons might be cited, but the advocates of the dole fail to see that Poplar, on the demonstrated figures, is actually in the business of creating paupers. In practice its policy attracts wastrels from all over the country. The rateable value is at the same time declining because the taxpayer, for the same reason, is driven out. He moves his store or his factory into the next parish, wherever he can make the transfer.

The older practice was indoor relief for destitution with outdoor relief granted only on investigation and always in kind—in food, fuel or clothes—and never in money. It cannot be pretended that the destitution now is greater than it was when England had more than twice the number of unemployed on the relief list. There are many citizens in this country who want to do something of the kind and show their practical benevolence with other people's money. If a lesson of this kind cannot teach them, nothing will.

WHY HOME INDUSTRIES SHOULD BE PATRONIZED.

The following editorial was awarded first prize by the Colorado Editorial Association, written by Editor Byrnes in the Pueblo, Colorado, Indicator:

"When a resident of any city, town or community makes the casual remark that he can not see why he should buy of home merchants or show a preference for home-manufactured goods, he sets the more thoughtful individual thinking, and he is apt to think along straight lines. He has heard a strange sentiment expressed that wakes him up, and he is apt to reflect somewhat after this fashion:

"Now, if all citizen in this town talked and felt as this man does, we couldn't and wouldn't have much of a town and neither community nor State would be getting just returns for the expense and trouble it has gone to in building up the community, and for the civil government it has established for safeguarding the lives and property and other interests of its citizens. It would not be receiving just compensation for providing schools, and parks and jobs for the wage-earners and business for the merchants to enable them to make a good living. Such a man is not giving value received for what he gets out of the community of common interests.

"On the other hand the home patronage and home industry proposition works something like this: If the local merchant neglects or refuses to reciprocate in patronizing those who patronize him, he is not doing his fair share, either. If he does not buy his boxes, brooms and mattresses, for instance, of the home manufacturer or the State manufacturer, and sends his orders away for such goods, he gets the goods, to be sure, but the out-of-the-State firm gets the money, and thus it is taken out of the home circulation market and it lessens the wealth of the community by just that much.

"And, moreover, the box and broom makers, the mattress makers, and the proverbial butcher, the baker and the candle-stick maker is deprived of so much needed employment, and it hurts, for the local laborer and salaried person in town has less money to spend with the grocer, the clothier, the dry goods man and every one else in business; and so, because a link in the chain of economics is made weak and less efficient.

"It works the same way when a family sends its orders to Squeers Sawbuck & Co., or other big mail catalogue houses in Chiyork for household supplies, the struggling home merchant or jobber and the State manufacturer or jobber is deprived of his legitimate trade, but he is called upon just the same to contribute to a multitude of small benevolences and enterprises, and he must submit without protest to being plucked about every so often and occasionally in between times.

"So let it be understood that the business man is a very useful and necessary adjunct to any community, for he not only affords employment to others, but he is among the heaviest of taxpayers of the home government for offensive and defensive purpose, so that he is entitled to consideration and support. It is thus seen that home patronage has its selfish side and its loyal side that appeals to us both going and coming.

"Reciprocity is a grand and noble institution when made to work both ways. It then falls upon the community like manna from heaven. It radiates a sustaining and soothing influence upon all persons and interests alike. It is a human core of sentiment that needs to be more generously practised. It is the Golden Rule applied to home building and business affairs. It relates to everybody and everything.

"If the rule were more universally observed, there would be bigger and better home and State mercantile, manufacturing and jobbing concerns, more employment and lower taxes, and there would be fewer voluminous dog-eared catalogues of the big out-of-State mail order houses in use."

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

A proposal to increase the salaries of the Lindsay police force struck a snag. It is a bad year for salary increase proposals.

The Board of Education's inability to reduce its estimates practically assures Peterborough a higher tax rate than last year.

Great Britain has effected a saving of £37,000,000 in its Civil Service and Revenue Departments for the year 1924-25. That is the kind of economy the public can easily understand.

Congratulations are due the Toronto Globe on its eightieth birthday. It is a newspaper that in its cleanliness, enterprise, courage and vigour reflects credit upon the country in which it is published.

NEWS JANETVILLE AND THE DISTRICT.

Pastor Invited to Remain Another Year — Social Events.

JANETVILLE, March 6.— A drama in four acts, entitle "A Woman's Honor" was presented in the Forester's Hall last Thursday evening by the Nestleton Dramatic club, and was part of an excellent entertainment given by the L.O.L. of this village.

At the close of the play a basket social was held which contributed largely to the success of the evening. The attendance was large, owing to the excellent roads and the character of the entertainment.

Young People Meet.

On Friday evening last about forty young people from Mount Horeb visited Janetville Y.P.S., and spent one of the most delightful evenings of the season About one hundred youngsters, in all, were present and enjoyed themselves to the full. The proceedings were opened by singing and prayer, after which games, contests and music filled every minute of the time. Lunch was served at 11 p.m. and the young folks separated delighted with the evening's proceedings.

Successful Sale.

On Thursday last Mr. Lawrence Wright held a succesful sale of farm stock and implements. The articles sold very high, especially the cattle. Some ordinary breed of cows sold for nearly $100 each.

Mr. Jackson of Port Perry acted as auctioneer and made a first class "hit."

Mr. Wright, whose time is partially occupied by delivering rural mail, is moving to a smaller farm, consequently the sale.

The Auxiliary of the W.M.S. held their regular monthly meeting last Wednesday afternoon in the Sunday School room of the church. Owing to the absence of the president, the meeting was conducted by the Hon. President, Mrs. Wm. Arthurs. The meeting opened with a devotional half hour of praise and prayer led by the pastor, at the close of which Rev. and Mrs. Ross favored us with a duet beautifully rendered. At the close of the missionary meeting the Ladies' Aid and decided to hold an Irish Box Social on St. Patrick's night, March 17th. This of course will be held in the Forester's Hall.

Pastor Invited.

At the Quarterly Official Board held last Wednesday afternoon in the Methodist church, an unanimous invitation was extended to our pastor, Rev. G. E. Ross, to remain another year.

Seriously Hurt.

On Friday evening Clifford Magahy fell from the upper beam of the barn and was badly hurt, sustaining internal injuries. No bones were broken, but he was rendered unconscious by the fall for about nine hours. It is hoped that he will recover, although his condition is somewhat alarming.

Personals.

Mrs. G. E. Ross left this morning for Peterboro where she will spend the week.

Mrs. John Jacket was suddenly called to Regina last Wednesday owing to the death of her sister, Mrs. Wm. O. Dowd. Much sympathy is felt for Mrs. Jacket and family.

Mrs. Wm Henry of Toronto is the guest of Mrs. Harry Blatherwick.

Mrs. Thornbury of Lindsay is visiting her sister, Mrs. Jas. Thornton.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, March 5.—Tuesday's cattle receipts were 1,305 and sales 1025. All the cattle on offer were taken and only those for a rest-up were carried over. The receipts this morning were 72 cars; 998 cattle, 306 calves, 1707 hogs and 234 sheep and lambs. Tuesday's market for cattle ended strong and generally 10 to 13 cents higher. The market this morning was equally firm and can be said to be strong at the quotations. Butchers' cows were wanted and those with good killing prospects, but not choice, were freely sold at 4½ to 4¾ cents. Medium cows were mostly a cent a pound below this.

Sixty short keeps have been bought for overseas at 6¾ to 7¼ cents a pound. Nice light butchers were held at 6¼, with 6 cents bid and the sellers were standing firm. Good butchers 1000 lbs. and up were taken at 6½ to 6¾, and any choice medium weight butchers are selling from 7¼ to 7½ cents. Heifers 1200 lbs and over are being taken for export at around 7 cents a pound.

Some good Holstein springers were in the yards, and for a nice family cow 125 was asked. Heavy finished bulls sold at 4¾ to 5 cents. Baby beeves of good quality were $8.50 a cwt. Small rough stockers in odd lots were picked up as low as 3 1-2 cents a pound.

The calf market is a little too full of medium calves and prices for these were dropped about a dollar a cwt. from the recent sales. This drew the good calves down a little and it is difficult to get over 12 cents for tops. Mediums are 9 cents and common calves 7 cents.

Choice lambs are coming in only in small lots. Tuesday's top for a bunch was 15¾ cents and this morning 15 cents was paid for small packages. Poor culls are not bringing over 9 cents. Light choice sheep are steady around 8 cents.

Most, if not all, of Tuesday's hogs went at $7.75 a cwt. f.o.b. Hamilton is competing for supplies and although local packers are wanting a lower market, the prospects at the moment are not trending that way.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, March 6 (Canadian Press). — Grain declined in price yesterday owing more or less to the bearish views which many traders expressed about reports pointing to the likelihood of enactment of the McNary-Haugen Bill. Word, however, that the Tariff Commission report on wheat production cost had been turned over to President Coolidge was something of an offset later.

Wheat closed steady, 1-4c to 1-2c to 5-8c net lower, with May $1.11 3-8 to 1.11 3-8 to 1-2, and July $1.11 1-2.

Corn 1-8c to 3-8c down.

Oats 1-8c to 1-4c to 3-8c off.

Provisions ranged from a setback of 5c to 7c to a rise of 2c.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK.

CHICAGO, March 6 (Canadian Press). — Cattle, receipts, 9,000; beef steers and yearlings uneven, active, 10c to 25c higher; top matured steers, $12.00; bulk fed offerings, $8.25 to $10.50; bulls steady to weak; vealers uneven around steady at $9.25 to $10.50; outsiders upward to $11.50; stockers and feeders active, 10c to 15c higher.

Hogs, receipts 20,000; very active; steady to strong; good and choice 225 to 300 pound butchers, $7.40 to $7.50; top, $7.50; bulk better grades 160 to 210 pound average, $7.20 to $7.40; packing sows, $6.35 to $6.65; killing pigs slow; steady; bulk desirable strong weights, $5.75 to $6.15; estimated holdover, 10,000.

Sheep, receipts 10,000; best handyweight fat lambs steady; others 15c lower; sheep and feeding lambs steady; fat wooled lambs, $15.35 to $15.85; top, $16.00; good and choice fat ewes, $9.50 to $10.00; choice shearing lambs, $15.25 to $15.50; feedres, $14.50 to $15.00.

The delegate appointed for the branch meeting held in Port Hope in June was Mrs. J. Hay. Arrangements were made for the Easter thank-offering. The next meeting to be at Mrs. Chas. Davidson's, and the special Easter one at Mrs. C. W. Turner's

Pancake Social.

On Tuesday night, Shrove Tuesday, the social given by the choir was a success and all enjoyed the pancakes. The tables were laid in the Sunday School room, and members of the choir waited on the people as they came.

The proceeds were about thirty dollars. The members of the choir, with Mr. and Mrs. Cowell, are to be congratulated on the success of this new departure.

"The Smith Mix-Up."

"The Smith Mix-Up" play on Tuesday night was up to the mark and the hall was well filled. The members of the play are to be congratulated on the success of the entertainment both nights.

Mission Circle.

The Mizpah Mission Circle met at the home of Mrs. D. A. Mitchell, Grand road, on Tuesday night. Miss Reir, the President, in the chair. About twenty ladies were present. Mrs. Bateson led in opening prayer and Mrs. Bonney read the Scripture lesson. The items from the Watch Tower were read: Indian work at Bala Bala, by Mrs. Mitchell; at Port Simpson, by Mrs. Scott; at Nelson House, by Mrs. Young; at Kitamat, by Mrs. Sherwin. A few chapters from Mary Slessor of Calabar were read by Miss Keir, Miss Saunders and Mrs. C. W. Turner.

Personal Mention.

Mrs. Vandewater of Toronto is spending a week or so with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Diamond, Front street.

Mr. E. Woten of Munro is spending a few days at Mr. and Mrs. C. Bedford's, River road, to see his sister, Mrs Bedford, who is very low.

Mr. T. L. Diamond is spending a couple of days in Toronto.

Word came to friends in town of the death of Mr. John Aunger of Blairton. The funeral was held on Tuesday. The late Mr. Aunger is ninety-four years old and has lived in Blairton most of his life. He is an uncle of Dr. E. Free, Mr. S. Free, Mr. W. Stanbury and Mrs C. W. Turner.

Miss Harriet Potts spent a couple of days in Cobourg and Warkworth.

CHURCHILL BIDS FOR CONSERVATIVE VOTES

Says Conservative Party Must Become Rallying Ground For Opponents of Labor—Three Candidates Will Contest the Abbey Division of Westminster.

LONDON, March 6—(Canadian Press Cable).—Winston Churchill, who is running in the Abbey divison of Westminster in the by-election as an independent candidate, with emphasis on his opposition to socialism, has issued a statement to the effect that he is not in any way hostile to the Conservative party, but on the contrary he recognizes that the Conservative party must now become the main rallying ground for the opponents of the labor party.

Policy Progressive

The Conservative leaders, in the last speech from the throne while the conservative party was in power, announced a broad progressive social policy which might well serve as a Liberal government's programme, Mr. Churchill states. Moreover former Premier Baldwin had made it clear that he had accepted the verdict of the last election on the tariff question. The Conservatives must win a large measure of Liberal support if there is to be effective resistence in the big struggle that is coming soon.

JURY AWARDED CASE TO BEVERLEY HARRIS

NEW YORK, March 5 (Canadian Press). — The Supreme Court jury last night returned a verdict in favour of Beverley Harris, former vice-president of the National City Bank, New York, in the marriage annulment suit brought against his wife.

The jury found that prior to her marriage Mr. Harris had represented to Harris that she was a member of the Lee family of Memphis, Tenn., that Eli Rayner, a Memphis gambler, was her uncle, and that she was a pure, chaste woman.

All these representations the jury found to be false.

ALLIED ENTERTAINERS BARRED FROM GERMANY

PARIS, March 5 (British United Press). — German boycotting of the Allied performers will be one of the chief topics of discussion at the International Congress of Vaudeville Artistes to be attended by British, French, Belgian, and Italian delegates, which opens here on 17th March.

Despite the boycott, several British artistes have succeeded in appearing in Berlin.

The French Union of Artistes will urge Allied solidarity.

ANGLO-ARAB TREATY.

JERUSALEM, March 6 (Canadian Press). — Negotiations for an Anglo-Arab treaty, conducted by Sir Herbert Samuel, British High Commissioner in Palestine, and King Hussein of the Hedjez, are near a successful completion, according to reports in the Arab press yesterday.

It is indicated that King Hussein made concessions to Great Britain in all of the principal questions.

KINGSTON NEXT STOP.

"FAMILY SOLICITORS" TO PRESERVE DIGNITY

Will Not Become Starving Barristers at Expense of Widening Out.

LONDON, March 5 (United Press). — Solicitors here refuse to abandon their offices and embark upon careers of silver-tongued oratory as pleaders

The Low Society of Great Britain has refused to widen the scope of the profession by a vote of 6,582 to 1,642.

The main reason for the reticence, it is understood, is that the populace often refers to the "starving barrister," and never casts similar slurs at the "family solicitors."

CAP GUNS MOCK CHALLENGERS IN THE REICHSTAG

Dr. Craemer Too Busy to Fight Nationalists He Called Traitors — Toy Pistols on the Speaker's Platform Aroused the Chamber to Laughter — Dissolution Discussed.

SOCIALIST PRESSURE.

BERLIN, March 6. — Duels and the possibility of the dissolution of the Reichstag occupied the Chamber Wednesday. The incident of Tuesday when three extreme Nationalists, Albrecht von Graefe, Major Henning and Reinhold Wulle, incensed at the remarks of Dr. Carl Craemer, of the German People's Party, in describing them recently as "traitors," challenged Craemer to a duel to the death with revolvers had an amusing sequel yesterday. Dr. Craemer, amid much laughter, announced that he rejected this "terroristic intimidation."

He added that he was ready to repeat his allegation outside the Reichstag and to be sued in the courts for it. While Dr. Craemer and Herr von Graefe were airing their views, jokers placed two toy pistols near the Speaker's platform in a position to be seen by the entire House, including Chancellor Marx, Foreign Secretary Stresemann and other members of the Cabinet.

Had Serious Business

These statesmen had assembled for serious business in connection with the Government's continued defense of its four months' accomplishments under the Full Powers Act, which has been attacked by the Left, chiefly the Socialists. The threatened duels, however, seemed to have prior claim to attention.

Dr. Craemer, explained that he did not see fit to accept the challenge to a duel just now, as he had other affairs to occupy him, but would make a public statement outside the Reichstag charging the trio with treason in connection with their alleged activitiy in the Ludendorff-Hitler putsch in Bavaria. This, he suggested, would open the way nicely for the three men to sue him for libel if they were still "warm under the collar," and insisted upon revenge.

Amused Members

When the pistols appeared nearly everybody had a hearty laugh, but eventually the House got down to business and heard discussions which will determine whether the Reichstag will be dissolved by the Chancellor's request if the Socialists continue to press for amendments to the emergency measures. It appeared somewhat more probabe yesterday that dissolution may come in a few days, as it was announced that the Catholic Party, in addition to the Socialists, who have opposed several of the decrees issued by the Government under the Emergency Act, would favor dissolution of the Reichstag immediately.

The price said to have been paid by Sir William Berry is £5,500,000.

BYNG INVESTED AS MASTER OF SCOUTS

Governor - General Says Aims of Movement Embodied in Alliterative Phrase, "Canadian Christian Citizen."

OTTAWA, March 6.—"I expect to be a Scout till the end, morally, physically and spiritually," were the words of His Excellency, Baron Byng of Vimy, Chief Scout for Canada, who was formally invested as Scout Master of the First (Canada) Gillwell Troop at Government House here yesterday. Associated in the impressive ceremony were the Chief Scout Commissioner for Canada, the Assistant Chief Commissioner and the Dominion Camp Chief. Lord Byng was not called upon to make the Scout promise, having been a Scout practically from the inception of the movement by Lieutenant-General Sir Robert Baden-Powell.

MAGNESIA BEST FOR YOUR INDIGESTION

Warns Against Doping Stomach With Artificial Digestents

Most people who suffer, either occasionally or chronically from gassourness and indigestion, have now discontinued disagreeable diets, patent foods and the use of harmful drugs, stomach tonics, medicines and artificial digestents, and instead, following the advice so often given in these columns, take a teaspoonful or two tablets of Bisurated Magnesia in a little water after meals with the result that their stomach no longer troubles them, they are able to eat as they please and they enjoy much better health. Those who use Bisurated Magnesia never dread the approach of meal time because they know this wonderful anti-acid and food corrective, which can be obtained from any good drug store, will instantly neutralize the stomach acidity, sweeten the stomach, prevent food fermentation, and without the slightest pain or discomfort. Try this plan yourself, but be certain to get pure Bisurated Magnesia especially prepared for stomach use.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Evans who were former residents of this vicinity and who for the past couple of years have been residing at Brighton have purchased the Boyce property from Mr. Wm. Ritz and have recently taken possession.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Meiklejohn entertained a number of friends on Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Baker spent Tuesday in Hastings.

The local ladies hockey team went to Cobourg on Monday and won the game by a score of 3 to 1.

Mrs. J. E. Thompson spent Friday in Hastings with her sister, Mrs. S. Stickles who is very ill.

CAVAN NEWS

CAVAN, March 5.—Rev. R. T. Richards preached an excellent sermon on Sunday evening in Cavan Methodist Church on "The Good Samaritan." Next Sunday evening he will preach a temperance sermon.

Fred. Swain is at home from Millbrook school with mumps. He is the first pupil in the Continuation School to have them.

Miss Stark has returned home from an extended visit with her friend, Mrs. Oakes, Peterborough.

Mr. Allen Mitchell has rented his farm to Mr. Fallis.

Mr Louis Morton has purchased a fine new grain mill.

The first of March very often heralds "moving day."

Mr. Widdis is moving today onto the farm which he purchased from Mr. A. Kennedy.

Mr. Wilbert Lunn is moving from that farm to the old Wilkinson farm.

Mr. Hardy is moving from the Wilkinson farm to the vicinity of St. Catharines, where he will work on a fruit farm. Before leaving, Mr. and Mrs. Hardy entertained their neighbors and friends at a pleasant little party.

Mr. J Smith is drawing logs to Graham's saw-mill to have them sawed into lumber.

Mrs. Archie Kennedy has been in Dr. Turner's Private Hospital, Millbrook, having her hand treated. The poisoning is checked, but her hand will require skilful attention.

Mr. V. Roan is somewhat better.

Gets a Promotion.

Mr. F. B. Carley will in the course of a couple of weeks leave Cavan station where he has been station agent for a number of years. He is going to Shelbourne. This move is a promotion. It brings a larger salary, and also High School facilities for his family. On Sunday afternoon Mr. Carley tendered his resignation as teacher of the Boys' 'Teen Age Class of Cavan Sunday School. The Superintendent, Mr. Jas. Douglas, accepted it with regret, as he said Mr. Carley had been a great help to him in the school. He said he had always found him ready to help in any way in the school. Mr. Carley will be very much missed as he has always been a valuable help in the music of the church and Sunday School.

A single teaspoonful of DR. CALDWELL'S LAXATIVE SYRUP PEPSIN Will restore good humor

Mothers! Apply Common Sense

THIS is the era of the prevention of disease and sensible people do not wait until sickness has actually come before remedying the trouble. The crowded hospitals everywhere are sad examples of the results of neglect. Be especially watchful of children. Restlessness, lack of normal appetite and feverishness usually indicate constipation. Stop it that instant with a spoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin and you will have prevented real sickness. Mrs. C. S. Bungay, 19 Chatham Av., Halifax, N. S. and Mrs. W. F. Hunter, Biggar, Sask., seldom have illness in the family because of their prompt use of Laxative Syrup Pepsin.

A Great Family Laxative

It may be difficult to decide just what medicine to use out of the many that are offered, but it would not be if you knew the facts. There are laxatives, cathartics, purgatives and physics, and they vary in their reaction on the system. Naturally, the stronger the medicine the more it shocks the system, so wise parents never give anything but a laxative to children. Dr. Caldwell's Laxative Syrup Pepsin is a mild laxative, a vegetable compound of Egyptian senna with pepsin and desirable aromatics, and so appreciated that it is now the largest selling preparation of its kind in the world, over 10 million bottles being used annually. The formula is on every package.

Three Rules of Health

Purchase a bottle of Laxative Syrup Pepsin at a drug store and always keep one in the family medicine chest. Give it to anyone from infant to grandparent, for it is safe, and the cost is less than a cent a dose. You can keep a family healthy with just this simple medicine. Give it for constipation, torpid liver, indigestion, biliousness, headaches, colds and other evidence of bowel obstruction. Dr. Caldwell, who was a practicing physician for 47 years and who originated this formula, had three rules of health that he found very effective among his patients and which you can follow with great benefit: Keep the head cool, the feet warm, and the bowels open.

COBOURG, March 6.—Several real estate transfers are scheduled for the week. Mr. Joseph Barry, Colborne has purchased the farm in Cramake township belonging to Mr. Gordon McDonald of Windsor, Ont.

Mr. Thomas B. Chalk has sold a lot at Bewdley to Mr. William Dixon.

Port Hope-Cobourg Road Open

Several cars have been through on the Provincial Highway between Port Hope and Cobourg. The going is heavy, however, and it is always safest to have a shovel along.

Snowstorm Big Expense.

The financial statements from local municipal councils for February show that large sums of money have had to be expended to keep the country roads shoveled out and passable. A number of farmers and farmer's sons have earned considerable sums in that way.

Auction Sale

Mr. W. A Cruse, Hope township had an auction sale today of his farm stock and implements, Mr. G. E. Caldwell was auctioneer.

New W.C.T.U. Organized.

Temperance forces are beginning to show renewed activity. At Newcastle a W.C.T.U. has been organized with the following officers: President, Mrs. James, 1st vice-president, Mrs. E. B. Cooke; secretary, Miss Edna Rickard; cor.-sec., Mrs. J. E. Matchett; treasurer, Mrs. E. B. Cooke; travellers aid representative, Mrs. J. E. Matchett.

Presentation to Church Worker

Mr. W. H. Jewell before leaving Port Hope for Toronto was presented by the Official Board of Port Hope Methodist church, with a beautifully bound copy of the scriptures with a useful encyclopedia. Mr. Jewell has ably served the church in several capacities and regret is expressed because of his removal, which took place at the week-end.

Flax Factory Busy.

The Orono Flax factory, the only industry of its kind in the district began operations last week and employers are busily engaged working up into tow the large quantities of flax on hand. It is expected that contracts will be shorly made with growers for the coming season.

Demonstration Farm Asked For

A deputation from Prince Edward County was in Toronto on Friday and asked the Hon. John S. Martin, Provincial Minister of Agriculture to establish a demonstration farm in Prince Edward County. The deputation pointed out that such a farm was needed in Eastern Ontario. A similar deputation waited upon the Government some time ago from Northumberland and Durham counties and asked that a demonstration farm be established here.

Trenton Men Injured.

William Trent and Willar Fritz both of Trenton, were injured at Malvern, when during operations to clear the C.N.R. track the plow jumped the rails.

Impromptu Debate.

The Young People's League of the Methodist Church held an impromptu debate at their regular service on Monday evening. Those taking part were Misses Zella Usher and Ruth Stillman and Messrs. Ronald Harris and Albert Jewell, all of whom did well in their addresses.

Recovering From Accident

Mr. James C. Dudley, formerly of Colborne, now of Bowmanville, who had his eyes injured when he was struck by a branch when felling a tree, is stated to be now getting on nicely.

Salvation Army Officers Transferred

Capt. Dunkley who has been in charge of the local corys of the Salvation Army for the past few months has been transferred to Toronto and left yesterday to assure her new duties. Lieut Burrows, who has been associated with her, left last week for Toronto, where she has also been transferred.

Invitations to Pastor.

At a meeting of the Official Board of Brighton Methodist church, Rev. J. S. I. Wilson, a former Cobourg pastor was most cordially invited to remain for a second year, the resolution being carried unanimously. Appreciative reference was made to Mr. Wilson's faithful earnest and efficient discharge of his duties. As a mark of appreciation he was granted a bonus of $200 for the present year and the salary was raised to $2000 for the coming year. Mr. Wilson accepted the invitation, subject to the will of the stationing committee of the Bay of Quinte conference.

IN MILLBROOK AND DISTRICT

March Meeting of the Ministerial Association—Personal Mention.

MILLBROOK, March 6.—The March meeting of the Ministerial Association was held on Monday at 9.30 a.m., the President, Rev. R. M. Paterson of Frazerville, occupying the chair for the first time since his election to that office. The Secretary, Rev. M. G. B. Williams, read the minutes of the last meeting, which was the annual meeting of the association.

The address for the gathering took a somewhat unusual form, Rev. Canon Allen, who is an excellent classical scholar, giving an original translation of the book of Titus. Greek Testament in hand, the speaker read from the original, and accompanied his reading by illuminative comments on the shades of meaning which are finely expressed in the Greek but lose something of the exact sense when put into the Anglo-Saxon tongue.

Discussion followed, and the hearty vote of thanks tendered Canon Allen showed the keen appreciation of his hearers.

Rev. Andrew McLaughlin of Keene will be the speaker for the April meeting.

Those present on Monday were: Rev. G. S. Gervan, Rev. S. T. Tucker Rev. M Williams, Rev. W. C. Allen, Rev. R. T. Richards of Cavan, Rev. G. I. Craw of Springville and Rev. R M. Paterson of Frazerville.

Women's Auxiliary.

The Women's Auxiliary of St. Thomas Church held their closing sewing meeting for the present season in the Sunday School hall on Monday afternoon, a good attendance of members being recorded. The President, Mrs. (Canon) Allen, had a general oversight of the work.

The special object for which the auxiliary sews throughout the year is to provide a complete outfit of clothing for an Indian girl at the Anglican mission at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., this responsibility having been undertaken a number of years ago and kept up regularly ever since. Quilts and other necessities for the use of the home are included in the bale. The auxiliaries of the whole parish assist with the undertaqing. The bale, valued last year at $65.00, is expressed to its destination the last of March each year, and much interest is taken in the final packing before it is sent upon its long trip.

John McComb Dead.

Died, in Millbrook, on Friday, February 29, 1924, John McComb in his 69th year. The funeral took place from his late residence, Anne street, on Monday, March 3, at 2 p.m., his pastor, Rev. S. T. Tucker, having charge of the services both at the house and grave-side. Interment took place in the Presbyterian Cemetery.

The pallbearers were Messrs. William Ward, H. Lang, Robert Lunn, Charles Lunn, W. H. Coombe, J. McBride.

The immediate surviving relatives are his widow, and one daughter, Mrs. Lloyd Newton of Cavan. There are two grandchildren. The floral tributes included a spray from the Ladies' Aid of the Methodist Church, of which Mrs McComb is a member of long standing, and also from the executive of the Sunday School in which organization Mrs. McComb has given faithful service extending over a period of many years.

Wedding Anniversary.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Clarke of Weyburn, Sask., will be interested in the fact that on Monday, March 3, they quietly celebrated the fortieth anniversary of their wedding day. The family being widely scattered, gifts and messages had to largely take the place of personal greetings and good wishes expressed so much more effectively when the actual presence is possible.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarke were the second couple to be married in the present Methodist Church, Millbrook, which about that time was newly built, Mr. and Mrs. H. Kennedy being the first to have their marriage solemnized after its erection and receiving the Bible usually given on such an occasion.

The groom's father, the late Rev Richard Clarke, performed the ceremony. During the many years of their residence in Millbrook, previous to removing to Saskatchewan to make their home, Mr. and Mrs. Clarke made many warm friends who will join with the immediate members of their family in wishing them "many happy returns of the day." As superintendent of the Methodist Sunday School, whirh position he occupied for a number of years, Mr. Clarke was unsparing of time and effort to build it up as an organization of spiritual power, and when because of removal his resignation was regretfully accepted, he left the school thoroughly equipped and organized, up to date in every respect. Its efficiency today is the result of his unstinted service.

When the family was leaving Millbrook, the appreciation felt for his faithfulness was expressed, in some measure, by the presentation of a gold watch suitably engraved, accompanied by an address, the public gathering which marked the occasion being largely attended. Mrs. Clarke, who had taught in the school for some years, was also remembered.

Of the children, all of whom were born here—Watson, the eldest son, is living at Moose Jaw, Sask.; the two daughters, Laura and Jessie, are at home, the former who took her B.A. degree last year, teaching in Weyburn Collegiate; the youngest son, Rev. C. W Clarke, has his pastorate in British Columbia, and Wesley is manager of the Bank of Toronto at Cardinal, Ontario.

Although Mr. Clarke had a serious illness with pneumonia this winter, he has recovered, and both he and Mrs. Clarke are enjoying a fair measure of health. Mrs. A. Ferguson, the aunt with whom previous to her marriage Mrs. Clarke made her home, expects to celebrate her ninetieth birthday in June of this year.

Personals.

Mr. J. T. V. May of Toronto was the guest of his sister-in-law, Mrs. E. S. Burnham, over the week-end. Mrs. May, who has been visiting her sister for the past month, is remaining for a more extended stay.

Miss M. Needham has been the guest of friends in Peterborough for the past week.

Miss Edna V. Eastcott of the University of Toronto, spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Eastcott, Park avenue.

GETS LETTER MAILED IN '61.

Epistle Reaches Destination After Sixty-three Years.

TIRO, O., March 6.—Failing, after sixty-three years, to reach its destination, a letter, written in 1861, has just been delivered to Mrs. Charles F. Luddy, local resident and widow of the writer of the letter.

While encamped at Petersburg, Va., as a member of a New York regiment during the Civil War, Charles F. Luddy wrote the letter and addressed it to his mother, then residing in Switzerland. The letter was sent to Luddy's widow by officials of the dead-letter office at Washington.

GAVE BIRTH TO TWINS.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 5. — Mr. and Mrs. Vincent B. Coffin, of Selkirk, N.Y., near here, announce the birth of twins, a son and a daughter, on Saturday, here in the Albany Hospital. The children will be named Rush and Jane. Mrs. Coffin was formerly Miss Gertrude Rush of Peterboro, Ont. Mr. Coffin is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Seward V. Coffin of No. 70, South Swan street, this city.

VISITORS GATHER TO SEE KING TUT

Howard Carter Takes a Back Seat in Favour of Government.

LUXOR, March 6—(United Press) —Luxor was gay with flags and bunting in the Egyptian national colors to-day, and crowded with sight-seers and natives and distinguished visitors here for the official re-opening of the tomb of Tutankhamen, under Government supervision.

Three luxuriously fitted special trains arrived from Cairo, bringing members of the Government, who came to pay their respects at the shrine of one of Egypt's first rulers. Two hundred notables, including Viscount and Viscountess Allenby, the Duke and Duchess of Aosta, and virtually the entire diplomatic corps came along.

No longer was Howard Carter, who is forced to content himself with a law-suit in the Cairo courts, the perspiring master of ceremonies, whose word was law.

The special correspondent of the news syndicate to whom Carter and Lord Carnarvon sold the news rights to their discovery was forced to take his chances along with the corresnpdents representing the press of the world.

SEA DOGS HUFFED OVER GOVERNMENT

Some Threaten to Resign Because Naval Base Project Killed.

LONDON, March 6. — (United Press.)— Admirals of the British Fleet are at odds with the Labour Government and resignations from the admiralty board are expected, as a result of the announcement by the Daily Mail to-day that MacDonald Cabinet has killed a proposal to construct a naval bas at Singapore.

An official announcement says the question of a Singnapore base "is still under consideration," but the Mails announcement is believed to be correct.

The quesition of continuing or discontinuing construction at Singnapore has become a source of serious divergency between high naval officers who advocated construction of the base in question.

Tooth brushes and mirrors are said to be unknown on Porto Santa Island, off Madeira.

Nearly Choked on Her Food

Discouraged with medicines, Mrs. Stewart tries Dreco as last resort---Immediate improvement follows and she now feels better than for years.

"During the past three years, I have suffered untold agonies from stomach trouble," says Mrs. R. Stewart of 164 Smith street, Peterborough, Ont. "Everything I ate fermented, causing a gas that made me miserable. My food would sour and come up in my throat, nearly choking me. I had a very poor appetite and, in fact, was afraid to eat on account of the awful after results.

"My liver was sluggish and I was subject to dizzy spells, spots floating before my eyes and similar distresses.

"I had become discouraged by repeated failures of other medicines, when I heard of Dreco and decided to give it a trial. I felt better from the very start. I have only taken two bottles of this wonderful medicine, but am nearly all well again. I feel better than for years.

"I can eat most anything now and am scarcely bothered by a trace of my old digestive troubles. My appetite is good and my liver active and I no longer have dizzy spells or spots before my eyes. My bowels, too, are regular, which is certainly a great relief from my former condition of chronic constipation.

Dreco is the ideal tonic and regulator for finicky stomachs, lazy livers and digestive troubles generally. It thoroughly cleanses each of the vital organs and purifies the blood. Dreco is purely herbal and contains no mercury, potash or habit-forming drugs

Dreco is being specially introduced in Peterborough by Bond's Drug Store. It is also sold as follows:
Lakefield—E. H. Northey.
Campbellford—J. E. Birks.
And by a good druggist everywhere.

Miss Boissineau Tells How Cuticura Healed Pimples

"About three years ago I was bothered with pimples on my face. The pimples were hard and small and festered, and my face was disfigured for a while. They oftentimes caused me to lie awake hours at a time as the irritation was so great.

"I tried different remedies but without any relief. I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and after the first application I could see an improvement. I continued using them and was completely healed after using three cakes of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment." (Signed) Miss Rose Boissineau, 12 Bellevue Ave., Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.

BANKERS' DANCE

One of the most successful social events of the season was the second annual dance of the Bankers of Peterboro, held Monday evening in the G.W.V.A. hall, with an attendance of over four hundred people. The floor, the music, the decorations and the supper were all of the very highest order, and the big crowd that filled the hall seemed to have an exceedingly jolly time. The committee which carried out the very successful affair was composed of the Misses M. Conner, M. Drope, M. Evans, G. Mulholland, J. Stapleton, and Messrs. J. F. Gaiger and W. E. McWilliams. Patronesses were: Mesdames V. Eastwood, J. W. Fraser, John Crane, E. S. Martin, D. D. Brown, A. L. Stedham, N. E. Phelan, E. J. H. Vanston, C. H. Pennefather, W. H. Dunsford, C. S. Cummer, G. B. Richardson, E. Ackman, L. L. Sinclair.

The decoration of the hall was unique and striking. A novel effect resembling the interior of a huge tent was achieved by constructing a false ceiling which hung below the real ceiling, covering the electric fixtures and the windows. Forty-eight hundred square feet of crepe paper was used in the construction of the odd interior arrangement. The false ceiling, through which the light came in subdued fashion, was a woven checkerboard of large yellow and green squares of crepe paper. Stretching in an unbroken expanse to the walls and obscuring the windows were lengths of the same colors in a striped effect, ending in a deep fringe. Upstairs, where supper was served, decorations were carried out with flowers and candles and colored shades for the lights. Palms and ferns were arranged around the orchestra stand. The orchestra, Archie Ewart and his harmony group from Toronto, made a real hit. Included in the five pieces were two pianos and a trumpet. The pianist, Mr. Harvey, gave a special number a vocal solo, with an encore.

A programme of novelty dances included a serpentine crepe number, a balloon dance and a favor dance, where the general color scheme of green and yellow was carried out in the floral favors, of white carnations and sprigs of green fern to the gentleman and double yellow tulips to the ladies. The printed programmes were brightened in a unique manner by a descriptive tag for each several of the fox trots labelled in such manner as "The Teller's Tale", the "Clearing House Parade" or "The Stenographer's Glide," the waltzes and novelties coming in for the same treatment.

Among those present, with many others, were:

Mr. and Mrs. Vanstone, Mr. and Mrs. Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Cummer, Mr. and Mrs. Fraser, Col. and Mrs. Ackerman, Col. and Mrs. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Pennefather, Mr. and Mrs. Killaly, Mr. and Mrs. Chris. MRS. DAVIS NERVOUS WRECK

Tells Women How She Was Restored to Perfect Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Winnipeg, Man.—"I cannot speak too highly of what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I was a nervous wreck and I just had to force myself to do my work. Even the sound of my own children playing made me feel as if I must scream if they did not get away from me. I could not even speak right to my husband. The doctor said he could do nothing for me. My husband's mother advised me to take the Vegetable Compound and I started it at once. I was able to do my work once more and it was a pleasure, not a burden. Now I have a fine bouncing baby and am able to nurse her and enjoy doing my work. I cannot help recommending such a medicine, and any one seeing me before I took it, and seeing me now, can see what it does for me. I am only too pleased for you to use my testimonial."—Mrs. EMILY DAVIS, 721 McGee St., Winnipeg, Man.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

By Clive Roberts Carton

QUEEN NANCY AND KING NICK

"What do you want?" cried the king shakily.

On went the Twins through the hallway of the palace toward the throne room where sat their majesties, the giant king and queen of Beanstalk Land.

Everywhere the Twins went in their enormous seven league boots, the same thing happened—servants and courtiers and ladies-in-waiting fled in dismay at their approach. Because the Twins were not to be seen at all and the boots appeared to be walking by themselves.

The cook fled, the pages fled, and the court jester fled, all of his jingling like Santa's reindeer on Christmas Eve.

"What is the matter with everybody?" shouted the giant king angrily. "Has everybody gone crazy? Come back here, every one of you, and get to your places at once!"

Just then he spied the empty boots approaching (or at least he thought they were empty) and his knees began to shake, and he shivered all over until his tall crown threatened to roll off his head. And the queen did the same, shivered and shook, until her crown nearly fell off, too.

They would have run away as well as the others, but how could they—with long robes and trains and a few other things that would have tripped a circus actor in two seconds.

"Stop! What do you want?" cried the king shakily.

"Lots of things!" called out Nick as loudly as he could. Of course the king thought it was the boot talking.

"If you will only stop where you are," begged the king, "I will give you whatever you ask."

"So shall I!" declared the queen.

"Then," shouted Nick, "take off your crowns and make the Twins king and queen of Beanstalk Land."

"Who?" asked the surprised king.

"The Twins, Nancy and Nick," answered the boot, I mean, answered Nick's voice out of the book.

"It shall be done at once," declared the king taking off his crown and laying it down.

"Anything you say, good boot!" said the queen taking off her crown, too.

"Now, then," said Nick's voice again, "since you have not been a kind king or queen to the giants in Beanstalk Land, you must obey every command of the new king and queen."

"Yes, yes, yes!" agreed the king and queen quickly. "We will do anything at all. Where are these people?"

"Right here!" shouted Nick, and quick as two little squirrels, Nancy and Nick scrambled out of the seven league boots and hopped up on the throne and sat down.

The real real king and queen were too much astonished to speak, for never in their lives had they seen such tiny creatures.

"Put the boots away, please," said King Nick.

"Certainly, sir!" answered the Beanstalk King. "Anything else, sir."

"Yes," put in Nancy. "Bring me a chocolate ice cream soda, with two straws."

"Certainly, ma'am!" said the Beanstalk Queen, and she hurried away to the kitchen.

It was great fun to be king and queen of such a big country.

CHAPTER XI.

Moonlight and Quelques Fleur.

"I can't think what you see in that stupid little country chit," remarked the fascinating Jinny, as the two-seater car slid through the gates of the lodge and onwards towards the Towers.

Bertram Traynore had the grace to look a trifle sheepish.

"She's all right ; a mere kid, as you say."

Jinny shot a sharp glance at him in the moonlight. Did he think that she herself was a generation older Had he the least inkling of her age?

Men like Traymore were remarkably astute in lots of ways. It would be frightfully annoying, considering the time and troulbe that she took with her appearance, if the truth leaked out!

Not, of course, that she couldn't hold him, if she wanted to! Jinny had that valuable asset—a tremendous belief in her own powers of fascination.

She had few illusions, and none concerning nem. They were "fair game" and deserved all they got. If she hurt them in the long run—and she flattered herself that she had brought pangs of wounded vanity a few!—hadn't every man Jack of them hurt a shoal of women in their day?

By some (to herself) perfectly logical process, Jinny rather considered herself a woman's champion, each scar that she inflicted on the enemy being part payment for past folly on his part!

It was a salve to conscious, too, this attitude of mind.

As for Bertram Traymore . . . heavens! . . . the world was full of him! His cajoling tricks, his crocodile pathos, his eternal bid for sympathy —they were all an open book to her.

What was he saying now to cover up the awkward silence? Something about men alwqys wanting to make love to her? Well, why shouldn't they? She worked hard enough to "make a hit" with the tiresome creatures; heaven alone knew why!

"You're hard-hearted, Jinny! You might slow up the machine and let a fellow have a chance to talk with you."

He put a hand on hers.

She slowed up, turning a quizzical face towards him.

"Want to do a little vulgar spooning, eh?"

This crudity of speech was not her usual "line" at all. Jinny was piqued to-night, the man decided quickly.

Why?

Because of pretty Prudence and the apple-orchard, and the fact of the stolen meetings inadvertently leaked out!

There was something queer about all women, darn 'em! You never knew when you had, or didn't have, them! Odd and illogical, with very little rhyme or reason to their doings!

Hadn't Jinny snubbed him persistently for the last week? Yet now she was annoyed because he had betaken himself elsewhere for solace!

Prudence was a sweet young girl, and he was darned fond of her he told himself, with a fatuous smile that Jinny did not see. Her simple charm was in antithesis to the appeal of the sophisticated damsel by his side who now was "piqued" with him.

"Like honey—and—and—and caviare!" He was amused at the acuteness of his own perception an the, aptitude of the comparison! Honey was sweet and fresh and natural, but its very sweetness—if one had too much of it—was cloying. But as for caviare—heavens! it was inordinately expensive—just like Jinny, and food for millionaires. Hadn't a tiny scrap of it, served on a tiny piece of buttered toast (at the demand of this self-same high-priced Jinny), cost half-a-guinea on his last trip to town? Wine and caviare were nectar and ambrosia of the gods; so Miss Virginia Dale must be a goddess!

Gee! that metaphor wasn't so far far out. She was good-looking! The moonlight on her cleverly "assisted" skin lent an etheral beauty to her clean-cut features, toning down a certain hardness that occassionally was visible.

But Prudence . . . ah! she could stand any test. Something tugged for a moment at his—no, not heart, because Bertram Traymore didn't cultivate such a disturbing organ. But as he thought of Prudence's fresh young beauty, the instinct to reach out and seize it for his own, much as a greedy little boy will pick some lovely flower to satisfy a passing and ephemeral fancy caught him, giving him a predatory thrill.

If only she'd cut out this nonsense about wanting to introduce him to her parents! The old folks wern't in his line at all. He'd caught glimpses of a patriarchal father pottering round the farm and looking old enough to be Prudence's grand-dad . . . handsome chap but sort of stern and uncompromising. Would ask awkward questions and maybe try and corner him about his "intentions" as those old codgers sometimes did!

"Intentions"? Obsolete and stupid word!

Now that he intended giving Prudence up; oh no! Dashed if he wasn't half in love with her!

But meantime there was Jinny, who was maddeningly attractive and knew all the ropes in a way the country maiden didn't. He had been crazy about Jinny at one time and still had a drawing power with him

In his beguiling voice he said, softly: "Moonlight . . . and Virginia . . . and the scent of daffodils! Aren't they enough to go to a man's head . . ."

The girl beside him gave a studied laugh.

"It isn't daffodils you smell, but "Quelques Fleurs" imported from Paris at twenty-five dollars a bottle! I'd imagine that would touch a man's pocket quicker than his head or heart!"

This was disconcerting; Jinny's wits were much too sharp.

"A chap like me isn't in the running; I'm too poor, I know," said he ruefully. "But you can't blame me if, like the moth, I flutter around the candle till my wings get singed."

She turned towards him in the moonlight, an uncompromising look upon her face.

"Whether singed or broken, those wings will always be quite strong enough to flutter off to lesser lights. You can't fool me!" she flung at him.

In To-morrow's instalment Virginia analyses her "Queer, Restless Feeling."

DAWN OF WOMANHOOD

A Time of Difficulties When Watchfulness is Needed.

Some girls upon the threshold of womanhood drift into a decline in spite of all care an attention. Even strong and usually lively girls become weak, depressed and irritable, and listless. It is the dawn of womanhood—most important in the life of every girl—and prompt measures should be taken to keep the blood rich and pure. If your blood is not in a healthy condition at this stage, the body becomes ill-nourished and other ailments develop. If the health is not maintained by a sufficiency of rich, red blood, all sorts of weaknesses are likely to arise. Remember this, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have saved thousands of girls and women from being life-long invalids, because of their wonderful blood-making properties.

The value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to young women whose health was failing has been proved over and over again. These pills are the most reliable blood builder, fortifying weak nerves and creating the liberal supply of red healthy blood which a girl needs to sustain her strength.

You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

SCHOOL ASSOCIATION HELD A GOOD MEETING

An open meeting of the King George Home and School Association was held on Tuesday evening, with a good attendance of nearly one hundred of the members and their friends. The president, Mr. James Ellis, occupied the chair for the splendid musical programme given, which was followed by the service of light refreshments. During the short business session, it was announced that the banner for the past month had been won by Miss Eva Outram's room. The following programme was much enjoyed: Vocal duet, Mabel Bettes and James Ellis; vocal trio of juniors, Florence Greer, Isabel Girven and Lillian Grierson, accompanied by Jean Hurl; vocal solo, Miss Zoe Doyle; piano numbers, Mrs. J. Smith, Mrs. Jas. Ellis and Velma Scott; piano duet, Jean Hurl and Florence Greer; violin solos, George Record, accompanied by Florence Record, Samuel Merson, and Mr. Clifford Chapman, accompanied by Mr. Sherwood Kennett; and readings, Hazel Foster, Dorothy Dodds, Margaret Scott and Nellie Day. Mrs. J. Smith and Miss Aleitha Scott acted as accompanists. Community singing was also a part of a very pleasant programme. Thanks were expressed to the various soloists assisting.

At last night's session, Mrs. V. Hamilton was appointed as secretary for the year.

NO SWEETS FOR DEBATERS.

Michigan Normal School Girls Especially Warned Against Chocolates.

KALAMAZOO, Mich., March 6.—No pastry or sweets of any kind will be allowed during the debating season to the members of girls' teams at the Western State Normal School, which has been placed on a strict set of regulations.

While candies of every sort are on the forbidden list, Miss Louisene Rousseau, coach, has particularly forbidden chocolates. Among the other requirements for the debaters is three square meals a day, eight hours' sleep every night, plenty of exercise in the open air and no extra committee work.

TRADES COUNCIL HELD A MEETING

Prominent Labour Speakers May Be Brought to Peterborough.

The Trades and Labor Council had another busy session last evening when some new delegates were seated and credentials for other new delegates received.

The vacancies among the Hall Trustees were filled at the previous meeting, and the following members were duly installed last night: Bros. T. McMurray, G. Stenton, J. Knott and T. Darrah, by proxy.

The question of bringing some prominent labor speakers to town was discussed, and it was decided to try and arrange a joint meeting of the various labor unions in the city, and the Trades and Labor council, to hear addresses from outside speakers on the Labor movement, as it was felt it is necessary for the worker to take a greater interest in his trade organization if he wishes to better his conditions.

The city council's attitude on the application for another license for a Chinese restaurant on George street, was appreciated by some of the members, and a resolution was passed requesting the council not to grant the license for the Chinese restaurant, as requested, when it comes up again for consideration.

A number of other subjects for the good and welfare of the council were discussed, and at the close of the session light refreshments were served, which brought a pleasant finish to a profitable evening, the next meeting being called for Wednesday, March 19.

Got What Pay For.

Although informed by two or three members that he was out of order, Ald. Meehan insisted on introducing a few remarks apropos of the bill for $60,000 presented to the city last week by the Highways Department for 20 per cent. of the cost of construction of Provincial Highways in the Provincial Highway Suburban Area. He did not think there was a man in the Council who knew what the city was being asked to pay for and he didn't think the city should be in any great hurry to pay the bill until it had been investigated. The roads in question were of little or no use to the city until they were completed, and he declared the department to be presumptuous in presenting a bill before a work was finished. He admired Peterboro in having backbone enough to protest the present road legislation as it affects cities.

At 80 Years of Age Was Troubled With Shortness of Breath Palpitation of the Heart And Fainting Spells

Mrs. M. O'Connor, Whitestone, Ont., writes:—"I have been troubled, most of my life, with shortness of breath, palpitation of the heart and fainting spells. I was advised by a friend to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, which I did, and at once found relief, and I have never had a really bad spell since.

I am 80 years of age and always keep them in the house, and when I feel any symptoms of my old trouble coming on all I have to do is to take a few doses. With the help of your Pills I expect to see many years yet. I always recommend them to any one who is suffering from heart trouble."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c. a box at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price, by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

FASHION ON BOARDWALK.

Black, Dark Gray and Brown Lead in Women's Garb.

ATLANTIC CITY, March 6. — Somber colors featured the feminine costumes in the throngs that paraded the Boardwalk to-day in what was pronounced one of the largest pre-Lenten fashion displays.

Blacks and dark grays and browns were the most pronounced, even to the hats. Bright decorations of red, blue and purple, and shell buckles were the vogue in trimmings. Many straw hats with sharply flaring brims wore on view.

PETES OFF TO FALLS TOMORROW

Blue Shirts Clash With Niagara for Intermediate O.H.A. Championship.

It's Niagara Falls or Peterborough for the intermediate O. H. A. championship.

The Falls' team qualified for the finals last night by eliminating New Hamburg, and the big series gets under way to-morrow night, the first game in Niagara Falls.

The return game will not be played in Peterborough, owing to the uncertainty of the ice conditions, and arrangements have been made to play the Petes' "home" game at the Toronto arena on Monday night. It is figured that the Petes' championship chances will be enhanced by this arrangement, which ensures fast ice for both games. They did not care to take chances on being caught on soft ice as New Hamburg were last night, when the heavy going killed the "Steaks" chances of overcoming the two goal deficit they brought back from the Falls.

A special train to Toronto will give a large number of Peterborough fans a chance to see the finals.

The Petes leave for Niagara Falls on the 7.15 C.P.R. train to-morrow moning, returning at noon Saturday.

COAL MINE WORKER HAS BEEN RELEASED

TRURO, March 6. — (Canadian Press).—James S. McLachlan, Cape Breton, Labor leader, who was serving a sentence of two years' imprisonment for seditious libel growing out of the Labor trouble last summer, arrived here from the Dorchester Penitentiary yesterday, having been released on a ticket-of-leave. His wife met him at the station.

McLachlan stated that he intended to rest for a while, and that he might do some farming on his few acres of land in the spring. He would do nothing to split up the Miners' Union but was ready to work for the miners if they wished it. He declared emphatically that he would never dig coal again.

NORTH MONAGHAN IS LOOKING FOR SPRING

NORTH MONAGHAN, March 6. —The crows are now flying around in great numbers as their advent is supposed to herald an early spring let us hope they are true phophets.

The stork brought a pair of twins recently to a North Monaghan family —this pair brings up the total to fourteen—not a bad record.

A service was held in St. George's Church on Ash Wednesday morning.

The season of Lent having now commmenced the soft pedal is supposed to be put on all amusements.

Mr. West (son in law of Mr. Herman Wilson), King James street, met with an accident, being severely burned.. He is now progressing toward recovery.

The Ladies Guild of St. George's Church are meeting at the home of Mrs. A. Cuffe, McGill Street, on Thursday afternoon of this week.

RADIOGRAMS.

Cuba has 31 stations which broadcast radio programs. There are 18 stations in Havana.

Eighty colleges and universities in the United States operate radio broadcasting stations.

In Canada there are now 36 stations broadcasting, many of which are heard in the United States. They are all identified by their initial call letter C.

Throughout the United States there are 3,000 manufacturers of radio supplies, 1,000 wholesale distributors and jobbers and 25,000 retail dealers of all kinds.

Woodrow Wilson was the first President of the United States to have his voice sent through space by radio. This event occurred July 4, 1919, when he was coming home from France on board the S. S. George Washington.

FUTURE PEACE IS NOW ANTICIPATED

Understanding Between Great Britain and the United States is Best Guarantee.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—(Canadian Press).—King George sees in good understanding between Great Britain and the United States, "the best guarantee for the future peace of the world."

This declaration was made yesterday to President Coolidge at the request of the King by Sir Esme Howard, and marked the presentation of the new Ambassador's credentials to the United States Chief Executive.

Replying to the Ambassador's statement, President Coolidge asserted that "conscious identity of the general aims" existing between the United States and the British Government, "will be a mighty force in bringing to the world just and lasting peace."

"Before leaving England," Sir Esme said, "I was charged both by His Majesty the King and his Prime Minister with messages of cordial and sincere good-will and friendship toward the United States and toward you, sir, as President of this great republic.

"I wish to assure you, sir, that it will ever be my endeavor to maintain and promote in every way those cordial relations between two countries so much desired, not only by those in high places in England, but also by every member of the British Empire."

DRUG TREATIES MAY BE REVISED

Experts Meet Today to Discuss the Situation--Ban Production.

(By Henry Wood, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

GENEVA, March 6.—With Edwin Neville of the State Department, representing the United States, a commission of six met here today under the auspices of the League of Nations to draw up two new international treaties to enforce the American policy toward traffic in opium and other harmful drugs.

The policy, embodied in the Porter resolution in congress was adopted as a basis for the League of Nations campaign against Narcotic Drugs, through the efforts of Representative Porter and Bishop Brent. It declares illegal all use of opium, morphine, cocaine and heroin except for purely medical and scientific purposes.

The commission which met here today was charged with drafting one treaty prohibiting production of poppies, leaves and derivative products, except in authorized quantities regulated by international law. Treaties drawn up by the commission will be submitted to an international conference called by the league for November. The United States is expected to play a leading role at this conference as virtually the only disinterested nation.

The men who met today, besides Neville, were Sir John Jordan and M. Brenier, opium experts of the League of Nations and representatives of Holland, Poland, France and England.

Besides the convention to limit production of poppies and cocaine leaves, will be one declaring illegal the use of opium for smoking purposes in Pacific countries.

Today is the first time that the United States has sought to play a leading role in a League of Nations project and to impose its policy internationally throughout the latter.

GERMAN ELECTION TO BE HELD SOON

A MUCH FAVORED STOCK

Of the 78,804 shares of its capital stock sold by the Bell Telephone Company in 1923, so the Company's Annual Report says, 61,553 shares were bought by the share-holders, shares were purchased in one block 4,751 by Bell employees, and 12,500 for a British investor.

The wide distribution of Bell Telephone Company stock amongst some 12,000 share-holders, who are largely customers of the Company, and amongst employees, can hardly fail to create better relationships and strengthen the Company's position in the eyes of the public.

HAREM LADIES GOING TO VISIT THE STATES

CONSTANTINOPLE, March 6.—United Press.—Some of the harem ladies of the ex-Caliph of Turkey's household, harems, eunuchs and all, are going to the United States.

The Caliph himself informed the United Press that he intended to spend the summer in Switzerland and go to Egypt next winter.

The ex-Caliph's household, numbering about 100, including attaches and their harems, were leaving today.

Some plan to go to America; others fear anti-polygamous laws, which they believe might exclude those having two or more wives.

ARMY ESTIMATES SHOW REDUCTION

LONDON, March 6. — (United Press).—Great Britain is going to spend seven million pounds less on military preparations in 1924-25 than during the current year.

The army estimates published today reveal a reductio for the next fiscal year from $2,0000,000 pounds to 45,000,000 pounds. The estimates provide for a standing army of 152,592 men of all ranks, exclusive of the Indian army, compared with 154,536 this year.

RADIO NOTES.

Rubber tape is better than friction tape for aerial work.

Never tinker with the set and expect satisfactory service.

A vacuum tube is fragile; do not handle it like an ordinary incandescent lamp.

Do not use a gas pipe for a ground, as this is strictly against insurance regulations.

A good aerial and a fair receiver will do as good work as a poor aerial and a good receiver.

When experimenting with various hookups, make up about a dozen leads of various lengths with snap connections.

If a soft satin finish is desired on the panel rub it with coarse sandpaper, finishing with several rubs of fine steel wool, rubbing in one direction.

Great care should be exercised to see that the A and B battery leads make firm contact. A resistance in these leads will often cause an audio squeal.

OMEMEE COUPLE

old friends poured in by mail this morning, among them a letter from a school chum of Mr. Nugent, who, with the aged bride-groom, is the last survivor of one company of those who took part against the Fenian Raiders in 1866 and 1870.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Nugent come of ancient pioneer stock. The former's father(an Irishman, landed in Port Hope and settled in Tyronne, and the latter's parents from England, same to Prince Edward County in the old days. Mr. Nugent, born in Durham County, in 1845, is 78 years old, and his wife, a native of Prince Edward County, born in 1849, is 74 years of age. "I never minded telling my age, and I really don't feel old at all," said Mrs. Nugent, who has bequeathed her larkspur-blue eyes to her daughter and the little granddaughter who frolicked about in a blue frock.

Both are hale and hearty, and both are splendid specimens of the old stock. Mrs. Nugent is a frail little lady, with pretty waved, silvery hair and pink checks. She does not wear spectacles, as her husband does when reading, and, like him, her hearing appears to be excellent. There is no suspicion of a stoop about the shoulders of Mr. Nugent, who is keenly interested in the main issues of the day. "I knew long ago there were three things that they couldn't stop. Even when they put Mrs. Pankhurst in prison, I knew women would get the vote some time, and I was sure that Ireland would get Home Rule. The other thing that I think will come about is church union." Mr. Nugent is much alive on the question of politics, and differs from his wife on the question of voting. Mrs. Nugent, who cast a vote for the first time last year, and enjoyed the experience immensely, believes in supporting the man, instead of the party.

Mrs. Nugent can remember the time when bobbed heads were all the mode, and when, as young women, she and her sister went to a negro barber in Picton to have their hair cut in the prevailing fashion, "which didn't stay in very long." She can remember well too the times when the women of the house spun the flax and made the family garments and bedding and carpets, when a girl would come for a dollar a week to spin, and when prints and ginghams were ten cents a yard. Those were the days when shoes were made by the cobbler after careful measurings of the foot, and cost two dollars a pair, and when, as her husband put it, "money was the scarcest thing there was."

Mr. Nugent remembers well the days when mail went through the country on horseback, before the building of the Grand Trunk Railway, and when newspapers were seldom seen. He never wrote a letter until he was twenty years of age, because "there wasn't anything to write about," and he recollects the crowd of youths that gathered at the Omemee telegraph office to see the first telegram go over the wire in its paper form, as they anticipated. There was no market for farm produce in those days, except in war time. In the Crimean War days, wheat went up to $2.50 a bushel.

Mr. and Mrs. Mahood lived in Manvers for eight years after their marriage, removing to a farm wit in a mile of Omemee, where th lived for thirty-five years, then co ing into the village to take up re dence with their daughter, Mrs. A. Mahood.

For the average stout figure with excess flesh evenly distributed. Very low bust, long flexible skirt with rubber webbing over front part of thigh that gives perfect control both sitting and standing. White coutil; sizes 24 to 44; $6.50.

Nemo Self-Reducing Corsets enable stout women to preserve good health and good proportions.

JOB DEPARTMENT

MAH-JONGG IS GAME OF YEAR

Has Taken All Classes of Community By Storm — Causes Demand For Shin Bones of Cows.

Not everyone who has a Chinese game played with tiles, dice and counters has the original and genuine Mah-Jongg game, it appears from an interview with a dealer in Peterborough. Ma Jongg without the "H" or with the hyphen omitted or minus a "g", or with any other variation is either a Canadian imitation or a provincial Chinese adaptation of the great game of Mah-Jongg that has taken the country by storm. The pronunciation of the name is said to be "Mah Hung" although popular parlance follows the spelling and gives effect to the "J."

Not only is Mah-Jongg played on the sands at Palm Beach and in society functions throughout the country, but it has entered the homes of the working man and threatens to become for him the game that bridge is for the aristocracy. Mah-Jongg has penetrated to the most inaccessible and select social clubs.

Its gambling inclinations are to some an objection that shut it out of their homes, but in this as in other sports the demoralizing effect probably depends upon the person who plays the game.

Mah-Jongg was introduced into the United States by Joseph P. Babcock, a representative of the Standard Oil interests in China. In consequence of his visiting the many provinces in China and his knowledge of the dialects he was able to learn understandingly the different points in the Chinese games as they were played by the natives. From Ma Tsok, Ma Chenck, Ma Dao and others Mr. Babcock evolved the game Mah-Jongg, which has been adopted by the American Mah-Jongg Association, the London Mah-Jongg Society, the Mah-Jongg Club of China, and the great majority of the smaller clubs in America and the continental countries. Other games which are classed as imitations are Mah-Jung, Mah-Jong, Mah-Jhong; Pung-Chow and Ma Jong and the various original provincial varieties of the Chinese game made in China.

Game is Fascinating

The great feature of the game seems to be its fascination. There are no waits for turns to play. It is anyone's turn to play who can, and no partner looks bored while waiting for the end of the game. The uncertainty of the game adds to the enjoyment, for the person who appears to be winning may find at the end of evening that he is really badly in the hole.

So great has been the interest aroused in this new-comer among American games that in places where it has been taken up with greater vigor than in Peterborough special series of lectures have been given on the playing of the game. In Montreal, for instance, a lecture on Mah-Jongg will be given in the Mount Royal Hotel to-night by J. Wilfred Shaw, an authority on the rules. Babcocks Book of Rules is the Hoyle of Mah-Jongg. The principal difficulty learners have is in the application of the adaptations, and in their mistaking mere conventons of the game for rules.

There are about fifty sets of the real game Mah-Jongg in use in Peterborough, and a steady demand is growing. In some centres the dealers are unable to keep ahead of the requirements and are forced to take orders in advance of their supply.

In connection with the manufacture of the sets, a despatch from Galveston on Saturday stated that three carloads of selected shinbones from cows slaughtered at a Chicago packing house were exported from Galveston to China for the manufacture of mah-jongg sets. The popularity of the game in North America, South America and in European countries is said to have caused a large demand for the bones.

British Ambassador Invited to Montreal.

MONTREAL, March 6.—(Canadian Press).—It was stated here yesterday at a meeting of the executive of the St. George's Society that an invitation had been sent to Sir Esme Howard, the new Ambassador at Washington, to attend the annual St. George's Day banquet of the Society here April 23. The invitation has been extended in the usual diplomatic manner through the Prime Minister, Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King. If His Excellency accepts the invitation it is probable that the Prime Minister, the Governor-General and a number of Federal Cabinet Ministers will also attend the banquet.

Appeals to Police In Search For Husband.

CHATHAM, Ont., March 6.—March 6.—(Canadian Press.)—Mrs. Lucy Billings, of Paris, Ont., has appealed to the County police to aid her in the search for her hasband William Billings who was employed in May, 1922, at a garage at Charing Cross. Billings was regarded as a material witness for the crown at the time Clayton Croft was arrested for the slaying of Gus Noel on a Charing Cross farm. He disappeared, police say, before the trial was held.

FERGUSON

"There has been considerable discussion of the O.T.A. in this debate by members expressing the views of the majority of electors in their ridings? What is the situation? It is a law passed by this legislature, confirmed by referendum of 1919, with an implied understanding that only a referendum would repeal it. The Premiers' speeches also indicate this. There is now a bill before the House, vague and indefinite in its terms, which can be fully discussed when it comes up and which is the proper place for discussion. The Premiers' interview in Monday's papers indicate there is to be a plebiscite and that legislation will follow the vote if a change is desired. The O.T.A. will be in force until after next session. The Liberal policy is to enforce the law as expressed by the referendum. Do the people want a vote now? There are many who do. But protests against a vote are recorded daily in the press and resolutions against a new vote are coming daily to members of this House. The O.T.A. may have its defects and may be hard to enforce, but the responsibility for a vote rests with the government. It refuses to submit the law to the judgment of the people. It proposes an academic vote. This is a direct breach of faith with the people. If there is a vote it should be on the repeal of the act and a suggestion of what shall take is place."

Hon. Mr. Price's Reply.

Mr. Price said the net result of the year's operations had been to add fifteen million to the provincial debt and add an interest charge to Ontario for the next 20 years of $800,000 a year. He declared that the inefficiency and extravagance of the late government was the reason for it. Mr. Price maintained that all borrowing was done with the approval of the legislature. However, it would be improvident for a govthought it needed at one time of the declarations of detail of policy as to year, and therefore the government simply got power to borrow when it thought the best time. Regarding the criticism that he had given no declartions of detail of policy as to the future Mr. Price said that the part of his address most pleasing to the people was when he announced there would be no new taxation. The public was satisfied with the government attempting to get along with the monies which are collected from present taxation. As for failing to bring down the probable expenses and revenue of each department the treasurer said he wanted a year before the could make such estimates. He mentioned the audit as recovering considerable revenue that would have been lost. Talking of expenditure Mr. Price said that in the Forests and Lands department it was hoped to make a saving of $400,000. Mr. Price also announced that the government had decided to cut down on the main estimates including grants to various institutions and associations. There would also be more careful consideration to university grants. "If any branch of education is to suffer then would it not be wise for us to call a halt on higher education until we can balance the budget?" he asked.

Juggled by U.F.O.

The contention that the present government was responsible for any of the main estimates was ridiculous as they were passed when the old government was in power. He attacked the U.F.O. members for trying to throw dust in the eyes of the public on their expenditures. By the difference in book-keeping only three millions was added to the deficit of fifteen millions and there was still twelve millions for the U.F.O. to explain. The U.F.O. had charged the cost of commission of inquiry to capital and also added interest charges of a million to it.

No one could blame the present government because the Drury government had made 1922 a 13 month year and robbed the 1923 revenue of one month. To combat the argument that the Drury government was free from partizanship in its money expenditures Mr. Price said that the Hon. Minister of Mines, Mr. Mills had ten bridges built in his riding of Fort William while Port Arthur represented by a Conservative got none.

Duty Free Bonds.

Mr. Price drew attention to what he called "a most outstanding and glaring sand bagging of the province" in the trading in succession duty free bonds. He knew of an estate in which $20,000 of Ontario bonds was left by the death of the owner. The Trust Company who were executors advised selling the bonds at 95, stating that the government at the time would not pay more.

"Upon investigation I found that these bonds were sold by the trust company to the Provincial Securities Company which within a few days turned them over to the government at par" said Mr. Price. Mr. Price said he had been unable to find any address of the Provincial Securities Company or the names of the men forming it. Most of the cheques from the government to them were delivered to personal representatives at the Parliament buildings. "We have heard of blind pigs but it has remained for the late government to countenance a 'blind Bond House' for the purpose of dealing in securities of the province at a most disadvantageous price," said Mr. Price.

Mr. Price said that at this session he would ask approval of the House for loans up to from $35,000,000 to $40,000,000. He said that because of a deficit the interest charges alone this year will be $16,000,000, against $14,000,000 last year. He hoped that in the further supplementary estimates there would be a large decrease.

Set yourself straight on these

Bran facts!

If you eat bran it is because you seek relief from constipation and toxic poisoning!

To get the relief your physician will tell you that bran will give—you must be certain to get Kellogg's Bran, BECAUSE it is ALL BRAN! That is the kind your physician intends you to eat.

You only delay positive relief when you eat foods with a partial bran content, because they can only help you in proportion to the amount of bran they contain! You haven't time to waste on 25 per cent or 50 per cent relief when you know that Kellogg's Bran will give you 100 per cent relief BECAUSE IT IS ALL BRAN!

Every day's delay lets your condition become worse! Pills and cathartics can only aggravate distressing conditions. Part bran foods cannot permanently help you! They do not have the necessary bulk or roughage that makes ALL BRAN positive in its mechanical action! That is why Kellogg's Bran is a necessity!

Kellogg's Bran—because it is ALL BRAN—is GUARANTEED to give you permanent relief if you will eat two tablespoonfuls each day, or as much with each meal in chronic cases!

If you would realize how delicious Kellogg's Bran is—cooked, krumbled and ready to eat—and what it means to your health—you would not lose a minute starting to eat it! All grocers sell Kellogg's Bran in the Red and Green package.

PETES ELIMINATED BY KINGSTONAGGREGATION

Lose Game By 1 Goal and Round By 2 — Played Brand of Hockey That Should Have Carried Them Through.

Peterboro Juniors were eliminated last evening at the Trenton Arena, when the Kingston Circle Six team defeated them by the score of 1 goal to 0, and won on the round by 2 goals. Although the Petes were beaten, they were never outplayed, and deserve credit for the great showing that they made this season.

The Petes have played good hockey during the last two games away from home, and not up to the standard in the Brock Street Arena. This was caused by the razzing the players got from some of the more ignorant class of fans who slam the players instead of encouraging them. Lou Lebarr, the local net guardian, for instance, has been razzed so much during the games this winter, that he don't care if he ever plays hockey again. In Whitby and in Trenton he played first-class hockey, while at home he did not show up nearly as well.

The young Petes played a great game last night, and only lost the game by not getting any of the breaks. They outplayed the Kingston team in the second and third periods, but could not register on Grey in goal, who was a mate for Lebarr.

The Kingston boys gave every ounce they had, but the steady teamplay of the Petes was too much for them, and in the last frame the Kingston forwards were going around with their tongues hanging out.

With the whole team up on the forward line for the last five minutes the Petes gave Grey in the nets the busiest time of his life, and threw a scare into their followers, who for the only period of the game ceased yelling, and sat up and took notice of the Petes, who broke away every time two and three abreast.

Condition of Ice.

During the afternoon the ice surface was covered with water, and at night it was almost as bad, although the water had been swept off. It was very good for the condition of the weather, but was a little softer than it was in Peterboro, and made it much harder for the players.

The first period opened up at a fast clip, but soon slackened down a little. After 13 minutes of play Kirby scored a flucky goal from a mix-up in front of the net. The Petes came back stronger than ever but were outlucked several times when they had nothing but the goalie to push the rubber past. The two teams battled the remaining 7 minutes at a fast pace, but neither succeeded in scoring, and when the period ended Peterboro was still without any, while Kingston had 1.

In the next twenty minutes the Petes set a fast pace, which kept the Circle Six boys hustling to keep up. The Petes forced the play all during this period, and missed several nice chances to score. The Kingston boys stuck to the pace set by the Petes for the first ten minutes, but for the latter half they were falling all over themselves in an attempt to stop the onrush of the fleet-footed Blue and White aggregation.

The Petes, seeing that they were beginning to show signs of fatigue, forced the play all the more, and set a dizzy pace that made Kingston's two-goal lead look very small. Peterborough had the better of the play in this period and in the final one, but could not register, no matter what they did, as the breaks were against them every time. They deserved to win the game in this period, and they had so much hard luck that a great number of the fans changed their yelling from Kingston to Peterborough, and they kept it up for the rest of the game.

The third period was practically the same as the second, with the Petes still having the best of the play and skating the Circle Six boys off their feet. They battled for several minutes with the puck, taking regular pilgrimages from one end of the rink to the other. Five minutes before the final gong the Petes were all rushed upon the forward line. They tore in on Grey time after time, and kept boring shots at him for the rest of the period. Only once or twice in the last five minutes did the Kingstonians reach the Petes' end of the rink, but their efforts were fruitless, and it sure took the heart out of the Petes to see Grey batting them away from in front of the net from all angles.

When the game ended the Petes were one goal down, but they were never outplayed during any stage of the encounter, and were plucky to the end.

For Kingston the outstanding players were Kirby, the little centre man. His rushes were always dangerous, and he carries a hard shot with him. Grey in goal was a running mate with Kirby, and he was unbeatable. Both defence men, Meltz and Lawless, turned in a good game, and they broke up many of the Petes' rushes that were dangerous.

Patterson on right wing turned in an excellent game, while Hartley, on the other wing, was the man who caused the Petes a lot of trouble by his interfering, for which he drew three penalties, and deserved a great many more.

Both subs, Lawler and Laflamme, were equally as good as the rest of the forwards, and their back-checking was one of the shining features.

Every man on the Petes line-up turned in one of the best games of the season and put up a game that should have won them the Eastern Ontario championship handily. Their outstanding player was undoubtedly Lou Lebarr in goal, who turned off a flock of shots. He deserves a great deal of credit for the game he played last night and also the one he played in Whitby, and no doubt as soon as some of the Peterborough fans learn to keep their mouths shut and encourage the players instead of knocking them, they will find that the junior players will play a much better game at home than they have been playing.

Thornton and Holland turned in a nice game on the defence and they broke up a great many rushes by using their body, which took some of the pep out of their brave opponents who came their way.

H. McDougal deserved several goals but could not raise the puck off the ice and when he did, he either missed the net or hit the goalie. Harry Cheu worked like a wild man and his back-checking was good, while on the other wing Neal Collins was the man who did the gunning and checking and he also used his weight to good advantage.

Mel. McDougal and Williams, the subs, went the best of their career and were on the ice as much as the rest and always doing their bit.

The teams lined up as follow:

Peterborough — Goal, Lebarr; defence, Holland and Thornton; centre H. McDougal; right wing, N. Collins; left wing, H. Cheu; subs., M. McDougal and Williams.

Kingston — Goal, Grey; defence, Meltz and Lawless; centre, Kirby; right wing, Patterson; left wing, Hartley; subs. Lawler and Laflamme.

Referee Jacobi, of Toronto, handled the game well.

Summary of the Game.

First Period—
1—Kingston, Kirby, 3 minutes.
Second period—
No score.
Third period—
No score.
Kingston won on the round by 2 goals.

Penalties.

Peterborough — Williams 1 and Cheu 1—total, 2.
Kingston — Hartley 3, Kirby 1, and Patterson 1—total, 5.

Comment.

Manager Lou Lebarr, Coach Walter Jackson, and Trainer Harry Dugan are very proud of the boys for the showing they made last night, and only wish that some of the fans who razzed the young Petes on the Brock Street Rink on Monday night could have been there to see the different brand of hockey that the boys play away from home.

KINGSTON COMMENT

KINGSTON, March 6. — Referring to game at Trenton last night the Whig's sporting editor to-day makes the following comment:

Cheu, the Chinese player of the Peterboro team was particularly good. His back checking was steady and he got away quickly with his rushes, and was always dangerous, as was also MacDougall, the diminutive centre player. The latter had the very large contract of looking after "Tommy" Kirby, the Midget centre man for Circle Six, and the two of them set a fast pace throughout.

Patterson at right wing for Circle Six was his usual hard working self, breaking up dangerous rushes and doing some work of real senior hockey calibre along the rails and in the corners.

On the opposite wing, Hartley turned in a good performance with his daily shooting constantly worrying Lebarr, and his long sweep check overtaking his check on many occasions.

Lawless was there with his whirling rushes and hard shots, and Meltz turned in about the best game he has played this season. Behind them "Blondie" Grey looked after his nets without being once scored upon, and with such markmanship as the Petes showed, that was quite a task.

Both teams played good hockey and the only goal of the game came on a particularly fine piece of headwork when Hartley shot and Kirby parked tenaciously outside the net, banged in the rubber as it was coming back from behind. That was half way through the first period and from then on it became a battle of goal keepers with both of them turning in a fine performance.

The ice was very good considering the kind of weather that has been current. The hockey was exceptionally fine and the sportsmanship of both teams and their treatment by the rink management and people of Trenton was everything that could be desired.

JACK RENAULT'S PLANS.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., March 6 (Canadian Press). — Jack Renault, heavyweight champion of Canada, announced yesterday that after a bout with Cliff Kramer, of the Pacific Coast, in Minneapolis, on Friday, he would go to New York to try to arrange a match with Luis Angel Firpo.

OTTAWA DOUBLED SCORE ON IRISH

New Players Made Good Showing With Finnigan Starring for Ottawa --Score 8 to 4.

TORONTO, March 6.—(Canadian Press.)—S. Patricks' rookies proved unequal to the task of stopping the League leading Ottawa team here last night and Tommy German's men, never extended to the limit, of their ability, won an 8 to 4 victory. As nothing depended on the result there was little excitement and only a few of the fans took any interest in the proceedings. Ottawa showed great form in flashes and indicated that they will not surrender the National League championship to the speedy Canadiens without putting up two thrilling struggles.

Chief interest centered in the work of the new players, "Toots" Holloway, Chris Speyer and Stan Jackson of St. Patricks and Finnigan, the smart right wing signed by Ottawa. All played well, with Finnigan the star, and Jackson a close second. Jack Adams, "Butch" Arbour and Reg Noble did relief work for the locals but they were not kept in action very long. Noble will be back next season, Adams may revert to the Pacific Coast League and Arbour's return to the N. H. L. is doubtful. The veteran has not lived up to expectations.

NIAGARA FALLS WON ROUND 5-1

Qualifying to Meet Peterboro in the Final--New Hamburg Was Opponent on Poor Ice.

KITCHENER, March 6.—(Canadian Press).—In a gruelling game of hockey on the worst ice of the season, Niagara Falls O.H.A. Intermediates last night defeated the New Hamburg team by 3 to 1, thus taking the round by 5 to 1, and qualifying to meet Peterboro in the final.

Good hockey was impossible, and when Niagara Falls got a goal in little more than three minutes of play, it appeared to be all over but the shouting. New Hamburg tied the score toward the end of the period, but Niagara added two more in the third.

New Hamburg had the greater part of the play, mainly due to the fact that they usually had four men up on the attack. After the Falls got their goal they played a defensive game. A collection was taken up by the Kitchener hockey authorities for the Brackenborough fund and $500.40 was realized, while another $55 was added to the total by the sale of hockey sticks autographed by "Snoozer" Troshinski, who was the victim of a nasty eye accident in Toronto last year.

FIRPO AND SPALLA FINISH TRAINING

Mussolini Cabled Encouragement and Inspiration to Italy's Heavyweight.

BUENOS AYRES, March 6 (Canadian Press). — The atmosphere of international rivalry surrounding the bout between Luis Firpo and Erminio Spalla, the Italian heavyweight, which is to take place next Friday night, became intensified yesterday.

This was due to the receipt by Spalla of a cablegram from Benito Mussolini, the Italian Premier, telling Spalla to "keep the Italian colours aloft," and another message from the Italian Boxing Federation encouraging him to victory.

Both Firpo and Spalla ended their hard training yesterday. They had been working for nearly a month.

During his training Spalla has been enthusiastically watched by a great portion of the Italian population of Buenos Ayres.

The sporting writers, although impressed by the boxing ability of Spalla, his speed and ring generalship, are of the opinion that he lacks sufficient punch to hurt Firpo seriously.

CHAMPION DEMPSEY HOLDING CHAMPION PARKE.

Jack Dempsey, who is identified with the prizefight business in the capacity of heavyweight champion, sauntered out to the race track in New Orleans the other day.

"What horsse is this Kid Park riding?" the champion asked.

And they told him,

That day Parke rode two winners home and was in the money three other times.

"You sure are some rider," complimented the fighter, between races.

"I hear you are some fighter, too," came back young Ivan Parke, the sixteen-year-old riding sensation of the turf.

"Y" BASKETBALL TEAM ON ROAD

Intermediates Off to Belleville and Kingston With Margin of Points to the Good.

The local Intermediate squad set out for Belleville at noon to-day.

They will play in the Quinte town this evening and in Kingston tomorrow night.

This is the crucial trip for the Petes. They must play hard to win, as both teams, Belleville Y and Queen's University, are reported to be fast home players, and anything may happen in a basketball game.

The College crew will likely prove their hardest opposition, as even at home they put a scare into the Petes.

However, things are wearing anything but a dull appearance for the locals, as they will carry a nice margin into both games. They bear an 18-point lead over the Belleville quintette, while they will carry into the game at Kingston a 17-point lead over the College crew.

Claire Stuart nor Alex. Darling will be able to make the trip, but Doug. Loomis is carring Howard Young and Bruce Copping along to fill in. The rest of the line-up is the same.

Combs, Yankee Holdout, Signs As School Coach.

RICHMOND, Ky., March 6 (Canadian Press). — Earl Combs, holdout recruit outfielder of the New York Yankees, has signed as assistant coach at the Eastern Kentucky Normal School here, G. N. Hembree, coach, announced yesterday.

Combs, purchased by the Yankees from the Louisville American Association Club, at a price estimated between $50,000 and $60,000, has been unable to come to terms with Manager Huggins.

Combs is asking for a portion of his purchase price, claiming that he had a promise from the Louisville Club that he was to be "taken care of" in that respect.

YOUTH WINS!

Grizzled old dog team drivers laughed at "The Kid" when they heard he was going to try his luck against them in the American Dog Derby. But now "The Kid," Olcott Zarn, 16, of Ashton, Idaho, has the laugh on them. He crossed the tape first. His time for the 25 miles was 2 hours 22 minutes and 40 seconds. "Smoky" Gaston, winner of last year's race, came in third.

PENNOCK HOLDS OUT FOR $12,000

Shawkey, Meusel and Ward Also Demanding Salary Increases From New York Americans.

NEW YORK, March 6 (Canadian Press). — Sam Jones, veteran Yankee pitcher, turned in his signed contract to the New York Club yesterday, thereby reducing the number of holdouts to four.

Aaron Ward, Herb Pennock, Bob Shawkey, and Bob Meusel are still said to be holding out for salary increases.

Pennock, it is understood, demanded a $4,000 increase over what was offered him. While with the Boston Red Sox Pennock drew an annual salary cheque of $5,000, and the Yankees assumed this contract when they bought his release from Boston last winter.

His new contract, according to a reliable source, calls for $8,000, but due to his great record of last year, Pennock believes that he is entitled to $12,000.

Pennock won 19 and lost 6 games last year, allowing but 3.34 earned runs a game, the best record of any member of the Yankee staff.

SOO HAS HANDS FULL TO HOLD STAR ARRAY

Varsity Seniors Backed by World's Champion Hockey Players is Hard Nut to Crack--Hockeyists Rally to Aid of Brackenborough.

TORONTO, March 6—(Canadian Press).— Sault Ste. Marie, senior players arrived in the city yesterday from Galt and coach George McNamara reported that "Stan" Brown and "Babe" Donnelly will not likely play again until next week. There is a possibility that Donnelly will have recovered from his wrenched side in time to take part in the Brackenborough fund game here on Saturday night, but he will not be asked to go the route. McNamara has decided to use "Mart" Burke, star defence man of the St. Mary's Juniors and "Dutch" Cain, former St. Mary's and Aura Lee player.

The northerners can call on Aura Lee, Parkdale and St Mary's for assistance but they feel that their team play would suffer if they shifted the line up and Martin Burke is the only outsider sure to take part McNamara intends to use his own forwards throughout the game and despite the fact that the N. O. H. A. team will not be at full strength he is looking forward to a keen struggle. The soo will oppose one of the most formidable teams ever gathered together, all University of Toronto Senior players backed by the world's champion Canadiain team, Slater and McMunn excepted. If the Soo can hold this array of talent to a close score they will have accomplished a great feat.

Hockeyists are rallying to the aid of Johnnie Brackenborough and already over $2,000 has been collected. There appears to be every reason to hope that the objective $10,000 will be passed. The Toronto committee is determined to raise more money than its rival in Hamilton and this will be a hard task as fans in the ambitious city are loyal to the stricken star.

The arena management will give all the receipts at Saturday's game to the fund and this means that between five and six thousand dollars will be secured. The referees, who will, of course, give their services free of charge.

free of charge are Bobby Hewitson, Lou Marsh and Mike Rodden.

FINALS CHANGED IN O.H.A. SERIES

Peterboro Plays in Niagara Falls Tomorrow Night -- Return Game in Toronto.

TORONTO, March 6.—(Canadian Press).—It has been found necessary to re-arrange the final and semi-final dates in the O.H.A. Senior and Junior series. The most important of these changes is that which has advanced the Senior final between Stratford and Hamilton to next Monday night, instead of to-morrow night. The O.H.A. gave no explanation for this, but it is known that the Tigers are greatly handicapped owing to the fact that they have lost two of their regulars and have no substitutes available. By Monday it is expected that Herb Mitchell, clever left winger, will have recovered enough from his injuries to enable him to get into action in the finals. Mitchell is at present in Victoria Hospital at London, where it has been found that he is not suffering from concussion of the brain.

In the Junior series Kitchener Juniors will go to Hamilton tomorrow night, with the return game at Kitchener on Monday, March 10.

Peterboro will play the first game in the O.H.A. Intermediate finals at Niagara Falls to-morrow night, while the return game will be played on Monday, March 10th, likely at the Toronto arena. The O.H.A. Intermediate champions will meet the Canadian Soo on Wednesday, March 12th, and the winner of that game will play against the O.H.A. Senior champions on Saturday, March 15th, and Monday, March 17th.

The O.H.A. Junior champions and North Bay play a sudden death game at the Arena on Tuesday night, March 18th. Hamilton entered the final games heavy favorites to win the round, but there is a vast difference of opinion now. Stratford's good showing at London, when they should have secured a two or three-goal lead, has won them many supporters, and as the Stratford players are just as effective away from home as they are in the classic city rink, they may win right in Hamilton. Their record shows that they are a formidable machine when playing before unfriendly fans. It is almost certain that the Hamilton team will open up a heavy body-checking game on rather small ice surface at Hamilton. Stratford, light, fast and brainy, are also sturdy, and players like Frank Carson, "Dad" Ashley, Griffin and Larry Berger just glory in heavy going. It Mitchell is in fairly good condition, the Tigers will have a great chance to win. His presence makes the Tigers' attacking line dangerous, and his absence wrecks it. Defensively, Mitchell is one of the Tigers' best players.

LUDENDORFF MAY BE CANDIDATE GERMANY

MUNICH, May 5.— (United Press.)—An old rumor that General Ludendorff proposes to enter politics and stand as a candidate for the Reichstag was revived to-day as the trial of the former Quartermaster-General and others for treason was adjourned until Thursday. Adolf Hitler, another of the defendants, also will run for the Reichstag as candidate of the Volks party, it is believed.

Billy Evans Says

Two teams—the New York Giants and the New York Yankees—have a chance to set a precedent in modern big league baseball play this season. Each have won three consecutive championships. A victory this year would make it four in a row, a feat that no outfit in either league has accomplished since the inception of the two major circuits.

The opportunity now facing the Giants and the Yankees is not unique, however. On at least three other occasions, the same situation has cropped out.

Back in 1910 Detroit had an excellent chance of turning the trick. The Tigers had copped the flag in 1907-08-09, another triumph would have put over the unusual. But after getting away to a sensational start, the team falered and the opportunity went glimmering.

The years previous, or in 1909, the Chicago Cubs set out to win their fourth pennant in succession. But they couldn't add to their victories of 1906-07-08.

CANADIENS DOUBLED HAMILTON.

MONTREAL, March 6.—(Canadian Press).—The Canadiens brought their schedule in the fixtures in the National Hockey League season to a close when they defeated Hamilton here last night by 6 to 3. The game was played on a water-covered sheet of ice, which resulted in the tussle becoming a hockey burlesque which proved highly entertaining to the small crowd of 2,000 spectators if it did not provide any fast displays.

The Canadiens took an early lead with their regulars playing in the first period.

One hundred and eighty-eight dollars was collected in aid of the fund being raised for Johnnie Brackenborough. The members of the M.A.A.A., working in conjunction with the Canadien team, made the collection.

BOXING FANS PLEASED

HAVANA, March 5.—(Canadian Press).—Boxing fans here are jubilant over championship possibilities of Santiago Espera Guerra, Cuban heavyweight, who came into prominence by his quick knockout over Chief Metouqua recently. Espera Guerra is best drawing attraction in Havana, and heavyweights from States will be brought here to meet him in fistic combat.

First heavyweight from States to be made on offer to meet Espera Guerra is Leo Gates, the Mohawk Indian.

WON JUDGE'S DECISION

NEW YORK, March 5—(Canadian Press)—Babe Herman, Pacific Coast featherweight won the Judge's decison over Tommy Noble of England, in ten round bout last night. Benny Valger of New York received the decision over Bud Christienn of Buffalo, in a ten round bout at 130 lbs.

DYSPEPSIA WAS SO BAD Could Hardly Eat Anything

Mrs. C. Stone, Nanticoke, Ont., writes:—"Some time ago I had a very serious attack of dyspepsia, and was also troubled with gas on my stomach. I could hardly eat anything, and very often had pains after meals. I had used different medicine, but they didn't seem to do me any good. At last I happened to run on the track of Burdock Blood Bitters, and after using it for a short time. I felt a lot better. I continued its use until I was completely relieved and now I am ready to recommend it to anyone troubled as I was."

Burdock Blood Bitters is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Cincinnati Manager Removed to Hospital.

CINCINNATI, O., March 6 (Canadian Press). — Manager Pat Moran of the Cincinnati Reds, who has been ill since arriving at Orlando, Fla., on Sunday, was taken to the hospital yesterday by order of his physicians, in the hope that expert care would hasten his recovery, according to news despatches from Orlando.

Moran's condition took a turn for the worse yesterday, and two consultations were held by his physicians who said the manager was suffering from acute stomach and kidney trouble.

AT THE CAPITOL

The majority of those movie goers who have patronized the Capitol Theatre this week for the production of "Scaramouche" are unanimous in their praise of the big, notable picture. As a historical romance, a presentation of the times and manners and events of a far-off, colorful age, it is superb, and the supporting cast is all that could be desired. Little incidents in the picture are treated almost as impressively as the big, crowding events that make the story. Etched against the fury and strife of the storming of the King's Palace is the calm figure of the young Bonaparte, and there is a wealth of human emphasis in the role, momentary but impressive, of the King's Lieutenant, the fat glutton with a wen on the side of his face, who savors his wine with pursed, gross lips. Then there is the gross Binet, chagrined at his failure to claim authorship of the play in which the young hero acts the part of "Scaramouche," and his daughter, the frivolous Climene. All of these minor characters are delineated with precision.

The costumes of the ladies are interesting to a modern eye. Masses of piled-up curls adorn the heads of the ladies, who move with slow, elegant grace in their billowing draperies. And the settings throughout have evidently been staged with an eye to detail which adds so much to the beauty of a fine production.

Tonight affords the last opportunity to see "Scaramouche" at the Capitol Theatre.

MIX IS AIR RANGER IN FILM AT CAPITOL

"Eyes of the Forest" is Thrilling Tale of Love and Daring

Tom Mix's latest starring picture, "Eyes of the Forest," which opens at the Capitol for Friday and Saturday is a romantic story of that picturesque body of daring men, the Forest Air Patrol, of whom little is ever heard. Outside of the fact that it shows Mix in an entirely new role—an army aviator—the picture has the significance of portraying in fiction the actual colorful, thrilling lives of the rangers.

In "Eyes of the Forest" Mix, as Bruce Thornton, an army flier, is assigned to forest patrol service. On his first trip over the woodland, watching for fires and timber thieves he spots an outlaw lumber plant. Landing in a clearance several miles from the spot, he crashes into a hut, disabling his machine by the accident, however, he meets Ruth Meiler, played by Pauline Stark, whom he recognizes as being wanted on the charge of killing her step-father.

Bruce is convinced the girl is innocent. He sets about to prove his contention and encounters Hogan, a member of the lumber stealing band, to whom Ruth was married against her will. Horgan comes after Ruth to take her away from her Uncle, with whom she was hiding from her husband and the law. There is an encounter and Horgan is beaten by Bruce. Horgan decides to take the girl by force and recruits his band to storm the cabin.

An attempt is made to kill Bruce by blowing up the roadway. He escapes unhurt and, racing for his life from the band of mauraders, he leaps from his horse to an airplane. Thrill follows thrill until Horgan is caught and proven to be the real murdered and the leaders of the lumber thieving gang get their due.

AT THE REGENT

History Had Famous Hell's Holes Ever Since the World Was Young

Did you know why sin and night ar, associated

The word "sin" was originally a proper name. In old Babylonia and Assyria, Sin was the name of the moon-god and was brought into those countries by the Semitic nomads from Arabia. The moon-god is the favored god of nomadic peoples.

It takes more than one person, as a rule, to commit sin. Therefore, with the banding together of sinners there came into existence famous hell's holes of history and today.

In Rome, the wild festivals of Bacchus were introduced from lower Italy and held in secret, attended by women only on three days in the month in the grove of Simila, near the Aventine Hill. Subsequently, admisson to the rites were extended to men and celebrations took place five times a month. The evil reputation of these festivals led to a decree of the senate inscribed in Calabria and now at Vienna, by which the Bacchanalia were prohibited through the whole of Italy, except in certain special cases, in which the senate reserved the right of allowing them, subject to certain restrictions. But despite these reservations the Bachanalia were not stamped out.

One of the earliest hell's holes existed during Noah's time and was wiped out by the flood.

Today we come to the hell's holes in Montmartre of Paris; in the Limehouse district of London; in the Hell's Kitchen district of New York in the tenderloin section of Chicago; in certain Atlantic City districts; the Barbary coas part of San Francisco Everywhere—in every village, town, city—there are hell's holes where sin rages in all its lurid forms.

The William Fox feature, "Hell's Hole," comes to the Regent Theatre for a three days run. This big picture, starring Charles Jones, deals with the momentous problems in a man's life who lives in the far West, where one fights at the wink of an eye and dance hall girls and night life provide the outlet for pent-up emotions.

AT THE ROYAL

UNUSUAL CHARACTERS IN "MAN OF ACTION" AT ROYAL

"Frisko Rose," "The Deacon" and "Hoppy" Provide Lots of Fun.

Telling a story of a rich young chap who "always" has done certain things in a certain way because it is proper, and who is suddenly jolted out of his rut by a rebellious sweetheart who sends him out to take a look at life "as is." "A Man of Action," Thomas H. Ince's latest comedy-drama, includes some of the most unusual characters ever brought to the screen. When the poor little rich boy, played by Douglas MacLean, steps out for a glimpse of night life on the Barbary Coast he meets strange adventures and persons at every turn. "Hoppy," a shell-shocked chap with a mania for discovering a noiseless explosive; "Frisko Rose," a marvellously clever "dip," and "The Deacon" are the three members of a gang of crooks with whom he falls in. Raymond Hatton has put over one of the biggest roles of his career as "Hoppy," while William Courtright as the eccentric "Deacon," who is always busy building secret "escapes" so that there will be another way besides the door for hasty exits, gets endless laughs.

The novelty sets are used when the crooks invade the rich chap's house to steal a diamond shipment. "The Deacon," when they are all locked up over night in the house, builds a half-dozen secret exits—and then discovers they all lead into the cellar. MacLean is said to put over comedy even funnier than that in "The Hottentot," in which he has scored such a triumph. Marquerite de la Motte plays the leading feminine role.

"A Man of Action" is now running at the Royal Theatre, commencing to-day.

LOCAL TALENT AT ROYAL TO-NIGHT.

The first of a series of amateur nights commences to-night at the Royal. Among the many contestants so far are:

Harold Armstrong's boys' orchestra, assisted by Jack Roach and Emmett Hickey in vocal solos.

Mickey Hellinger in ballads and comic songs.

David Kerr in Scteh songs.

Mary and Emily Hemphill, Irish dancers.

Katherine Cooney, sailor hornpipe.

Dorothy Cooney, ballet dancing, and as there is always others to report at the last moment patrons are assured of many pleasant surprises. This is all in addition o regular vaudeville and picture program.

ROYAL GETS WEDDING FILM OF MISS BOOTH AND PRINCE ERIC.

The first of a series of amateur publicity and front page stories than any other in our recollection can now be seen on the screen. Films showing the wedding of Lois Booth, the Canadian girl, who married Prince Eric of Denmark, will be shown at the Royal on Friday and Saturday of this week. Owing to the demand for this attraction it was impossible for the Royal management to secure the same for more than two days.

TRY SULPHUR ON AN ECZEMA SKIN

Costs Little and Overcomes Trouble Almost Over Night.

Any breaking out of the skin, even fiery, itchings eczema, can be quickly overcome by applying Mentho-Sulphur, declares a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, this sulphur preparation instantly brings ease from skin irritation, soothes and heals the eczema right up and leaves the skin clear and smooth.

It seldom fails to relieve the torment without delay. Sufferers from skin trouble should obtain a small jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist and use it like cold cream.

THE INDUSTRIAL OUTLOOK BETTER

Number or New Industries Located in Ontario During the Year.

MONTREAL, March 5.—A clear indication of the important part which a great steam transportation system plays in the industrial life of a nation is to be found by an analysis of the annual report submitted to Mr. J. E. Dalrymple, traffic vice-president, by Mr. W. P. Fitzsimons, manager of the industrial department of the Canadian National Railways. This report covers that portion o Canada east of Fort William, served by the National Railways, and it shows such a steady growth in the establishment of new industries and the development of old ones, that there is every reason to suppose that the barometer of business in Canada is pointing to "fair."

During the past year, there located along the lines of the Canadian National Railways, east of Fort William, new industries that will employ approximately 5,000 hands. They cover a wide diversity of activities in the manufacturing and industrial field, some of the commodities to be manufactured being automobile accessories, gasoline, pulp, paper, lumber, oil, casters, hosiery, textiles' excelsior, confectionery, soda fountain supplies, gloves, candied fruits, water pumps, ivory piano keys, broom handles, scales, clocks, chemicals, drugs, iron and steel products, electrical appliances, clothes hangers, cheese and butter boxes.

Similar activity was shown by plants of recent or long standing extensions to plants in the same area during 1923 provided for an increased production that made necessary the employment of 93,000 more hands. These plants also represent a wide divergence of endeavor, some of the manufactured commodities represented being cordage, steel, electrical supplies, soap, explosives, screws, radiators, furniture and automobiles.

It is interesting to note that Mr. Fitzsimons in his report strikes an optimistic tone regarding the general industrial outlook in the Dominion in 1924. He points out that during 1923, in spite of an unsettled economic and political situation in Europe which reacted strongly in an adverse way upon trade conditions in Canada, a most encouraging industrial expansion was carried out in the Dominion. Particularly as it concerned the lumber trade, flour and cereal mills, the automotive and pulp and paper industries and the metal trades, exclusive of the manufacturers of agriculture implements.

Mr. Fitzsimons notes that the lumber trade experienced its most successful year since the war, while the automotive industry enjoyed a banner year. With better trade and economic conditions a stabilization of the international political situation overseas and with the completion of the extensive water power developments that have been under way in various parts of Canada, Mr. Fitzsimons is of the opinion that the present year will be bright in promise for industry and business generally in Canada.

SUDDEN DEATH

TORONTO, March 6—(Canadian Press).— Miss Helen Murray died suddenly from heart failure at her home in Waverley Road, yesterday morning. A popular and active figure in athletics, Miss Murray was captain of Kew Beach War Canoe Club which last year under her guidance won many trophies. She was a lover of outdoor sports, especially bowling, swimming and paddling. On Monday, Miss Murray attended business but she felt weak on Tuesday and remained at home. Her death came with startling suddenness.

CROP REPORTS

The following is a summary of the returns made by the agricultural representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

With the crest of the winter feeding period reached, farmers feel greatly encouraged over the fodder outlook. Except in isolated cases hay, silage and roots are in good quantity, with enough grain on hand for any likely need. Live stock generally are in good shape despite the trying weather of the past month.

Farm labour is in increasing demand, single men being preferred. Experienced hands are being offered $25.00 a month, with keep, for spring work.

Peterborough quotes yearly rates as ranging from $200.00 to $400.00 according to experience, while Hastings reports that single experienced men are offered fro $300 to $400 a year, and married men $800.00.

Bruce—During the past week some thirty young Germans who are experienced farm labourers and appear to be very capable, arrived in the southern part of the county. They have agreed to work for $12.00 a month and keep for the first year. They appear to be already acclimatised, as they do not mind the severe weather as much as some of the local people do.

In nearly ever section of the Province dairying appears to be growing in favour, as returns for milk and its products have been more satisfactory than those for beef cattle. The following remarks regarding the dairy outlook may be taken as typical of the general opinion of most agricultural observers:

Lambton—An increasing amount

Lambton — There seems to be no trouble to dispose of good dairy cows. Prices obtained for dairy cows at local sales are satisfartory.

Lincoln — An increasing amount of interest is being taken by dairymen in the weighing and testing of the produce from their cows. The milk supply holds up well with the demand, and there has been no refusal on the part of the consuming trade to handle all of the produce in this line.

Peterborough — Dairying is becoming more popular here all the time, as a great many farmers who previously were in the beef business are gradually changing over in favour of dairying.

Waterloo — Dairy cows at a sale near Galt this week, sold all the way from $80.00 to $130.00, including both pure-breds and grades. One grade Jersey brought $130.00.

Prices for milk vary considerably with local conditions. Condensary prices in Elgin are from $1.80 to $1.90 a cwt., with prospects of a drop. Cheese factories pay from $1.35 to $1.40 a cwt. In Frontenac milk brings from $1.90 to $2.25 a cwt., and butter fat is quoted at from 40c to 45c a pound. From $2.00 to $2.25 a cwt. is paid for milk in Peterborough, and cream at 44c to 45c a pound butter fat.

Brant — Dairy cattle at sales are selling fairly well and good grade cows running all the way from $50.00 to $85.00. Brood sows are selling cheap lately, while little pigs are down to about $6.00 per pair.

Hastings — Hogs shipped during February graded 22 per cent. selects. Approximately 1,300 hogs were marketed from this county during February.

Ontario — During the two months, 13th December to 14th February, 6,181 hogs were shipped out of the county. It is rather interesting to note that out of that number, 143 or less than 2½ per cent. were sows, which seems to indicate that farmers in spite of the drop in prices in hogs are not unloading to any unusual extent.

Waterloo — Four carloads of Western horses have been brought into this county and have been sold either privately or by auction. Farmers seem to be willing to buy these horses and take a risk on them rather than buy horses raised within the county. There are plenty of horses for sale of home raising. At present there seems to be very little sale for them.

Kenora — A carload of horses was brought in from the West and were sold at an average of $350 a pair. These were in fair working condition and would weigh about 1,400 pounds each.

Ontario — A noticeable feature on the local weekly market has been the unusual supply of poultry. The mild weather prevailing during the holiday season which kept prices low, caused many farmers to hold their young poultry.

Victoria — The renewed interest in alfalfa reported a year ago seems to be continued this year. There is also considerable interest in soy beans as a fodder and pasture crop.

SMALLPOX EPIDEMIC THOUGHT TO BE OVER

WINDSOR, March 6.—(Canadian Press.) — With no new cases or deaths reported during the past 30 hours, Dr. Fred Adams, local Officer of Health for Windsor, and the adjacent municipalities, stated last evening that in his opinion the 'peak' of the smallpox epidemic has been reached and passed and that the disease is now tending downward.

Canadian Stock Exchange And Mines — New York Stock Exchange and Curb Prices

Today's Quotations and Opinion and Reviews of the Markets.

NEW YORK, March 6 (United Press). — Car loadings in the week ended 23rd February again rose to unprecedented levels for the season, demonstrating sustained activity in general business and furnishing a background for the drive against shorts whose position was based on pessimism over the trade outlook. Record railway traffic also suggested that satisfactory February earnings would be shown by the carrier systems and the shares of some of the so-called weaker roads, including Missouri, Pacific Preferred, and Frisco Preferred, were buoyant features of the early trading.

In the industrial list issues recently subjected to professional pressure assumed the leadership, Central Leather issues continued to rally, while Westinghouse came back to 62 1-4 against Wednesday's low of 60 1-4, reflecting the good feeling created by the 10 per cent. stock dividend in connection with the sale of additional shares.

The big feature of the late morning was the fact that French francs in official foreign exchange quotations broke through 4 cents each. The quotation around 11.45 was $.0399 3-4 off $.0008 1-2 from the previous close for a new low record.

Active stocks continued to recover through the first hour, the movement attaining considerable vigour around 11 o'clock, when buying over the Florida wires demonstrated that the operators down there had changed their minds at least so far as the immediate future of the market was concerned.

Steel Common reached a new high on the current rebound at 103 3-4. Baldwin at 123 5-8, American Can at 1161-4, and General Electric at 210 33-4.

Philadelphia and Reading coal and iron was active and strong, selling at 36 5-8 against the week's low of 25 1-4. Reading rights sold at 16 1-8 up 7-8 from the week's low. Coal and iron stock was issued at 39 3-4, sold up to 52, and then declined rapidly for several weeks following the announcement by New York Central of the distribution to stockholders of its Reading rights.

BACK TO THE BONDAGE OF THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC RANEY'S DENUNCIATION

When Do Plebiscites On Liquor Question End, Asked Former Administrator of O.T.A.--Ontario Has Voted Five Times in Thirty Years—Sinclair Protests That Government Ignores the House.

BILL IS ATTACKED.

TORONTO, March 7.—(Canadian Press).—W. E. N. Sinclair, Liberal leader, and Hon. W. E. Raney of the U. F. O. group yesterday both attacked the bill brought in by the Government to provide the machinery for the taking of a vote on the liquor question. Hon. W. F. Nickle spoke on the bill, moving its second reading.

Mr. Nickle argued that temperance was like the tariff, and could not be settled by one vote in a generation. He reviewed briefly the history of temperance legislation in the Province, pointing out that the O.T.A. had been put on the statute books in times of great peril. Mr. Nickle said the question must again be submitted to the people when the right time came. Without this Act getting through the Government would not be able to have a vote.

The Attorney-General believed that the Government should take the whole responsibility for framing the questions to be voted on, and later to put the wishes of the people into effect.

Satisfy Everybody.

Mr. Sinclair said that the bill had the appearance of the fulfillment of the promise of the Premier that when the proper time came he would satisfy everybody on the temperance question.

"This is a real Fergusonian era where a Government takes all the power to itself, and leaves its members in the House without any status at all. The Government is not taking the House into its confidence on this matter. This Legislature should settle the form of vote it will be and when, and it should not be left to the Government alone." Mr. Sinclair said the bill was bad because of one clause there were 26 alternatives to one proposal.

"The more I examine it from a legal standpoint the funnier it gets," he continued. "The whole thing is left open. There is nothing definite about anything. The bill means nothing, and we think we should be informed by this Government what it is going to do, when it is going to do it and why it is going to do it," concluded Mr. Sinclair.

Requested Adjournment.

Hon. W. E. Raney asked the Government why there was such a hurry to get the bill through this session. Mr. Raney requested an adjournment of the debate, but the Premier was unable to comply. Mr. Raney tried to get information from the Government about how it proposed to proceed with the vote on liquor.

"This House and Government will implement just what the public vote for," said the Premier. "If they vote for a change we will submit the necessary legislation at the next session."

Mr. Raney said that the Legislature and not the Government of Saskatchewan had framed the questions being asked in the vote there. Ontario had voted only two and a half years ago and gone dry by 167,000, and in 30 years there had been five votes in the Province. When do we come to the end of these plebiscites. When do we settle down and regard this law as other laws of the Province? I think it safe to assume that if this bill is passed there will be a vote before next August. If not why the bill; why take authority if no use is to be made of it?"

Don't Desire Repeal.

Mr. Raney was sure that teachers, manufacturers, clergymen, farmers and many other classes did not want the repeal of the O.T.A.

"Why is this Government bringing in this big interrogation mark of a bill? Why abandon the offspring of its own party? The answer is that the Premier has heard his master's voice. Eight years ago the Ontario Government, and it was a Conservative Government, achieved independence from the liquor traffic. Now the present Premier is leading the party back into bondage. If this bill becomes law the Conservative Party will be back to the slavery of the liquor trade."

Women Favored For Ordination

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., March 7 (Canadian Press). — The Presbytery of Superior, at its session yesterday, passed a resolution favouring women, with proper educational qualifications, being granted the right to become ordained as ministers, and another proposing that women, working in mission fields, be granted the right to administer the Sacrament.

A motion was also passed that members of the Provincial and Federal Houses be petitioned to support the Church Union Bills.

TOMB REOPENED WITH OLD RITES

Two Bulls Sacrificed By Egyptians In Public Square of Luxor--Sheiks Entertained Visitors.

LUXOR, Egypt, March 7.—(Canadian Press).—The re-opening of the tomb of Tut-Ankh-Amen yesterday for inspection by some 200 visitors, guests of the Egyptian Government, was preceded by the picturesque ceremony, following the custom in the days of the pharaohs, of sacrificing two bulls in the center of the town. The first party, made up of ministers and high officials, were present.

Thousands of natives and sheiks in gorgeous costumes crowded the gaily be-flagged streets, singing to the accompaniment of Egyptian instruments. After the sacrifice the Government Party was entertained by feats of horsemanship performed by the sheiks.

The whole party, including the foreign diplomats, members of Parliament, and Commissioner Allenby, were then taken across the Nile on a Government steamer and to the Valley of the Kings in automobiles through a road lined with soldiers. After refreshments, served in a big tent, groups of eight entered the tomb where the lid of the sarcophagus has been removed since the Egyptian Government took charge of the tomb. A large platform was erected, from which the visitors had and excellent view of the gold-covered figure of the Pharaoh.

Neither Howard Carter, the chief excavator, nor any of his staff was present at the ceremony, which was superintended by Professor Lacau, the French Egyptologist, and the Egyptian Minister of Work.

The tomb will now be closed until March 10, when it will be reopened for ten days to permit the public to inspect it. Yesterday's guests were given a banquet here last night, which was followed by an Egyptian fete and a fireworks display.

NOVA SCOTIA MINERS VOTE DOWN NEW SCALE

HALIFAX, March 7.—(Canadian Press).—The coal miners of Nova Scotia voted almost two to one in yesterday's referendum against the new wage scale negotiated last month at Montreal between representatives of District No. 26 United Mine Workers and the British Empire Steel Corporation. The vote was 5,617 against and 3,145 for ratification of the new scale, totalling 8,762.

The repudiation of the contract carrying with it an increase in wages, negotiated by responsible officials of district and international representatives, has created a situation that is without parallel in the history of the United Mine Workers' Association. The Provincial Executive will place the matter before President Lewis and the International Executive Board at once.

PASTOR'S FIERY DIVORCE SERMON WAS RETRACTED

Tirade Struck Home When Preacher Said Quarrel Took Two Persons — Made Personal Apology When Rift in Church Was Threatened.

WOMEN IN TEARS.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y. March 7.—Because he preached a fiery sermon in which he denounced "both parties" in divorce and declared that divorce was caused sometimes by both husband and wife being at fault, Rev. W. S. Crandall, pastor of the Boulevard Methodist Episcopal Church, left his congregation in tears, precipiated a rift which threatened his church, and has calmed the tornado, church members say, only by apologizing in person to women in the congregation.

Particularly hurt by the minister's onslaught were the leader of the choir, Ray Hartley, whose wife deserted him with two small children, and who since has been married again, and one of the leading feminine singers of the choir, Mrs. Richards, who also has obtained a divorce and a prominent male member, now marrieid to his fourth wife.

Since preaching the sermon Rev. Crandall told members of his congregation he has seen the error of his way and has offered full and complete apology.

"I only hope you will forgive me," he told one of his leading members. "I wouldn't have hurt your feelings or thos, of anyone in the church for anything in the world. I could not have been thinking of what I was saying."

The sermon, starting mildly and quietly, rose swiftly to such vehement heights that it took the congregation's breath. With church members facing him who had lost their mates by desertion or infidelity, he flung at them the challenge that "it takes two to make a quarrel, and both parties are in some way to blame"

The women were worked up to such an emotional peak that at the end of the discourse they were openly sobbing. One of them said that if the apology had not been made she could not have brought herself to go to church again.

"There are some things worse than death,' 'she said, "and he was talking about one of them — divorce. And he was telling us that it took two to make a quarrel," ending in such a tragedy as the losing of your ideals, your faith in human nature and your husband or wife. It broke us up so that we were left so weak we could hardly stand."

THE DEVELOPMENT OF RESOURCES FOR NORTHERN ONTARIO

Industries Must Co-operate With Federal Government on Tariff Issue to Prosper.

HAMILTON. March 7.—(Canadian Press).—That the development of Ontario's resources in the northland would prove a solution of a period of depression in this province was the prediction of Hon. James E. Lyn, Minister of Forests and Lands, who yesterday addressed the Women's Liberal Conservative Association. Hon. Mr. Lyon declared that if Ontario were to prosper the industries must have the co-operation of the Federal Government on the tariff issue. Any reduction in the protection of agricultural implements would result in the further exodus of the citizens. The advantages of immigration were stressed, but the speaker added that it was necessary to provide work for the present population as well as the new-comers, and this contention should not be brought about if the industrial concerns are not protected by the Dominion Government.

In explaining how the northland could solve the problems of Ontario, the speaker said that if the raw materials were taken advantage of, the industries would be made busy in finishing the output into a finished product, and employment would be provided the laboring classes. It would follow that they would create a market for farm produce, and all classes would share the benefits.

LIBERALS DEMURRED IN BOTH HOUSES AGAINST REDUCTION OF TARIFF

Montreal Members of the Senate and Commons Express Objections to Hasty Changes — Protection Should Be For the Whole Country, Asserted Herbert Marler--Tax Amendments Condemned.

Government Warned.

OTTAWA, March 7.—(Canadian Press).—In both Houses of Parliament yesterday there were Liberal demures to tariff reductions.

In the Upper House Senator J. P. B. Casgrain of Montreal avowed himself a Liberal and a protectionist; in the Commons Herbert Marler, also of Montreal, objected to any "hasty-ill-advised changes."

"Any changes which may be proposed," urged Mr. Marler, "should be carefully thought out, not confining ourselves to the immediate present, but looking into the future to see where such things will land us. We have to try to devise a fair and reasonable policy both for the east and the west." It was a question of allowing towns and cities to live. All that was asked was a cost-of-living tariff for the efficient manufacturer.

The British preference, too, carried with it the expectation that it would open for Canada a more extensive market for Canadian goods —so Mr. Marler argued—but the result had not fulfilled expectations. Mr. Marler further declared that he could not see any particular advantage in public-ownership of railways.

For Whole Country.

Mr. Marler added that he believed that the Laurier-Fielding tariff had always made for prosperity. The tariff should be administered not for the profit of manufacturers who made huge profits under the cloak of the tariff; not for the protection of inefficient workers, but for the benefit of the country as a whole, to create employment for the workers and traffic for the railways. No changes had been made in the tariff, said Mr. Marler, which had not been carefully considered and properly understood. He would ask that such consideration be given before any changes were made and that no change should be made which was "inadvisable."

He warned Progressive members that their tariff policy might convert Canada into "war house and a dumping-ground." He did not believe that it was possible to build up for Canada an expert trade in wheat and flour alone. Other products must be exported to create a market for Canada's wheat and flour which could not claim a monopoly in cargo-carrying vessels.

In reply to interruptions from the Progressive ranks, Mr. Marler said that he was quite prepared to admit that there were some taxes which could be taken off agriculture. What he advocated was a tariff which would not put the cities out of existence. If the home market went, agriculture would suffer very severely.

Taxes Complex.

Dealing with methods of taxation, Mr. Marler advocated the consolidation of our present taxes with a view to removing some of the present complications which perplexed business men. He criticized changes made last session in the Sales Tax and in the Income Tax. Both were complicated and the amendment making the Income Tax a prior lien on all assets was threatening to put millions into mortmain every year. He solemnly warned the Government that this amendment should not be persisted in.

Stone for Bread.

J. A. MacKelvie (Conservative, Yale) characterized the appointment of a royal commission on the Home Bank as handing out a stone to the depositors who are asking for bread. He contrasted the attitude of the present Government to that of Premier Baldwin in Great Britain. Premier Baldwin had given a pledge that there would be no fiscal changes without an election, and he had felt bound by that pledge to go to the country. The present Government had given a pledge of tariff stability last year, and if they were consistent they should follow Premier Baldwin's example and appeal to the people. The Premier had

FRENCH FINANCE AT A LOW LEVEL

Plain Facts Revealed by Senator Regarding Slump of Franc.

(By Webb Miller, United Press Staff Correspondent).

PARIS, March 7. — Apparently obeying instruction from the Government, the French newspapers refrained to-day from commenting on the latest record slump of the franc to unprecedented low levels.

Opening at 25.40 to the dollar, the franc gave no early evidences of recovery from its weak position.

Premier Poincare attributes the financial crisis to the hesitancy of the Senate in approving his programme of fiscal reform.

The Echo de Paris says the Premier sent a note to the Senate Committee, which is considering the financial measures proposed by the Government, saying: "France's enemies have placed their hopes in the Senate's hostility. Therefore I will not permit the obstruction of the Government's programme in any way."

Senator Burneger, however, insists that the crisis is due to treasury shortage. The Bank de France issued 3,500,000,000 in bank notes since the first of the year. "Moreover," says the Senator, "the bank's advances to the State have reached 22,000,000,000." The legal limit is 23,200,000,000.

"We've nearly reached the roof. That's the brutal fact. It's useless to try to conceal.

OFFERS SOLUTION.

LONDON, March 7. — (United Press).—Charging the Banque De France with "entering upon a policy of currency inflation," the Manchester Guardian today declares the solution of the reparations problem is the only means to save the French franc from ultimate desolution. The franc opened at an unprecedented low of 109.55 to the pound sterling, approximately 3.90 cents.

THREE WORKERS WERE KILLED IN FIGHTING

MAYENCE, March 7. — (United Press).—Three workers were killed and 38 wounded in fighting with the police at the Badis-Cheaniline works at Ludwigshafen to-day. Five police were wounded. Serious trouble is feared.

One worker was killed yesterday and twenty wounded when the factory closed its doors, locking out 20,000 workers.

Franc Plunged to Record Low Level Under Four Cents

First Time In History the French Standard Dropped So Low—Foreign Selling Orders Precipitated the Decline—Sterling Firm.

NEW YORK, March 7.—Selling for the first time in history below four cents, the French franc plunged to a new record low level at 3.95 cents. At the same time the discount on French futures was increased to ten points a month below the spot price for the next three months.

The unprecedented increase of almost a billion francs in French note circulation to a new high total of 40,265,900,000 francs brought a flood of selling orders from foreign capitals which precipitated the decline.

Added to the uneasiness over the country's problem of balancing its budget and handling its floating debt, the uncertainty regarding the Bank of France statement, which showed no increase in advances, was held responsible for most of the speculative selling from Paris.

The ultimatum of Premier Poincare that he would place the resignation of his cabinet before President Millerand unless his fiscal reforms were approved also tended to shatter confidence.

While Belgian francs were sympathetically weak on Thursday's market, demand Sterling held firm and Spanish pesetas steadied after touching the lowest figure in several years yesterday. Japanese yen continued to fall, reaching a new low for the year at 44.30 cents.

SENATOR WOULD REDUCE CABINET

Sir George Foster Says Five Portfolios Could Be Dispensed With — Casgrain Proposes Withdrawing From League of Nations.

OTTAWA, March 7.— That the Dominion cabinet be reduced from seventeen to twelve ministers, was the suggestion made by Sir George Foster in the Senate yesterday. On grounds of economy, Sir George advocated the abolition of the Department of the secretary of State, the merger of the Customs Department with that of Finance the combining into one department of public works, railways and canals, and fisheries departments, the addition of the Solicitor-General's department with the Justice department and the merging of the Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment department with the Defens, Department. This would automatically abolish five cabinet portfolios which carry a salary of $10,000 a year each.

Sir George felt that this was a serious time to commence tarriff reductions. A low tariff would mean arrested development of the country transferring industry to the United States with the departure of Sir Lomer Gouin and Right Hon. W. S. Fielding gone from the Cabinet. "The free-traders were having their innings."

Debt Underestimated

Senator J. P. B. Casgrain thought that the debt of Canada was much greater than had been estimated. To our National Debt we could add our railway debt. The late Government had not put into effect any economies. He understood that the present Government would balance the Budget, but he was skeptical about this. He was a protectionist and could be a good Liberal and a protectionist. Such freedom of opinion was not allowed in the Conservative party.

He suggested as a further means of economy that we should withdraw from the League of Nations on which we were spending $200 a day, with no returns to Canada. The expenditure each year of $50,000 for an Ambassador at Washington would be useless expenditure.

Dealing with business conditions, he said, the depreciation of European currency had led to a flow of goods from that continent into Canada. The British preference was useless to Canada. Sir Wilfrid Laurier had said that we expected nothing in return but he knew that he was disappointed that our generosity had not been fully appreciated in England We should take the position of Premier Bruce of Australia, who told the British people that if they did not want to give us a preference there were other people who did.

Says Education Hits Human Race

SAN FRANCISCO, March 7.—Higher education is more devastating to the human race than war, Dr. S. J. Holmes, professor of Zoology at the University of California, asserted in a lecture at the Academy of Science here.

The professor said that was because of the prevalence of small families among the "highly intelligent," which tends toward the extinction of "better endowed stock."

POINCARE FIRM FOR ECONOMIES

The French Premier Will Resign Unless Fiscal Bill Is Approved By Senate Without Amendments Proposed By the Upper Chamber.

PARIS, March 7.—(Canadian Press).—Premier Poincare's ultimatum to the Finance Committee of the Senate last night that his Cabinet would resign unless the committee approved his fiscal measures, caused the committee to announce that it will again have a conference with the Premier and Minister of Finance De Lasteyrie today or Saturday in an attempt to reach an agreement. If this comes about the financial bills will come up for discussion in the Senate next Tuesday.

The measures in question providing for fiscal economy and additional twenty per cent. taxation, have been voted by the Chamber. They are designed to balance the French budget and improve the franc on the international exchange market.

M. Poincare insists that the measures must be voted without changes, as received from the Chamber. Reporting on the measure, the Finance Committee decided against the three main provisions, namely, reduction of expenditures by Governmental decree without authority from Parliament, a twenty per cent. increase in taxation, and introduction of a system of so-called coupons to prevent frauds by security holders in connection with their income taxes.

MACDONALD GOT LIBERAL VOTES

Government Carried Division By Majority of 70—Levy on German Exports Reduced.

LONDON, March 7.—A Conservative motion to reduce the Civil Service vote as a protest against the action of the Government whereby it will receive only five, instead of twenty-six per cent. levy on German exports was rejected in the House of Commons last night ,240 votes to 170. The Liberals voted with the Government, their views being that though the agreement is susceptible to criticism, it is not a matter of sufficient importance for an adverse vote threatening the life of the Government.

The vote was taken after considerable discussion, in the course of which Phillip Snowden, Chancellor of the Exchequer, defended the Government's action.

Former Premier Lloyd George joined in the criticism on the ground that if any abatement of claims was made in Germany's favor it should not be made by Great Britain alone, but by all the allies, and that it was time for Great Britain to stand up for her rights.

PROGRESSIVES WANT REDUCED LIVING COSTS

Ask Tariff That Will Benefit the Whole Country and Not Farmers Alone --Debate on Speech Continues.

DUMPING DUTY

OTTAWA, March 7. — Canadian Press. — The debate on the address in the House hangs fire, waiting for a decision by the Conservatives whether they will move an amendment or what the amendment will be. There is still an opinion current in the corridors that the official opposition will put in an amendment before the debate closes, but no announcement has been made and the matter is still uncertain.

The debate reopens this afternoon with a Conservative speaker, Donald Sutherland of South Oxford, and he will be followed, according to today's schedule, by two Liberals, a Progressive and a Conservative. The two other Liberals are J. J. Hughes of Prince Edward Island, and Hance Logan of Cumberland, while T. W. Bird, Progressive, of Nelson, is to take the floor in the interval between them. H. C. Hocken, Conservative, Toronto, is listed to wind up the debate for the day.

There are indications developing that the Progressives mean to press the government for tariff reductions, much beyond the placing of agricultural implements on the free list. Indeed it is not certain that they will urge the complete abolition of these duties with great insistence.

The Progressives state that they want a tariff that will benefit the whole country, and not the farmers only. Moreover they urge that what the farmers as well as the rest of the country need is a general reduction of the cost of living, and this would not be accomplished by a change in the duties on agricultural implements alone. Among the items stressed in this connection are textiles and boots and shoes, which play a specially important part in the cost of living.

Another step towards tariff reduction which is being urged in progressive circles is the abolition of the dumping duty. This duty, it is stated, has now ceased to be the manufacturers' protection, and has included protection for wholesalers, and even in some cases for retailers.

This phase of the tariff is reported by means of recent interpretations to have become a serious handicap to cooperative societies.

It is worthy of notice in connection with the subject of tariff reduction and with the debate on the address, that J. J. Hughes of Prince Edward Island, who is one of the Liberal speakers for to-day, has a resolution on the order paper declaring for a revenue tariff.

INCREASE ARMY RESERVE.

LONDON, March 7.—The Secretary for War in announcing the reduction in the army estimates, stated that efforts to increase the army reserve should result in the number of Reservists being 10,000 greater by April 1st.

DOPE RING FOUND IN PETERBOROUGH

Seven Charges This Morning and More to Come --Dr. D.C. King Charged With Supplying.

As a result of arrests made this week by the Peterborough force, an alleged dope ring is in process of dissolution, seven charges being preferred this morning and more arrests being hourly expected. One man who came to watch the proceedings was taken from his seat in the court room and lodged in the cells awaiting formal arraignment to-morrow morning.

Dr. D. C. King was charged with two infractions of the Narcotic Drug Act and one breach of the Ontario Temperance Act, on all of which he was remanded on his own recognizance. Specifically they were that on Wednesday of this week he, being a physician, did prescribe and administer, sell, give or furnish, laudanum not required for medicinal purposes to Joseph Collins and to Alonzo York, these men not being under his professional treatment, and that on the same day he gave Robert Winter Armitage a prescription for 6 ounces of liquor for the purpose of evading the provision of the Ontario Temperance Act.

J. F. Strickland appeared for the accused and agreed with the prose-

A RINCE THINKS!

Looks like he's escaped his mama's watchful eye and thinking aobut it. You'd hardly think she'd led him be roaming around in his B. V. X's, if she knew it. But appearances oft are deceptive. The young man is quite correct in his attire. He's not wearing his unmentionables, but his regal regalia. He is little Prince Mihai, son of Ruman's crown prince.

cution in asking a remand until Wednesady on the O.T.A. case and until Friday on the drug cases, no plea being entered.

Crown Attorney G. W. Hatton, K.C., appeared for the Crown in the drug cases and J. Wearing, City Solicitor, in the O.T.A. case.

Alonzo York was charged with having in his possession on Wednesday last a drug, laudanum, not required for medicinal purposes, and pleaded guilty. Joseph Collins, arraigned on the same charge, also pleaded guilty.

John Pethick, charged with having on 28th February, 25 one quarter grain morphine tablets in his possession, and on March 1 having 20 of the tablets, pleaded guilty to both charges.

Quint Hargrove pleaded guilty to having one ounce of laudanum on March 1. He said he had been fighting the habit two months, having realized what it was doing to him. "I have it pretty well beat now."

All of the prisoners charged under the drug act, were remanded until Friday next, when they will probably be called on as witnesses, Chief Newhall remarking: "I'm after the root of the evil."

On disposing of the line-up this morning Magistrate O. A. Langley said he sympathized with the condition of the drug addict and hoped that the country would recognize the need of detention homes for such cases.

SOCIAL EVENING

Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Kidd entertained the choir and orchestra last night in the school room next to the parsonage.

Upon the arrival of the choir from the church after a short rehearsal, the orchestra rendered several selections which were very acceptable.

A grand march was then formed and it was particularly noticeable that the married men present had a penchant for youth and beauty. However, there was no lack of the latter, and the young men soon had pleasant partners.

About sixty people sat down to prettily decorated tables, where dainty refreshments were served by several pretty young ladies, who assisted Mrs. Kidd.

Mr. R. F. Downey announced that he had been chosen Speaker and as it was thought best not to start an argument, as the Speaker had already fortified himself with a heavy stick, the situation was accepted.

The Speaker then proposed a toast to Mr. and Mrs. Kidd, which was heartily endorsed by those present.

In replying, Mr. Kidd said that it was a pleasure to meet the choir and orchestra on an occasion such as this He stated that Mrs. Kidd and himself realized the time and sacrifice that was sometimes necessary to make for each member to attend the rehearsals and church services morning and evening regularly in all kinds of weather, and that the musical services had become a very important part of the service in the church.

Music in the Sunday School was also commended and was a source of interest, pleasure, and profit, to the scholars.

The Speaker then called on Mrs. Geo. H. King, who gave a brief address.

Mr. R. Gliddon was the next speaker and told of the pleasure derived from conducting an enthusiastic squad of musicians as those in the orchestra.

Mr. Kennett who was next called upon, responded in a happy manner telling a ghost story which had to do with a swinging sign in front of an Old Country inn, the iron supports of which penetrated the building, and working loose had caused a rocking of the floor, that was transmitted to the bed, much to the terror of occasional guests.

Mr. G. H. King said that in his opinion the social gatherings acted in a beneficial manner on the choir, promoting a feeling of comradeship and improving the morale.

Miss Margaret Neill favoured the company with a recitation.

Mr. Adams sang a song, "The Wildflower," which was very appropriate.

Mr. Skitch expressed his desire to be excused, and suggested the first tenor as a substitute. The Speaker, acting on the suggestion, called Mr. S. H. Mitchell. The call being unexpected left the called one speechless, and the notes which he had prepared being surreptitiously acquired by Bryan, while the owner was serving his partner to a second helping of ice cream, was a further handicap and as Mr. Mitchell was suffering from a slight cold, which prevented him from singing his favourite song, he requested a fellow member to substitute for him.

The Speaker here ruled the request out of order, as an usurpation of the power of the chair, declaring he found a growing tendency to encroach upon the prerogative of the Speaker.

Mr. J. Minicola, upon request, gave two cornet solos in a very pleasing manner, and Mr. Walter Miller rendered a trombone solo acceptably and after the singing of the National Anthem the gathering dispersed.

WARKWORTH SELLS CHEESE MONTREAL

Patrons Claim They Get Highest Price by Selling Direct -- Meeting Yesterday.

(By a Staff Reporter)

WARKWORTH, March 7. — Warkworth cheese factory has been playing a lone hand for the past 18 years, selling its products to one firm all that time and the reputation. There is no affiliation with here stands second to none in Canada. The factory is manned by a force of four it is the largest institution of the kind in the district. It is owned by W. E. Drewry, who manufacturs the cheese and is besides, president of the Association. There is no affiliatton with any cheese board of with any cooperative seilng organization. For 18 years Warkworth chees, has been shipped to Lovell and Christmas of Montreal, under a standing agreement by which that firm pays the highest price bought by any cheese sold on that date on the Belleville board. In all that time there has been only one departure from this rule. The output December last was disposed of to George Ivey of Campbellford acting for Olive and Dorcen of Montreal.

Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the patrons of this factory was held Thursday afternoon in the Town Hall with President Drewry in the chair. The report of J. F. Freure, the auditor, was received and adopted this report showing a successful years work. The number of pounds of milk delivered to the factory was 2,914,071 and the number of pounds of cheese manufactured was 251,120. The gross receipts were $48,163.36, the cost of manufacturing was $75.- the cost of manufacturing was $7533.60 leaving a profit of $40,629.76 to be divided among the 74 patrons. The net price per standard including whey at $1.00 was $42.83.

Officers for 1924

When the election of officers was taken up the only name presented for the presidencey was that of President Drewry who was unanimously re-elected. W. H. Nelson was re-elected secretary. Four new directors were chosen as follows: George Poole, George Rupnciman, Joseph Greenley and R. Potter, who with the president will form the executive. The salary of secretary Nelson was cut from $125 to $100 but as his work was reduced in porportion he acceptel the new terms which were made at his own suggestion.

A number of the patrons expressed themselves in favour of having cheese inspected before it leaves the factory but were informed that for present at least it will be impossible to secure this change. Inspection will be made either at Belleville or Montreal.

High Grade Cheese

Only once last season did the Warkworth cheese grade below number one and that was du, to circumstances over which no one here had control. It was during the hot weather and before the cheeese was sent to the station G. G. Publow, head of the dairy department, who happened to be in the village looked it over and commended it highly. The cheese fell off in quality in trans it owing to the intensely hot weather his explanation was made to the patrons at the meeting yesterday.

Pays Highest Price

Secretary Nelson stated that the price paid for butter fat at the Warkworth factory was from five to ten cents higher than that paid by any other factory in the district.

President Drewry said that the Prince of Wales and the Ryyestone factories alone reached Warkworth's figures and the cheese factories the patrons drew their own milk whereas in Warkworth district the milk is taken from the stand without delivery charges to the producers.

The Makers Compensation

President Drewry, who is also cheesemaker was allowed last year three cents a pound for all the chees, manufactured and half the whey butterwhich is turned out. He sold last years output of butter at 35 cents a pound throughout the season. It requires 1000 pounds of milk to make a pound of butter according to the process in use here. President Drewry asked that he be charged up with the butter on this basis so as relieve him of all suspicion that he was not accounting for every pound of butter manufactured.

It was suggested that he be paid less per pound for cheese-making, and be given all the butter produced but on motion of George Poole and George Partridge, last year's arrangement was continued.

Mr. Freure was re-elected auditor for the current year.

Can Auditor Act?

Another question has been raised in connection with the issue of the Hydro debentures to pay for the new electric lighting system in the village. As stated in the Examiner the other day, the Percy Council instructed Charles Bowen and Morley Smith, the municipal auditors, to look into the accounts of the Commission of the village, something in which the Council had never previously had anything to do. This action was taken when asked for by the residents of the village, who joined in a petition for an audit before the debentures were signed.

Mr. Bowen was a member of the Commission last year, and is now called upon to pass upon financial matters in which he was interested. There is objection to this on the part of some of the residents, and are asking now that a Provincial auditor be brought here.

On the other hand, it is claimed that Mr. Bowen would not as auditor, be passing on his own work but on the accounts of Secretary Smale.

When the Council on Monday ordered the audit it did not apparently occur to any member that Mr. Bowen held a public position last year.

Lessons in Sewing.

A sewing class has been held every afternoon, beginning last week, in the Council Chamber, under the auspices of the Percy Women's Institute, of which Mrs. George L. Walker is president and Mrs. W. J. Harper secretary. The teacher is Miss Campbell, of the department of Women's Institutes. There are 17 ladies taking the course, which will last four days. Members of the Institute pay a fee of $2, which goes to the instructor, and, in addition, 25 cents to pay incidental expenses. No member is charged an extra 25 cents. The ladies get the use of the hall for a nominal charge to pay for the fuel.

The Institute held a successful course in cooking last summer.

HASTINGS AND THE DISTRICT

Young Men Held a Successful Dance--Personals

HASTINGS, March 7.—The young men of Hastings held a very successful dance on Tuesday evening, March 4, from eight o'clock until 11.45. Although the weather was very wet, the crowd that gathered was quite large. Leonard's four-piece orchestra furnished the music, which was very satisfactory.

Produce Prices.

The price of eggs in Hastings has gone down considerably in the last two weeks, and are now selling at 27 cents per dozen.

Butter has advanced again, it now being 40 cents per lb.

Both of the above farm products are coming into the merchants in larger quantities than previously.

Mr. Geo. Ivey, of Campbellford, spent Thursday in town on business.

Mrs. James Logan and Miss Grace spent Thursday in Campbellford.

Mr. E. A. Bull, of Oakville, is spending a few days in town.

Miss Louise Doyle is spending a few days in Toronto with friends.

Mr. W. Taylor, of Colborne, is spending a few days in town on business.

QUART OF WATER CLEANS KIDNEYS

Take a Little Salts if Your Back Hurts, or Bladder Is Troubling You.

No man or woman can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Eating too much rich food creates acids, which excite the kidneys. They become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood. Then we get sick. Rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders often come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys, or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, begin drinking a quart of water each day, also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and in a few days your kidneys may act fine.
